VALPY'S GREEK TESTAMENT.

FOURTH EDITION, with Parallel References, and other improvements, 3 vols. 8vo, £2. 5s. bound in cloth, and lettered,

GREEK TESTAMENT,

WITH ENGLISH NOTES,

Critical, Philological, and Explanatory, from eminent critics and interpreters; with Parallel Passages from the Classics, and with references to Viger for idioms, and Bos for ellipses; to which is prefixed, a Treatise on the DOCTRINE of the GREEK ARTICLE, according to Bp. Middleton, Granville Sharp, &c., compendiously explained, as applicable to the criticism of the New Testament. The Various Readings are recorded under the Text. Greek and English Indexes are added.

BY THE REV. E. VALPY, B.D.

Two Plates are added—the Travels of the Apostles, a Map of Judea, and the City and Temple of Jerusalem.

This Work is intended for Students in Divinity, as well as the Library.

"This Greek Testament is the most valuable of any that has yet been published with critical and philological apparatus, especially for Students who wish to purchase only one edition."—Horne's Introduction to the Bible.

"Valpy's Greek Testament is to be preferred to either Dr. Burton's, or Dr. Bloomfield's."—Christian Guardian.

"This is a valuable accession to Undergraduates, the Divinity Student, and even the Theologian. We cordially recommend it; and those who wish to purchase only one comprehensive Greek Testament, and that not very expensive, will find in this Edition the very object of their search."—Christian Remembrancer. DR. GILES' NEW GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON,

In One thick Volume, 8vo, Price ONE GUINEA, Cloth lettered.

A LEXICON of the GREEK LANGUAGE, for the Use of COLLEGES and SCHOOLS: containing—1st, a Greek-English Lexicon, combining the advantages of an Alphabetical and Derivative arrangement; 2nd, an English-Greek Lexicon, more copious than any that has yet appeared. To which is prefixed, a Concise Grammar of the Greek Language.

By the Rev. J. A. GILES, LL.D., late Fellow of C.C.C. Oxon.,

Head Master of the City of London School.

. The object of the compiler has been to reduce into a small compass, and at a reasonable price for the use of Colleges and Schools, the best information and most useful matter, found hitherto in several distinct volumes. With this view he has condensed the contents of the Greek-English part into so small a space (at the same time retaining a larger number of words than any other volume of the same size) as to leave room for the introduction of an English-Greek Lexicon, at least twice as comprehensive as any that has yet appeared. Indeed, this Second Part will be found to contain every particle of information which is to be procured from other Lexicons, and a great quantity besides. A short Grammar has been prefixed, which may be found useful to those who do not wish to multiply books, and will be glad to find the present volume serve them for two purposes.

SCRIPTURE ILLUSTRATIONS: being a Series of Engravings on Steel and Wood, illustrative of the GEOGRAPHY and TOPOGRAPHY of the BIBLE, and demonstrating the truth of the Scriptures from the face of Nature, and the Remains of the Works of Man. With Explanations and Remarks. By the Rev. J. A. LATROBE, M.A., Sunday Evening Lecturer of Melton Mowbray, and Chaplain to the Right Hon. Lord Mountsindford.

"This splendid volume is enriched by many original sketches of scenes never before engraved, from artists who have visited the East, and presents to the Biblical enquirer many new points of attraction, which are immeasurably enhanced by the accompanying letter-press, which does the highest honour to Mr. La Trobe, both as a writer and commentator of the Bible. We cannot say more than that the volume is the facile princeps of the publications of 1839."—Christian Remembrancer, Oct. 1839.

A SERIES of SERMONS, Preached to a Country Congregation. By the Rev. JAS. MACLEAN, Minister of Urquhart, Elginshire.

"In these discourses we have a series of Sermons upon the duties of life, in which the noblest principles of morality are combined with and enforced by the pure precepts of Christianity. The peculiar value of these discourses consists in their practical character. They are addressed to the business of life; they display an intimate acquaintance with the human heart; and they unfold the truths of Revelation with such simplicity and power, that they are admirably calculated to move the affections as well as to instruct the mind. If conviction be the end of eloquence, this volume may be pronounced one of the most eloquent of its class."—Atlas.

SPIRIT of the METROPOLITAN CONSERVATIVE PRESS.

DEDICATED TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE LORD LYNCHURST.

This day, Nov. 1st, 1839, is published, in two vols, post 8vo, price 20s., beautifully printed and handsomely bound in embossed cloth (each volume containing upwards of 500 pages),

THE SPIRIT of the METROPOLITAN CONSERVATIVE PRESS: being a Selection of the best Leading Articles which have appeared in the London Conservative Journals during the Year, with an INTRODUCTORY PREFACE by an EMINENT POLITICAL WRITER.

The work is meant to exhibit the genius of the more prominent conductors of the newspaper press, as well as to aid the great cause of the constitution, by developing the views of its defenders and exposing those of its enemies.

To persons connected with the Public Journals, the "Spirit of the Metropolitan Conservative Press" will be of the utmost importance. To the Clergy it will be especially valuable, as presenting at one view all the most powerful arguments which may be adduced in support of the Established Church, and against the innumerable schemes of her enemies. The sound religious and constitutional character of the vast mass of matter contained in these volumes will also render the work an admirable instructor to be placed in the hands of young persons by the heads of families. It must, in a word, form a book of constant reference, indispensable alike for the private as well as the public library, and a complete Text-book for the politician of every grade.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premiums which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

NOVEMBER, 1839.

The Rev. DR. RUSSELL in the Chair.

At the General Meeting of the Society, held on Tuesday, the 12th of November, 1839, the Rev. W. Dodsworth withdrew the motion of which he had given notice on the 2nd of July last.

The motion, of which notice had been given by Mr. Hull on the same day, was not brought forward, he having been prevented by special business from attending the meeting.

A letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Australia, to the Secretary, dated Mulgoa, New South Wales, 17th June, 1839. The following are extracts:—

WE beg to call the attention of the Clergy to the Discipline Bill, which we now insert, with the alterations made by the Committee of the House of Lords. And in order to afford them a fair opportunity of considering the different views which have been taken of the question, we also insert the Breviate of a Bill, as proposed by the Bishop of Exeter. There seems to be now no difference of opinion as to the necessity of some legislative measure; and we hope that our Ecclesiastical Rulers will be enabled in the approaching session of Parliament to propose and carry such a bill as will be really effectual for the purposes of Discipline, and at the same time acceptable to the great body of the Clergy.

We have been obliged to defer the insertion of several articles which are in type, in order to make room for these Bills, but we trust that the importance of the subject will justify us in the eyes of our Correspondents.

A suggestion has been urged upon us from several quarters, to publish the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE twice amonth instead of once. We should readily adopt this suggestion, were it possible to do so without endangering the stability of the work; because we think our Correspondents are right in stating that this would increase its usefulness as a medium of communication for the Clergy. It would also afford us what we at present feel very much the want of, namely, an increase of space for the admission of subjects of general interest. But our Correspondents will easily see that in the present state of our subscriptions it would be impossible; for notwithstanding the number of names which we have received, our circulation still continues to be more than three-fourths gratuitous.

We trust that we shall be excused for reminding many of our subscribers of their second year's subscription. We are aware that it is very troublesome to many of them to obtain post-office orders for the transmission of so small a sum, or to send it in any other way; and we are endeavouring to organize a plan for the appointment of collectors for different parts of the country, which will obviate this inconvenience; but it will be some time before we can accomplish this object, and until then we hope that our subscribers will continue to send their subscriptions as usual.

"I have availed myself of an hour's leisure, during a journey in which I am now engaged for the inspection of churches and schools, to convey to the Society a brief minute of recent proceedings. Before I notice occurrences nearer home, I am anxious to have an opportunity of stating the satisfaction and thankfulness which I experienced during a visit in the month of January last to the penal settlement of Norfolk Island, to find even in that dreary abode of wrath and punishment, a striking practical testimony afforded to the value of the Society's exertions. Even among the outcast offenders who inhabit that insulated spot, your Bibles and Prayer-Books, and Manuals of Devotion, are among the chief sources of comfort enjoyed by the otherwise all but hopeless prisoner. I never before had so strongly conveyed to my mind a sense of the diffusiveness of that benevolence which you, my dear Sir, on behalf of the Venerable Society, are so active an agent in extending, as when I beheld the eagerness with which those books are sought, and the thankfulness with which they are received among more than 700 criminals, who are there under the spiritual charge of the Rev. Thos. Sharpe. So extensive, indeed, have been the fruits of his attention, that, under the Divine blessing, and with thankfulness to the Society which has so aided his exertions, I may express a confident expectation of many hundred men receiving the light of the truth, and being recovered to a reverence for it, to which, during the previous portion of their lives, they had been practically strangers. Indeed, so far as it is granted me to judge of the sincerity of men's intentions, I felt so confident, as to a considerable number presented and recommended to me by Mr. Sharpe, that, at their humble and earnest desire, I admitted them to the rite of confirmation, the nature and design of which had been carefully explained to them; and afterwards received such of them, as were desirous, at the administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

"The Diocesan Committee have authorized me to forward, from time to time, such supplies of the Society's Tracts as may appear likely to promote the influence of religion among the convict population at Norfolk Island; of which permission I shall thankfully avail myself. During the past year the operations of our Committee have been gratifying and successful in a very high degree. The exertions of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts have continued to augment the number of our clergy; and by the successive arrival of the additional labourers whom they authorize me to expect, I have hope of filling up during the present year most of those stations, within what are called the limits of location, where the most painful deficiency of religious instruction has heretofore prevailed, and the presence of a clergyman was most needed. Of course it would be vain to expect at present to supply fully the existing and growing wants of this vast country, even within the aforesaid limits; far less, when the almost unlimited range beyond them is regarded, which in all directions is being occupied to the extent of many hundred miles by sheep and cattle stations, and the numerous though widely-scattered attendants who have the charge of them. My present journey has been undertaken chiefly to inspect the progress of several churches in this part of the country, which are now fast approaching their completion; and the times for consecrating which I hope to be now able to fix. I am also engaged in establishing two or three new schools, perhaps more, towards which object the assistance which the Society enables me to offer will very materially contribute. In continuation of my sketch of the proceedings of the Diocesan Committee, I ought to add, that we have perseveringly devoted, and are still devoting, our anxiety and attention to the great object of erecting school-houses. During the past year those at Hunter's Hill, Dural, Wollongong, and Brisbane Water, have been completed; at Bathurst and Narrellan good substantial buildings of the same class are advancing; and at Windsor I expect, in the course of this week, to visit one which will cost £100, provided by the joint contributions of the Diocesan Committee, the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and the Go-

"The Society will also rejoice to hear, that, during the year just concluded, the issues of books from our depository have exceeded, in a nearly threefold proportion, those of the previous year, which itself had doubled the issues of the year foregoing. I entertain sanguine hopes of a constant, steady augmentation; and am convinced that we are, and shall be, doing good in a like proportion."

The bishop concluded his letter by assuring the Society of grateful feelings for its bounty, his steadfast attachment to its principles, and of his prayers that its exertions may be ever more and more crowned with success, in spreading abroad a knowledge of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

This letter having been read,

The Hon. Mr. Justice Burton, of New South Wales, who had been invited by the Standing Committee to attend this meeting, addressed the Board on the subject of the religious destitution of Australia. He began by thanking the Society for the repeated grants which it had made in behalf of the cause of religion in the colony. After acknowledging similar services rendered by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, he paid a just tribute to the zeal, judgment, and perseverance of Bishop Broughton, and stated that on his lordship's arrival in his diocese, the Church was in a very depressed and degraded condition; whereas now, in consequence of his exertions, aided by the benevolence of the two Societies at home, and the efforts of many pious and charitable persons on the spot, circumstances had arisen of a hopeful and promising kind. The paucity of clergy employed in ministerial duties in New South Wales had long been a serious evil. This reproach seemed likely gradually to be removed, the number of clergymen having been recently increased. But though much had been done of late in promoting the increase and efficiency of the clergy, churches, and schools in the colony, much more yet remained to be done for the spiritual interests of the Australian population, a large number of whom, though bearing the Christian name and profession, were totally destitute of religious instruction, and debarred the privilege of the Christian ordinances. This he stated to be the case with too many of the free settlers, and descendants of the original colonists, who being, by the lamentable neglect of the mother country, left to themselves, and to the impulses of their own bad passions, appeared to have totally forgotten God, and had fallen into a fearful depth of wickedness. An instance of dreadful cruelty and ignorance had occurred shortly before Mr. Burton quitted the colony, in the murder of several unoffending natives, by certain convict servants, and, unhappily, some free men, who looked upon the coloured people as beasts, and considered themselves unjustly dealt with when sentenced to punishment for such crimes. The knowledge of Christianity, through the medium of churches and schools, and the superintendence of the clergy, must be diffused in these remote regions towards effecting real moral and religious good.

He also alluded to the situation of those prisoners of the crown, who, for offences committed either in this country or in the colonies themselves, are under sentence to labour, generally in irons, upon the public roads and works. The supply of the means of religious improvement for these "iron gangs" is vastly disproportionate to the want which is felt.

He had great pleasure in recording the pious munificence of an individual in the colony, who had already made great sacrifices in behalf of the church, and was prepared to manifest yet greater liberality in its cause. There were other cases of Christian generosity which he could enumerate. He then adverted to the successful efforts made by a clergyman in this country*, in procuring, through his own charity and that of his friends, the sum of 3,000*l.*, besides a library of theological works, as a contribution in aid of the designs of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and especially for the purposes of Australia.

The judge concluded by appealing to the Board for means towards building additional churches, erecting and endowing a college for the education of native clergy, and aiding the schools, the expenses attendant upon which now fall very heavily on the friends of the Church in the colony.

The observations made by the judge, of which, on account of the limits of the Monthly Report, this is only an imperfect outline, having been concluded, it was agreed unanimously, that the best thanks of the meeting be given to Mr. Justice Burton for his able and effective speech. He was also informed, that the subjects of it would be taken into consideration.

He was afterwards elected a member of the Society in the usual manner.

A letter was read from the Rev. J. F. Churton, who has been appointed chaplain to the Episcopal Church in the New Zealand colony, requesting the grant of a Bible and two Common Prayer-Books for the performance of divine service in the church. He also requested a grant of Bibles, New Testaments, Common Prayer-Books, and Religious Books and Tracts, for the use of labourers and other poor in the colony, whose number he estimated at about 1,000 persons.

It was agreed to grant the books for the church, and books and tracts for the poor, to the value of 50*l.*

It was then agreed to grant three sets of books for the performance of Divine Service at Adelaide, Port Lincoln, and Milner, in South Australia, on the application of Admiral Hawker.

The Rev. John Armstrong, British chaplain at Buenos Ayres, informed the Society, that circumstances having occurred which had tended to diminish the resources of the friends of the Church in that place; and an engagement having been made to erect schools for the poor, which it was now found difficult to complete, he was compelled to ask the aid of the Society towards supplying the deficiency.

The Board agreed to grant the sum of 50*l.* towards completing the schools.

A communication was received from Captain Washington, R.N., Secretary to the Royal Geographical Society, accompanied by letters which had recently arrived from Mr. Ainsworth and Mr. Rassam. From these letters it appeared that the travellers, in the course of their progress towards Kurdistan, had been compelled by the state of the country to take refuge with the Turkish army, and that in the great battle which had taken place at Nezb between the Turks and Egyptians, they had lost nearly the whole of their goods, and had suffered great hardships and privations. They therefore applied for some further means to enable them to pursue the object contemplated by the Society in making the original grant in behalf of the Christians in Kurdistan.

It was agreed that an additional sum of 250*l.* be granted.

A Bible and Common Prayer-Book were granted, on the application of the Rev. Dr. Locke, for the use of a new Church, intended for the English residents at Coblenz.

A letter was read from the Rev. G. W. Tyrrell, requesting, in behalf of the Down and Connor Church Education Society, a further grant of books for the use of the schools connected with that institution. It appeared that the Board, in making a grant of books in June last, on the recommendation of the Lord Bishop of Down and Connor, had held out a hope of additional aid, should it be required.

The Board agreed to grant books to the value of 50*l.*

A memorial from the Committee of the Church Education Society for Ireland was laid before the Board.

This Society was formed in the year 1838, for the purpose of assisting schools at present existing in Ireland, and of establishing new schools on an improved system; the whole to be under the direction of the bishops and clergy, and under the tuition of teachers who are members of the united Church. It was stated by the applicants that the institution is not privileged to apply for a grant from the National Society, although admitted into union with it, such grants being confined to England and Wales. A large supply of books was therefore solicited towards rendering the schools efficient.

The Standing Committee gave notice of their intention to propose, at the next general meeting, a grant of books to the value of 500*l.*, in aid of this important object.

* The Rev. E. Coleridge, M.A., of Eton College.

Two hundred Common Prayer-Books, in English, and two hundred in the Irish character, were granted to the Committee of the Irish Society, for the use of the poor, on the application of H. M. Mason, Esq.

A letter was read from Archdeacon Oldfield, acknowledging the Society's grant of 500 Common Prayer-Books, for distribution among the poor members of our Church of the diocese of Elphin. Speaking of this seasonable supply, he said:—

"It was a noble response to the humble appeal on behalf of those distressed people. May I take the liberty of tendering to the Right Reverend and other members of the Venerable Society, the expression of my most respectful and grateful acknowledgments for their having thus so readily and munificently ministered to the spiritual necessities of our poorer Protestants? This liberal grant will afford to some hundreds, who would otherwise not have had it, the opportunity not only of searching the Scriptures, which are able to make us wise unto salvation, through faith in our Lord Jesus Christ, but also of offering up their petitions to the Father of all mercies, in the pure and pious strains of our own Apostolic Church. May the blessing of the Lord rest upon the Venerable Society, and prosper its efforts for the promotion of His glory and the extension of our beloved Church!"

The Rev. J. Davies acknowledged the Society's grant of books for the use of the poor watermen on the Bridgewater canal and the river Weaver; and expressed his earnest hope that, through the Divine blessing, much good would result from this donation.

A communication was received, informing the Society that the Lord Bishop of Barbados had, on the 31st of August last, consecrated the parish church of St. Joseph, in that island. This completes the restoration of the seven Churches which had been destroyed by the dreadful hurricane of the 11th of August, 1831, and towards the rebuilding of which the Society had made a grant when the calamity occurred.

A letter was read from the Rev. H. Budd, White Roothing, Ongar, presenting to the Board two copies of a tract recently written by him, being an "Explanation of the Thirty-nine Articles." Mr. Budd suggested in his letter the expediency of "the General Meeting committing it to one or more of its most competent members to draw up a literal explanation of the Thirty-nine Articles of our Church; to be printed and circulated by the Society as its standard of faith; and to be illustrated by corresponding extracts from the Homilies, Liturgy, and Catechisms of our Church, by way of notes."

It was agreed that this letter be acknowledged, and that the thanks of the meeting be returned to Mr. Budd for the present of his book.

A letter was read from the Rev. James Garbett, stating that a chaplain had been lately ordained for a portion of the rail-road between Brighton and Clayton, and requesting a grant of books for the use of the men employed on that line.

It was agreed to grant books to the value of 15*l*. for this purpose.

Mr. S. H. Murley, of Cheltenham, applied to the Board for a further grant of books for distribution among the railway labourers in the neighbourhood of that town. He said,—"As the men employed about the works continue to attend the place of worship with so much regularity, our clergy are unwilling to close it during the winter. The Rev. Mr. Brown has kindly consented to do the duty until a clergyman is appointed steadily for this purpose. I am in the habit of distributing short sermons or tracts for the men to take with them after each service. I am sure it will be gratifying to you to hear that I have received from Mr. Baillie, the contractor, a testimony to the remarkable discontinuance of profane swearing amongst the men of late."

Books to the amount of 5*l*. were granted.

The Rev. C. Wharton wrote to the Society in behalf of the large and poor population of Lower Mitton, including the town of Stourport, Worcestershire. The inhabitants are chiefly labourers and watermen employed on the Staffordshire and Worcestershire canal, whose spiritual condition he stated to be such as to call for a more than ordinary attention on the part of the Church. Great efforts have been made by the clergymen and benevolent laymen in the district to induce the proprietors of the canal to close the locks on the Lord's-day, and to give the poor men employed by them the rest of the Sabbath. Plans have also been set on foot for raising the moral and religious character of the boatmen and the families of those employed about the wharfs and warehouses on the line of the canal, by establishing schools, and distributing useful books and tracts.

The Board agreed to grant books to the value of 15*l*. for these good objects.

The Board agreed to grant sets of books for the performance of Divine Service in the following new Churches:—

Somerby, near Halifax; Yeaveley, Shirley, Derbyshire; Halliwell, Deane, Lancashire; Holmbridge, Almondbury, near Huddersfield; Minchinhampton; Emsworth, near Havant, Hants; Henham, Walton-on-Thames; Glasson Dock, Lancashire; Shelvey, Bishop's Castle; Dalton, near Richmond, Yorkshire.

Quarto books were presented as follow:—

Turton, near Bolton, Lancashire; two licensed school-rooms. Wheelock, Sandbach, Cheshire. Christchurch, Hants; for two chapels. Ardley, Darfield, Yorkshire. Keighley, Yorkshire; for two licensed school-rooms. Haslingden, Lancashire. Plympton, St. Mary, Devon; a licensed school-room. Walmesley, near Bury, Lancashire. Tideswell, Derbyshire, Shrewsbury; books for the communion table. Anstwick, Clapham, Yorkshire. St. Austell, Cornwall.

Thirty-seven grants of books and tracts were then made on the application of members.

Several donations from District Committees and individuals were announced.

An Abstract of the Society's last Annual Report was laid before the meeting.

A letter was read from R. S. Holford, Esq., of Bolton-street, sending a donation of 100*l*. in lieu of annual subscription.

Eighty-six new members were elected.

LEGACY.

December, 1839.

The Rev. Dr. D'O'LY in the chair.

At the general meeting of the Society, held on Tuesday, the 3rd of December, 1839, a letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, dated Bishop's Palace, Calcutta, June 4, 1839. The following are extracts:—

"A most important design is now on foot for giving permanence and stability to our Protestant Episcopal Church in India, which I am persuaded the Venerable Society will allow me to submit to them. The Christian population of Calcutta has been for some years pushing itself out into a suburb called Chowringhee, running parallel with the superb esplanade of the Fort. Several attempts have been made by my honoured and right reverend predecessors to build a church for this increasing body; who, being distant nearly two miles from our Calcutta churches, do not, in fact, attend divine service—perhaps not one family in six. Besides this vicinity, we have another spot somewhat more distant—perhaps two miles and a half or three miles from Calcutta—where we have hundreds of houses, whose inhabitants yet more rarely have the public worship of Almighty God.

"The plans have failed, from various causes. Still 80,000 rupees were subscribed in 1826; and, again, between 40,000 and 50,000 rupees in 1832 and 1833.

"An occasion arose about three months since, which seemed to me to open a prospect of a church being erected, which, with a little management, might be formed on a plan to be an ornament to Calcutta, and to become the cathedral of the see.

"I applied, accordingly, to Government for a commanding site on the esplanade itself, in the very panorama of the Fort, which sweeps round with a radius of nearly a mile, on the north and south face of this city of palaces.

"Last evening a favourable reply was received from the Governor-general. The site is granted.

"I am now arranging the plans for a cathedral, small as compared with our vast structures at home but superb and majestic when contrasted with the mean and inconvenient church which is now the cathedral of Calcutta. Captain Forbes, of the Engineers, is my able architect.

"I propose a church about 200 feet in length, 60 wide, and 60 high; with north and south transept, and a suitable choir; and a spire resembling that of Norwich cathedral, so far as 220 feet can resemble 313. At the west end I hope to construct this in such a beautiful and massive Gothic style as to give a dignity to our religious worship in the sight of the heathens and Mohammedans, and to attract the indifferent and lukewarm—too large a class—in the Christian community around us.

"Five clergy I hope to attach to this cathedral—the archdeacon as a kind of dean—and four native priests as prebendaries; to be called by these names, if I should ever obtain the due authority for it from home.

"The whole expense I put down at four lakhs (40,000*l*.)—two, or two and a half, for the buildings themselves; half a lakh for organ, chime of bells, clock, painted windows, and fittings-up; and one lakke for endowment to the clergy—for 100,000*r*. at 8 per cent. will allow six parts of about 130*l*. a-year each—of which I would assign two to the dean, and one to each of my native canons, to whom I should propose to assign also missionary duties as well as cathedral—so that schools may be taught, native service performed, lectures to the heathens and Mohammedans delivered, as well as aid rendered to the dean and chaplain in the daily English prayers and services.

"So far as I can judge, no one thing, in a country of magnificence like this, is so likely to give local habitation to our Church as this plan, and to present it in its appropriate attitude.

"When I say four lakhs, I hope I say the utmost of the actual expense; but I would not spoil the design for a few rupees; and therefore five, or even six lakhs may possibly be required.

"I give myself, altogether, two lakhs: one immediately, the other probably not till after my death. I shall have to raise by subscription here and at home the remainder.

"If the Venerable Society should find itself in circumstances to allow of its devoting an annual sum for four years to this vast undertaking, I think I can assure them it would be well bestowed. The sum they have entrusted to me already, I propose to dedicate to this good work in the first instance. It is with great submission I prefer this request; and if the Society should find itself unable to comply with it, I shall still remain, as ever, theirs most faithfully."

The following Report from the Standing Committee was then laid before the meeting:—

"The Standing Committee having taken into consideration the letter of the Bishop of Calcutta, and being fully impressed with the great importance of the undertaking, in its bearing upon the progress of Christianity in India, are of opinion, that the Society should second the munificent intentions and the energetic efforts of the Metropolitan. They therefore beg to recommend to the Board, that a grant of 1,000*l*. per annum, for five years, making the sum of 5,000*l*., be made towards the building and endowment of a cathedral church in Calcutta."

The Secretaries stated, that the Standing Committee proposed that this grant should be made in February.

A memorial from the Committee of the Church Education Society for Ireland, laid before the Board at the last general meeting, was taken into consideration.

This Society was formed in the year 1838, for the purpose of assisting schools at present existing in Ireland, and of establishing new schools on an improved system; the whole to be under the direction of the bishops and clergy, and under the tuition of teachers who are members of the united Church. It was stated by the applicants, that the institution is not privileged to apply for a grant from the National Society, although admitted into union with it, such grants being confined to England and Wales. A large supply of books was therefore solicited towards rendering the schools efficient.

The Standing Committee, pursuant to notice, proposed that a grant of books should be made to the value of 500*l.*, in aid of this important object.

This grant was made accordingly.

The Secretaries reported that the Foreign Translation Committee, in pursuance of the proceedings of July 2, 1839, had respectfully requested his Grace, the President, to nominate a few additional members of the Society to be appointed members of that Committee.

A letter was read from his Grace, suggesting the following names:—

Rev. Dr. Mill.	Rev. Josiah Forshall.
Rev. Dr. McCaul.	Rev. R. Cattermole.
Rev. Benjamin Harrison.	Rev. Henry Melvill.

A letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Jamaica, dated Bishop's Lodge, Jamaica, Sept. 30, 1839. The following are extracts:—

"I beg leave to submit the accompanying letter and report from the Inspector of National Schools in this island—an office which their rapid increase and the size of the island have rendered necessary, and from which I have derived the most satisfactory results.

"My object is to impress on the minds of members of Assembly the necessity for these institutions in every part of the island, and I am happy to say that I perceive a growing disposition to encourage them. The Chief-Justice and magistracy are about to move for two committees at the Council Board on the first day of the approaching session; one to inquire into all charities, foundations for schools, &c. with a view to their concentration, and greater efficiency in promoting the ends for which they were designed; the other, to place the whole ecclesiastical establishment on a better footing. Our object is to assign to all their respective districts of duty; in short, to accommodate our institutions to the active circumstances of the colony.

"Whatever you may read to the contrary, I fearlessly affirm that the negro population are conducting themselves with propriety; that they are working, generally well, and irritation will, I trust, subside. The House of Assembly resume their important and most responsible duties under our new Governor, Sir Charles Metcalf, who was installed on the 25th, and, from his mild and conciliatory manners, is particularly calculated to throw oil on our troubled political waters.

"I am establishing branch committees of the Diocesan Society here."

Appended to this letter was a communication to his lordship from the Rev. G. D. Hill, Inspector of the National Schools in the island, by which it appeared that there are 6494 scholars under daily tuition; showing an increase of six schools in actual operation, and of 1300 pupils since the Report of 1838.

The Board agreed to place books at the disposal of the bishop, to the value of 250*l.*

A letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, dated New York, Nov. 6, 1839. The following are extracts:—

"On entering on the affairs of my new diocese, which are confessedly in a very perplexed condition, and require more than ordinary care and toil for their administration, I must again appeal to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, for an assistance to which, in a humbler and more timid sphere of usefulness, I have been frequently and deeply indebted.

"The miserable destitution of the Protestant inhabitants of many populous settlements on the coast of Newfoundland, their want of books, of schools, of pastoral ministrations or instruction in the truths of religion, of any character at all, are not unknown to your Board; and it will certainly much encourage my hope of stimulating and reviving a religious feeling in these really desolate parts of the earth, if I shall be empowered by the Society to apply some portion of their funds to the exigencies which I may find most urgent, and which it may be important immediately to relieve. Whatever may be the means which the Society may think fit to place at my disposal, I should wish to be permitted to expend a small part of them in Bermuda—a colony limited indeed as to extent, in comparison with Newfoundland, but, which is endeared to me by many interesting associations, and especially by the growth of an ecclesiastical establishment with which I have been long connected, and which is well worthy of the fostering care of your Society. In entreating you to bring my request at the earliest opportunity to the notice of the Board, it is hardly necessary to assure you that it will always be my anxious desire to carry out the designs of the Society at the least possible expense, and carefully to investigate the fitness of every channel through which I would direct their benevolence. I fervently pray that the Almighty will long preserve and prosper your great Society in His holy keeping."

The Secretaries then stated that the Standing Committee recommended to the Board to place the sum of 300*l.* at his lordship's disposal, for the purpose of promoting the Society's designs in his diocese.

This recommendation was agreed to; it being considered a preliminary grant.

A similar sum was then voted for the same purpose to the Lord Bishop of Toronto; it being understood that the Board would be happy to render further aid when it should be required.

The Rev. A. M. Campbell communicated to the Board that the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts had authorised the Bishops of Montreal and Toronto to engage twenty additional missionaries in each of their dioceses; and had assured them that sums of money should be placed at their disposal, for the purpose of assisting in the building of churches.

Five additional clergymen have been sent out to Newfoundland since the appointment of the bishop to that see.

Mr. Hull renewed, for the next general meeting, the notice of motion which he had given at a former meeting; namely,

"That his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury be requested to appoint responsible editors to prepare commentaries on the Old Testament, the Epistles, and the Revelation, in order to complete the Society's new edition of the Bible, so that the whole Bible may be ready for publication at the same time at which Mr. Lonsdale and Mr. Hale may publish their commentary on the four Gospels and the Acts."

But on its afterwards appearing that many members of the Society would then probably be absent from London, Mr. Hull stated that he would not propose this resolution in January, but on the 4th of February, when a fuller meeting might be expected.

Mr. Hull afterwards moved that a certain extract from the minutes of proceedings of a special meeting of the Standing Committee, which had been communicated to the Board on the 2d of October, 1832, on the subject of the proposed Bible Commentary, should be printed in the Monthly Report of December, 1839, and prefixed to the above notice.

This was seconded by Mr. G. J. P. Smith, and negatived.

Mr. Hull's notice accordingly stands to be renewed in January, and to be brought forward at the February meeting.

The Standing Committee applied to the Board for power to add some members of the Society at large to the Sub-Committee appointed on the 4th of June, 1839, "to consider the best means which may be devised for the counteraction of the anti-Christian and immoral principles that are at present obtruded on the young and inexperienced in our populous towns and throughout the country."

This power was granted accordingly.

A memorial from the Rev. Dr. H. Robinson, the Rev. H. Budd, the Rev. G. Bryan, the Rev. C. J. Yorke, and the Rev. H. B. S. Harris, on the subject of the Society's tracts, was read to the meeting.

The memorial having been read, Mr. Percival White moved as follows:—

"That the memorial from the five Essex clergymen, this day presented, alleging certain errors in doctrine, as contained in the Society's tracts therein particularly specified, be referred to the Standing Committee to consider, and report to this Board whether such memorial ought, in their judgment, to be referred to the Tract Committee for examination."

This was seconded by Mr. Thomas Dornford.

The Rev. Sanderson Robins then moved, by way of amendment, that this memorial do lie on the table.

This was seconded by Mr. N. Goldamid, and carried.

A letter having been read from Mr. F. Sandoz, requesting a grant of books on behalf of the Rev. W. C. Osborne, chaplain to that portion of the line of the Great Western Railway which lies between Bath and Bristol; and a grant of books to the value of 30*l.* having been recommended by the Standing Committee, the Rev. W. Dodsworth moved—

"That these books be granted on the application of the Rev. W. C. Osborne himself, sanctioned by the diocesan" (Mr. Osborne not being a member of the Society).

This was seconded by the Rev. Dr. Short, and carried.

A letter was received from the Rev. R. Hogg, curate of Brixham, Devon, furnishing particulars of the benefits resulting from the grant of books recently made by the Society (combined with similar grants from other sources), in behalf of the fishermen of that place. The following passages will be read with interest:—

"A Lending Library has been established, in connexion with the Sailors' Sunday School, from which 200 or 300 men or boys are more or less supplied with suitable reading. The attendance of men upon the Sunday School has in consequence been very much increased, and the moral improvement in their character become decidedly apparent. A desire for religious knowledge has shown itself among them to a great and gratifying extent. Their attendance at church is more regular, and in greater numbers, while their attention to the service is shown by their extensive purchase of Prayer-Books, and their constant use of them. The intercourse between the fishermen and their clergy has been increased, and rendered more intimate by means of the library attached to the school, and the supply of tracts which each vessel has received. A practice has been established (and thus far with the happiest effects) of having a public thanksgiving service in the church, on the safe return of the fishermen from their winter's cruise of six months, off Ramsgate, and a similar farewell service on their departure for that coast. At the latter (which took place about a month since) the seamen conducted the congregational part of the morning prayer in a most solemn and orderly manner, superseding the necessity either of parish-clerk or choir, and singing in a simple but very affecting manner. As the fishing-sloops leave Brixham for Ramsgate, by two and three at a time, the crews were afterwards invited to meet their clergy in private, for the purpose of reading a chapter of the Bible, and commending them in prayer to God, on the eve of their departure: and this invitation has been, in most instances, readily responded to.

"Another encouraging feature among these rough but warm-hearted men has been their increased attention upon the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This is taking place among the younger men especially. On the whole, there is great cause for humble and heartfelt gratitude to Almighty God for the blessing which He has been pleased thus far to bestow upon our labours; and while we desire to thank your Society for the kind and liberal help they have given, we would ask for the prayers of its members in behalf of the interesting and important class of men to whom their valuable aid has been extended. It may be mentioned, that since the library has been formed, the men have been contributing their pence every week, to create a fund for the future supply of books. And though this fund may not be quite sufficient, as the wear of books is great, yet it is a pleasing proof of the interest they take in the library itself. At present we have one want, which we would venture to bring before the Society, as it is but small in its extent. Some of our old fishermen, who are constant attendants upon the church and the school, are unable to read the small print of our Prayer-Books and Testaments. We have supplied them with a few of the latter in large type, but are still in want of a few more; and of the former we have none. If the Society could supply us with a small number of its large type, it would be a real benefit, and would prove a great comfort, as well as encouragement, to our old men."

It was agreed to grant some New Testaments in a large type to the value of 5*l*.

Several other letters of acknowledgement were laid before the meeting.

A quarto Bible and Common Prayer-Book were granted for the performance of divine service in a new chapel at Newtown-heath, near Manchester.

Thirteen gratuitous grants of books and tracts were made, in addition to those noticed above.

Sixty-four new members were admitted.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

Dec. 1839.

We are requested to correct an erroneous statement which appeared in our last number (p. 79), respecting the Church in New Zealand. The provision of a glebe for the Rev. J. F. Churton is the act of the settlers themselves, who have further engaged to provide him with a house and 200*l*. per annum, in addition to the Society's grant of 100*l*. per annum. It is true that 101 acres of land have been secured, to be applied hereafter to the benefit of the Church in New Zealand, according to the circumstances of the colony.

CANADA.

The Bishop of Montreal writes thus in a letter dated 22d Oct. 1839, addressed to the secretary of the Society:—"I have been greatly encouraged by your letters, as they respect the augmentation of labourers for the harvest, which is whitening around me in all directions: but while I bless God for this encouragement, I feel the need of the continued prayers of His Church and people for enlarged means of supply, the resources at command or in prospect being still lamentably inadequate to meet the demands of the diocese."

A few facts will make this lamentable deficiency obvious to all.

Upper Canada contains an area of 100,000 square miles; or, in other words, is twice as large as England. The whole of its episcopal Protestant clergy (including the 43 missionaries on the Society's list) are 76, who minister at 150 stations. Now let this be contrasted with the state of things in England.

The county of Hertford contains 134 parishes, with several chapelries; and thus, without taking into account the services of assistant curates, employs double as many clergy as the whole of Upper Canada. In a recent authorized return of the population, it is stated that there are in this province no fewer than 34,000 who belong to no denomination of Christians: and it is plain that if this number, who are without even the profession of Christianity, be not diminished, it will rapidly increase.

The following papers sent home by the bishop give an account of the spiritual destitution as existing in particular neighbourhoods:—

Upper Province.

Extract from a memorial of some settlers at Elora, district of Gore:—"Elora is situated in the township of Nichol, fourteen miles from the town of Guelph, being the nearest place to us where the service of the Church of England is performed. . . . No minister of that Church, nor even a travelling missionary or catechist, has visited us for at least the last ten months, to keep us in mind that 'one day out of seven is to be kept holy unto the Lord.' The population is very considerable, and but a short time ago more than three-fourths of them were Episcopalians, but they have deteriorated. The Presbyterians have got a very neat church in this township, while we who still adhere to the only true Church, have not so much as even the shadow of a head to keep us together. Many have grown up without baptism. . . . The proprietors have set apart ground, and will afford every facility towards the erection of a church. The number of Episcopalians in this quarter is 394.

"Toronto, June 10, 1839.

"During the past winter, and through the earlier part of the spring, I regularly officiated in Scarborough at the L'Amoureux settlement: a congregation of from 100 to 120 regularly met me there in a school-house. Sites for churches are given in two places, and timber has been got out for the building, and considerable effort has been made by several of the inhabitants; but the misfortune of this settlement is, that there is no one to take the lead. They are all plain farmers, and there is no family of superior rank living among them. Church people are very numerous, and there is the kindest feeling evinced towards a clergyman whenever he comes among them.

"The Presbyterians have a church and a resident minister in that township, a Mr. George; and our people attend him very largely. I am quite sure that if a clergyman could be supported for a couple of years among them from some extraneous sources, he could by that time make arrangements by which he could obtain from the people and from pew-rents (supposing a second church built) an income not inconsiderable. Of course I mean if he were a man whom they would like, and who understood their manners and habits. They are most willing to do any thing to better their present spiritual condition, and I am sure that a clergyman (of the kind I mentioned) would have great influence among them; and it is a township that sadly wants in it some constantly operating influence for good."

* * * There are many zealous Churchmen and really pious people whom a clergyman would find ready to co-operate with him in his plans, and I think this is the very moment when one ought to be sent to reside there. There is for the most part a new population there, and a favourable disposition towards the Church at this moment existing. Many entirely separate, and (for the country) large congregations could be formed, and not inconveniently served. The church near Colonel M'Lean's would be within a few hours' ride; and besides the congregation which I met at L'Amoureux, there is another that I have occasionally officiated to, about half way between the Kingston Road and L'Amoureux, on the town-line between York and Scarborough. And not far from this spot there has been given a very beautiful site for a church by a Mr. Parkin. And in this neighbourhood I have the names of sixty-five persons, for the most part fathers of families of from three to twelve, who state that they would be regular attendants were there a church built; and who, I know, would contribute to the support of a clergyman according to their means, provided he were a man not disliked by them."

From the Rev. John Grier.

"Aug. 22, 1839.

"In the township of Hillier, to which I give a Sunday evening service once in four weeks, we have a most respectable body of Churchmen, amounting to nearly 700 souls. In 1824, though well settled, there were only three families of our communion. My services are held in a large school-room, but it has not on any occasion during this summer been sufficient to contain more than half the persons who came. The days have been fine, and they had benches around the door, and crowded round the windows. I trust that ere long this important township will have the services of a clergyman to itself."

* * * To Frankfort, at the mouth of Cold Creek, on the Trent, I give an evening service (on Sunday) once in two months, where I meet large congregations, never less than eighty, and baptize a great many children. This is a very important place, and offers an excellent field for the labours of an active clergyman.

"My own congregation [at Carrying Place] is in a prosperous state. I rarely meet under eighty, and often much above that number. At the Trent, too, the attendance is good: so it is at Ameliusburgh, where I have two stations. Indeed, every where around me the services of the Church are sought after to a much greater amount than I can supply. I assure you that I do not eat the bread of idleness."

"Coburg, N. C., Aug. 26, 1839.

"My Lord—I shall trespass upon your time a little longer, in order to represent the very desirable opening for the settlement of a clergyman in the township of Emily, in this district. Of course

I speak from experience, having visited it in my late missionary tour. I can assure your lordship that in no place have I seen a greater and more sincere desire evinced for the ministrations of the Church. Nor is the anxiety of the people limited to merely talking about it, since, as you may be aware, the frame of a very neat little church is erected and shingled. The persons who seem to be most influential there are Methodists, but even these told me that they would be glad to subscribe their share, or even more, towards the support of a Church clergyman; and when I left them, they stated their intention of taking immediate steps to ascertain what sum could be raised for the support of a clergyman, and to have the church completed. I at the same time thought it my duty to tell them, that although their zeal was much in their favour, yet that they must not be too sanguine, as the demand was so pressing from all quarters and the labourers in the vineyard were so few.

"The reason of my singling out this instance for your lordship's especial consideration is, not that I have failed to meet with constant expressions of a desire for the ministrations of the Church in every quarter, but that whereas the members of our communion are generally scattered far and wide through the district, in this township they appear to be concentrated."

With regard to this township, the venerable and laborious missionary of Cavan, the Rev. S. Armour, whom the bishop describes as "long since grown grey in the service of Christ," writes thus to his diocesan:—

"I am truly anxious that 'Emily' should be supplied with a regular clergyman. They are building a church; I supply them on week days as well as I can. I have been engaged for some time past in preaching five times a week in Ops, Emily, and Manvers, until I must say I am worn down. Consider, my lord, that Emily, Ops, Maraposa, Manvers, and Cartwright, are without the means of grace. When each Township was settled, had a missionary been sent to it, I am fully of opinion that it would have saved war expenses." * * *

At its last monthly meeting the Society resolved to provide for twenty additional missionaries to be employed in the diocese of Toronto (Upper Canada), to each of whom it will allow a stipend of 100*l*. a year, in addition to what can be raised on the spot—in general from 30*l*. to 50*l*.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

The want of clergy in this extensive province is equally urgent. A Church Society has been formed at Fredericton, which is warmly supported, one of its chief objects being to raise a fund for the support of travelling missionaries. And the home Society are prepared to offer a stipend of 150*l*. to any well-qualified clergyman who would devote himself to such duty. A grant of 100*l*. would also be made for the expenses of passage and outfit, whether to the Canadas or New Brunswick.

HOME REPORT.

Parochial associations are rapidly forming in various parts of the country, particularly in the dioceses of Salisbury, Winchester, Exeter, and Worcester; and there is no doubt that they will continue to spread, recommended, as they have been in so many instances, by the Bishops and Archdeacons.

The following extracts from letters will give some idea of what may be done by a regular parochial organization.

Menheniot, Dec. 2, 1839.

"Rev. Sir.—It will I am sure, be very gratifying to the Society to learn that the formation of parochial associations as recommended by them, has been begun in this district with the best success. Immediately after the powerful appeal made to us by the Rev. S. Wilberforce, it was determined by the express desire of our bishop, to make the attempt as soon as possible, but the very protracted harvest obliged us to put off doing anything till towards the end of October, when a meeting was held after public notice had been given, and I had left a printed address on the subject, at nearly every house in the parish. Several of the neighbouring clergy, as we had agreed among ourselves, attended and gave me their assistance. The result has been that 34 names have been enrolled, and 81. additional subscriptions promised. This sum I have every reason to hope will be considerably increased, when our list is completed. The next meeting was held at Lerrin a small village in the parish of St. Veep, for that parish, and the united parishes of Boconnoc and Broadoak. The same preparatory steps were taken, and the result was most gratifying. The meeting was attended as before by the neighbouring clergy, and also by the Rev. E. Shuttleworth, who happened to be on a visit in the neighbourhood, and whose assistance in advocating the cause was most valuable. The cause was also most warmly promoted by the Hon. G. M. Portescue of Boconnoc, who presided at the meeting. Seventy subscribers from St. Veep enrolled their names, promising 121. additional subscriptions. The number of subscribers enrolled in Boconnoc and Broadoak has not been sent me, but the additional subscriptions amount to 81. The case of St. Veep deserves especial notice. It is a small parish, with a population of 696 persons, and with the exception of the vicar, the Rev. James Kitson, there is no resident gentleman or landed proprietor, and yet through the vicar's exertions and the interest excited by the meeting, the number and amount of subscriptions above mentioned have been obtained. Another meeting has been since held at Looe for the parishes of St. Martin's, Talland, and Morval, where, with the same assistance as before of the neighbouring clergy, and the Rev. E. Shuttleworth, and the warm and hearty support of Mr. John Buller of Morval, who presided at the meeting, the following large additional subscriptions have been promised,

Looe, from 150 subscribers.....£24 7 9
Morval, from 128 ditto 17 1 2

Thus, after three meetings, and from 6 parishes, most of them poor agricultural parishes, the sum of nearly 701. has been promised in annual subscriptions, being more than double the amount before subscribed throughout the whole district of upwards of 30 parishes; and in addition to it.

For the above success the Society is indebted first and principally to the impulse given by the Rev. S. Wilberforce and enforced by the earnest request of our Bishop, and secondly, to the united exertions of the clergy of the neighbourhood and the other valuable assistance already mentioned.

"Arrangements have been made for two other meetings in the course of the next fortnight; and with regard to the remaining parishes of the district, I can assure the Society that the object shall not be lost sight of, though it may perhaps be found advisable to postpone any further meetings till a more favourable season.

"I will only remark in conclusion, that we set about the work with much stronger wishes for its success, than anticipations of it. The result has far exceeded any thing we had ventured to hope for: all classes, but the poor especially, have joined with the greatest heartiness in the cause.

"Trusting that this statement will be gratifying to the Society, and if known may possibly have the effect of encouraging similar efforts in other places, and particularly the united efforts of the clergy, I remain, Rev. Sir

With the earnest wishes and prayers for the increased prosperity of the Society, Yours faithfully.

Kinwarton Rectory, Alcester, Dec. 3, 1839.

"My dear Sir,—I am happy to report to you, that the Bishop of Nova Scotia's visit to this neighbourhood has been most successful, and is likely to be followed by the happiest results. His lordship was so kind as to pass 10 days in the deaneries of Warwick and Kineton, for which I am secretary; and the following statement will in a measure show you the interest everywhere excited by the Bishop's most able exposition of the needs and claims of the Society.

	Collected.	£.	s.	d.
Nov. 17. Warwick, Sermon at St. Mary's Church	44	6	8
Ditto, ditto. St. Nicholas Church	10	10	2

"These collections are the more satisfactory, when it is borne in mind that the point chiefly pressed both in his lordship's sermons and at the meetings was, the importance of regular subscriptions of all amounts, and from all classes, collected by means of parochial associations. Such associations were formed at each of our meetings, and others have already been formed, or are being formed, in several other parishes. I feel confident therefore that these collections are the least valuable of the fruits, which are, with God's blessing, likely to follow the Bishop's most useful exertions amongst us. I have not mentioned the new annual subscribers, because, though they are numerous, I shall report them to you in the usual form in January or February next.

"The Vicar of Leamington will send you the money collected in his parish; and I shall in a day or two, request our treasurers, Messrs. Greenway, Warwick, to transmit to you 2401. on account of money received for the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, by the Warwick and Kineton Committee.

"Believe me, my dear Sir,
"Very faithfully yours, &c."

CHURCH PASTORAL AID SOCIETY.

THIS Society continues to make great exertions for carrying its objects into effect. A synopsis of its operations and its present condition will be found in our advertising columns, p. 118.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE ENLARGEMENT, BUILDING, AND REPAIRING OF CHURCHES AND CHAPELS.

THIS Society resumed their meetings on the 21st October last. A meeting was also held on November 18th,—the Lord Bishop of London in the chair. There were present, the Venerable the Archdeacon Cambridge, the Revs. Dr. D'Oyly, Dr. Spry, H. H. Norris, and B. Harrison; Joshua Watson, Benjamin Harrison, H. J. Barchard, J. Cocks, N. Connop, jun., Arthur Powell, and William Cotton, Esqrs.

Among other business transacted, grants were voted towards building a chapel at Porthleven, parish of Sithney, Cornwall; building a church at Ardsby, parish of Darfield, York; building a church at Marshwood, Dorset; rebuilding the chapel at Wynford Eage, Dorset; building a chapel at Dolfor, parish of Kerry, Montgomery; building a chapel at Holbeach Fen, parish of Holbeach, Lincolnshire; building a chapel of ease in parish of Holy Trinity, Coventry; building a chapel at Cornish Hall End, parish of Finchingfield, Essex; building a church at Tipton, parish of Ottery St. Mary, Devon; rebuilding a chapel at Yeaveley, parish of Shirley, Derby; rebuilding the church of St. Cuthbert's Barton, parish of Stanwick, York; increasing the accommodation in the church at Barton, Beds; increasing the accommodation in the church at Kimbolton, Hereford; building a chapel at Peckforton, parish of Bunbury, Chester; increasing the accommodation in the church at Wem, Salop; enlarging the church at Messing, Essex; increasing the accommodation in the church at Bray, Berks; increasing the accommodation in the church at Backford, Chester; building a chapel at Camborne, Cornwall; building a church at Leckhampton, Gloucester; building a church at Marshwood, Dorset; the purchase of a dissenting place of worship for a chapel of ease at Nass Maya, parish of Revelstake, Devon.

METROPOLIS CHURCHES' FUND.

THE following is a brief account of the origin and progress of this fund.

In the summer of 1836 the Bishop of London called the attention of the public to the fearful extent of spiritual destitution which existed in the Metropolis, especially in the North and North East parts of it, and proposed a subscription in order to the formation of a fund, sufficient for the erection of 50 additional Churches. It was proposed that each church should have its own district, and its resident clergyman. This call was promptly answered; numerous subscriptions were offered; including one of 10001. from his late Majesty, several contributions from single individuals of from 40001. to 10001. each, more of 5001., a great number of 2001. and 1001., and other sums far larger than had been usually subscribed to objects of public interest. Subscriptions have continued to come in, and still continue. At the present moment the amount subscribed is 137,2131. 8s. 9d., of which 7861. has been given specifically for the purposes of endowment. In the early part of the present year some pious and charitable individuals, struck by the extremely destitute state of the parish of St. Matthew, Bethnal Green, and desirous of proving by experiment, what might be done towards remedying the evils of ignorance and vice and pauperism, by applying to them the remedy which they believe to exist in the salutary energies and influences of the Church, determined to make an effort, for the purpose of providing for that parish a number of additional churches, clergymen, and schools, adequate to the wants of the population, amounting to more than 70,000. For the attainment of this object, a sum of at least 75,0001. would be required. An appeal was made by them to the public, with the full approval of the bishop. The Committee of the Metropolis Churches' Fund determined to appropriate to this object the sum of 10,0001., being 10001. for each of the intended new churches. Her Majesty's Commissioners for building additional churches have granted 50001., the Corporation of the City of London 10001., the Principal and Fellows of Brasenose College, patrons of the living, 5001., the Bank of England, the Grocers' Company, and some individuals the same sum, and many of the companies, merchants, bankers, &c. various sums of from 3001. to 1001. Messrs. Hanbury, Buxton, and Co. 10001., in addition to their former subscriptions to the Metropolis Fund; and from anonymous donors the following munificent subscriptions have been received; from "a successful emigrant of former days" an exchequer bill of 10001.; from a merchant under the designation of "Commercial prosperity," 20001., by the hands of the Rev. Bryan King; and from a Clergyman and his sister, by the hands of the Bishop of London, 6000*l*. Altogether, the fund for erecting additional churches, schools, and parsonage houses in Bethnal Green, already amounts to 43,300*l*. 15*s*. 10*d*., and the total sums raised since 1836 for supplying the want of religious instruction and pastoral instruction in the metropolis, exceeds 170,000*l*. Besides this, in some instances, sites for churches have been given, in others sold at a cheap rate, to the Committee.

The application of the fund up to the present time is as follows:—Eight new Churches have been built exclusively from the fund, and consecrated. Six others have been consecrated, which were built partly by means of the fund. One is now in progress, the expense of which will be defrayed entirely from the same source. Six are building, and nearly ready for consecration, to which grants in aid have been made. Three are in contemplation, to be built wholly from the fund; assistance has been promised to seventeen others, including the ten, to be built in Bethnal Green; so that on the whole, if the remainder of the money requisite for the last-mentioned churches be raised, of which the committee entertain a confident expectation, forty-one new churches, each with its district and clergyman, will have been added, under the divine blessing, to the means of spiritual instruction and public worship which existed before in the metropolis; an addition by no means adequate to the actual necessity of the case, but affording abundant cause of thankfulness, and ground of encouraging hope, to the friends of the undertaking. It should be added, that two parsonage-houses are already finished, and two more are in course of erection.

Of the churches which have been built, or may be built, by means of the Metropolis Churches' Fund, in the parishes which are in the patronage of Brasenose College, the Principal and Fellows of that society have voluntarily placed in the hands of the bishop the nomination of the first clergymen; and have agreed to vest in him the perpetual patronage of those for which a competent endowment may be procured.

It is hoped that this statement will be an encouragement to the promoters of church building, and an inducement to the many opulent members of our Church who have not yet contributed to that good work according to their means, to come forward with their subscriptions.

WINDSOR AND ETON CHURCH UNION SOCIETY.

THE anniversary meeting of the members and friends of this Society was held at the Town-hall, Windsor, on Tuesday, November 5.

The Report states that, in the course of one year nearly the whole of the comprehensive plan put forth in the report of the formation of the Society has been carried into effect. Her Majesty has most graciously condescended to accept the office of patron; the Bishop of Oxford, the president, and the Bishops of Winchester and Lincoln, the vice-presidents of the Society, have expressed their entire approbation of its principles and constitution. The dean and canons of Windsor, and the provost and fellows of Eton, have given it their most cordial support. Thirty parochial clergymen, incumbents and curates of twenty-seven of the neighbouring parishes, have most readily joined the Society as corresponding secretaries. Fourteen of these have already found coadjutors among the influential laymen in their parishes. Twenty-nine other clergymen, resident within the union, have been admitted as members ex officio of the Committee; together with twenty-eight lay members of the Church of England, elected at the general meeting indiscriminately from all classes of the subscribers. And lastly, the four societies included in the union, have been provided with special secretaries, appointed more particularly to superintend the distinct branches of the one great work of promoting Christian knowledge at home and abroad.

The Committee after long and attentive consideration of the claims for assistance which were laid before them at their last meeting, have resolved to recommend the following grants, subject to the approbation of the general body of subscribers:—

To the National Society for the education of the Poor	£50
To the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge	50
To the Church Building Society	100
To the Propagation of the Gospel	150
	£350

The following are the grants recommended for local purposes, in conformity with the designs of the parent societies:—

For additional free sittings in the parish church of Bray	25
For a School-room, to be licensed for Divine worship, in the parish of Iver	25
For a School-room, to be licensed for Divine worship, in the hamlet of Dedworth, in the parish of New Windsor	20
For a New Church, in the parish of New Windsor, or Clewer	50
For a School-room, to be licensed for Divine worship, in the hamlet of Eton Wick, in the parish of Eton	20
For the New Church now being erected in the parish of Old Windsor	50
For additional free sittings in the parish church of Dorney	20
For a Lending Library, in the parish of Stoke	4
For a Lending Library, in the parish of New Windsor	6
Towards the expenses of the Training-school of the Oxford Diocesan Board of Education	50

NATIONAL EDUCATION.

Copy of a letter addressed by the Rev. John Sinclair to the Rev. —, an Applicant for aid from the Parliamentary Grant for the year 1839.

“London, Nov. 15, 1839.

“REVEREND SIR,—Having been requested, by various parties, to give advice as to their acceptance or rejection of the offers made to them, upon certain conditions, by the Committee of Council on Education, and having been asked to explain at large the grounds on which the National Society is now proceeding, I was induced to take the sense of the Board, as to the propriety of returning a public answer to the letter of their lordships, dated the 4th of November; but, in reply to my suggestion, it was remarked, that as no conciliatory tendency was traceable in their lordships' communication, nor any hope to be gathered from it that their lordships would concede to the conscientious scruples and objections of the Society, as well as of Churchmen in general, or would substitute, for their own scheme of merely secular inspection, the more comprehensive plan pressed by the Society on their adoption, it appeared altogether useless to prosecute the correspondence. Under these circumstances I have considered it my duty to offer you, upon my own responsibility, a few explanatory remarks.

“The whole of their lordships' letter, dated as above, is founded on a series of misapprehensions, into which it seems surprising that they should have fallen. The Committee of the National Society had proposed to their lordships a very efficient mode of inspection, emanating from the Church, and had distinctly stated that they would not sanction or approve any system not proceeding upon Church authority: but the Committee did not fix on any one specific mode by which that authority should be exercised,—whether it should be by the primate for the whole kingdom, or by the archbishops for each province, or by the bench of bishops collectively, or by the Committee of the National Society, of which all the prelates are members, or, lastly, by each bishop for his own diocese. The Committee of Council, therefore, had no reason for insinuating that the National Society, in a dictatorial spirit, was ‘not prepared to approve any inspection of National Schools, otherwise than by inspectors appointed by each bishop for his diocese.’ The fact that the Bishop of Chichester could not extend his episcopal authority beyond the boundaries of his own see, was remarked upon, because their lordships appeared to overlook, on this point, the constitution of the Church.

“Another misapprehension into which the Committee of Council have fallen, relates to the quarter from which the funds at their disposal have arisen. Their lordships observe, that ‘an inspection so appointed’ (that is, by each bishop in his own diocese) ‘was not contemplated by Parliament, when it voted the grant on the report presented by the order in Council.’ I wish I had opportunity to remind their lordships that the grant of 1839 has not been voted like the preceding grants, with the free concurrence of both houses, but contrary to the declared wishes and solemn remonstrances of the House of Lords; and that, besides, it is exceedingly unjust to the popular branch of the legislature of Great Britain, for their lordships to represent it as so distrustful of the National Church that it could put no confidence in the fidelity of reports made by inspectors ecclesiastically appointed, but must have ‘an inspection conducted under the authority of responsible ministers of the Crown.’

“Their lordships seem further to misapprehend the nature of their own grants. They state that they ‘require inspection, in order that Parliament’ (meaning, I presume, the House of Commons,) ‘may be enabled to determine how far it is expedient that such grants should be voted in subsequent years.’ Their lordships, therefore, appear to assume, that they are making annual grants for the support of particular schools: in which case, the inefficiency of any school might, in that particular instance, be a valid reason for the withdrawal of the annual supply. But the fact is, that the grants in question are not annual, and are only made at the first erection of the school-buildings; and surely the inefficiency of a school in one parish, and under one body of managers, would not be looked upon by the House of Commons, as any reason for withholding aid from another parish and from another body of managers. It appears to me extraordinary, that this erroneous assumption forms the only argument advanced by their lordships in favour of the inquisition by state-inspectors, so anxiously insisted on.

“The next misapprehension on the part of their lordships has reference to the degree of influence likely to be exercised by a state-inspector. They rely ‘on the authority of the Established Clergy, and on the sound principles of the schoolmasters selected with their concurrence,’ to prevent that neglect of religious instruction which the inspector's secular influence might otherwise produce. But it by no means follows that these counteracting agencies of religion will prove effectual in all cases, and to the full extent required. I would, if I had opportunity, respectfully recall to their lordships' memories the critical period of their own preparation, in the days of their youth, for academical examination in secular knowledge. I would respectfully ask, whether any other knowledge, not taken into account by their examiners, occupied at that eventful period any large measure of their attention? It is notorious, that students of every rank and description confine their thoughts and energies to those subjects only on which they expect their faculties to be tried, and generally regard time as wasted which is otherwise disposed of. Hence has originated a well-known maxim among the intelligent schoolmasters of this great metropolis: ‘whoever appoints the inspector has the direction of the school.’

“Again, the Committee of Council misapprehend the feelings and principles of the clergy, when they imagine that the clergy will not only be not discouraged, but will actually derive encouragement ‘to increased exertion, and to a more vigilant and constant superintendence of schools,’ by the introduction of a system against which the heads of the Church have solemnly protested, and the result of which, when carried to its ultimate consequences, will be to wrest from their own hands the pastoral supervision of the young,—a duty one of the most important connected with their sacred office.

“Their lordships express themselves ‘at a loss to conceive what is meant by the assertion, that the system of inspection about to be established by the National Society is more complete in its authority than an inspection emanating from her Majesty in Council.' But here, again, their lordships misapprehend the meaning of the Society. For surely, if the Society could have prevailed upon their lordships to give the royal sanction to the Society's system of inspection, it must be clear, and not at all inconceivable, that an inspection authorised by Church and State in conjunction, must have more authority than a system authorised by the State alone. And it is yet more important to remark on this point, that their lordships, in their letter to the National Society, bearing date the 21st October, 1839, absolutely disclaim all authoritative interference, either by themselves or their inspectors, in consequence of the reports made to them by the latter on the state of schools. These reports, it thus appears, are to be absolutely inoperative, and are destined to remain a dead letter, buried in the public archives of the kingdom.

"A yet more grievous misapprehension of their lordships has regard to the claims of 'applicants for aid from the Parliamentary Grant, who may have presumed that the appropriation would be confided to the Treasury, and administered as in past years.' These applicants, as I will undertake to show, have deserved far better treatment than they have received at the hands of the Committee of Council, who coldly dismiss them with the assurance, that they are 'not insensible to their claims.' The facts, as I may remind you, are these:—For the space of five years, the Lords of the Treasury had made grants for the erection of schools, without requiring further conditions, than that the tenure of the site should be secure, and the edifice suitable and substantial. The continuance of this practice naturally produced a general conviction throughout the country, that no sudden change of system would be attempted, no new conditions exacted. Relying, therefore, upon the bounty of Parliament, many excellent persons, most of them ministers of parishes, undertook the erection of schools and schoolhouses, in full conviction that, when the difficulties attendant on the completion of building should be surmounted, the maintenance of the seminary might be independently provided for. In this very rational hope they have been miserably disappointed. Instead of being commended, encouraged, and rewarded by the Committee of Council for their open-hearted and open-handed zeal in the great cause to which their lordships are understood to be devoted, these meritorious and spirited projectors are accused of precipitation and improvidence. They are reminded—some of them, perhaps, living in obscure hamlets, seldom visited by the Court Gazette,—that a correspondence which had taken place between two of her Majesty's Privy Councillors constituted a warning which it was stupidity to neglect; and that, having thus neglected it, they must abide the consequences. Nothing can be more painful or humiliating to me, than to read, as my official duty obliges me, the remonstrances of numbers among our clergy, in their correspondence with the National Society, on this subject. Some describe themselves compelled to accept the hated conditions; others speak of their appeals to a poor and already overburdened population; others, who have in some degree committed themselves by accepting the proffered grant from government, have besought the Society to devise some means by which they might rid themselves of the offensive obligation, and return the money; others lament, in terms of bitter disappointment, that large expenses have been incurred, not only by their parishioners, but by themselves, out of their own scanty means; and yet, that all their sacrifices are now to end in partial failure or total overthrow. And, not to enlarge on further examples, several have magnanimously declared that, rather than do violence to conscience, they will complete, or in some instances, that they have completed, the entire buildings at their own expense. It would be but justice to these excellent individuals that the present statement should go forth to the public, and that corresponding sentiments of attachment to Church principles should be called into simultaneous exercise at the present critical moment.

"One more misapprehension of their lordships has regard to the importance of their departure from former regulations issued by the Lords of the Treasury. They inform us that, considering the case of applicants who had begun their school in expectation of a grant on the accustomed terms, they 'have adopted, for the present year, regulations differing in no important particular from those issued by the Lords of the Treasury, except in the condition of inspection.' But this condition, as the National Society have demonstrated, is of vital moment, and involves a principle which the Church is not prepared to concede. And yet even this important deviation from previous usage is admitted to be preparatory to still further deviations. Regulation A, it appears, is introductory to Regulation B; and Regulation B will inevitably be followed by Regulation C: each letter of this portentous alphabet withdrawing from the clergyman some fresh portion of his influence over schools, until at last the State Inspector absorbs the whole.

"It is here a momentous question to consider, who the parties are that urge their lordships forward in this precipitate course. I fear that one most influential party consists of the philosophical educationists; men whose theories are so dangerous, not to the Church alone, but to Christianity itself. 'It is they,' to use the words of an eminent divine in the Scotch Establishment, 'It is they who first laboured out the distinction between secular and religious instruction; it is they who first lauded the beneficial consequences of keeping the religious distinct from the secular; it is they who first projected the Board, and gave in the draft of the machinery of the Board,—machinery set up, a central organisation, which (their philosophy guiding the hands of rulers) is to be worked by them, and on which our poor unhappy schools are to be placed, and turned, and moulded, till, in the revolving of it, there be whirled off from our schools every, even to the last, fragment of their Christianity.' The evidence for this startling statement is to be found in a volume of very alarming materials, printed by the House of Commons. It is there proposed in plain terms, by certain philosophical projectors, that 'no inquiry shall be made as to the religious opinions of the projected Board; but that it shall be declared to be indifferent whether the ordinary teacher of the school be a man of sound religion, a Romanist, a Socinian, a Jew, a Deist, or an Atheist, provided only he never have received holy orders; that if the ordinary schoolmaster, even while inculcating morality, shall make the slightest allusion to the doctrines of Revelation, this shall be declared by law to be a sufficient ground of dismissal: and that in any provision which is contemplated for the teaching of religion within the school at extra hours, accommodation and encouragement shall alike be given to the teachers of all religions, whether sound or unsound, whether Christian or Anti-Christian.' There can be no doubt, indeed, that the Committee of Council intend to stop far short of this terrible consummation; but there is every reason to fear that the impetus once given will drive them to it at last. When the inspector has once begun to exercise the authority committed to him by Regulation B, enforcing some generalized system of Christianity, such disputes on the topic of religion must of necessity arise between this officer and the clergyman, as well as among the managers, teachers, and scholars, that their lordships will be exhorted, and at last compelled, for the sake of peace and good neighbourhood, to banish religion altogether from the arena of the school-room.

"It may be right to repeat, what I have already hinted, that the Committee of the National Society is not answerable, collectively or individually, for any errors in the above statements, which proceed entirely from my own pen, and express exclusively my own personal opinions, with a view of giving you information that may be useful to yourself and the friends of education generally.

"One short question I may, in conclusion, fairly ask: How happens it that their lordships should at this time betray such incurable jealousy of the National Society; such inveterate suspicion that it will not pay due regard to secular instruction? Their lordships cannot but know, that in every quarter of the kingdom fresh exertions are at this moment making by the National Society to advance the education of the people; they cannot but know, that the Society is organizing diocesan and district Boards, is establishing Model-schools, and arranging a system of inspection of the most searching and satisfactory kind, and has already presented to the public a complete report, district by district, as to the state of popular instruction throughout England and Wales. But from some extraordinary political aberration, these various measures, instead of allaying, seem almost to have generated a surmise in the minds of their lordships, that the National Society actually dislikes and dreads the enlightenment of the people. It is in consequence of this jealous spirit, that all the efforts of the Society and of the Church to conciliate their lordships seem utterly to have failed: In short, the Church of England, in the same degree that she has testified a spirit of gentleness and forbearance, appears to have invited hostility. She has reason to complain, that uncharitable suspicions have the more increased in proportion as they have been the more notoriously unfounded; and may faithfully apply to herself, throughout this investigation, the prophetic words of the Psalmist, 'I labour for peace; but when I speak unto them thereof, they make them ready to battle.'

"I have the honour to be, Sir,

"Your faithful and obedient Servant,

"JOHN SINCLAIR.

"P.S. Since writing the above, I have received a letter from a most respectable clergyman in the country, soliciting aid from the National Society, in the painful situation of being actually at this moment in personal danger of legal proceedings, on account of heavy liabilities incurred upon the faith of the usual Government grant. 'I fear,' he adds, 'I greatly fear, that the least delay will be of very serious consequence to myself individually, and to other parties concerned in the matter.' If this and other affecting cases, which have come to my knowledge within the last few weeks, were revealed to the public, I consider it impossible that the Christian beneficence of many influential persons should not interpose for their relief. It would be bounty well bestowed, and proud indeed should I feel to be the channel for conveying it."

NATIONAL EDUCATION.

"Committee of Council on Education,
"Council-office, Whitehall, Nov. 2, 1839.

"REV. SIR,—I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter dated the 31st of October, in which you urge that your application to the Lords of the Treasury for aid was made at a period when other conditions were in force, and when it was presumed that no new conditions would be imposed on applicants for a portion of the parliamentary grant for the erection of schools.

"My lords direct me to inform you, that applicants were never assured by the Lords of the Treasury, that the conditions required by their lordships were finally settled; nor could the applicants have the smallest assurance that the intentions of Parliament would not change. My lords have, however, not been insensible to the fact, that many of the present applicants for aid from the parliamentary grant may have presumed that the appropriation of the public funds voted for the promotion of education would be confided to the Treasury, and administered as in past years, and their lordships have therefore adopted for the present year regulations differing in no important particular from those issued by the Lords of the Treasury, excepting in the condition of inspection.

"My lords cannot abandon the condition of inspection in your case. I have the honour, &c.,

"J. P. KAY."

"Rev. T. Wharton, St. John's Wood."

"St. John's National School, Nov. 12, 1839.

"Sir,—I have this day submitted your letter of the 2d inst., to the monthly committee of this school, and am desired to express their deep regret that the Lords of the Council on Education should still adhere to a condition which, as regards this and all other schools which were projected before this condition was imposed, inflicts upon them a peculiar injustice.

"With reference to the expression in your note, 'that applicants could not have the smallest assurance that the intentions of Parliament would not change,' we beg leave to remind you that it was not Parliament, but only one branch of the legislature, and that by a very small majority, which made the change; against which the other branch of the legislature, by a large majority, entered their solemn protest; and against which also the opinion of the people was recorded in numerous petitions. Under these circumstances, we confidently rely upon the wisdom of Parliament for a remedy to a state of things the tendency of which must be, not only to aid the educational funds of the various sects of Protestant Dissenters, to the entire exclusion of the schools of the Established Church, but probably to extend amongst the infant population the corrupt doctrines of the bitter enemies of the Protestant faith. I have the honour, &c.,

"THOMAS WHARTON."

"To J. P. Kay, Esq."

A BILL

[AS AMENDED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE]

AN ACT FOR THE MORE EFFECTUALLY ENFORCING CHURCH DISCIPLINE.

1 H. 7. c. 4. repealed.—WHEREAS the present mode of proceeding in causes for the correction of clerks is attended with great expense, delay, and uncertainty, occasioned as well by the number of courts which now have jurisdiction in such causes as by the multiplicity of appeals allowed by law from the decrees of such courts: And whereas it would tend very materially to diminish the evil aforesaid, and to promote a more uniform, speedy, and effectual administration of justice, if one court in each province were appointed to have exclusive jurisdiction in all such causes, subject to an appeal to her Majesty in Council: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That an Act passed in the first year of the reign of King Henry the Seventh, intituled "An Act for Bishops to punish Priests and other Religious Men for dishonest Lives," shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

II. Definition of the terms "Preferment," "Bishop," and "Diocese."—And be it enacted, That, unless it shall otherwise appear from the context, the term "Preferment," when used in this Act shall be construed to comprehend every deanery, archdeaconry, prebend, canonry, office of minor canon, priest vicar, or vicar choral in holy orders, and every precentorship, treasurership, sub-deanery, chancellorship of the Church, and other dignity and office in any cathedral or collegiate Church, and every mastership, wardenship, and fellowship in any collegiate Church, and all benefices with cure of souls, therein comprehending all parishes, perpetual curacies, donatives, endowed public chapels, parochial chapelries, and chapelries or districts belonging or reputed to belong, or annexed or reputed to be annexed, to any Church or chapel, and every curacy, lectureship, readership, chaplaincy, office, or place which requires the discharge of any spiritual duty, and whether the same be or be not within any exempt or peculiar jurisdiction; and the word "Bishop" when used in this Act shall be construed to comprehend "Archbishop;" and the word "Diocese" when used in this Act shall be construed to comprehend all places to which the jurisdiction of any bishop extends under and for the purposes of an Act passed in the first and second years of her present Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to abridge the holding of Benefices in Plurality, and to make better Provision for the Residence of the Clergy."

III. Jurisdiction of Ecclesiastical Courts (except Court of Arches and Chancery Court of York) in suits for correction of clerks abolished.—And be it enacted, That from and after the passing of this Act no ecclesiastical court whatsoever, whether royal, peculiar or otherwise, now possessing any jurisdiction to hear, determine, or adjudicate upon any suit against any spiritual person below the rank or degree of a bishop, for the purpose of procuring any sentence of excommunication, suspension ab officio or ab officio et beneficio, deprivation, or any spiritual censure, shall possess or exercise any such jurisdiction, save and except the Court of Arches [so far as relates to the province of Canterbury, and so far as is hereafter provided to both provinces, and the chancery court of York, so far as relates to the province of York], which courts shall exclusively possess and exercise respectively original jurisdiction in all such suits in the manner hereinafter directed, subject nevertheless to an appeal to her Majesty in Council, to be referred to the judicial committee of her Majesty's most honourable privy council: [Provided always, that no person shall be cited in any such suit into the said Court of Arches or the said Chancery Court until request shall have been made or permission given to institute a suit, or until the security shall have been given to institute and prosecute a suit in one of the said courts, as hereinafter provided: Provided also, that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed or held to authorize the judge of the Court of Arches or the judge of the Chancery Court of York, to decree sentence of excommunication or to pronounce sentence of deprivation in any other form or manner than that in which they are now respectively authorized by law to decree or pronounce such sentence.]

IV. Jurisdiction of the Court of Arches and Chancery Court of York.—And be it enacted, That in all such suits as aforesaid the jurisdiction of the said Court of Arches [and of the Chancery Court of York, shall extend to all parts of the provinces of Canterbury and York respectively, and all their citations, processes, and sentences shall be executed in every part of those provinces respectively, and with respect to all preferments therein, and may be enforced by the same means as any citation, process, or sentence of the said Court of Arches and the Chancery Court of York respectively may now be enforced; and in case of a suit against any spiritual person holding preferment in both provinces, the jurisdiction of the said Court of Arches shall extend to], and all its citations, processes, and sentences shall be executed in, every part of England, and in respect to all such preferments, and may be enforced by the same means as any citation, process, or sentence of the said Court of Arches may now be enforced.

V. Suits now pending in Ecclesiastical Courts transferred to the Court of Arches and Chancery Court of York.—And be it enacted, That all such suits now pending in any Ecclesiastical Court, other than the Court of Arches [or the Chancery Court of York] shall be and the same are hereby removed and transferred before the Court of Arches [and the Chancery Court of York respectively]; and the same suits, and all suits for the correction of clerks now pending in the said courts, shall there be proceeded in, either according to the law and forms and in the manner heretofore in force and use in the said Courts of Arches [and the Chancery Court of York respectively], or in the manner directed by this Act with respect to suits hereafter to be instituted, according to the discretion of the judges of the said courts respectively; and the decisions of the Court of Arches [and the Chancery Court of York], in such suits may be appealed from, and such suits proceeded with before the judicial committee of her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council, as if this Act had not passed.

VI. Suits before Judicial Committee to proceed as if Act had not passed.—And be it enacted, That all suits now pending before the judicial committee of her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council shall proceed in all respects as if this Act had not passed.

VII. Before any suit be instituted, a statement of particulars of offence or offences charged to be lodged in Diocesan registry, &c.—And be it enacted, That before any bishop or other person shall institute any such suit such bishop or other person shall leave or cause to be left in the registry of the bishop of the diocese within which the spiritual person intended to be proceeded against shall hold preferment, or in case such spiritual person shall hold preferment within more than one diocese then of the archbishop of the province, or in case such spiritual person shall hold preferment in both provinces then of the Archbishop of Canterbury, or in case such spiritual person shall not hold any preferment then of the bishop of the diocese within which he shall be inhabiting, a statement in writing, subscribed by such bishop or other person, of the nature and particulars of each and every offence imputed to such spiritual person for which it is intended to institute such suit, and of the time and place at which each and every such offence or offences is or are alleged to have been committed; and the registrar of such bishop or archbishop shall and he is hereby required forthwith to deliver or cause to be delivered a copy of such statement to such spiritual person, or shall leave or cause the same to be left at the usual residence of such spiritual person.]

VIII. Spiritual person prohibited from residing on preferment on his consent to abide by sentence of bishop or archbishop, &c.—After sentence given no suit to be brought against spiritual person.—[And be it enacted, That if any such spiritual person shall, within fourteen days from the delivery to him of any such statement as aforesaid, freely and voluntarily, by writing under his hand, undertake to abide by such sentence as the said bishop or archbishop may give, it shall be lawful for the said bishop or archbishop, if he shall think fit, without public proceedings, by a sentence under his hand and seal, to prohibit such spiritual person from residing on or officiating within any preferment which he may hold within the diocese, or province of provinces, as the case may be; and all such sentences shall be good and effectual in law as if pronounced by the judge of the Court of Arches, or by the judge of the Chancery Court of York, after a hearing according to the provisions of this Act, and may be enforced by the like means, and shall be final and conclusive, and there shall be no appeal therefrom: Provided always, that in all cases in which such spiritual person shall have given such undertaking as aforesaid, the registrar of such bishop or archbishop shall, within ten days after the giving of such undertaking, deliver or cause to be delivered a notice in writing in the form or to the effect in the schedule to this Act in that behalf contained, to the person desirous of instituting such suit, and also a like notice to each and every bishop within whose diocese the said spiritual person may hold preferment, and also a like notice to the churchwardens of each and every parish in which such spiritual person may hold preferment; and the bishop or archbishop shall not in any such case proceed to give sentence until after the expiration of one calendar month from the time of sending such last-mentioned notices, nor in case the parties or any of them to whom such notice shall have been sent shall within the said month enter into sufficient security to the satisfaction of the bishop to institute and prosecute, and shall accordingly within one calendar month thereafter institute and in due course of law prosecute, a suit against the said spiritual person for the said offence or offences in the Court of Arches, or in the Chancery Court of York, as the case may be; in which suit, and at any stage thereof, it shall be lawful for the said bishop to intervene, if he shall think fit: Provided also, that after a sentence so given it shall not be competent to any person to bring any suit under this Act against such spiritual person on account of the offence or offences for which the said sentence purports to have been given; and such offence or offences, and the undertaking aforesaid, shall be stated in the said sentence, which shall be entered and remain on record in the registry of the said bishop or archbishop.]

IX. Bishop to sequester preferment in certain cases.—[And be it enacted, That when any such sentence of prohibition shall have been given, the bishop or bishops shall sequester any such preferment in the same manner and for the same purposes as are hereinafter mentioned in cases of suspension by any definitive sentence or decree of the judge of the Court of Arches, or of the judge of the Chancery Court of York: Provided always, that the said bishop may, if he shall see fit, in and by such sentence assign to such spiritual person out of the profits of such preferment any annual sum not exceeding one half of the net annual value of such preferment.]

X. After fourteen days from delivery of statement, cause may be proceeded with in Court of Arches or

Chancery Court of York, on request of bishop, &c.—Provided always, and be it enacted, That at any time after the expiration of fourteen days from the delivery of such statement aforesaid to such spiritual person the bishop or archbishop by whose registrar such statement shall have been delivered or caused to have been delivered to such spiritual person may, if he shall think fit, at the prayer of any person desiring to institute a suit against such spiritual person, or of his own mere motion, make request to the judge of the said Court of Arches, or the judge of the Chancery Court of York, as the case may be, and that thereupon the said judge shall accordingly proceed to take, treat, examine, and determine the matter before himself or his substitutes.]

XI. Proceedings in case such request be not made within three months from delivery of statement as aforesaid.—[Provided always, and be it enacted, That in case any bishop shall not, within three calendar months from the time when such statement shall have been left in his registry as aforesaid, give sentence without public proceedings, or make such request as aforesaid, and in case the person leaving such statement still desire to institute a suit, such person may appeal, within ten days after the expiration of such three months, to the archbishop of the province, by delivering or causing to be delivered to the said archbishop a true copy of such statement, annexed to and verified by an affidavit, wherein shall also be set forth the time when the said statement was left in the registry of the said bishop, and that the said bishop had not within the said three months made such request as aforesaid, and that thereupon it shall be lawful for the said archbishop, if upon inquiry he shall see fit, to grant his permission to the said person to institute a suit touching the offences specified in such statement in the Court of Arches or Chancery Court of York, as the case may be, and within one calendar month from the delivery to him of such statement and affidavit, and not afterwards, to signify such permission by writing at the foot or end of such affidavit the words "Proceed herein," and by subscribing the same with his hand, which affidavit so subscribed the registrar of the said archbishop shall forthwith deliver or cause to be delivered to the party so appealing as aforesaid.]

XII. Proceedings in Court of Arches or Chancery Court to be conducted as Causes of Correction have hitherto been conducted in the said courts, save as altered by this Act.—And be it enacted, That in all suits to be hereafter instituted in the Court of Arches [or the Chancery Court of York] in pursuance of this Act, the proceedings shall be conducted and evidence shall be taken, by commission or otherwise, in the same form and manner as proceedings and evidence have been heretofore conducted and taken in Causes of Correction depending in the said courts respectively, save as such proceedings are altered by this Act, or may hereafter be altered by any order or orders of court which may from time to time be issued by the judges of the said courts, to adapt such proceedings more conveniently and summarily to carry into effect the provisions of this Act, and which order or orders such judge respectively is hereby empowered to make, and from time to time to rescind or alter, at his discretion; and the order or orders so to be made shall be as valid as if the same had been inserted in this Act; and save also when the judge of either of the said courts shall in pursuance of the powers given to him by this Act take evidence or direct evidence to be taken by word of mouth.

XIII. Every suit to be commenced within two years from the commission of the offence.—And be it enacted, That every such suit shall be commenced within two years after the commission of the offence in respect of which the suit shall be instituted, and not afterwards: Provided always, that whenever any such suit shall be brought in respect of an offence for which a conviction shall have been obtained in any court of common law, such suit may be brought against the person convicted at any time within six months after such conviction, although more than two years shall have elapsed since the commission of the offence in respect of which such suit shall be so brought.

XIV. After articles of charge allowed, defendant to give a separate issue to each article, and to plead,

And be it enacted, That upon the articles of charge in any such suit being allowed by the court as admissible, the defendant shall be required forthwith to give a separate issue to each of such articles, and that all further pleading shall be concluded before the taking of any evidence in the said suit.

XV. Power to suspend defendant during proceedings.—And be it enacted, That when all the several pleas in any such suit shall have been concluded, and before witnesses shall have been examined, or afterwards, it shall be lawful for the judge, on motion in open court, on behalf either of the promoter of the suit or of the bishop of the diocese within which the defendant may hold any preferment, or, if he hold preferment within more than one diocese, on behalf of the archbishop of the province, to pronounce, if he shall think right, that there is a sufficient prima facie case against the defendant to justify, if need be, his suspension from performing any spiritual offices during the pendency of such proceedings, and to certify the same to the bishop of the diocese within which such defendant may hold any preferment, and that thereupon it shall be lawful for such bishop, if he shall see fit, to suspend such defendant accordingly, and to provide in the meantime for the performing the duties of such preferment, and if necessary by sequestration, as in the case of non-residence on a benefice: Provided always, that the salary to be assigned in any such case to the person appointed to perform the spiritual duties of such preferment shall not exceed one half of the net annual value thereof, nor the salary which the ordinary would have been empowered to assign to the curate of such defendant if non-resident, under an Act passed in the first and second years of Her Majesty's reign, intitled, "An Act to abridge the holding of Benefices in Plurality, and to make better provision for the Residence of the Clergy."

XVI. Witnesses to be examined to such parts only of pleas as court shall direct.—And be it enacted, That in any such suit witnesses shall be examined on such parts only of the several pleas as the judge shall, on motion in open court, direct.

XVII. Evidence may be taken vivâ voce in open court.—And be it enacted, That in any such suit the said Court of Arches [or Chancery Court of York] (if it shall think fit) may summon before it and examine or re-examine witnesses by word of mouth, and either before or after examination by deposition or before a Commissioner, as hereinafter mentioned; and such evidence shall be taken down in writing by the registrar, or by such other person or persons, and in such manner, order, and course, as the judge of either of the said courts respectively shall direct.

XVIII. Evidence may be taken vivâ voce before a commissioner.—And be it enacted, That the said courts may, if they shall think fit, in any such suit issue one or more special commissions to some person, being an advocate or examiner of the said Court of Arches of not less than seven years' standing, or a barrister of not less than seven years' standing, to take evidence by word of mouth, at such time or times, places or place, and as to such fact or facts, and in such manner, order, and course, and under such limitations and restrictions, and to transmit the same to the registry of the court from which the commission shall issue in such form and manner as in and by the said commission shall be directed; and that such commissioner shall be attended, and the witnesses shall be examined, cross-examined, and re-examined by the parties, their counsel, proctors, or agents, if such parties, or either of them, shall think fit so to do; and such commissioner shall, if need be, make a special report to the court touching such examination, and the conduct or absence of any witness or other person thereon or relating thereto; and the said courts are hereby respectively authorized to institute such proceedings and make such order or orders upon such report as justice may require, and as may be instituted or made in any case of contempt of the said courts respectively.

XIX. Court may direct an issue to try any fact.—And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the judge in any such suit to direct one or more feigned issue or issues to be tried in any court of common law, and either before a judge of assize or at the sittings for the trial of issues in London or Middlesex, and either by a special or common jury, in like manner and for the same purpose as is now done by the High Court of Chancery.

XX. Court may in certain cases direct depositions to be read at the trial of the issue.—And be it enacted, That it shall be in the discretion of the judge to direct that on the trial of any such issue the depositions already taken of any witness who shall have died, or who shall be incapable to give oral testimony, shall be received in evidence; and further, that such deeds, evidences, and writings shall be produced, and that such facts shall be admitted as to the said judge shall seem fit.

XXI. Court may direct new trials of issues.—And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the judge to direct one or more new trial or new trials of any issue, either generally or upon certain points only; and that in case any witness examined at a former trial shall have died, or have, through bodily or mental disease or infirmity, become incapable to repeat his testimony, it shall be lawful for the said judge to direct that parol evidence of the testimony of such witness shall be received.

XXII. Attendance of witnesses and production of papers, &c. may be compelled by subpoena.—And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful in any such suit for the judge of the said Court of Arches or the said Chancery Court of York, or for any such commissioner appointed in pursuance of this Act, to require the attendance of any witnesses, and the production of any deeds, evidences, or writings, by writ, to be issued by such judge or commissioner in such and the same form, or as nearly as may be, as that in which a writ of subpoena ad testificandum, or of subpoena duces tecum, is now issued by Her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench at Westminster; and that every person disobeying any such writ so to be issued by the said judge or commissioner shall be considered as in contempt of the said Court of Arches or Chancery Court of York respectively, and shall also be liable to such and the same penalties and consequences as if such writ had issued out of the said Court of Queen's Bench, and may be sued for such penalties in the said Court of Queen's Bench.

XXIII. Witnesses to be examined on oath, and to be liable to punishment for perjury.—And be it enacted, That any witness who shall be examined vivâ voce in pursuance of this Act shall give his or her evidence upon oath, or upon solemn affirmation in cases where an affirmation is allowed by law instead of an oath, which oath or affirmation respectively shall be administered by the judge or his surrogate, or by any commissioner appointed in pursuance of this Act; and that every such witness who shall wilfully swear or affirm falsely shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be punished accordingly.

XXIV. Costs in the discretion of the court, and may be taxed and enforced as costs in any ecclesiastical court.—And be it enacted, That the costs of such issues, or of such commission as aforesaid, as the judge of the said Court of Arches or Chancery Court of York shall under this Act direct, shall be paid by such party or parties, person or persons, and be taxed by the registrar of the said courts respectively, in such manner as the said judge shall direct, and that payment of such costs shall be enforced in the same manner as costs between party and party may be enforced in any ecclesiastical court.

XXV. Sequestration and application of profits of preferments during suspension under a definitive sentence.—And be it enacted, That when in any such suit any spiritual person shall be suspended by any definitive sentence, or decree having the force and effect of a definitive sentence, from any preferment or preferments, the bishop shall during such suspension sequester the profits of such preferment or preferments, and by order under his hand direct the application of the profits of the same respectively, after deducting the necessary expenses of providing for the duties of the same respectively, in the first place, to the payment of the costs and expenses which shall have been incurred in the prosecution of such suit, and in relation to such suspension and sequestration; and in the next place towards the repair or sustentation of the chancel, house of residence of any such preferment, or of any of the buildings and appertenances thereof, and of the glebe and demesne lands; and in the next place towards the augmentation or improvement of any such preferment, or the house of residence thereof, or of any of the buildings or appertenances thereof, or towards the improvement of any of the glebe or demesne lands thereof; and that no part of such profits shall be paid to the spiritual person so suspended, nor applied for his use or benefit, or in satisfaction of a sequestration previously or subsequently obtained at the suit of a creditor, [except such sequestration shall have been founded on a judgment duly docketed before the passing of this Act,] unless, on special cause shown, the said bishop, in and by an order under his hand and seal, shall think fit otherwise to direct; and that such order shall set forth the circumstances and reasons which induce the bishop to make the same, and shall be filed in the registry of the said bishop by the registrar thereof, and shall be open to inspection.

XXVI. Appeal to Privy Council.—And be it enacted, That in all such suits there shall be an appeal from the said Court of Arches [and Chancery Court: of York respectively] to Her Majesty in council, to be referred to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, and to be proceeded in in the same manner as appeals from the said courts are now proceeded in: Provided always, that there shall be no appeal from any interlocutory decree or order not having the force or effect of a definitive sentence, and thereby ending the suit in the court below, save by the permission of the judge of such court.

XXVII. Archbishops and bishops, members of the Privy Council, to be members of the judicial committee on all appeals under this Act.—[And be it enacted, That every archbishop and bishop of the United Church of Great Britain and Ireland, who now is or at any time hereafter shall be sworn of Her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council, shall be a member of the judicial committee of the privy council for the purposes of every such appeal as aforesaid; and that no such appeal shall be heard before the judicial committee of the Privy Council unless at least one of such archbishops or bishops shall be present at the hearing thereof.]

XXVIII. Appellant to give security for costs.—And be it enacted, That the appellant shall be required to give such security as the said Court of Arches [or Chancery Court of York respectively] shall think fit for the costs to be incurred by such appeal, and for all other costs previously incurred.

XXIX. Provisions of 27 Geo. 3. cap. 44. not to apply to suits against spiritual persons.—And be it declared and enacted, That so much of an Act passed in the twenty-seventh year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act to prevent Frivolous and Vexatious Suits in Ecclesiastical Courts," as enacts that no suit shall be commenced in any ecclesiastical court for fornication or incontinence after the expiration of eight calendar months from the time when such offence shall have been committed, does not and shall not extend to charges or suits against spiritual persons for fornication or incontinence.

XXX. Saving of archbishop and bishop's powers.—And be it enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to affect any authority over the clergy of their respective provinces or dioceses which the archbishops or bishops of England and Wales may now according to law exercise personally and without process in court.

XXXI. Extent of Act.—And be it enacted, That this Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland, nor to the Isle of Man, nor to the Islands of Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, or Sark, nor to any appeal from any court within the said isle or islands.

XXXII. Act may be altered or repealed in the present session.—And be it enacted, That this Act may be repealed or amended or altered by any Act or Acts to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

The Bishop of London in a letter published in the Appendix to the Charge of the Bishop of Exeter, states that the Archbishop of Canterbury wishes it to be clearly understood that a Bill which will probably be the same as to its leading provisions, will be brought into the House of Lords on the very first day of the session, and pressed on with all practicable speed.

We insert the following extract from the Appendix to the Bishop of Exeter's Charge.

BREVIATE of a proposed Bill for the more effectually enforcing Church Discipline, in the correction of Clerks.

The proposed bill will have a two-fold object, first to render more effectual the jurisdiction of the bishop, in the correction of clerks, without public proceedings or formal pleadings, by way of admonition, censure, and suspension;—the other, to simplify and render more effectual, and less costly, the formal proceedings for the correction of clerks, in the Bishop's Court.

[Although the object is two-fold, and many of the clauses have respect to only one of the two branches, others, especially those which relate to summoning, &c. witnesses, will apply to both.]

First, as to the minor offences, to be dealt with by the Bishop without public proceedings.

The first section enacts, that in case of any offence, punishable only by admonition, censure, or suspension ab officio et beneficio, or from either,—or where the punishment sought extends no farther,—any person may lodge in the Bishop's Registry a statement in writing, signed by such person, containing the circumstances of the charge, with particulars of time and place; such statement may embrace no more than [] distinct accusations, and must not go back beyond [] months, from the date of its being lodged, and must conclude with a prayer, that the Bishop will proceed therein in foro domestico under the Act.—The registrar shall forthwith lay this statement before the bishop, who shall, according to his discretion, comply with the prayer, or not.

2. If the bishop, on view of the charge, shall think fit to proceed according to the prayer, he shall indorse on the charge "Proceed hereon." In such case, the Registrar shall cause a copy of the charge to be left at the last or usual place of residence of the clerk charged, together with a notice commanding the defendant, within [] days, to give in his answer in writing, in which the defendant shall either object that the matter does not amount to any offence, in which case he shall be taken to admit the truth of the charge, or deny the charge to be true by pleading that he is not guilty thereof: Provided that it shall be allowable to split the charge, and plead in all or any of the ways above mentioned to the several parts thereof respectively: Provided also, that it shall not be lawful for the Bishop to proceed thus in foro domestico, in any case, in which the Clerk charged shall state in answer to such charge, that he claims that it be tried in the Consistorial Court, as hereinafter provided.

3. The bishop shall cause a copy of the answer to be served on the party promoting the charge, together with notice of such convenient day, within not less than [] days, nor more than [] days, and of such convenient place within the diocese, as he shall appoint for the hearing of the parties by themselves, their counsel or proctors, and the witnesses.

The witnesses, unless in cases in which the Bishop shall otherwise order, shall be examined by word of mouth in the presence of the parties and of the Bishop, and the evidence taken in writing and recorded by the registrar.

4. At the hearing of the case, the bishop shall take to himself four assistants at the least, to wit, the archdeacon of the archdeaconry in which the defendant is beneficed, or charged with cure of souls; or, if not beneficed or so charged, is resident; the chancellor, one member of the chapter, and one priest, of five years' standing.

But if the assistance of the archdeacon, chancellor, or any member of the chapter, cannot in the judgment of the bishop be conveniently had, his place may be supplied by a priest of five years' standing.

And no judgment against the defendant shall pass, unless the majority of such assistants shall advise the bishop, that he, the defendant, is in their judgment guilty of the offence charged. Whereupon, if the bishop concur in the advice so tendered, he shall pronounce the party guilty, and pass such sentence as to justice shall belong.

The judgment to be with or without costs, as the court shall direct, and those costs to be taxed, and payment enforced as after provided.

5. If the sentence pronounced be that of suspension, the defendant may within [] days lodge a notice of appeal to the archbishop of the province, with the registrar of the archbishop, and serve a copy on the other party.

Such notice shall operate as a stay of execution of the sentence for one month; and if, at the expiration of that time, the defendant shall not have entered into a recognizance before the registrar of the bishop, in the sum of [] pounds, with two sureties in [] pounds each, to be approved by the registrar, having given forty-eight hours' previous notice to the other party conditioned for the due prosecution of the appeal, and abiding the decision thereof, and for the payment of such costs, both of the original suit and of the appeal, as the archbishop shall decree, the appeal to be foreclosed, and the original sentence carried into effect.

In case of appeal, on perfecting the recognizance, the registrar shall submit to the archbishop's registrar a true copy of the original statement and answer, and of all the evidence taken on the hearing; the archbishop shall not be at liberty to hear any further evidence; but, if he shall be of opinion that further evidence is essential to the justice of the case, he may remit the case for rehearing.

6. The archbishop shall appoint a convenient day and place for hearing the appeal, and his sentence shall be final.

7. For the better securing the appearance of the parties at the hearing, in case of non-appearance of the party promoting the charge after due proof of notice, the complaint shall be dismissed with costs.

In case of non-appearance of the defendant after similar proof, the complaint shall be taken pro confesso, and such judgment shall be pronounced, with or without costs, as, upon the facts stated in the charge, shall to the bishop seem fit.

8. Similar provision in case of appeal, and the party appealed against not appearing. If the appellant does not appear, on that being certified by the archbishop to the bishop, the recognizance to be put in force.

9. The sentence of the bishop or archbishop, as the case may be, to have the same force, and except where otherwise provided, to be enforced as any sentence of court Christian.

The following clauses will embrace public and formal suits for offences of a graver character, and for all offences, for which the clerk charged shall claim that he be so tried.

1. The first clause will provide that no court shall possess original jurisdiction in any suit, except in such cases as are before provided for, against a spiritual person below the rank of a bishop, or for the purpose of pronouncing any sentence of excommunication, suspension ab officio et beneficio, deprivation, or any spiritual censure, except only the several consistorial courts of the bishops, subject to appeal as after provided, with a proviso saving the peculiar jurisdiction of archbishops and bishops in the diocese of another bishop.

2. The bishop shall be the judge of his consistorial court, and shall, by himself or his official, hear and determine all such suits. But neither the bishop nor his official shall hear and determine the same, unless the official be either a D.C.L., and have practised as an advocate in one of the ecclesiastical courts for not less than five years, or be a barrister of not less than seven years standing, without the assistance of some assessor so qualified.

The bishop, for his better information on any point of law, arising in any such suit, may have an assessor, qualified in like manner.

The assessor shall not have power to hear and determine, or pronounce sentence, but only to act as legal adviser.

The bishop may, for his better information on any point of law, send a case for the opinion of the judge of the court of arches.

3. The bishop may hold his court for hearing and determining such suits at such times and in such places, within the diocese, as he shall appoint.

4. Any person intending to institute any such suit, shall deliver to the registrar a written statement of the offence, with specification of time and place.

5. The bishop shall, within fourteen days after the receipt of the statement, appoint not less than three, or more than five, clergymen, beneficed within the diocese, of whom one shall be, either the archdeacon, or a rural dean of the archdeaconry wherein the offence is committed; or, in case of a suit against a clerk resident in the diocese where the suit is instituted for an offence committed out of the diocese, then of the archdeaconry wherein the clerk may reside, to INQUIRE whether there be sufficient and probable grounds for the suit.

Notice shall be given within fourteen days after such appointment, under the hand of the archdeacon or rural dean, to the party instituting the suit, to attend with his witnesses and proofs at such time and place as he shall appoint, with power of adjournment; and the commissioners shall proceed to examine the witnesses on oath, and inquire and find whether there is probable and sufficient ground for the charge; and the archdeacon, or rural dean, shall return the inquisition, or finding, certified under his hand and seal, to the bishop, and the finding of the majority shall be sufficient.

6. For the purpose of compelling the attendance of witnesses on such inquisition, the court, in which the suit is instituted, may grant subpoenas, and subpoenas duces tecum; and the witness not obeying, having been duly served and tendered his reasonable expenses, shall incur the same penalties as if such writ had issued out of a court of law, and the courts of law shall have power to punish such disobedience.

7. If the return shall be that there is sufficient and probable cause, then a citation shall issue, and the proceedings shall be according to the ecclesiastical laws of this realm. Provided that the officer of the court, serving the citation, shall therewith deliver to the defendant a copy of the charge, with specification of time and place, according as the same has been delivered to the registrar as before provided.

8. All such suits shall be commenced within two years after the offence committed; or, if there shall be a conviction for the offence at common law, then within six months after such conviction, although more than two years after the offence committed.

9. In all such suits the proceedings shall be according to the ecclesiastical law in cases of correction of clerks: Provided that, upon any articles of charge being allowed by the court as admissible, the defendant shall be required to give a separate issue to each article, and all further pleading shall be concluded before the taking of any evidence: Provided that the court may enlarge the time for giving such separate issues.

10. The court, shall in every case, when it conveniently may be, cause all the witnesses in any such suit to be examined on oath by word of mouth, and the witnesses may be cross-examined and re-examined by the parties, their counsel, or proctors: Provided that the court may, on motion, order evidence to be taken on interrogatories, or by commission; as hereafter provided.

11. The court may, if it see fit, in any such suit, issue one or more special commissions to some person being a Doctor of Civil Law, or a barrister of not less than five years' standing, to take evidence by word of mouth, and transmit the same to the registry, in such form and manner as shall be by the commission directed, and witnesses may be examined, cross-examined, and re-examined by the parties; [and the commissioner may make a special report touching such examination, and the conduct or absence of any witness or other person thereon, and the court may proceed thereon as in cases of contempt.]

12. The court may, in any such suit, order the examination on interrogatories, before the registrar or other person to be named by the court, of any witness within the jurisdiction of the court, or issue commission for examination of witnesses on interrogatories out of the jurisdiction, and make orders as to the time and manner of examination, and other matters connected therewith, as well within the jurisdiction as without.

13. Authorises the producing of witnesses out of prison, on a habeas corpus.

14. Examinations upon a commission, whether by word of mouth, or upon interrogatories, shall be upon oath or affirmation, where affirmation is allowed by law; and persons wilfully and corruptly giving false evidence shall be liable to the penalties of perjury.

15. The costs of examination of witnesses under commission or otherwise, by virtue of the Act, and of the proceedings thereon, shall be costs in the discretion of the court, and, if no order made, shall be costs in the suit.

16. The court in any such suit, may direct a feigned issue to be tried in any court of common law, in like manner as is now done by the High Court of Chancery, and to direct that, on the trial of such issue, depositions already taken of any witnesses who shall have died, or be incapable, may be received in evidence; and that such documents shall be produced, and such facts admitted as to the judge shall seem fit; and may also order a new trial, either generally or upon certain points, and that, in case any witness examined at the former trial shall have died, or become incapable, direct that parole evidence of the testimony of such witness shall be received.

17. The costs in all such suits shall be paid by such parties, and taxed by the registrar in such manner, as the court shall direct; and payment may be enforced in the same manner as costs between party and party may be enforced in any ecclesiastical court.

18. Any party to such suit, being dissatisfied with the judgment, may within fourteen days give notice to the bishop, and the other party, of his intention to appeal, and give security for costs as after provided; and thereupon appeal to the archbishop of the province, who shall proceed to hear and determine such appeal.

Whether or not a further appeal shall be allowed will be for consideration.

Against the allowance may be urged, 1st, the great additional expense; 2nd, the analogy of the proceedings in all other criminal causes.

For the allowance, no other reason is apparent, except the supremacy of the Crown; and upon this it may be remarked that the appeal to Her Majesty in her court of Chancery (since transferred to the Judicial Committee of Privy Council) was, not by common law, but only by statute 25 Hen. VIII., c. 19; and that the first statute for the restraint of appeals, 24 Hen. VIII. c. 12, § 6, enacted that the appeal shall be to the archbishop only, who shall definitively decree and adjudge the matter without any other appeal; and while this was the enactment of a law made with a sole view to appeals, the provision in the statute of the next year was part of the statute for the submission of the clergy, and seems to have been dictated by the peculiar circumstances of the times, and by the leaning of the archbishops and bishops of that day to the court of Rome.

If it be necessary for the honour of the Crown to preserve this right of appeal, let the party have the option of appealing at once to Her Majesty in council, but without being permitted to have two appeals. If it be allowed, the next clause will be

19. Either party may, within like time, as aforesaid, and on like security, appeal to Her Majesty in council, to be referred to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council: provided that there shall be no such appeal from any interlocutory decree or order, not having the force of a definitive sentence, and thereby ending the suit in the court below, save by the permission of the judge of such court. And in every such case of appeal, all archbishops or bishops, who are members of Her Majesty's Privy Council, shall be members of the said Judicial Committee, and at the hearing of every such appeal two or more of the said archbishops or bishops shall be present, and shall assist and have voices at the hearing.

20. Every appellant shall be required to give such security as the court below shall think fit for the costs of the appeal, and for all other costs previously incurred, and for his obedience to the sentence of the court below, in case the appeal shall be dismissed.

* This clause is adopted from the Bill of last Session.

21. The judges of the Consistorial Courts may make general rules for regulating pleading and practice, such rules being laid before the judge of the Court of Arches, for his approval, and approved.

22. Service of notice on an archbishop shall be by service on the registrar.

23. The statute of 27 Geo. III., limiting suits for incontinence to eight months, not to extend to clerks.

24. Provision for enforcing appearance and obedience to orders of the court by a certificate to a court of common law, and writ thereon, as at present allowed. Proceedings not to be set aside for informality.

25. To avoid all doubt as to the jurisdiction of bishops, in case of offences committed within their diocese, by clerks not beneficed, or beneficed only in another diocese; provision that, if any offence contrary to good morals, or the canons or discipline of the Church, cognizable in the Consistorial Court, shall be committed by a clerk not beneficed in the diocese, the suit may be instituted in the court of the bishop, within whose diocese the offence is committed.

26. In case of a spiritual person found guilty in the diocese where the offence is committed, being beneficed in another diocese, the bishop to certify the finding to the bishop of the diocese wherein he is beneficed, and the clerk, being cited to appear before such bishop, shall receive sentence there, whether he appear or not: Provided, that shall not prevent a bishop instituting a suit in his Consistorial Court, against a person beneficed in his diocese, for an offence committed out of his diocese, except where a suit for the same offence shall have been instituted in the diocese where the offence is committed.

27. When on hearing any such suit a spiritual person shall be suspended, the bishop shall, during the suspension, sequester the profits of his preferment, and, by order, direct the application, after providing for the duties, the payment of the costs, and sustaining the burthens of the preferment, and, in case of surplus, towards the augmentation or improvement of the preferment; and no part of such profit shall be paid to the spiritual person suspended, or applied for his benefit, or in satisfaction of any previous sequestration at the suit of a creditor, except as a judgment obtained before the passing of the Act, unless, upon special cause, the bishop shall think fit otherwise to direct; such order, with the reasons for making the same, to be filed in the registry.

28. Where a spiritual person, found guilty and sentenced to be suspended, deprived, or deposed, shall appeal, the bishop may, by his order, prohibit him from officiating pending the appeal, and sequester the preferment; the profits to be accounted for when the appeal shall determine, and, if the judgment be affirmed, applied as in case of definitive sentence: Provided that the bishop may allow thereout to the spiritual person a competent sum for the maintenance of himself and family pending the appeal, and also such costs of appeal as the judge to whom the appeal is made shall order.

29. Power to the bishop who shall have pronounced sentence of suspension, on consideration of the state of the parish, and satisfactory proof of the penitence and amendment of the spiritual person, to abridge the term of suspension, and permit him to resume his functions, and take the profits of his benefice: Provided that such remission be previously transmitted to the archbishop of the province, who shall signify his assent to, or dissent from, such remission.

30. Act not to extend to Scotland, Ireland, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands.

31. Act may be repealed or altered in the present session.

THE LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY.

SATURDAY, NOV. 23.

At the Court at Buckingham Palace, the 23d day of November, 1839, Her Majesty being then day present in Council, was pleased to make the following declaration; viz.:-

"I have caused you to be summoned at the present time, in order that I may acquaint you with my resolution in a matter which deeply concerns the welfare of my people, and the happiness of my future life.

"It is my intention to ally myself in marriage with the Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg and Gotha. Deeply impressed with the solemnity of the engagement which I am about to contract, I have not come to this decision without mature consideration, nor without feeling a strong assurance that, with the blessing of Almighty God, it will at once secure my domestic felicity, and serve the interests of my country.

"I have thought fit to make this resolution known to you at the earliest period, in order that you may be fully apprized of a matter so highly important to me and to my kingdom, and which I persuade myself will be most acceptable to all my loving subjects."

Whereupon all the Privy Councillors present made it their humble request to Her Majesty, that Her Majesty's most gracious declaration to them might be made public; which Her Majesty was pleased to order accordingly.

In a Convocation, holden the same day, it was unanimously agreed, that an annual stipend of 350*l.*, to be paid by the Vice-Chancellor, be in future assigned to each successor of the present Proctors, in lieu of all fees and payments of every description at present appertaining to the office; the said fees, &c., to be paid into the University chest, and annually accounted for by the Vice-Chancellor. This measure is rendered desirable in consequence of certain dues for the Lectura indolante, which have hitherto formed a part of the emoluments of the Procuratorial office, having been recently transferred as the endowment of the Logic Lecture. The Procuratorial stipends will in future be paid out of the University chest, with the exception of 150*l.*, which is to be charged upon what is known by the name of the School Account, namely, certain monies paid to the University for Dispensations, fees at Degrees, &c.

Norriston Prize Essay.-The subject for the present year is, "The Holy Scripture contains sufficiently all Doctrine required of necessity for Eternal Salvation through Faith in Jesus Christ."

The Master and Fellows of St. John's College, have caused a beautiful portrait of the late Master, Dr. Wood, to be placed in a conspicuous position in the Hall; an honour conferred upon those only who have been liberal benefactors to the College. The picture is a most excellent copy by Mr. Illidge, of Liverpool, after one by Jackson, which is preserved in the Master's lodge. -Cambridge Chronicle.

Rowland Williams, Esq., Scholar of King's coll., Cambridge, and Battle's University Scholar, has been elected a Fellow of that Society.

Mr. Labouchere, President of the Board of Trade, has appointed Mr. S. Laing, M.A., Fellow of St. John's coll., Cambridge, to be his Private Secretary.

On Thursday, Nov. 21, Alexander Blackall Simonds, and Edward Balston, Esqrs., Scholars of King's coll., were elected Fellows of that Society.

On Tuesday, Nov. 9, Wm. Robert Sharp, Esq., B.A., of Catharine hall, in this university, was elected a Fellow of that Society on the Skirne foundation.

The office of Christian Advocate in this university will become vacant at Christmas next. The Trustees have given notice that the election will take place at the latter end of December next. Candidates must be of the degree of Master of Arts, or of Bachelor or Doctor of Divinity, of the age of 30 years or upwards, and resident in the university.

At a congregation on Wednesday, Nov. 27th, the following degrees were conferred:-

Bachelors of Arts.-John Kitton, Queen's coll.; Richard Blanchard, Queen's coll.

The following grace also passed the Senate:-

To purchase of Count Munster, from the Woodwardian Fund, a collection of Geological Specimens, about 20,000 in number, at the price of 500*l.*

On Friday last, Joseph Clark, B.A., was elected a foundation fellow of Christ's coll., in this university; and on Tuesday last, Henry Brookland Mason, B.A., was elected a fellow of the same college, on the foundation of Sir John Finch and Sir Thomas Baines.

The following is a correct summary of the present resident members of the university:-

The Syndicate appointed "to consider the best means of raising the funds requisite for completing the building of that portion of the New Library which was contracted for under the grace of July 6, 1837, and to report thereon," beg leave to report to the Senate:-

"That it appears, from an inspection of the accounts of the New Library, that a balance will be due to Messrs. Rigby, on the completion of their contract, amounting to 3745*l.*

"That, in addition to the above, there will be required for paying the Architect, the Clerk of the Works, and for incidental expenses, a sum probably not less than 2000*l.*

"That it further appears, that the University possesses no adequate funds applicable to the liquidation of these demands. "That the balance of the subscriptions to the new library now in the hands of the bankers, amounts to no more than 721*l.*; thus leaving a debt of somewhat more than 5000*l.*, for the payment of which the University stands engaged, and no provision has been made.

"That, although it is expected that some portion of this sum of 5000*l.* will be obtained from such subscribers to the new library as have not yet paid their subscriptions, from members of the University who may be disposed to add to their former contributions, and from those who have not at present contributed towards that important object, the Syndicate are of opinion, that measures should immediately be taken for enabling the Vice Chancellor to meet the deficiency above stated.

"That the Syndicate see no better means of effecting this purpose than by appropriating thereto, for a limited period, a part of the 'Library Fund'."

"That they therefore recommend, that the 'Library Fund' be charged with the annual payment of 500*l.*, for a term of years not exceeding twelve—upon which annuity they are of opinion that the requisite sum may be raised."

"In making this proposition, the Syndicate deem it right to observe, that the whole of the 'Library Fund' accruing to the present time has not been expended, but that they do not think it advisable that the accumulations, amounting to 377*l.* 9*s.* new 3½ per cent. stock, should be applied towards the payment of the existing debt."

"They would further observe, that the principle of this proposition is recognised in the Report of a Syndicate which was printed and circulated throughout the University in the month of February, 1831; and the Syndicate now recommend this course with the greater confidence, inasmuch as the present annual amount of the 'Library Fund' (1600*l.*) exceeds that contemplated by the framers of the original grace of the 7th of December, 1825, by the sum of 400*l.*"

A grace to confirm the above Report will be offered to the Senate, at the congregation appointed for Wednesday next, the 11th inst.

On the 23rd ult., Charles Thornton, Esq., B.A., of Clare Hall, was elected a Bye Fellow of that society.

Croese Scholarship.—On Thursday, December 5th, Henry Baily, B.A., of St. John's college, in this university, was elected an university scholar of the Croese foundation.

ORDINATIONS.

At an Ordination holden by the Lord Bishop of Ely, in the cathedral church of Ely, on Sunday last, the 1st inst., the following gentlemen were admitted into holy orders:—

Deacons.—Thomas Pothergill Cooke, M.A., St. John's coll., Camb.; John Sparke, B.A., Clare hall, Camb.; William Henry Bateson, M.A., St. John's coll., Camb.; Charles Grain, B.A., Pembroke coll., Camb.; Charles Thornton, B.A., Clare hall, Camb.; Robert Goodwin, B.A., Clare hall, Camb.; William Anderson Smith, B.A., St. John's coll., Camb.; John Selby Watson, B.A., Trinity coll. Dublin (Letter Dim. Bishop of Bath and Wells); Sidney Philip Robertson, B.A., Worcester coll., Oxford; Richard Pearce Baker, B.A., St. John's coll., Camb. (Letters Dim. from Bishop of Lichfield).

Priests.—Henry Rowland Bramwell, B.A., Christ's coll., Camb.; Joseph Horner, B.A., Clare hall, Camb.; John Smith, M.A., Christ's coll., Camb.; Vincent Haven, B.A., Magdalene coll., Camb.; Fred. Wm. Portlock Collison, M.A., St. John's coll., Camb.; Richard George Young, B.A., Oriel coll., Oxford; John Robinson Hutcheson, M.A., St. John's coll., Camb.; Thomas William Leventhorpe, M.A., Jesus coll., Camb.; William Wellington Willock, B.A., Magdalene coll., Camb.; Richard Harris Dalton Barham, B.A., Oriel coll., Oxford; Henry Raymond Smythies, B.A., Emmanuel coll., Camb.

List of Candidates ordained by the Lord Bishop of Rochester, on Sunday, the 10th of November, within the chapel at Bromley Palace, in the county of Kent:—

Deacons.—George Damer Parnell, B.A. Downing coll., Camb.; Charles Acland, M.A., Caius coll., Camb. (by Letter Dim. from Archbishop of Canterbury).

Priests.—Thomas Frankerd Phelps, B.A., Worcester coll., Oxford; Ebenezer Collins, Literate (by Letter Dim. Bishop of London for her Majesty's foreign possessions).

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

METROPOLIS.

Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, Bloomsbury Place.—A General Assembly of the Governors of this Corporation was holden, according to the charter, on the second Tuesday in November. The most Rev. the Archbishop of Canterbury was re-elected president; and the Right Hon. Sir N. C. Tindal, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, vice president. Sir R. H. Inglis, bart., M. P., J. Clitherow, Esq., and Rev. G. Shepherd, D.D., were re-elected treasurers; and forty-two assistants were chosen for the year following. At a Court of Assistants, holden on Thursday, the 28th of November, Oliver Hargreave, Esq., barrister-at-law, was re-elected registrar of the Corporation. Several petitions for apprentice-fees from the children of clergymen, and petitions for assistance from widows and maiden daughters, and from distressed clergymen, were considered; and business was transacted connected with the estates of the Corporation.

Trinity Church, Mile-end.—The new church dedicated to the Holy Trinity, situated in Tredegar-square, Mile-end-road, was consecrated by the Bishop of London, on the 27th of November, in the usual manner. His Lordship also preached the opening sermon on the occasion. Notwithstanding the very unfavourable state of the weather, and the incessant fall of rain, sleet, and snow, the new church was crowded with a most respectable congregation. The bishop was attended by a great many of the clergy of the district, and by the parochial authorities, so that the whole ceremony had an imposing and dignified appearance. The church is situated on the left-hand side of the square going from London, and forms an ornament to the neighbourhood, as well as a place of public worship to the inhabitants. It is built in the Gothic style, having a nave and aisles; over the aisles is a gallery, and beneath the gallery are the free sittings, which are very numerous.

All Saints' Church, Mile-end.—The new church of All Saints, which has just been built in Spicer-street, Mile-end New-town, was consecrated on the 25th of November, with the usual ceremonies, by the Bishop of London, the diocesan. His Lordship preached an appropriate sermon on the occasion. The church is situated in one of the most populous districts of the metropolis, and in a district in which a church was much needed. The population is an increasing one, and though but little known to the inhabitants of the western parts of London, and to those whose immediate business does not carry them to it, is a portion of this great city exceedingly important in a commercial, a manufacturing, and a moral point of view. It is in districts of this sort, and amongst populations of this class, that the Papists and the sectarians are most active in the arts of proselytism and defection; and it is, therefore, a matter of congratulation that this edifice has been erected. There are (which is important to the neighbourhood) a great number of free sittings; there is a good organ, and there are attached to the edifice a vestry and all the usual accommodations for the proper performance of the church service.—Times.

St. Saviour's Grammar School, Southwark.—The Annual Examination of this School, and the opening of the new building in Sumner-street, which has been erected for this ancient foundation, took place on the 18th of November. The Bishop of Winchester as visitor presided, and, with his usual urbanity and kindness, distributed the prizes. The examination and the speeches which were delivered by the pupils were highly creditable both to themselves and to the masters. In the course of the proceedings a just tribute was paid, not only to the Rev. Launcelot Sharpe and the existing masters, but also to the Rev. Dr. Fancourt, who for thirty-five years was head master of this school, and who was present on the occasion. At the anniversary dinner which followed, the Bishop of Winchester, in proposing the health of Dr. Fancourt, spoke in the kindest manner of the long and valuable services which he had rendered to the school, and to the cause of education; and the whole of the day's proceedings were satisfactory and gratifying to the friends of the institution.

National Schools, St. George's, Camberwell.—On Monday, the 28th of October, 1839 (being the seventh anniversary of the re-opening of St. George's district church), the first stone of new school rooms and residences for the master and mistress was laid, by Henry Kemble, Esq., M. P. for the eastern division of the county of Surrey, and a resident of Camberwell. After divine service at St. George's church (it being the festival of St. Simon and St. Jude), the procession, consisting of the resident clergy, the churchwardens, the directors, architect, and builder, and the children of the several charity schools at Camberwell, walked to the ground, which is very near the church, when appropriate prayers were read by the Rev. Samuel Smith, minister of St. George's church; and the ceremony was performed in the presence of a large concourse of persons who had assembled upon the occasion. When the stone had been laid, Mr. Kemble addressed the company upon the great advantages to be derived from institutions of this nature, where suitable education is afforded, based upon religious principles strictly in accordance with the Established Church. A large proportion of the company afterwards proceeded to the parsonage, in Wells-street, where they partook of a cold collation; and the whole of the children (about 400 in number) were provided with refreshments in their present school rooms.

PROVINCIAL.

Salehurst, Sussex.—The difficulties, which have existed for upwards of twelve years, of providing a good school-house for the education of the children of the poor of the populous parish of Salehurst in Sussex, (of which the town of Robertsbridge and the village of Hurst Green are a part,) are now happily overcome; and a new National School-house was opened on the 8th of November. It is situated about the centre of the parish, and consists of two rooms, calculated to contain ninety children of each sex; together with a small room to be appropriated to an infant school for thirty children, and a very convenient house for the mistress. The ceremony was commenced by the children singing the Hundredth Psalm; after which Dr. Wrench (the vicar) addressed a numerous auditory on the importance of a Christian education, and concluded with a prayer for God's blessing on the work; the Evening Hymn was then sung, and the Apostolic Benediction closed this truly interesting service."

Gravesend.—Propagation of the Gospel.—On Monday, the 28th inst., a public meeting was held in the Town Hall, Gravesend, in aid of the funds of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.—W. Masters Smith, Esq., of Camer, presided. The Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia was present; and the Rev. Dr. Short, rector of St. George's, Bloomsbury, attended on behalf of the Parent Society. On the platform were the Rev. Messrs. Mayo, of Wrotham, Graham, of Rochester, Harvey, of Hornsey, Stokes, Keates, Hindle, Rashleigh, Edmeades, Thompson, Johnston, Ottey, Tate, Allfree, and Eyre, the Rev. Dr. Joyner, W. Gladish, Esq., the Mayor, W. Brenchley, Esq., A. Park, Esq., &c. The room was densely crowded, nearly every influential and respectable family in the town and neighbourhood being present. The Rev. J. Stokes having read prayers, the chairman stated in a perspicuous manner the important object of the meeting. Dr. Short gave some interesting details of the operations of the Society in the West India islands, in Hindostan, and in Australia. The Rev. J. Graham followed, and applied to the feelings of his hearers the facts just laid before them in a speech that seemed to flow from a heart warmed with Christianity, and a mind enriched by the imagery of the Bible. The Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, in a luminous speech, adverted to the spiritual destitution of our Transatlantic colonies, and more particularly in his own diocese, stating, at the same time, the eager desire of the emigrants for religious instruction, and the sacrifices which many of them made to procure it. It has been calculated, that if every family belonging to the Church of England would subscribe annually the sum of half-a-crown, which is very little more than a halfpenny a week, the amount contributed (200,000*l.*) would enable the Society materially to increase the sphere of their labours. The speech and manner of the bishop made a great impression on the audience, combining, as it did, the dignity of his high office with the benevolence of a Christian's heart. The meeting was also addressed by the Rev. Messrs. Keates, Hindle, Harvey, Stokes, Edmeades, Johnston, and Tate, Mr. Gladish, and Mr. Park. The mayor, in replying to the vote of thanks for the use of the Town Hall, adverted to the successful labours of the Rev. Mr. Gray, of this town, who was now, he believed, in the diocese of the prelate who had honoured the day's proceedings with his presence. In reply to this remark, the bishop gave the strongest possible testimony to the character and service of Mr. Gray, whom he described as a zealous and faithful son of the Church. The Secretary, the Rev. Dr. Joyner, then communicated to the meeting several notes and messages from various friends who were prevented from attending. Besides the amount raised at the meeting, the sum of 18*l.* was contributed by the inhabitants of Gravesend a few weeks ago, after a sermon preached on behalf of the Society.

Oakham and Uppingham Schools.—At the late Michaelmas audit of the governors of Oakham and Uppingham Schools, the number of the general exhibitions to any college in either Oxford or Cambridge, value 40*l.* per annum, was increased to twelve, from each of the said schools.

New Church at Speen.—A new church at Speen, near Newbury, Berks, which has been erected and endowed by the vicar, the Rev. W. H. Majendie, was recently consecrated by the bishop of the diocese. The communion-service and organ were both presented by the Rev. Mr. Majendie.

Bristol and Exeter Railway.—The Rev. J. Campbell, M.A., has been appointed, under the sanction of the bishop, a missionary chaplain among the excavators employed on the Bristol and Exeter Railway. The directors of the railway company and the Pastoral Aid Society have contributed very liberally towards his support. The men have received the reverend gentleman in the most cordial manner, and have listened to his instructions with the greatest attention.

Horsley.—On Wednesday, the 16th of October, the Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol consecrated the new church and additional cemetery at Horsley, Gloucestershire.

Liverpool Collegiate Institution.—At a meeting of the clergy of Liverpool, held 15th October, 1839, to determine how far they could approve of a projected institution for the education of the middle classes, in which it was proposed to admit Presbyterian and other Dissenters upon the Committee of Management, and to permit the Catechism to be dispensed with in the religious instruction to be given to the children of Dissenters;—The proposition to admit Dissenters upon the Committee was supported by very few of the clergy;—The proposition that the Committee should consist entirely of Churchmen, but that they should be permitted to dispense with the Catechism in the case of Dissenters, was carried by a large majority, and this resolution of the clergy was immediately communicated to a meeting of the laity, including Dissenters, which awaited their decision. A protest was made against this resolution by the Rev. Cecil Wray, M.A., assistant minister of St. Martin's, which has since been published.

Welsh Clergymen.—The deficiency of knowledge in the Welsh language among our clergy, so long and so justly complained of, is at last in a fair way of being remedied in the diocese of St. David's, as will be seen from the following really important communication from the bishop to the Rev. David T. Jones, Professor of Welsh at St. David's College;—

"Aberwilly, Nov. 5, 1839.

"Rev. Sir,—I hereby appoint you commissioner to act with Dr. Llewellyn and the Rev. Joshua Davies in the examination in the Welsh language of clergymen presented to Welsh benefices within my diocese, and I strictly enjoin you and your colleagues on no account to grant a certificate to any person who is not able to speak and converse in the Welsh language with as much fluency and facility as a native of the principality who has been accustomed to speak it from his infancy.

"I am, Rev. Sir, your faithful servant,
"J. B. ST. DAVID'S,"

FOREIGN.

We have received letters from our Constantinople correspondent to the 7th inst. inclusive, enclosing a copy of a Hatti Scheriff read on the 3rd inst. by order of the Sultan to the ulemas and grandees of the empire, and in the presence of the Greek and Armenian patriarchs and of the foreign ambassadors to the Sublime Porte. This important document commences by ascribing the decay of the Ottoman empire to departures from the principles laid down in the Koran, proceeds to describe the reforms in the system of government that had thence become necessary, and concludes by decreeing them. The points to which the Hatti Scheriff is principally directed, are—individual and personal liberty, and the contributions for the defence of the state in men and money. Henceforward the lives and property of all the subjects of the Ottoman government, without distinction of religion, are declared inviolable. Just and wise modes of collecting an equitable revenue are to supersede the grinding, cruel, and oppressive system that had during the last century and a half prevailed. The levy of soldiers is to be hereafter proportioned to the population in each district, and the period of military service to be reduced to four or five years, according to the decision of a military commission to which the project is to be referred.—Times.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

A MIDDLE AGED MARRIED CLERGYMAN, of Orthodox Sentiments, whose references are three Dignitaries of the Church, wishes to obtain a VILLAGE CURACY, with the prospect of a Permanency, within thirty miles of the Sea.

A D.D., about fifty years of age, who can appeal to his Diocesan and Archdeacon for proof of his orthodoxy, character, and qualifications, and who is accustomed to town duty, is desirous of obtaining a permanent Clerical Engagement, either in London or the Country, with a stipend of not less than 120*l.* per annum.

A N UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN, of Evangelical sentiments, and about thirty years of age, whose voice is not adapted to a large Church, being almost dependent upon his profession, is very anxious to obtain a CURACY, or Assistant Curacy, in the Country. His references will be found satisfactory.

The Clerical Office, 1, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square. Letters are expected to be sent free of postage, but Mr. Powell makes no charge to Incumbents who kindly favour him with the particulars of Curacies in their patronage. [117]

WANTED, by a MARRIED CLERGYMAN, a Country CURACY, of not less value than 100*l.* per annum, with a comfortable Parsonage, or an equivalent, thereto. The Advertiser is of strictly Orthodox principles and active habits.

All letters (post paid) addressed to U. C., Mr. R. Valpy, Clerical Agency Office, Bedford-street, London, will be immediately forwarded. [78]

CURACY WANTED.

WANTED in Spring, by a Married Clergyman, M.A. in Full Orders, of active habits, and without Family, a DISTRICT CHAPEL in the Country, or a separate charge of a Licensed Curacy. Salary not less than 100*l.* a year and a House. His sentiments are Evangelical. Satisfactory references can be given.

Address (post paid) Rev. T. R., Post-office, Rushford, Durham. [120]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, who is of active habits, and whose Voice is equal to a large Church, wishes to undertake the Duties of a Pariah either in the Country or in a Market town.

Address (post paid) Y. Z. Post-office, Newbury. [103]

TO THE CLERGY.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, a distinguished Graduate of the University of Cambridge, who has held Curacies in situations of more than common importance, and can produce high testimonials, is desirous of obtaining a Curacy where a Good House is to be had, either at a rent or as forming part of the stipend. [100]

Address (post paid) Rev. M. A. Pocock's Library, Bath.

CURATE WANTED. In a very small Rural Pariah, in the most beautiful part of Staffordshire, a Curacy will be vacated about Christmas next. As there is no house of residence, the party must be unmarried. Unexceptionable references will be required as to piety, &c. and the stipend will be a liberal one.

Address, (post-paid) to the Rev. T. G., care of Mr. Mort, Stationer, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Staffordshire. [119]

THE FRIENDS of a CLERGYMAN of highly Evangelical Sentiments and unblemished Character, are quite prepared to advance not more £1500 towards the Endowment or Fabric of a new Church, in or near London, to which he might be presented. Or they would purchase an Episcopal Chapel or Small Living with the prospect of early possession.

Full particulars are requested to be sent, free of postage, to the Rev. Giles Powell, the Clerical Office, St. Martin's-place. [116]

WANTED, an ASSISTANT CURATE in a Pariah in a Midland County, where there are two resident Clergymen. Salary, 100*l.* a year. Sound Church principles are indispensable. Address (post paid) to Rev. B. M., Post office, Chesterfield. [65]

WANTED immediately, Assistance for six Months certain, in a small country parish. Two services on Sundays. Remuneration not less than £110 per annum. A furnished house if required. Letters addressed Rev. J. M., St. Ives, Hunts, will be duly attended to. [93]

WANTED, by a Clergyman of Orthodox Principles, a CURACY in a small Pariah near a large Town within fifty miles of London, to be entered upon at the end of February, 1840. Salary is not so much an object as a good house.

Letters directed to Rev. Z. Brooke, Monks Risborough, Bucks, will be immediately attended to. [13]

TO BE DISPOSED OF, an ADVOVSON to a RECTORY in the West of England, with a prospect of a very early Presentation: worth about 240*l.* a year.

Apply (post paid) to Mr. Shoubridge, 5, South-square, Gray's-inn, London; or to Mr. Bailey, Manor Office, Cheltenham. [39]

CHURCH PREFERMENT.

TO BE SOLD, in one of the most desirable parts of the County of Somerset, viz. in the Taunton Dean Vale, the Perpetuity of an ADVOVSON, with very early prospect of possession. Tithes commuted, and annual value of the Living 600*l.* House and Gardens well situated and extensive, together with valuable Orchards, capable of bearing 250 Hogsheads of Cider in a favourable year.

N.B. A Title for Orders will be given if required. Reference for further particulars may be made to G. Stone, Esq., Solicitor, Taunton; or H. M. Daniel, Esq., Worcester. All letters post paid. [24]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

THE INCUMBENT of a Benefice in a northern County, yielding about £700 per annum, is desirous of exchanging with some Clergyman in the south of England, and would not object to make a sacrifice of income for a Living in a mild air. Letters to be addressed (post paid) to G. care of Mr. Robinson, No 11*a*, Hart Street, Bloomsbury Square.

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

A CLERGYMAN holding Preferment in the South-west of England, near the Sea, the duty light, and the income nearly £150, with a comfortable house, wishes to exchange for a Living more to the eastward; a family house, a good neighbourhood, and a dry situation principally desired; or he would be glad to purchase an Advowson in Dorsetshire, Hants, Sussex, or Kent, with a prospect of early possession. The amount of income only a secondary consideration. Address, post paid, to W. care of Mr. Robinson, 11 a, Hart Street, Bloomsbury Square. [89]

A CLERGYMAN having the offer of a Chaplaincy in the Colonies, is willing to Exchange the Appointment for Preferment in England, of less value. The value of the Chaplaincy is considerable, with a certain prospect of increase and a retiring Pension, which will not prevent the holding of other Preferment in this Country.

Despatch is highly necessary.

Communications, with full Particulars of the Preferment proposed to be Exchanged, to be addressed (post paid) to Mr. Snell, Regent Chambers, 32, Regent-street, London. [47]

THE INCUMBENT of a RECTORY, of about 400*l.* a year, in Rutlandshire, with an excellent house, the population about 300, wishes TO EXCHANGE for a Rectory in any part of England in a high and dry situation. His age is 48.

A PERPETUAL CURACY within 100 miles of town, and in one of the most esteemed parts of the south of England. Income £300.

A RECTORY in a southern county, about 70 miles from town. Income above £400. A parsonage-house, and in a good neighbourhood.

A RECTORY in a western county. Income upwards of £1000 a year. House and glebe; the population under 2000.

A most important RECTORY in a midland county, near a railway-station, and in the midst of excellent society. Income upwards of £1000 a year, and a fund for building a parsonage-house. A large population.

A RECTORY in a midland county, within 70 miles of town, with a superior residence. Income £300.

The next PRESENTATION to a LIVING in Suffolk. Income £200 a year. Near the coast.

An EPISCOPAL CHAPEL in a good neighbourhood; within 30 miles of London; may be entered upon by an active Clergyman on very advantageous terms.

All Communications respecting the above to be addressed, post paid, to Mr. Robinson, Auctioneer, Surveyor, and Agent for the Transfer of Ecclesiastical, Real, and Personal Property, No. 11 a, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square.

N.B. Mr. R. undertakes the management of the Commutation of Tithes under the Tithe Act, and the Assessment of Dilapidations. [38]

WANTED to PURCHASE, the ADVOVSON or NEXT PRESENTATION to a LIVING, of the annual value of about 300*l.* per Annum, with immediate or very early possession; the population must be small—the parsonage-house in good repair, and the situation dry and healthy.

Applications from principals alone will be attended to, and any further particulars may be learned by letters (post paid) addressed Rev. W. T. C., Melton Mowbray. [50]

A CLERGYMAN in Full Orders, who would take charge of a small Pariah with Single Duty, for a Few Weeks from the first Sunday after Christmas-day inclusive, and would consider the use of a portion of the House, of which two servants will be left in charge, an equivalent for such services, may apply by letter (post paid) to Rev. A. X. Y. care of Mr. Rigden, Bookseller, Dover, Kent. [112]

TO BE SOLD, PRESENTATIONS, with prospect of very early possession, to Livings of the annual value of 100*l.*, 200*l.*, or 300*l.*, the property of one Patron. They are situated in a cheap and picturesque part of Richmondshire; and further particulars may be known in answer to post paid applications addressed to H. B., at Mr. George's, Bookseller, 66, Upper Berkeley-street, Portman-square, London. Personal application useless. [31]

NEXT PRESENTATION.

WANTED to PURCHASE, in either of the Counties of Gloucester, Wilts, or Somerset, the same being within 30 miles of Bristol, the NEXT PRESENTATION to a Living of between 200*l.* and 300*l.* a year in value. There must be a prospect of early possession; and the population of or above 500 persons.

Apply (if by letter, post paid, with all particulars) to M. A., Mr. Oldland's, Bookseller, Corn-street, Bristol. [77]

NEXT PRESENTATION.

TO BE SOLD, a great Bargain, the next PRESENTATION to a RECTORY in Somersetshire, beautifully situated, of the annual value of 280*l.* The Incumbent is in his 65th year. Population under 200; tithes commuted.

Address (post paid) D. H., care of Mr. Burns, 17, Portman-street, Portman-square. [86]

WANTED to PURCHASE, in or within 50 miles of London, the ADVOVSON or NEXT PRESENTATION of a RECTORY, from 300*l.* to 600*l.* per year, with early possession. Post Town desirable. Might not object to endow a New Church, population being large and respectable.

Particulars (post paid) to T. W. M., Messrs. Pemberton, Crawley, and Gardiner, Whitehall-place. [38]

TO BE DISPOSED OF, by Private Contract, the ADVOVSON and next PRESENTATION to a small LIVING in Essex, with a prospect of early possession. For particulars, apply to Messrs. Cardale, Cardale, and Iliffe, 2, Bedford Row. [110]

THE REV. GILES POWELL, in consequence of instructions from several Clients, requests full particulars of an Advowson, or next presentation to a Benefice, of any amount, in any of the Southern Counties.

The Clerical Office, St. Martin's Place, Trafalgar-square. Unpaid communications are declined. [114]

THE FRIENDS of a middle-aged Clergyman are desirous of receiving the particulars of an Advowson, or immediate presentation to a good Living, with a house, &c. Apply (post paid) to Z. Z., Post-office, Exeter. [118]

A LADY, who can give references to two Clergymen as to character and ability, is desirous of obtaining a Situation as Companion to an elderly Lady, or to take the entire charge of one Daughter. The Advertiser has had the care of a Boarding School with about 30 Pupils, but the death of her only surviving parent has determined her to relinquish this very laborious post of duty.

Address (post paid) N. A., Felix House, Liverpool-road, Islington. [64]

A CLERGYMAN wishes to hear of a Young Woman as House and Waiting Maid in a small and regular Family. A person fully equal to the Situation, and whose honesty and truthfulness could be vouched for, would be highly valued.

Direct (post paid) to E. R., at Mr. Ambrose Cartwright's, Worthing. [103]

THE CLERGY are most respectfully informed, that they can be accommodated with Full Dress Canonicals, for Her Majesty's Levees, and other occasions; to be had of Palmer, Clerical Robe Maker, 116, Chancery-lane. N.B. Clerical Gowns, Surplices, Hoods, &c., &c., always on sale. Orders from the country immediately attended to. [113]

A CLERGYMAN, of Orthodox Principles and of some years' Experience, is desirous of being engaged either in or near London; and he would have no objection to attend private Pupils or to assist in a public School.

Apply (if by letter, post paid) to H. J. Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, 14, Southampton-street, Strand. [99]

TUITION AND PARENTAL CARE.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, without Family, of ten years' standing in the Church, M.A. of Cambridge, who has always been accustomed to, and is very fond of, the care of children, wishes to undertake the Education of Four or Six Little Boys under the age of Fifteen—the sons of such Parents as would value and appreciate a firm and steady hand during School-hours, combined with a tender and affectionate watchfulness over the religious and moral welfare of their children at all other times.

The situation is most healthy, and on the sea-side, with daily communication by land and water to London.

The Advertiser is kindly permitted to give references, if required, to some of the first men of his College.

Letters (post paid), addressed W. B. H., care of Messrs. Harvey and Darton, Gracechurch-street, will immediately be forwarded. [16]

CLERGY ORPHAN SCHOOL,
ST. JOHN'S WOOD, MARYLEBONE.

A N ELECTION OF CHILDREN into the SCHOOLS of this SOCIETY will take place in the month of February, 1840. Forms of petitions for admission may be obtained by application to Mr. Stretton, 87, Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, London; and the petitions, properly filled up and attested, must be sent on or before the 31st of January, directed to the Secretary, Clergy Orphan School, St. John's Wood, London. [21]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, residing in a most delightful situation on the Sea-coast, within easy access of London, will be happy to receive the son of a Gentleman to educate. The number of his Pupils is limited to four.

Letters addressed, L. B. C., 34, Pall Mall, London, will be immediately forwarded to him. [25]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, resident within forty miles of London, who receives into his House a limited number of Pupils, who are prepared for the Public Schools and the Universities, will have three vacancies after Christmas. Terms, from 50 to 100 Guineas per Annum, according to age.

Letters addressed to Rev. A. B. C., at Caines and Co., Booksellers, 2, Halkin-street West, Belgrave-square, will be attended to. [40]

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHERS INTERESTED IN THE EDUCATION OF THE POOR.

THE Advertiser will be most grateful for the recommendation of a MASTER qualified for the Superintendence of a NATIONAL SCHOOL, consisting of about 70 or 80 Boys. He must take a lively interest in the charge entrusted to him, and give unexceptionable references for character, &c.

Stipend, 20 Guineas per Annum, with a House free of rates and taxes, and some incidental advantages.
Address Rev. A. M., near Sawbridgeworth, Herts. [36]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, M.A., of the University of Oxford, and resident in a healthy and conveniently situated Village in Hertfordshire, within 23 miles of London, receives five Pupils into his Family, to prepare for the Public Schools, or the Universities. The highest references and testimonials will be given.

Further particulars may be known, by applying (if by letter, post paid) to the Rev. C. M. A., Post Office, St. Alban's. [41]

TO CLERGYMEN OR GRADUATES OF THE UNIVERSITIES.

A CLERGYMAN, the Principal of a first-rate Establishment, where the sons of noblemen and gentlemen only are educated, wishes to meet with a Clergyman or Graduate to succeed him, as he is about to decline school business. There are about 40 boarders and day-boarders. The House and Premises are admirably adapted for a School, and sit for the residence of a gentleman, and the situation is unexceptionable, being in one of the most salubrious and fashionable places in the kingdom. The Premium and value of the furniture, &c. may be paid by instalments. For Particulars apply (if by letter, post paid) to Mr. Donaldson, Clerical and School Agency Office, 26, Southampton Street, Strand. [95]

SCHOOL, FAMILY, and CLERICAL AGENCY, 30, Soho Square, London, Mr. HINTON, late of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, respectfully states, that he has at all times on his books, English and Foreign Governesses, Tutors and Assistants properly qualified, to take every branch of education. No charge to principals or heads of families. Scholastic and Clerical Property transferred. Mr. Hinton can recommend superior Schools, from actual inspection and investigation, in England, France, Belgium, Germany, and Switzerland. All letters must be free. [82]

NORWICH DIOCESAN NATIONAL SCHOOL SOCIETY.

THIS SOCIETY, having determined to appoint a Clerical Superintendent of the Model and Training Schools in Norwich, invite Clergymen, desirous of filling that important post, to send their names and testimonials immediately to the Secretary, the Rev. Samuel Stone, Norwich.

The duties of the office will comprise, 1. The Superintendence of three Model Schools, for Boys, Girls, and Infants; 2. The Training of Teachers for Schools throughout the Diocese.

The appointment will be made in the first instance for two years. The salary will not be less than 200*l.* per annum; and the Superintendent will not be allowed to accept any weekly parochial cure. For further particulars application may be made to the Secretary. [39]

PRIVATE TUITION.—BRIGHTON.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, M.A., who receives Four Pupils designed for the Universities, &c., has Two Vacancies. The Advertiser graduated with honours at Oxford, and is competent to instruct in Mathematics and Modern Languages. Terms moderate, and the most satisfactory references can be given.

Address (post paid) Rev. D. H., care of Mr. Loder, Bookseller, Brighton. [87]

THE MASTER of a highly respectable Grammar School, about 40 miles from London, on the Bath road, wishes to receive a limited number of Boarders. He has only to add, that his intentions, qualifications, and habits will enable him to educate the pupils entrusted to his charge as Christians, Scholars, and Gentlemen. Terms, 50*l.* per annum; for two brothers, 90*l.*

For further particulars apply, if by letter, free of postage, to the Rev. Giles Powell, the Clerical Office, 1, St. Martin's Place, Trafalgar-square. [115]

A GRADUATE in Deacon's Orders WANTED as Tutor to a Clergyman's three children, who are between the ages of 11 and 9. Salary, 120*l.* per annum. Highest references required.

For particulars apply by letter to Rev. M. L., Mr. Painter's, Wrexham. [68]

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHER FRIENDS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTRUCTION.

THE PARISH OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, the largest within the city of Gloucester, containing an increasing population of 3,500 souls and upwards, is destitute of Sunday School-rooms. Yet it was the Rector of this Parish, the Rev. Thomas Stock, who, in the year 1780, projected, and, in conjunction with his friend, Robert Raikes, Esq., established the first Sunday School in Great Britain. The parishioners consist, in a great proportion, of small householders, and the Living itself is under £130 per annum, and no glebe-house thereon. The present Rector, being wholly unable from his own resources, or those of the Parish, to raise the requisite funds, is constrained to appeal thus publicly to the liberality of the friends of sound and scriptural education. He is persuaded that they will not be insensible to the wants of a Parish which may justly claim the distinction of having originated the whole system of Sunday School teaching.

In aid of the object in question, a Reverend Incumbent, residing at Salisbury, and connected with the Cathedral, has happily suggested a plan, the principle of which was immediately acted upon in his own Parish, and has been adopted already in various other places, viz.:—"That a General Subscription be set on foot, to which each child in every school in the United Kingdom be invited to contribute One Penny." This proposal is now respectfully and anxiously submitted to the favourable consideration of every Incumbent and officiating Minister throughout the two countries, who are hereby earnestly intreated to bring the case of the above-mentioned Parish before such of their young people, as are now sharing in the blessings of Sunday School Instruction. By this simple free-will offering an ample Fund would be raised, and the Sunday School-rooms of St. John's Parish would exhibit, to future generations, an interesting and singular memorial of the gratitude of children for their "nurture and admonition in the Lord."

GRAY'S IMPROVED CHURCH BARREL ORGANS, in which all the defects of the ordinary instruments are entirely removed, and no bolt-work or shifting of the Barrels necessary.

DIRECTIONS.
Lift the worm A, which will raise the key frame, and at the same time relieve the worm from the teeth on the barrel.
Draw the pin B, and then turn the spindle C of the iron frame D, either way, as may be required for the change of tune.
When the tune is fixed upon, insert the pin B, and upon dropping the worm A, the barrel will be ready to perform.

No. 1. In a handsome Gothic case 10 feet high, with gilt pipes, 60 Guineas.
2. Ditto size larger ditto 75 ditto.
3. Ditto ditto ditto 90 ditto.
The instruments may be inspected, and every explanation readily afforded, at the Manufactory of the Inventors, 9, New Road, Fitzroy-square. [108]

The Clergy are respectfully invited to an inspection of these instruments, which will be found the best and cheapest of the kind yet manufactured. The main defects in the old instruments are, the uncertainty of the keys passing correctly over the pins arising from the brass bolt-work, which, however well manufactured, soon becomes rickety and imperfect in its action; the unavoidable damage to the cogged heads of the barrels in passing them under the brass worm every time they are changed (from these causes alone the hobbling performance of the tune, so frequent in the ordinary barrel-organ, arises), the liability of damage to the pins on a barrel when changed: the noise occasioned by bolt-work at every change of tune, and the inconvenience and, in some instances, the impossibility of changing the barrels during divine service, in which case the range of tunes under command is so limited that, with the greatest care in the selection and distribution of the various metres to be set on the barrels, a change of them is almost always necessary in each service; for instance, in many churches it is the custom to commence with the Morning Hymn, and when this is the case, the barrels must be frequently changed, or none but the limited collection of tunes on one barrel will ever be heard during the service.

JOHN GRAY & SON have by their invention removed all these defects so long complained of in the ordinary barrel-organs, and the truth of which every possessor of one will readily acknowledge. The annexed section will best explain the improvements.

The spindle of the iron frame D, being cut with an endless screw, a single revolution of it changes the tune on each barrel from the first to the second, and so on in succession, to the whole extent of them (thirty in number), a contrary revolution will, of course, produce a return to the first or any intermediate tune that may be desired, its number being ascertained by reference to an index on each barrel. No bolt-work whatever is necessary; and every change either of tune or barrel, is effected with perfect silence and the greatest ease. Upon raising the worm A, it is immediately arrested by a self-acting sling, and there held until relieved by the finger of the barrel turner after he has changed the tune or barrel, and at no time does any necessity arise for touching any part of the barrels with the hand; the possibility of damage to the pins (unless wilfully done) is therefore wholly removed.

Uniformity of plan enables JOHN GRAY & SON to supply these instruments at even less cost than the ordinary barrel-organ, the whole of the mechanism being comprised in one package, and may be set up without the assistance of an organ builder, a matter of no little consideration when required at a distance from the Metropolis. The instrument is wholly independent of an external case, which may, if preferred, be made in the country.

The same unerring principle is applied to an organ of a higher class, for both Finger and Barrels.

PRESIDENT.—The Right Hon. Lord Ashley, M.P.

SYNOPSIS OF THE SOCIETY.

OBJECT.—The salvation of souls, with a single eye to the glory of God, and in humble dependence on His blessing, by granting aid towards maintaining faithful and devoted men to assist the Incumbents of parishes in their pastoral charge.

PRINCIPLES.—That in a Christian land a Church established should adequately provide for the spiritual instruction of all the people; and that it is part of the duty of a Christian Legislature to furnish the Church with means to this end; but that, if the Legislature should fail of this duty, then, rather than souls should perish, Christian men must join together to supply the deficiency, and make the Church as effective as it is in their power to do.

PLAN.—The Church Pastoral-Aid Society strictly regards the wants of the Church on the one hand, and the order of the Church on the other. It would make the Church efficient; it would carry the Gospel, by means of the Church, to every man's door, but it never obtrudes its aid: the Incumbent must apply for aid, or sanction the application; and until this is done, the Society cannot move. When aid is sought and granted, the parochial minister must say how it is to be employed—he must nominate the persons to be employed—he must engage them, as well as superintend and entirely control them; all that the Society does is to provide for their remuneration; and while so doing, to ask satisfactory proof of their qualifications.

The erroneous statements which are so frequently made, render it advisable to keep this simple statement of the design and principles of the Society constantly in view.

The Society's aid is now extended to 231 Incumbents, in charge of 1,726,133 souls, giving an average charge to each Incumbent of 7,472 souls: while the Income, on an average, is only 160*l.*, and 111 Incumbents are without a parsonage-house.

The existing grants will provide for 238 clergymen and thirty lay-assistants. The charge on the Society, when all the appointments shall have been made by the Incumbents, will be 21,000*l.* per annum, the Incumbents providing from their own or from local resources the sum of 3,600*l.* to meet the Society's aid; thus making a sum of 24,600*l.* available for the service of the Church of England. One hundred and forty-eight additional curates, and twenty-eight lay-assistants, are now at their important labours, at a charge to the Society of 13,308*l.* per annum.

FUNDS.

In respect to the Society's funds, the Committee are thankful to be able to report a progressive increase. The income of the Society during the year ending 31st March, was 10,400*l.*, being an increase on the previous year of 2,400*l.* It also fully met the expenditure of the current year. The income for the half-year, ending 30th of September last, was 8,124*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*, showing the gratifying increase of 3,922*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* above the corresponding period in the year 1838. Of this increase, 1,816*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* has arisen from two bequests, and 2,075*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* from the ordinary sources of income. But when all the existing grants come into operation by the nomination of curates to occupy them, the required income will be more than 22,000*l.*, even if the Committee were to declare their purpose to extend its aid no further: but this they cannot do! With thousands upon thousands, in this professedly Christian land, perishing for lack of knowledge, and living in worse than heathen ignorance and vice, they cannot doubt that the members of the Church of England will be stirred up to increased exertions and liberality, to meet the pressing wants which this Society seems designed to be the instrument of supplying.

At a period when the state of our country furnishes material upon which all the powers of darkness seem but too ready to work—when Popery is striving by every effort to regain her former ascendancy—when Infidelity is eating like a canker into the heart of our crowded cities and manufacturing towns—and when new townships and hamlets are springing up in every direction, without any due provision for their spiritual care, it is a matter of deep anxiety to the Committee of this Society to have much increased support to enable them to meet the urgent claims upon its funds.

The Report of the Committee, with the Annual Sermon, by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Winchester, and an Appendix, containing eighty-two letters from the clergy aided, List of Subscribers, &c., is published by Messrs. Seeley, Fleet-street, price 1*s.*, of whom may be had all the Society's publications.

Contributions will be thankfully received at the Society's Office, Temple Chambers, Falcon-court, Fleet-street; at Messrs. Williams, Deacon, and Co.'s, Birchin-lane; and Messrs. Herries, Farquhar, and Co.'s, St. James's-street; also, at Messrs. Hatchard's, Piccadilly; Seeley's, Fleet-street; and Nisbet's, Berners-street.

Also, any sum may be safely, and free of expense, remitted through Country Bankers, who will desire their London Correspondents to credit the same to "Messrs. Williams, Deacon, and Co., bankers, for the Church Pastoral-Aid Society." In either case, the contributors are requested to write to the Secretaries, advising payment. [94]

THE RESPIRATOR;

OR,

INSTRUMENT FOR GUARDING THE LUNGS FROM THE INJURIOUS EFFECTS OF KEEN OR RAW AIR.

THIS Instrument, one of the inventions of a Professional Gentleman, who has for many years been occupied in the cultivation of Experimental Philosophy, upon its first appearance was favoured by a strong approval of its principle on the part of the most eminent Members of the Medical Profession. The experience of many thousand persons in this and other Countries has confirmed very satisfactorily the correctness of their anticipations; and while it has ever been set forward with very guarded representations, there are, among severe sufferers, some, in all parts of the country, who are prepared to maintain that it has been the instrument of even prolonging their lives. Several cases have also already occurred of persons who had been compelled for some years to winter abroad, but who are now enabled by the aid of the RESPIRATOR to remain altogether in England—some in the practice of an arduous profession involving with it exposure to the Climate at all hours.

The Prices fixed on this Instrument, the workmanship of which is extremely delicate, are very moderate, and place them within the reach of all classes, while they bear no proportion to its value to persons whose feelings prompt them to avoid inhaling keen or raw air. The best Instruments are all finished in white instead of black Leather, the latter having been found to stain the lips.

The RESPIRATOR is procurable from respectable CHEMISTS and SURGICAL INSTRUMENT MAKERS in London, and all the larger Country Towns, and from Agents in Paris and other Places.

RESPIRATOR OFFICE, 82, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON. [15]

ANTRON HOUSE.

TO THE NOBILITY, CLERGY, AND GENTRY.

A MOST DESIRABLE ASYLUM will be afforded to invalid persons suffering under NERVOUS DEBILITY, and other Disorders requiring constant Medical superintendence, by the opening of the above-named house. Dr. Henwood intends to receive only a limited number of patients, who will be treated in every respect as members of his own family, so far as their health may admit. Antron House and Grounds are situated on one of the most healthy banks of the Mount's Bay, and near to the town of Helston, Cornwall. Unexceptionable references will be given and required.

Antron House, October 11, 1839. [22]

MEDICAL PROFESSION.

THERE is a VACANCY at the NORTHAMPTON GENERAL INFIRMARY for an IN-PUPIL.

This House contains 112 Patients' Beds, and has for many years been recognised by the Royal College of Surgeons and the Society of Apothecaries.

Further particulars may be obtained by application to Mr. H. Harday, the Secretary.—November, 1839. [58]

SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION OF THE PARISH of BETHNAL-GREEN, LONDON.—The Parish of Bethnal-Green, containing a population of 70,000 souls, with accommodation in the Churches for scarcely 5000 persons, and without a sufficient number of Clergymen for pastoral superintendence, or of Schools for the instruction of Children, is in a state of spiritual destitution, which should excite the Christian sympathy of all those who take an interest in the present welfare and eternal happiness of their fellow creatures.

An earnest appeal is now made to the Public, with the approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, for the purpose of dividing the Parish into ten additional districts, and providing each with a Church, a Resident Minister, and Schools.

CHEPSTOW UNION.

NOTICE is hereby Given, That the Guardians of the Chepstow Union wish to appoint a CHAPLAIN for the WORKHOUSE.

The required duties will be to perform Divine Service, with a Sermon, on one day in the Week, besides Sunday, to attend the Sick and Infirm, to Catechise the Children once a Month, and instruct them in religious and moral duties twice or thrice a week. The Salary will be 50l. a year.

Clergymen desirous of obtaining the above appointment, are requested to send in their applications with such testimonials as they may think fit, to the Office of Mr. Toye, Solicitor, Chepstow. W. E. TOYE, Clerk. Chepstow, 1839. [63]

SUPERIOR ACCOMMODATION AFFORDED BY THE UNITED KINGDOM LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY, 8, WATERLOO-PLACE, Pall-Mall, and 2, CHARLOTTE-Road, Mansion-House, London.

This Company, established by Act of Parliament, affords the most perfect security from an ample capital, and only requires, when an Insurance is for the whole period of life, one half of the very moderate premiums to be paid for the first five years after the date of the policy; the other half may remain, subject to the payment of interest at five per cent. annually, to be deducted at death, or may previously be paid off at convenience.

It obviously becomes easy for a person of very moderate income to secure by this arrangement a provision for his family; and should he at any time after effecting the Insurance succeed to, or acquire, a fortune, he may relinquish his policy, having only paid one-half the premiums for the first five years, instead of the whole, as in all other Companies.

Thus a man of 25 years old may, by an annual payment of 28l. 16s. 3d. for the first five years, and afterwards by paying yearly the full premium of 57l. 12s. 6d. secure to his widow and children at his death the payment of no less than 3,000l. subject only to the deduction of 144l. 1s. 3d., with interest, being the amount of premium unpaid.

This Company holds out, in various other respects, great inducements to the public. When such facilities are afforded, it is clearly a moral duty in every parent who is not possessed of a fortune, but of an income, however moderate, to insure his life for a sum which may yield a comfortable provision for his family.

The following important peculiarity in the constitution of the Hand in Hand Life Office, distinguishes it from every other institution in the kingdom.

Whilst the Members are in effect Mutual Insurers, and entitled to the whole of the Profits, they are protected from personal liability by the Guarantee of an Accumulated Capital of nearly 150 years' growth, without interest to pay to Proprietors, or deduction of any kind. [42]

DIOCESAN TRAINING SCHOOL FOR THE ARCH-DEACONRY OF GLOUCESTER.

THE SITUATION OF CLERICAL PRINCIPAL is open for the application of Candidates. Salary, 200*l.* per annum, with a furnished residence. By a regulation of the Board the Principal is at liberty to take such Clerical Duty as may be judged by the Lord Bishop compatible with the duties of his situation as Principal.

For further particulars apply (post paid) to the Rev. Dr. Clageson, Hon. Secretary, Gloucester. [31]

SOCIETY OF SCHOOLMASTERS,

Instituted 1798, for the Relief of Indigent and Decayed Schoolmasters.

President—The Lord Archbishop of CANTERBURY.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the Members of this Society will be held at the Literary Fund Chambers, No. 4, Lincoln's Inn Fields, on Thursday, December 12, at Two P.M. precisely, to appoint the Officers of the Society, and to elect an acting Committee for the ensuing year. O. BLEWITT, Secretary. [11]

CLASSICAL AND COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

THE PROPRIETOR of a Respectable DAY-SCHOOL, in the North of England, being about to retire from its duties, wishes to provide a Successor eligible in point of acquirements, experience in teaching, and religious principle. The establishment is a very flourishing one, and well deserves the attention of any person anxious to devote himself to the profession of teaching. A Clergyman would be very likely to meet with frequent occasional duty.

Terms of the School, remuneration required, and other particulars, may be known on application to R. T. W., Post-Office, Lancaster. All letters must be post paid.

The most respectable references will be required. [26]

PROTESTANT ASSOCIATION.—The great increase of Auxiliary Associations, and the enlarging sphere of their operations, have compelled the Committee of the Protestant Association to engage a second Travelling Agent. They therefore respectfully but earnestly appeal to every true Protestant to enable them to meet the expense of this new effort in the cause.

Subscriptions will be thankfully received by the Secretary, 2, Exeter Hall; by Messrs. Williams, Deacon, and Co., Birchin Lane; at the Office of the Record; and by Messrs. Hatchard, 187, Piccadilly; Seelays, Fleet-street; Nisbets, Berners-street; and Rivingtons, St. Paul's Church Yard. [27]

NORTHAMPTON.

AT A MEETING of the Friends of the Established Church in this Town and Neighbourhood, held in St. Sepulchre's Vestry, on Thursday, 18th May, 1837, to consider the best means of providing further CHURCH ACCOMMODATION in that large and rapidly-increasing parish, the Rev. W. WALES, Vicar of All Saints, in the Chair;

It appeared by calculation then made, that there were at least 7000 persons without the means of regular attendance on religious ordinances; and that this number, from the quantity of land laid out for building, must soon be increased to 10,000 souls; and

It was resolved—

1st. That in order to meet, in part, this case of spiritual destitution, a subscription be immediately entered into, for the erection of a new Church, Parsonage, and School-house.
2nd. That an earnest appeal be made to the religious public at large, setting forth the inability of the great majority of the Parishioners to procure the means of grace and the opportunity of public worship for themselves, they being chiefly the families of labourers and mechanics; and soliciting aid towards carrying into effect the objects proposed in the foregoing resolution.

The Committee appointed at the above Meeting, are extremely anxious to commence building the Church and Schools, but find the estimated expense, including site, endowment, repair fund, &c., to be

To meet which, they have subscribed, including £000*l.* granted by the Trustees of Hyndman's Bounty 4550

By so large a deficiency in their funds, the great and necessary work is still delayed. They therefore present this simple statement of their case to the consideration of the friends of religion and of the poor, in confiding hope of their effectual assistance.

The Secretary, the Bankers in Northampton, viz., Messrs. Percivall and Messrs. Watkins and Co.; also their London agents, Messrs. Denison & Co.; and the London and Westminster Bank, will be happy to receive Subscriptions and Contributions.

EDUCATIONAL MAGAZINE.

(NEW SERIES.)

EDITED BY THE REV. F. D. MAURICE,

Author of "Lectures on National Education," "The Kingdom of Christ," &c.

THIS MAGAZINE has been established about two years, and has obtained a considerable circulation. It is devoted exclusively to the subject of Education. It has for the last few months been occupied in maintaining that no Education which is not based upon Church Principles, can be an effectual blessing to the nation.

A New Series of this Magazine will be commenced on the first of January, and it will be placed under the Management of the Rev. F. D. MAURICE.

It is intended as a medium of communication, as well for those who are engaged in the business of Education, as for those who are studying the principles of it. The Editor has reason to hope that the Parochial Clergy, and the Masters of Schools for the poorer and Middle Classes will favour him with the results of their experience—that thoughtful and studious men in the Universities will use the pages of the Magazine to illustrate the past History of Education, to show how the true principles are embodied in our existing institutions, and to offer hints for the improvement of our existing practice—and that active men in London and the other English cities, who are labouring to extend the blessing of Education over the country, and to engage the whole power of the Church in promoting it, will furnish him with records of their proceedings and reflections upon passing questions—religious, political, or literary, which bear upon the main subject. And, as our admiration of our old English Education should only make us more anxious to profit by the experience of foreigners, he hopes to obtain accounts of the Schools on the Continent, or in America, from persons who have visited them, from those who superintend them, or from authentic Documents.

The Editor desires that the Magazine should assert the Church Principles which it professes, strongly and unflinchingly, that it should be more occupied with maintaining its own ground than with attacking opponents, and that it should be free from personalities and vulgarities.

It is intended to give early Notices of New School Books, and of Works on Education generally; retrospective Reviews of Books, which are now used extensively in Schools, will also be inserted.

No. I. Price ONE SHILLING, will be published on the FIRST of JANUARY.

All Communications should be addressed (post paid) to the Editor, care of Messrs. DARTON and CLARK, 58, Holborn Hill, Published for the Proprietors, by DARTON and CLARK, London.

"By One who has a right to ask the question." With a list of 1200 Prebendal and Collegiate Illuminati of the Church of England, whose learned labours have enriched the theology of our Church, and are extant.

"For most certain truth it is, that Churches Cathedral, and the Bishops of them, are as glasses, wherein the face and very countenance of Apostolical Antiquity remaineth yet to be seen, notwithstanding, &c. For defence and maintenance of them we are most earnestly bound to strive, even as the Jews for their Temple and the High Priest of God therein: the overthrow and ruin of the one, if ever the sacrilegious avarice of Atheists should prevail so far,—which God of His infinite mercy forbid, should, &c."—Hooker's Eccl. Pol. b. vii. c. 7.

Third Edition,

THE CHURCH, the BISHOP, or CORAH,— WHICH? Two Sermons, St. Jude 19, preached the first Sunday after Easter; and a PASTORAL ADDRESS to HIS DISSENTING PARISHIONERS. By the RECTOR. With an Appendix on the Episcopal Succession of the Church in England.

Also,

THE PATRIARCHATE of BRITAIN, as it WAS, as it IS, and as it OUGHT TO BE; being as complete a List as the record of History has preserved of the Names of all the Bishops thereof from the earliest times; as well before as since the establishment of the Patriarchate; as such; including a short Historical Notice of the Origin and founding of every See, Ancient and Modern, in England, Wales, Ireland, Scotland, and the Colonies of this Patriarchate; with Observations on our fearful Episcopal neglect of our Colonies. 1 Tim. v. 8.

Price, with "Patriarchate of Britain," 5s. Without, 1s. 6d.

"The Patriarchate of Britain," separately, 4s.

Also, price One Penny, or 2s. 6d. per hundred, WHO IS CHRIST'S MINISTER?

Also, price 6d.

WHY ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN? A Sermon on 1 Pet. iii. 15, with an Appendix on Popery. The Appendix entitled, POPEY PRACTICAL, PAST, PRESENT, and PROSPECTIVE, may be had separately, price 3d.

Also, price 1s. 6d.

WHAT IS CONFIRMATION? Sermon 1. An Apostolical Rite. Sermon 2. An ancient Christian Usage. With a prefatory Notice on the Imposition of Dissent in general, of the Wesleyan Delusion in particular.

"Did we ever appoint you to administer the Sacraments?—to exercise the priestly office. Such a design was farthest from our thoughts. And if any preacher had taken such a step, we should have looked upon it as a palpable breach of this rule, and consequently as a recantation of our connexion. It does by no means follow from hence that you are commissioned to baptize or to administer the Lord's supper. Ye never dreamed of this for ten or twenty years after ye began to preach. Ye did not then, like Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, seek the priesthood also."—Wesley's Instructions to own Teachers.

In 12mo, price 4s.

A New Edition of the Rev. THOMAS MAUDE'S POEM,
THE SCHOOL-BOY.

* In a poem abounding with so many rich passages as this work contains, we are almost at a loss to transfer portions of it to our pages; for, when we have gathered a few flowers, so many are left behind, that they even appear lovelier, though remaining unplucked, than those which we have culled. We cannot do better than recommend our readers to take a survey of this delightful garden, and all gather to please their fancies.
* * * The 'School-boy' contains some of the graphic touches of a Crabbe, the green stillness of a Clare, the religion of a Thomson, the perfect picturing of a Goldsmith, and the minute grouping of a Moon-field. — Literary Gazette, (October 1, 1836).

THE LIFE-BOOK of a LABOURER. By A WORKING CLERGYMAN.

"It is the pious offering of one who may be deemed a proper follower in the footsteps of that good man, Leigh Richmond."—Argus.

"This volume reminds us forcibly of that most delightful of all biographies, 'The Doctor,' to which indeed it is little if at all inferior."—Bellevue.

"The Author has wisely based the tales contained in this volume on authenticated biography or historical fact, and the work challenges, by its intrinsic merits, to no small share of public approbation."—Hull Packet.

THE PRINCIPLES of MODERN DISSENTIENT EVANGELISM DISCLOSED; being a Series of Letters to Dr. PYS SMITH, in answer to his now published Lectures on Geology and Revelation; to which are added Summary Answers to Dr. WARDLAW'S Lectures on Church Establishments. By the Rev. HENRY COLE, late of Clare Hall, Cambridge.

These letters were originally published in the "Times," during the delivery of the Lectures. The Lectures, as now printed, are, in many points of essential objectionableness, very diverse in matter and manner, and in arrangement also, from those delivered. A comparison of the Lectures with the Letters, and a reflection on the principles of the former, for interpreting the inspired volume, as pointed out in the latter, (Letters IV. V.) are seriously requested of the British Christian world. To pursue the controversy beyond the requested comparison (especially of Lecture I. with Letter I.; Letter III. with Lecture V.; Letters IV. and V. with Lectures VI. VII. and VIII.) would be wholly superfluous.

TO THE CLERGY.

TO THE CLERGY whose various occupations preclude a due preparation for the Pulpit, or who are desirous to vary their style for the benefit of their congregations, THOMPSON'S SERMONS are strongly recommended. The Volume contains Twenty Sermons, the first Eighteen are upon various subjects, and are intended to enforce Scriptural Doctrines by moral practice; the two following are upon the offices of the Church, and the last treats of the value of the Bible.

"We pronounce this to be the very best volume of sermons for family use, we have met with."—The Christian Remembrancer.

"This volume of sermons is a useful addition to the theological library."—The Times.

"These sermons are practical and very useful. They enforce the great doctrines of Christianity with an earnest zeal, and powerfully apply them to the heart."—The Churchman.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE;

OR MONTHLY

REGISTER OF

THE AFFAIRS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, AND

OF ITS RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

No. 19.—Vol. II.

LONDON, TUESDAY, JANUARY 14, 1840.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

We have inserted in another part of the GAZETTE, the principal part of the new Post-office regulations. These regulations will not only affect materially our own correspondence, but will have a particular bearing upon the Bishops and Clergy, which it is requisite for us to notice. Since the 10th inst., the bishops have lost the privilege of franking letters, or of receiving them free: and unless the letters which are addressed to them are prepaid, they will be subject to the charge of double postage. We observe by a paragraph in the newspapers, that the Bishop of Lincoln has announced his intention to prepay all his letters to his clergy, and requests that they will do the same with any letters they may address to him.

This undoubtedly is the right course, and we should think it will be generally followed: especially as all letters weighing less than half an ounce, will now be delivered any where throughout the United Kingdom for a penny, if prepaid. It may be also necessary to observe that the transcripts of parish registers and the parochial returns of the Clergy will all be charged double postage, unless prepaid.

We have the pleasure to acknowledge the receipt of a considerable number of subscriptions for the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE for the present year, in addition to the new subscribers whose names appear on this page. We think it right to state, that several of the Clergy have paid two, and even three years subscription in advance. We feel greatly obliged by this proof of their confidence,—the most unequivocal proof which could be given. We cannot of course expect that such a feeling should be general, but we have full confidence that our subscribers will continue to us that regular support which is absolutely necessary to meet the expenses of a publication like the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE.

We beg to inform the Clergy of the counties of York, Lincoln, and Nottingham, that Mr. Appleby of Doncaster is appointed collector of subscriptions for the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE in those counties; and that he will take an early opportunity of calling upon them personally for that purpose.

We request the attention of the Clergy and the friends of Christian education generally to the appeal in behalf of the National Society, which we have inserted in this number.

The Subscription Committee of that Society are making the greatest exertions to meet the exigencies arising out of the present state of the ecclesiastical question, and are anxious to accomplish the object.

ECCLESIASTICAL NOTICES.

The Lord Bishop of Lincoln's next ordination will be held in Lincoln Cathedral, on Sunday the 15th of March.

The Lord Bishop of Worcester's next ordination will be held on the 25th of July.

The Lord Bishop of Hereford will hold his next ordination on Sunday the 26th of January.

The Clergy of the diocese of London are informed that there will be a general confirmation this year in the course of the summer.

The Lord Bishop of Peterborough purposes to hold his next ordination on Sunday, 15th of March; and would be glad to be made acquainted as early as possible with the intentions of Candidates. The testimonials and other papers are required to be sent in before the 20th of February.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

JANUARY, 1840.

At the General Meeting held on Tuesday, the 7th of January, 1840, the following resolution of the Committee of the Church Education Society for Ireland, forwarded by the Rev. W. Le Poer Trench,

Secretary of that institution, was read to the Board:—

"That the most respectful and cordial thanks of the Church Education Society for Ireland, be presented to the venerable Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, for its munificent grant of 500l. worth of books, which it has placed at the disposal of this Society."

The Secretary laid before the meeting a copy of "The Englishman," a Calcutta newspaper, of Thursday, October 10, 1839, containing an account of the laying the foundation-stone of the intended new cathedral church of St. Paul, Calcutta, on the previous Tuesday. The following are extracts from this account:—

"Among the assembly were the governor of Bengal and Mr. Bird, who stood near the bishop. After the bishop had read the first prayers, the archdeacon recited the 132d Psalm. The Rev. Mr. Pratt, the bishop's chaplain, next read the inscription and the list of coins which were subsequently inclosed in the foundation-stone."

The following is a copy of the inscription:—

"In the name of the blessed and undivided Trinity, the first stone of a Church to be called and known by the name of
ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL, CALCUTTA,
and designed for the worship of Almighty God, according to the doctrine and discipline of the apostolical reformed Church of England and Ireland, was laid by Daniel, Bishop of Calcutta, and Metropolitan of India, assisted by the Archdeacon and Clergy,
and in the presence of many of the distinguished gentry of Calcutta, on Tuesday the 8th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1839,
and
in the third year of the reign of her most excellent Majesty
VICTORIA,
Queen of Great Britain and Ireland."

The site was granted by the Right Honourable George, Lord Auckland, G.C.B.
Governor-general of India,
and
the Honourable Colonel W. Morison, C.B.
the Honourable T. C. Robertson and the Honourable W. W. Bird,
Members of the Supreme Council in the name of the Honourable the East India Company.
The designs and plans were drawn by
W. N. Forbes, Major of Engineers,
and Master of the Honourable Company's mint,
and the building is to be erected (if God is pleased to permit) under the superintendence of Colonel D. Macleod, Chief Engineer, the abovenamed Major Forbes,
and
W. R. Fitzgerald,
Captain of Engineers and Civil Architect.

"Except the Lord build the house, their labour is but lost that build it."—Psalm cxxvii.

"His name"—Messiah's—"shall endure for ever; his name shall be continued as long as the sun; and men shall be blessed in him; all nations shall call him blessed."

"Blessed be the Lord God, the God of Israel, who only doeth wondrous things,"

"And blessed be his glorious name for ever; and let the whole earth be filled with his glory. Amen and Amen."—Psalm lxxii. 17-19.

The stone having been laid, the bishop offered up other prayers, and then addressed the assembly to the following effect:—

"It would be most ungrateful in me to allow this respectable company to separate without returning them my best thanks for the support they have rendered me in the commencement of this great work. It will hardly be credited that in less than one month from the time of the issue of the proposals, upwards of 60,000 rupees have been subscribed. Nor is it less gratifying to know that every one of the donations made for the immediate time has been paid in, so that we have now more than 161,000 rupees in the whole to rely on, including the bishop's donation. The funds, therefore, for a year to come or more, are actually ready, and those for the entire body of the building itself promised. In the mean time, numerous friends in Calcutta, and all over India, are only waiting for the commencement of the work to make their donations. I have also addressed numerous letters to the chief personages in Church and State, with whom I have the honour of being acquainted at home, which I expect will arrive there in November or the following month. An application to the honourable Company for the grant of two lakhs, must have reached home by this time. With these resources, we enter upon our undertaking without despondency. We have, however, reduced every part of the design to the lowest point, perhaps to too low a point, so as to endanger the great object in view. It will only be 100 feet by 62 in the body of the Church, and 132 by 62 including the chancel; and will accommodate about 600 persons. The expense of the buildings themselves is not expected to exceed a lakh and a quarter of rupees. The finishings and fittings-up may raise this to nearly two lakhs. The endowments are the only part of the design particularly expensive, and which cannot be reduced. I trust we may raise 2½ or 3 lakhs for the support of a small, but devout and learned body of cathedral clergy, to read lectures on the evidences of Christianity, to hold conferences with learned natives, to train catechetical classes, and to assist the Rev. Chaplains and Missionaries in their work. I hope its endowed prebends may be the first series of ecclesiastical benefices established in our Protestant Church in India; and that Bishop's College may furnish suitable candidates for holy orders on the titles of these endowments. All this, however, will be a work for my successors, and for the Indian gentry of the next age.

"What may be deemed ornamental additions and conveniences, organ, clock, bells, stands for carriages, &c. will likewise be for future consideration, as our means may allow; the ultimate amount which I hope to raise is thus 6 lakhs. With respect to the buildings themselves, the general estimate I have given will hardly be thought excessive by those who remember the expense incurred in the foundations of all buildings in our alluvial soil, and the general difficulties created afterwards by our Bengal climate. The present cathedral of St. John's; it is understood, cost more than 2½ lakhs, the Scotch Church 2½, and the Fort still more; in none of which churches is there the least excess of ornament or expense.

"As to the position of the new cathedral, we build it in Chowringhee where a church has been most urgently wanted for these fifteen years; and not in Calcutta itself, where it is not wanted. It will be about 2½ miles distant from St. James's church; 2½ from the old church; 2 from the present cathedral; 1½ from the Free School church—distances which even in the cooler climate of England would call for new churches. For there is nothing in which it is so necessary to overcome all the excuses of men as with respect to the attendance on the worship of Almighty God.

"And yet how much depends on the public means of grace as instituted by Christianity and administered in buildings set apart for the purpose. Christianity hangs upon it. With a church comes the Word of God and prayer, celebration of the sacraments ordained by Christ,—with a church, the sanctification of the Sabbath, family religion, domestic peace and virtue, the Christian school, the visiting society, care for our own salvation, and for the salvation of others.

"Nor was there ever a moment when we were so much called upon to honour God in British India, as now, when his goodness has vouchsafed us such a blessed and fruitful season of rain, and has just extended our power and influence in so extraordinary and almost miraculous a manner over a new region of the East.

"Still I have laid this foundation with fear and trembling. The future is unknown. Life and health are as a vapour. The best concerted plans are nothing without God's blessing. It is in reliance on his never-failing Providence only, in the case of all prudent forethought and care, that I take this step.

"May we be all built ourselves in a spiritual sense on Christ the sure foundation! May we be a part of that vast invisible Temple of which He is the chief corner-stone! May the doctrine of St. Paul be ever preached in the cathedral which is to bear his name!

"No time will be lost in carrying on the works as soon as the copiousness of the rains will allow our loose soil to be trusted—probably six weeks or two months hence. Church work is always slow work from the necessity of the case and the anxiety to make every thing durable; we must not be impatient. Should I live to return in 16 months to Calcutta, I can only hope to see the buildings somewhat advanced.

"I must now take my farewell. But before I do so, I must beg to tender my best acknowledgments in the names of the Rev. Clergy and Laity of this diocese, and in my own to the Hon. Governor of Bengal and the Hon. the Members of Council, for the prompt and cheerful aid which they have rendered me in every instance in which I have solicited it. On that continued aid, I know, I may securely rely. Indeed, without the assistance of government, the works cannot proceed a day; I entreat them to accept my grateful thanks."

A letter was read from the Lord bishop of Bath and Wells, recommending the Rev. C. W. Osborne's application for a grant of books for the use of labourers employed on a portion of the Great Western Railway.

The Secretary reported that books to the value of 30*l.* had been forwarded accordingly.

A letter was read from the Lord Bishop of Madras to the Secretary, dated Vellore, Sept. 23, 1839, of which the following are extracts:—

"You are doubtless aware that to almost every chaplain's chief station—and how gladly would I say, (if the term were admissible in India,) parish—are appended certain out-stations, many of them situated at a great distance from his usual place of abode. At each of these out-stations he has the nominal charge of a little flock, whom he visits at stated periods, under the sanction of the bishop; but where his visits are unavoidably few, and at distant intervals; and during his absence he is obliged to confide the reading of the prayers and his sermon on Sundays to some resident layman, who, in many instances, proves himself an able as well as willing coadjutor of the non-resident clergyman."

The Bishop then requests a supply of some volumes of Sermons, which he might send to the out stations, to be read to the common soldiers and others; and proceeds,—

"In virtue of the trust reposed in me, I have contributed, by a bill on the Society, 40*l.*, towards the erection of a missionary chapel at Bangalore; a building much wanted there; and I have also drawn on the treasurer for 100*l.*, to be laid out at different stations in the course of my present visitation, as account of which I hope to render in a future letter, which I shall probably address to you from Ceylon, whither I am now bound.

"My opinion of the prospect of Christianity in Southern India remains the same; and I am more than ever encouraged in my hope that even I, through God's grace and blessing, may prove a useful, as I trust I am a willing, promoter of the great cause of glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good-will towards men; and this, I believe even more firmly than ever, now that experience begins to ripen impressions into conviction, will be done most effectually through the agency of the Church of England. In promoting, then, the efficiency of the Church in India, our Society is indeed promoting Christian knowledge, a real knowledge of Jesus Christ, both among Europeans and natives. By the former it is eagerly sought for, and have it they will, either pure or adulterated; for the latter, God, at his own good time, will call light out of darkness; but we, his humble and most unworthy instruments, have not a minute to lose in doing the work which he has appointed us, and which others, whom we conscientiously believe are not qualified for the task, are ready enough to undertake whenever we neglect it."

His Lordship forwarded the charge delivered by him to the clergy of the archdiocese of Madras at his primary visitation of the diocese, Jan. 8, 1840.

The Secretary stated that the Standing Committee proposed sending out to the Bishop Six copies of Archdeacon Berens' Sermons.
Six copies of Harte's Lectures.
Six copies of Wilson's Sermons.
Six copies of Paley's Sermons.
Six sets of the Family Sermons.
This was approved.

A communication was read from Stafford Kirkpatrick, Esq., of Peterborough, Upper Canada, who is now in this country, inclosing letters addressed to him by the Lord Bishop of Montreal, and the Archdeacon of Kingston, Upper Canada, relative to the Protestant Episcopal Church at Peterborough. By these it appeared that the building, after many difficulties, had been opened for Divine service in the winter of 1836, but that it is still in an unfinished state, and that, in consequence of the failure of the original contractor and other circumstances, it is burdened with a debt, amounting, with an accumulation of interest, to 700*l*.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, who has manifested great interest, and made many sacrifices in behalf of the Church at Peterborough, is personally liable for this sum.

It was agreed that the sum of 100*l*. be granted towards the Church at Peterborough.

A letter was read from Mrs. Carr, in behalf of a new school at Poonah, in the diocese of Bombay, for which books from the supplemental catalogue are required. The Bishop of Bombay is stated by Mrs. Carr to be extremely anxious for the success of this school, which affords instruction to the Anglo-Indian, or half-caste part of the community. It is supported by subscription, the children being taught by the officers' ladies; but it is hoped, that other assistance may also be obtained. The "Society for the Promotion of Female Education in the East" is sending out a schoolmistress.

The Board agreed to supply Books to the value of 25*l*.

A memorial, from the Rev. Dr. H. Robinson, the Rev. H. Budd, the Rev. G. Bryan, the Rev. C. J. Yorke, and the Rev. H. B. S. Harris, on the subject of the Society's tracts, was read to the meeting. The memorialists notice passages which they deem objectionable, in two of the tracts on the Society's list.

The Rev. Dr. Short moved that this memorial do lie on the table.

Mr. N. Goldsmid seconded this.

Mr. Perceval White moved, by way of amendment, that the memorial be referred to the Standing Committee.

The amendment was put and negatived.

The original motion was then carried.

The following names were proposed by the Standing Committee for election in February, as the Committee of General Literature and Education:—

The Dean of Chichester; J. L. Adolphus, Esq.; Rev. Professor Browne; Rev. A. M. Campbell; Rev. Thomas Dale; Rev. Professor Hall; J. R. Hope, Esq.; J. H. Markland, Esq.; J. D. Powles, Esq.; Rev. Dr. Russell; Rev. W. Short; Dr. Thomas Watson.

The following letter from the Hon. Justice Burton, accompanied by his work lately published on the state of religion and education in New South Wales, was laid before the meeting.

"171, Regent Street, London, 6th January, 1840.

"Reverend Sir,

"I have the honour of presenting, through you, to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, a little work published by me on the 'State of Religion and Education in New South Wales,' in which I have endeavoured to show faithfully the deficiency of religious means under which that colony has long laboured, the measures which have been recently adopted to remove that deficiency, the nature of those measures, and the still continuing religious wants of the colony. And I would, at the same time, desire permission to lay before the Society a brief view of those wants, and of the mode in which it appears to me they may be supplied; leaving to the Society the consideration, how far they may be able to assist in that object.

"The first and chief, is the want of a permanent provision for the Church and Schools of the colony under Parliamentary authority.

"This I apprehend may be best obtained by petition to both Houses of Parliament, praying them to recommend to Her Majesty the Queen, that Her Majesty may be pleased to cause such permanent provision as to Her Majesty shall seem meet, to be secured under Parliamentary authority on the lands of the late Church and School Corporation, so far as the same will suffice, and upon the Crown lands of the colony at present lying waste and ungranted, for the due maintenance of the bishop and clergy of the United Church of England and Ireland, and for the erection and sustentation of churches with residences for officiating ministers, for establishing schools under the superintendence of the clergy; and for securing the services of competent teachers throughout the colony.

"Secondly,—The total absence of chaplains to the military, the several hospitals, gaols, ironed-gangs, and places of confinement, for convicts transported to the colony, points out the absolute necessity of such appointments being made. The duty of providing them is one belonging to this country, and the charge of maintaining them is properly one upon the British treasury; so that the mode of obtaining them would appear to be by petition to Her Majesty's Ministers, or to both Houses of Parliament, praying them to recommend to Her Most Gracious Majesty to cause such provision to be made.

"Thirdly,—There is immediate and pressing necessity for the erection of churches and clergymen's residences throughout the colony, beyond what can be reasonably expected to be accomplished by the private means of the well-disposed members of the Church in New South Wales, even if aided to an equal amount from the Public Treasury of the colony; such aid being, however, limited by the Colonial Church Act to the sum of 1000*l*. in each case.

"Fourthly,—There exists no provision for the maintenance of either the bishop or clergy in old age or infirmity, or for that of the widows of such as die in the service of the Church, or for the support and education of their orphans.

"Fifthly,—There is immediate need for the establishment of a college, founded on the principles of the National Church, for the education of young people in the colony, for the ministry, and as schoolmasters.

"Sixthly,—There is an urgent necessity for more clergymen in all parts of the colony; but especially for itinerant missionaries to be appointed to those districts lying beyond the limits of location, the inhabitants have no means of access to the ordinary ministrations of the clergy; and for these there is no provision in the colony.

"Seventhly,—There is equal necessity for more schools to be established on the principles of the National Schools throughout the colony, and for more schoolmasters.

"Eightily,—There is need of provision being made for the remuneration of schoolmasters, whilst they are capable of service, and towards their support in old age and infirmity.

"For obtaining assistance towards these several objects, I propose to open lists for the subscriptions of those persons who may be disposed towards their brethren in Australia; so framed as to admit of donations being made, either to the general religious wants of the diocese, including all the settlements under the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the Bishop of Australia, or to any specific object within it. The general fund to be placed entirely at the disposal of the bishop: the subscriptions for specific objects in certain cases to be vested in trustees resident within the colony, to be by them laid out upon real securities in the colony upon trust, to apply the proceeds to the specific objects of their trust. I propose that these subscription lists should comprise the following heads:—

2nd ditto.—Towards the Erection of Churches and Clergymen's Residences.

3rd ditto.—Towards the Erection and Endowment of a College.

4th ditto.—Towards the Erection of a Cathedral Church, and the support of its Services.

5th ditto.—Towards the making a Better Provision for Clergymen, and providing them assistance in old age and infirmity.

6th ditto.—Towards the Maintenance of the Widows and Orphans of such Clergymen as die in the service of the Church in the colony.

7th ditto.—Towards the Education of the Children of Clergymen in the principles of the National Church.

8th ditto.—Towards the Maintenance of Itinerant Clergymen in remote or destitute parts of the colony.

9th ditto.—Towards the Establishment of Schools and the Maintenance of Schoolmasters.

"How far, if, to any extent, the Society may, consistently with their rules, adopt this proposal, I respectfully leave to their consideration. Encouraged, however, by past proofs of their Christian love, I turn especially to them, and to every friend of the Church in Great Britain, praying their co-operation with, and support of, their brethren in Australia. The field is extensive, and the means required for its occupation proportionate; but neither does the former, I am persuaded, exceed the power of the Church to fill, nor the other the ability of its members to provide; and the time at which this appeal is made I most unequivocally declare my full and firm conviction to be 'the day' in which it is given them 'to work;' and if they do not now take advantage of it, 'a night cometh in which no man can work;' in other words, this is the time in which the Protestant Reformed Church of England and Ireland must be firmly established in its means of support, as I am thankful to say it is in the hearts of a great majority of the people in New South Wales, and, if lost, the opportunity for doing so will pass away, perhaps for ever.

"I have the honour to be,

"Reverend Sir,

"Very faithfully yours,

"W. H. BURTON,

One of the Judges of the Supreme Court of New South Wales.

"To the Rev. the Secretary of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge."

It was agreed, that this letter be referred to the Standing Committee for their consideration, and that Mr. Justice Burton be thanked for the present of his book.

The Secretary read an extract of a letter from the Rev. Dr. Burrow, of Gibraltar, giving a favourable account of the progress of the Rev. L. Lucena's school of Spanish children in that garrison. He says: "It goes on admirably, and the pains which Mr. Lucena bestows upon it in the week, as well as on the Sunday, must, with the divine blessing, produce some good fruit." Speaking of the Spanish congregation, he says: "There have been some unfortunate local obstacles to its increase, in addition to those which I foresaw; but these, with patience and caution, may be overcome. I mention this, lest any disappointment should be felt by the Society, if the state of the congregation should fall short of their expectations—a state not at all to be attributed to any deficiency or error of Mr. Lucena, but solely to the peculiar circumstances of this place."

A letter was received from the Rev. W. W. Holland, Secretary of the Diocesan Committee at Chichester, announcing a donation of 58*l*. 5*s*. 6*d*. from that Committee to the Society. Mr. Holland adds, "It will gratify you also to learn, that a lady, to whom I lent the last Monthly Report, containing the account of the Bishop of Calcutta's announcement of his intention to erect a Cathedral, was so interested in the project, as to intimate her willingness to contribute 10*l*. towards it."

It was agreed to return thanks for the donation of the Chichester Diocesan Committee.

The attention of the Meeting was called by the Secretary to the importance of Diocesan and District Committees adopting the system of ready money in their transactions with the members, as without such a system sums due to the Society are often rendered irrecoverable*.

The Secretary also called the attention of the meeting to the XXIVth Rule of the Society, "That payment for all books supplied by the Society be due within three months after delivery; and that no member be at liberty to make a fresh application, whose account shall be unpaid, for a further period of three months, or whose subscription shall be two years in arrear; and that a copy of this rule be annexed to every bill for books."

Mr. Hull renewed, for the next General Meeting, to be held on the 4th of February, the notice of motion which he had given at a former meeting; namely,

"That his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury be requested to appoint responsible editors to prepare Commentaries on the Old Testament, the Epistles, and the Revelation, in order to complete the Society's new edition of the Bible, so that the whole Bible may be ready for publication at the same time at which Mr. Lonsdale and Mr. Hale may publish their Commentary on the Four Gospels and the Acts."

Fifty-six new members were admitted.

A letter was read from the Secretary of the "Society of Patrons," acknowledging the aid given by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge towards past anniversaries of the assembled charity schools at St. Paul's, and requesting that a preacher may be appointed for the next anniversary.

Several letters of acknowledgment were laid before the meeting.

Donations announced, in addition to that from Chichester.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

4, Trafalgar Square, Jan. 10th, 1840.

The following Letters and Papers are published with a view of making better known in this country the destitute condition of the Canadian Church, and in the hope of exciting a more general interest at home in behalf of our fellow-countrymen and fellow-Christians in the Colonies:

UPPER CANADA.

NEWCASTLE DISTRICT.

From the Rev. George Charles Street, recently ordained by the Bishop of Montreal, as Travelling Missionary, and placed upon the Society's List at his lordship's recommendation.

Cobourg, 7th October, 1839.

"I left this on the afternoon of Saturday, the 6th of July, and arriving at Colborne the same evening, took up my quarters as usual at the residence of our hospitable friend Mr. Goalee. Having performed divine service the next morning to a good congregation in the village, I was on the point of starting for Percy, when a severe storm came on, which detained me till four P.M. After travelling for the first hour and a half in the rain, the weather cleared up, but owing to the state of the roads, I was unable to reach my destination till half-past seven o'clock, and, unfortunately, just as the congregation which had assembled were dispersing. Mr. Platt, however, at whose house I was kindly received, called in a few of his neighbours, and I read a part of the evening service, and a sermon.

* The Society, by the recommendation of the Finance Committee, lately intimated its intention of enforcing more strictly than heretofore the 9th Rule for District Committees; namely,

"Payment for all books supplied to District Committees shall be due within six months after delivery; and no Committee shall be entitled to make a fresh application, whose account shall be unpaid, for a further period of six months."

On the following morning I proceeded to Seymour, and after encountering another violent thunder-storm, reached it in time for divine service at four P.M. The congregation, owing to this interruption, and the busy season of the year, was small, but the attention of the audience and the personal kindness of Mr. Ranni were very gratifying. Early on the 9th I left for Asphodel, returning through Percy; and after a long and tedious ride,—having gone two or three miles out of my way,—I arrived at Mr. Bird-sall's, whose house is beautifully situated at the head of Rice Lake, commanding a view of that picturesque sheet of water for a distance of many miles. Mr. and Mrs. B. I regretted to find, were absent, and my notice of service had in consequence not been circulated. At noon, the next day, I left for Otonabee, and arrived at Mr. Rubidge's in the course of the afternoon, and employed the greater part of the following day in riding through the neighbourhood, giving notice for a service on Friday. That morning set in with rain, and my congregation was consequently but small; although, as it was, many walked a distance of three miles through the wet, and over muddy roads. There was much anxiety manifested in this neighbourhood for the regular ministrations of the Church; and I understood that a rear concession of this township is settled almost exclusively with members of the Church of England, who have but very rarely indeed an opportunity of attending her services.

"On the following day, passing through Peterborough, I proceeded to Cavan, and from thence, early on Sunday morning, I rode to Emily, a distance of ten miles. At eleven o'clock, I met the largest congregation that I have seen assemble in the back-woods, numbering, I should suppose, 250 persons. The school-house, although more spacious than those buildings usually are, was unable to contain the whole of the congregation, so that numbers were accommodated with seats on the outside round the open windows. After the services were concluded, many of the congregation, several of whom came from the distance of seven miles, crowded round me, to express their earnest desire for the settlement of a clergyman amongst them, and tears evinced their sincerity. A very good frame for a church with a tower had been erected, and nearly roofed; and the residents were only waiting till there should appear a reasonable prospect of the appointment of a clergyman, in order to complete the building. In the afternoon of the same day I rode to Ops, and preached to a tolerable congregation, in a private house. Being kindly pressed by my very hospitable host, Mr. Hughes, I remained in Emily till Wednesday morning, having no appointment in the mean time. On that day I proceeded to Peterborough, and reached it early in the afternoon, in time to attend the meeting of the clergy at the Rev. C. T. Wade's. This and the following day were spent most pleasantly, and I trust profitably, with my clerical brethren.

"On Friday morning, the 19th of July, I left at an early hour for Fenelon Falls; and having travelled the first twelve miles in a waggon, embarked in a private four-oared boat, and ascended the Lakes, arriving at our destination a little before midnight. The scenery through which we passed was often very beautiful, though extremely wild. On Sunday, although much indisposed from the fluctuations of the weather, and exposure to the night air, I was, by the blessing of God, enabled to perform service and preach twice to a very good congregation. I also christened nine children, and had an application for an adult baptism, but declined, on finding, after examination, that the candidate did not evince a sufficient knowledge of the great truths of Christianity. The spirited proprietors of this flourishing spot have been the means of the erection of a log church, neatly fitted up with pulpit, reading-desk, and communion-table. The building is beautifully situated on the summit of a rising ground in their new village. A fund has also been raised in the mother country among the friends of the settlers in this neighbourhood, which will assist very materially in the support of a clergyman.

"On Monday morning I left in a two-oared boat, with a gentleman and lady who had come up the lake seven miles on Sunday morning to attend the services, and I was obliged to take shelter from a thunder-storm under their roof, where we arrived just in time to escape it. As soon as the weather had cleared up, I embarked again with my boatman, and about five P.M. arrived at Bobcaygean, where for the first time I performed the marriage ceremony. Starting with my boatman before sunrise the next morning, we arrived at the landing on Mud Lake about noon. From thence I walked twelve miles to Peterborough, and availed myself once more of the hospitality of the Rev. C. T. Wade. We left together the next morning, and had service in Otonabee at eleven o'clock. The day again proved, unfortunately, very wet and stormy; yet I proceeded in the evening to fulfil my engagement at Gilchrist's mills, but found that publicity had not been given to my notice, through the inadvertency of the party to whom I had entrusted its circulation. I subsequently experienced a similar disappointment, from the same cause, as at Asphodel.

"On Saturday I proceeded through Percy to Seymour, where I performed service on Sunday morning, and at Percy at six o'clock the same evening. Leaving early on Monday morning the 29th instant, I returned once more to Cobourg, by the blessing of God, in health and safety,—having travelled in all, by land and water, upwards of 300 miles.

"In some instances, in the remote settlements, I found a plan pursued which appears to have been attended with beneficial results. I allude to the practice of a layman reading the Church service and a printed sermon to his neighbours every Sunday.—This I have found to have been the means of keeping alive a sense of religion in the back woods, and of maintaining affection towards the Church and a desire for the regular ministrations of her clergy. It would be impossible for one who had not witnessed it to conceive adequately the spiritual destitution existing in those remote places, and while it is seldom relieved by any sound or regular ministration, Socinians, Mormons, and other teachers of false doctrines, reap an abundant harvest.

"It is impossible that a conscientious Christian having at heart, as he must have, the salvation of the souls of his fellow-creatures, and the advancement of Christ's kingdom, could see what I have seen, and remain unconvinced of the necessity for the recognition of religion by a government professedly Christian. The consideration of the means,—obviously simple as circumstances would seem to render them, to be adopted, I leave to others; but to the existence of the absolute need of such a course, I bear my testimony, however feeble. We know that the blessed day will arrive, when 'the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ; and He shall reign for ever;' but this conviction should not lead man presumptuously to forego the use of the most effectual means; and I confidently trust that we may yet see, where now there is but 'the voice of one crying in the wilderness,' the prophecy amply fulfilled in its spiritual sense—'The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice, and blossom as the rose.'

BRITISH GUIANA.

From the Rev. H. R. Redwar to the Lord Bishop of Barbados.

"Mary's Hope, Berbice, September 21st, 1839.

"My Lord,—I have the honour to inform your lordship, that, on Monday, the 2nd instant, I left the Eliza and Mary in a corial, manned by a crew of six Indians, and, after seventeen hours' continuous use of paddles, in the absence of a favourable breeze, reached Auralle. I took with me Mr. Simpson, the schoolmaster of the Eliza and Mary, with a view to his assisting in the performance of divine worship, and of giving additional effect to it by the full responses.

"Mr. De Wolff very kindly received us, and gave every publicity to the circumstance of my arrival and object of my visit. The greater part of Tuesday we spent in walking on the Savannah from hut to hut, and making myself known. On Wednesday, at eleven o'clock, I had seventy-three Indians, adults and children, collected together at the post holder's house, and commenced with the short morning service, after which I addressed them in as plain and suitable a manner as I was able; and nothing could exceed the apparent attention and interest they exhibited throughout the whole. I found them possessed of greater intelligence, and also more accessible than I expected. I next proceeded to baptize twelve children, which were most willingly brought me by their parents. It is somewhat singular, that your lordship, at your late visit to Aurielle, baptized the same number, ten of which were Waccows and the other two Accowacks, and that, in my case, there were undesignedly twelve again, but ten Accowacks and two Waccows, thus making a dozen of each tribe. Three chieftains were present, Matthias, Thomas, and Hector, and also the poor old blind Jeremiah, whom I had the inexpressible pleasure to hear several times sing his long-remembered and well-cherished "Hallelujah" hymns, one of which he was able to interpret to me, and I found to be a Christian Hymn, wherein the Virgin Mother and the manger were particularly introduced. He assured me he felt as if he was a "young boy," so sensibly did the prayers, singing, and preaching remind him of the time, when but a boy, he went to the Moravian Missionaries' School, and took his part. The old man insisted on his being allowed to paddle me down the river again, which he did with as much strength and skill as the youngest of the crew. Nathaniel, his son, (who had been baptized by the missionary when an infant,) promised to take care of the newly-baptized children, and to bring them to the intended schoolmaster's, to be taught, 'all the good things,' as he said. As soon as a steady teacher is settled amongst them, and gains their confidence, I am convinced we shall see abundant good fruits to the important and interesting mission. After having taken several long and pleasant walks on Thursday, I stepped over the small streams of the Apocac (which in wet seasons forms a pretty cascade of probably seventy feet in the river) and of the Hobodiegoerie and Aurielle creeks in my way, and visited the site of the Moravian establishment. I left the kind and worthy post-holder's house on Thursday evening, and reached the Eliza and Mary at noon on Friday.

"I feel, my Lord, much pleased and encouraged by the general reception and countenance I have met with at this my first visit to Aurielle, and beg leave to assure you that no exertion shall be wanting on my part to carry on, under God's blessing, that benevolent work of Christianizing the Indians in the Coreatyne river, which your lordship so happily thought of, and commenced in person. I purpose my second visit in the last week of next month, when I hope, with God's blessing, to feel my way more perfectly."

HOME REPORT.

PAROCHIAL ASSOCIATION.

To the Secretary of the Society.

Worcester, Dec. 23, 1839.

"REV. and DEAR SIR,—The visit of the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, so kindly made by his lordship at our request, a request most cordially sanctioned by our diocesan, has been greatly blessed. More than 600*l.* (above 300*l.* in the Worcestershire part, and the same in the Warwickshire part of the diocese,) has been the immediate pecuniary result, besides considerable increase in annual subscriptions: but even far beyond this, has been the spread of an excellent feeling of attachment to our Church, both at home and abroad, which has been most materially forwarded by the exertions of his lordship.

Parochial associations are also spreading; and on the whole, there is much cause for thankfulness in reference to the Society throughout this diocese, though much, very much, yet remains to be done.

"I am, Rev. and dear Sir,

"faithfully yours,

"W^m. GODFREY,

"Treasurer to the Worcester Committee."

The Bishop of Nova Scotia, who will remain in England until May, is very anxious to obtain for his diocese the services of a few well qualified clergymen, to be employed either in settled stations, or as visiting missionaries. They must be faithful, zealous, and devoted to their sacred work, for none others would find their happiness in the discharge of the important duties, which will be committed to them.

Their stipends will be paid through the benevolent agency of the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and some additional income probably about 50*l.* a year, with a residence, will be supplied by the congregations for whom such missionaries will labour.

Clergymen, or well qualified candidates for holy orders, are requested to apply at the office of the Society, No. 4, Trafalgar-square, London.

NATIONAL EDUCATION.

Letter from the Rev. JOHN SINCLAIR, M.A., Secretary to the National Society, to the Right Hon. LORD ASHLEY, M.P., Chairman of the Subscription Committee formed in aid of that Institution.

"National Society's Office,
1st January, 1840.

"MY LORD,—At the request of the Subscription Committee I have drawn up the enclosed statement, containing further grounds on which to rest their present appeal in behalf of the National Society to the generosity of the English public. The passages I have extracted from the letters sent to this office by the clergy and managers of schools will effectually advance the great object which the Committee has at heart, if they produce the same impression upon others which they have made upon myself.

"I have the honour to be, my Lord,

"With much respect,

"Your Lordship's faithful and obedient servant,

"JOHN SINCLAIR, Secretary."

"To the Right Hon. Lord Ashley, M.P."

An Appeal in behalf of the National Society to the Friends and Promoters of sound Christian Education throughout England and Wales.

The National Society has now for upwards of twenty-seven years carried on unobtrusively, but laboriously, and, it is believed, effectually, the great work of promoting the education of the poor in the principles of the Established Church. By its charter of incorporation, the Society includes in its Committee of management, besides a stated number of temporal peers and privy councillors, the whole of the right reverend bench, and has thus been enabled to exercise a beneficial influence over every diocese and district in the kingdom. For many years, the resources of the Society arose entirely from the voluntary contributions of individuals, who had at heart the instruction of the young in the principles and practice of genuine Protestant Christianity. The contributions to its funds were by no means in proportion to the magnitude of the object to be effected; but so judiciously were they husbanded and expended, that in the year 1833 nearly half a million of children were receiving education under the superintendence of our parochial clergy, in schools connected with this truly Christian and patriotic Association. In that year the Society for the first time received assistance in its benevolent labours from the public Treasury. The sum of 20,000*l.* was voted by Parliament for purposes of education, no part of which was ever appropriated to the National Society itself, though a considerable portion was set apart for schools recommended by the Society to the lords of the Treasury. The conditions required by their lordships were, that the tenure of the site should be secure; that the edifice should be suitable, as well as substantial; and that reports upon the state of education should, on being called for, be presented to Government. Their lordships confined themselves to these equitable and well-advised requirements, because they gave no aid to the maintenance of the school, but only assisted in its first erection; and assisted only at the rate of ten shillings per head for every space of six square feet allotted to each child. Their lordships acted upon the principle, that the managers of the school, by whom four-fifths of the cost of the building were paid, and the entire maintenance of the school was defrayed, were entitled to the privilege of deciding as to the qualifications of the teachers, and the system of instruction to be pursued. Their zeal in the cause of popular education; their rank in society, as belonging to the middle and more educated classes; and, in some instances, their station in the Church, entitled them, it was conceived, to this moderate exercise of confidence on the part of the public. Any inspection of the school, to ascertain how the parochial clergyman was discharging his duty to the younger members of his flock, was left to his ecclesiastical superiors.

The foregoing arrangement for the distribution of the national bounty continued in operation for the space of five years. The amount was not large, or rather indeed, was trivial, in comparison with the magnitude and importance of the national object to be attained; and the method of distribution was not free from serious objections; yet the plan encountered no resistance from the Church, and was acquiesced in by the community at large. A new impulse was given to the progress of education, and an expectation raised, and gradually confirmed, in the minds of its supporters, that the parliamentary bounty would continue to flow,—and, perhaps, even more copiously,—in its accustomed channel. No suspicion arose, or could in candour be expected to rise, that the ordinary annual gift would be all at once encumbered with new conditions.

The year 1839, however, has brought an unforeseen change. During the last session the sum of 30,000*l.* has been voted for educational purposes; not, as before, with the full concurrence of both Houses of Parliament, but by the Lower House alone, contrary to the declared wishes and solemn remonstrances of the Upper. A central Board, consisting of four privy councillors, all of them laymen, to the marked exclusion of the spiritual members, has been for the first time established, and to their discretion has been committed the distribution of the grant. In exercising this discretionary power, the Board thus constituted were unhappily persuaded to betray suspicions as to the zeal and judgment, not only of the originators and promoters of schools throughout the country, but even of the National Church itself. They required the inspection of all schools which should hereafter be aided by public money; and would not be satisfied with an inspection carried on under the authorities of the Church, but insisted upon appointing an inspector of their own; who, without inquiring into what had hitherto been considered the most important point for examination, namely, religious knowledge, should ascertain merely the state and progress of what is now termed secular instruction. In this new condition annexed to public grants for educational purposes, the managers of schools, and especially the clergy, to whom professionally the superintendence of education is confided, could not be expected to concur. An inspection by Church authority, so far from resisting, they would have courted; but not only had they reason to apprehend that this interference of a Government functionary would lead to further and very perilous encroachments on their pastoral influence, but they considered the measure as in itself objectionable on various grounds; and more especially from its tendency to make religion be regarded as a secondary instead of primary and paramount consideration. The clergy, therefore, were precluded by conscientious scruples from accepting the aid so ungenerously and cruelly restricted.

Meanwhile many friends of practical education, trusting to the wonted assistance of Parliament, and to the hitherto unflinching co-operation of the National Society, not only projected plans of new schools, but proceeded to carry them into execution. In several instances, the minister of the parish, foremost as became his holy office in the good work, made himself personally responsible for the whole of the deficiencies which the public grant was expected to supply. But suddenly this resource fails him, unless, as has been stated, he consents to conditions, which he considers dangerous and degrading.

To form any adequate conception of the difficulty and embarrassment to which the clergy were reduced by their zeal for popular education, joined with their high-minded resolution, rather to suffer for conscience' sake than do violence to their principles, it would be necessary for the public to read a large proportion of the voluminous correspondence, amounting to above a thousand letters, which, during the last three months, it has been my painful task to peruse. In many instances the applicant, who had accepted offers from the Committee of Council, informs me that he has done so with great reluctance, only because "his resources were utterly insufficient for the work;"—or "because the parish would otherwise remain in its usual destitution in point of education, and it would be totally out of his power to risk the undertaking upon his own responsibility;"—or because "his funds were quite inadequate to pay his contractor;"—or because he was "obliged to take the money much against his will, in utter despair of ever obtaining a grant from any other source;"—or because, "to his great regret, the managers, from the kindest intentions, would not suffer him to incur the responsibility of raising the requisite funds*."

In other cases, the applicant, after accepting the offer of the Committee of Council, has opened his eyes to the danger lurking under the plausible pretence of unauthoritative Government-inspection; has heard of the acknowledgment by the Committee of Council, that Regulation A is only "for the present year," and will be afterwards succeeded by more stringent measures; has ascertained what is the ultimate object of the philosophical educationists by whom Government-inspection was first proposed; has begun to look upon it as the first step towards transferring the superintendence of education from the Church to the State, and thereby either introducing into schools a generalized Christianity, or banishing Christianity from them altogether; and has written to me earnestly soliciting assistance from the Society, that he may rid himself of the offensive bond, and return the money.

When the applicant has from the first considered himself precluded from accepting the grant, he has the Christian firmness to decline it, although he is almost driven to accept it "by-urgent necessity;"—or thereby "brings himself into a strait;"—or must "make himself responsible for the deficiency;"—or "fears he must abandon his present project;"—or "from the poverty of his parish, must take upon himself the whole expense;"—or "will be involved in great embarrassment;"—or "is called upon to pay a large sum which he has only the means of meeting to a limited extent;"—or "is subjected to great inconvenience, having, on the faith of the Government-grant, made preparations the cost of which he will be obliged to defray;"— or "finds himself at a stand-still, with the future all dark, and at a loss what to do."

Sometimes my correspondence has afforded me the gratifying intelligence that the applicant will not call for assistance from the National Society, because it is "not to the Society, but to Parliament," that he looks for redress of the wrong he has sustained;—or because "the promoters of the school, who strongly objected to the proposed inspection, had supplied all his wants;"—or because "he was enabled to carry on his buildings through the very great munificence of a neighbouring landowner;"—or "because he will endeavour to procure the sum required from other quarters, and trusts that his parishioners will not ultimately suffer from his performance of a duty which he owes no less to them than to himself;"—or because "he can afford to complete the school-buildings from his own resources, and considers it the duty of every individual to strain every nerve at this crisis to render himself rather a help than a burthen to others."

A painful contrast to these gratifying communications is afforded by the many letters I have received from every quarter of the kingdom, in which the parties inform me, that as they cannot, under present circumstances, conscientiously accept public money, and consider the whole cause of sound Christian education in the greatest jeopardy, they have either for the present abandoned their whole design of building schools, or have contracted the dimensions of the buildings, or will be satisfied with one school instead of two, or with Sunday-schools instead of week-day schools, or will not now provide accommodation for the master and mistress. To show how effectually the Committee of Council have succeeded in discouraging the chief patrons of popular education upon right principles, I shall conclude these quotations with one more remarkable example. "The promoters of the schools here are resolved not to lay one stone of a building which may by any probability, at any future time, be diverted from the object for which it is now to be erected, namely, the education of the poor in sound Church of England principles."

It is to obviate these circumstances of unprecedented and unlooked-for embarrassment; to reanimate the promoters of popular instruction; to meet new claims upon the National Society, from parishes in a state of spiritual destitution, which on some future occasion I may describe, but of which the public has at present no conception,—that the Subscription Committee, formed in aid of the National Society, are now endeavouring to call forth the generosity of the English nation. It is at the request of that Committee that I have written the above explanatory statements; and I shall only add, that an appeal such as theirs, in behalf of the Church of England, has never yet been made in vain. All parties are agreed that no object whatever is more important than the education of the people; and no party can deny, that religion in a Christian country must form the basis of Christian instruction. Upon this basis the National Society has been formed and incorporated; and it remains with the English public to decide, whether this long-tried and useful edifice shall continue to be the bulwark of sound popular education, or be suffered to crumble into ruin; whether the clergy shall be supported in their legitimate endeavours to preserve inviolate the supervision of their flocks, feeding without restraint the lambs committed to their charge by the great Shepherd of the sheep, or be subjected to invidious interference; whether the great mass of the population of England shall be instructed and catechized in Christian truth, as it was promulgated by its divine Founder and his apostles, unmutated and entire, or shall receive a partial and imperfect instruction, incapable of training them to moral virtue here or to happiness hereafter.

The Clergy, and all who take a special interest in the important subject of National Education, are earnestly requested to communicate with the National Society's Subscription Committee, of which Lord Ashley is Chairman, 50, Leicester Square, London, in order that the last intelligence, connected with the proceedings of the Committee, may be transmitted to them with regularity and dispatch.

CHURCH PASTORAL AID SOCIETY.

THE Committee of the Church Pastoral Aid Society having reason to believe that many of its supporters are looking for another occasional paper, are induced, as one of the best means of exhibiting the progress and operations of the Society, to extract from the minutes of the Sub-Committee within one month, viz., 22nd October to the 19th November, some of the cases and correspondence, which will clearly show how urgent and interesting are the claims made upon its funds, and how great is the duty and privilege of the members of the Church of England to co-operate in this and every effort to increase the efficiency of the Established Church.

The total number of applications for aid within the month was 71; of which 45 were new cases, and 26 were applications for renewal of aid: 54 were granted, 7 declined, and 10 deferred for further information.

The Society's aid is now extended to 240 incumbents, in charge of 1,778,000 souls, giving an average charge to each incumbent of 7,411 souls; while the income, on an average, is only 150*l.*, and 115 incumbents are without a parsonage-house.

The existing grants will provide for 246 clergymen, and 33 lay-assistants*. The charge on the Society, when all the appointments shall have been made by the incumbents, will be 22,000*l.* per annum, the incumbents providing from their own or from local resources, the sum of 3,800*l.* to meet the Society's aid: thus making a sum of 25,800*l.* available for the service of the Church of England. 148 additional curates, and 28 lay-assistants, are now at their important labours, at a charge to the Society of 13,313*l.* per annum.

Among the cases in this paper, will be found two (Nos. xiv and xv.) from the disturbed districts in Wales. The applications were for renewal of aid for three additional curates, whose labours had proved most serviceable. At this juncture the Committee felt constrained not only to renew their grants, but to extend them for three more curates; only regretting that the resources of the Society did not enable them to offer means for the immediate erection of additional chapels. The Committee beg particular attention to these two cases, in which will be found parishes of twelve and sixteen miles long, containing a population of about 15,000 and 10,000, or together 25,000, scattered over a wide extent of hilly country, and chiefly engaged in mines and iron works. In these parishes were six churches, or chapels of the church, of various sizes, affording but very scanty accommodation, and with only four clergymen to serve them before the Society's aid. In such lamentable deficiency of the means of grace, which, alas! is by no means confined to these parts, may be too easily traced the cause of much of the disaffection of the population;—and, while from all parts of England and Wales, urgent claims for aid are presented, it would afford the Committee great satisfaction to receive any special contributions to meet the great wants of these districts.

The Committee are thankful to be able to report a progressive increase in the Society's funds. The income of the Society during the year ending 31st March, was 10,400*l.*, being an increase on the previous year of 2,400*l.* It also fully met the expenditure of the current year. The income for the half-year, ending 30th of September last, was 8,124*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*, showing the gratifying increase of 3,923*l.* 8*s.* 8*d.* above the corresponding period in the year 1838. Of this increase, 1,846*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* has arisen from two bequests, and 2,075*l.* 1*s.* 2*d.* from the ordinary sources of income.

When all the existing grants come into operation, by the nomination of curates to occupy them, the income required will be more than 22,000*l.*, even if the Committee were to declare their purpose to extend its aid no further: but this they cannot do! With thousands upon thousands, in this professedly Christian land, perishing for lack of knowledge, and living in worse than heathen ignorance and vice, the Committee cannot doubt that the members of the Church of England will be stirred up to increased exertions and liberality, to meet the pressing wants which this Society seems designed to be the instrument of supplying.

At a period when the state of our country furnishes material upon which all the powers of darkness seem but too ready to work—when Popery is striving by every effort to regain her former ascendancy—when infidelity is eating like a canker into the heart of our crowded cities and manufacturing towns—and when new townships and hamlets are springing up in every direction, without any due provision for their spiritual care,—it is a matter of deep anxiety to the Committee of this Society to have much increased support, to enable them to meet the urgent claims upon its funds.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE ENLARGEMENT, BUILDING, AND REPAIRING OF CHURCHES AND CHAPELS.

A MEETING of the Committee of this Society was held at their chambers, St. Martin's Place, on Monday, the 16th of December, 1839,—the Lord Bishop of London in the chair. There were present, the Lord Bishop of Llandaff, the Revs. Dr. Shepherd, H. H. Norris, and B. Harrison, H. J. Barchard, J. S. Salt, Joshua Watson, E. H. Locker, N. Connop, jun., J. Cocks, W. Cotton, and Benjamin Harrison, Esqrs.

Among other business transacted, grants were voted towards repewing and building a gallery in the church at Rye, Sussex; enlarging the chapel at Harrow Weald, Middlesex; repewing and building a gallery in the church at Bottisham, Cambridgeshire; repewing and extending galleries in the church at Basingstoke, Southampton; enlarging gallery and rearrangement of pews in the church at Maiden Newton, Dorset; building a church at the Birchills, in the parish of Walsall, Stafford; enlarging the church at Wittingham.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

VISIT OF THE BISHOP OF AUSTRALIA TO THE SOCIETY'S MISSION IN NEW ZEALAND.

INFORMATION of various particulars relative to this visit had reached the Committee direct from New Zealand; but they refrained from publishing any thing, till the report from the bishop himself should have been received. This important and valuable communication has recently arrived. With the exception of what is confidential, the whole of it is here given.

*"Sydney, New South Wales,
"March 28, 1839.*

"Rev. Sir,—Although several weeks have elapsed since my return from my late voyage, in the course of which I fulfilled my long-cherished intention of visiting the missionary settlements in New Zealand, the constant occupation which I have since found in discharging the arrears which had accumulated during my absence, and the necessity of keeping up a correspondence with all parts of the diocese, have hitherto prevented my forwarding that report of my proceedings which, I am persuaded, the Society will be anxious to receive.

"I employ my first interval of comparative lei-

* In some of these cases new churches are actually built, and only wait for want of funds to maintain a curate; in others, temporary aid only is asked till local funds can be raised. Under these circumstances the committee have promised assistance, in reliance upon increased public support, in default of which the grants so promised must be withdrawn.

sure in acquainting you, for the Society's information, that I embarked on Wednesday, December 12, 1838, on board H. M. S. 'Pelorus,' commanded by Capt. Francis Harding, who, at my request, had obligingly consented to afford me a passage to the various points which I was desirous of visiting. On the following day we left this harbour; and on the morning of Friday, 21st December, anchored in the Bay of Islands, having experienced no incident worthy of observation during the passage. The Rev. O. Hadfield, whom, on the recommendation of the Society, I had, at my late ordination, admitted to deacon's orders, accompanied me; and I was gratified by observing the perceptible benefit which his health had already derived from change of climate. The Rev. R. Maunsell, whose station is at Manukau, to the southward, happened at this time to be at the Bay of Islands, on account of the state of Mrs. Maunsell's health, and was so kind as to receive me on my landing, the day following, at the house of the Resident, James Busby, Esq. Several other members of the mission were also present on the occasion; and I received from all a friendly reception and cordial welcome, which afforded me great encouragement. The Rev. Henry Williams, I found, was absent; having undertaken a voyage to the neighbourhood of East Cape, in the hope of composing some serious differences which had arisen among the tribes there, and of preventing their proceeding to extremities, and thereby alarming or endangering the residents attached to the missionary stations in the neighbourhood of those contests. The Rev. W. Williams came over from Waimate, as soon as the intelligence of our arrival reached him.

"On Sunday, the 23rd, the captain of the 'Pelorus' sent his boat to convey me to the chapel at Paihia. It is merely a cottage of unpretending appearance; but not incommensurately fitted up. The very appearance of a place of Christian worship on those shores was marvellous in my eyes, and excited feelings and thoughts of peculiar and earnest interest. There was a degree of repose and quietness in the scene, which seemed to betoken that this was indeed the Sabbath-day; and I am not ashamed of acknowledging myself to be so much under the influence of external objects, as to have felt a calm shed over my mind by the sight of the green turf, and the scent of the sweetbriar hedges which surround this humble temple; and I took part in the service, and preached there, much supported by hopes, which I pray to a God of infinite mercy may be realised, on behalf of the hitherto ignorant and barbarous natives of this land, many of whom attended the service. The numbers, however, both of natives and Europeans, present on this occasion, were considerably under the usual average, as I understood; so many being prevented attending as usual by the general prevalence of a disease termed influenza, which, when we quitted Port Jackson, was raging in most parts of New South Wales, and in an equal degree throughout the island of Van Diemen's Land. Its effect upon the constitution of the natives in New Zealand appears to exceed in virulence even that to which the Europeans are exposed; although in the families of the missionaries, and of the English settlers in general, very great distress and suffering are occasioned by this very prevalent disorder. In every house there were some disabled; and in some families every individual was attacked, so as to put a stop to every ordinary domestic proceeding. As it affects the natives, I shall have further observations to offer upon the subject of this disease, before I conclude this letter.

"It will be unnecessary to trouble the Society with a detail of my personal proceedings, further than by stating, that during my stay in the Bay of Islands, I made excursions to visit the settlements at Kerikeri and Waimate; and also to the Kauakaua, where there is a large assemblage of converted natives. I officiated again at Paihia on Christmas Day, which completed the twenty-fourth year of the establishment of the mission; my venerated friend, Mr. Marsden, having landed on the 24th December, 1814, and preached his first sermon, on the beach, on the day following,—the festival of the Nativity. Mr. King, who was then present, is still alive, and in the enjoyment of good health; and recalled that impressive scene with animated recollection. On Sundays, 30th December and 6th January, I also took part in the services of the missionary chapel; and on the last of these days, being the day of the Epiphany, and therefore a most appropriate occasion, I, in the same place, conferred priest's orders on Mr. Hadfield. . . . In the ordination service I was assisted by the Rev. Henry Williams, who had arrived at home after an absence of two months, the Rev. W. Williams, and the Rev. R. Maunsell. The feelings excited in the minds of all present, on this solemn occasion, were most gratifying; and to themselves, I trust, would afford permanent benefit. I was thankful to have such an opportunity given of showing them the nature of our orders, and our apostolical mode of conveying the ministerial office.

"Another duty, scarcely less edifying, devolved on me, in administering the ordinance of Confirmation to about twenty young persons of European parentage, and to double that number of adult New Zealanders, converts of the missionaries. In the case of the former class, there could be no doubt of their being suitably prepared, and grounded in the rudiments of religious knowledge, as required by our rubrics; consisting, as they did principally, of children of the missionaries themselves, or of those who were living in habits of close intimacy and intercourse with them. The appearance of these young persons was pleasing and interesting; their demeanour unassuming; becomingly serious, without any mixture of affectation; and their almost total unacquaintance with the world giving them a simplicity of manner which forcibly attracts esteem. It was also gratifying to observe the readiness of the parents to present their children for the reception of this becoming ordinance; proving that they had not, through long disuse, lost their feeling of the advantage which even the most spiritually-minded may derive from the faithful and pious use of external services. It was not possible for me to decide, with equal certainty or confidence, upon the actual fitness, in point of preparation, of the native candidates; but they were carefully and perseveringly examined by the clergymen as to their degree of acquaintance with the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Commandments. They were living in all apparent godliness and honesty, under the constant observation, it may be said, of the entire mission; and no evil heart of unbelief had betrayed itself among them; and they drew near in a very earnest and humble spirit, desiring to partake of this rite as a means of grace; the nature of it having been previously explained to them in the fullest terms. I therefore, with, I trust, not a misplaced confidence, laid my hands on them, receiving from them the personal ratification of the promises made in their baptism; and I regard the day on which this full admission of them into the fold of Christ took place, as marking a very memorable era, both in my own life, and in the annals of the New Zealand Church. God grant that they may indeed daily increase in His Holy Spirit more and more, until they come to His everlasting kingdom! The Service of Confirmation was translated into the New Zealand language, and a sufficient number of copies printed at the mission press, preparatory to the day of that ceremonial. The same was done with regard to the Form for Consecrating a Churchyard; and I employed it in the consecration of the burial-grounds, both at Paihia and Kororarika. I likewise appointed the Rev. Messrs. Williams to act as my surrogates, for granting marriage-licenses; the want of which is very inconveniently felt, and affords encouragement to the irregular celebration of marriage-rites, which it is desirable not to have introduced.

"After departing from the Bay of Islands, we proceeded to the River Thames, where I found Mr. Fairburn established as a missionary, and, with the aid of his wife and daughter, imparting instruction to a large number of natives, both male and female. At the particular desire of Mr. Fairburn I confirmed his children. I also baptized an infant born of New Zealand parents, who had been given by its mother, before her death, to the charge of Mrs. Fairburn; and a middle-aged native woman, then lying in a state of great exhaustion and apparent danger on a sick bed: she had long known the way of salvation, and had much desired the privilege of baptism, which she now received with a meek and quiet spirit. The hut in which this took place was pretty full of natives, who appeared to look with much interest on what was being done: they were very quiet and respectful. I read the Baptismal Service in their own tongue; with sufficient correctness, I trust, to make myself intelligible among them; and if so, God may graciously permit their remembrance of that occurrence to turn hereafter to a profitable account in His service. It was my earnest wish to have visited Tauranga, where the Rev. A. N. Brown is stationed; as well as Manukau, Waikato, and other stations to the southward, including the East Cape, where it is proposed, on the arrival of the Rev. R. Taylor from Sydney, to form a new establishment; but Captain Harding felt, that from the nature of the service he was upon, he could not with propriety prolong his absence from Sydney to the extent that would be necessary to accomplish all this; and therefore, on the 11th of January, we sailed from the Thames for Norfolk Island, which also I proposed to visit.

"Having rendered this short account of the principal incidents during my residence in New Zealand, I shall now offer to the notice of the Society those conclusions, with regard to the present state and future prospects of their mission, which I was enabled to form, through the exercise of my judgment upon all which presented itself to my observation. In thus proceeding, I shall use great plainness of speech. It is in my power, I think, effectually to contradict the assertions of the adversary and the scoffer, who have sometimes gone the length of affirming that the attempt to Christianize the people of this nation has been a failure, that nothing has been done. On the other hand, I shall not suffer my admiration of that which has really been effected, to hurry me into an unqualified approval of every thing connected with the establishment of the mission, or the operations of the missionaries; nor to deter me from pointing out any particulars in which I think there is room for improvement.

"First, with regard to the missionaries of the Society, I must offer a very sincere and willing testimony of their maintaining a conversation such as becomes the Gospel of Christ, and the relation in which they stand to it, as the professed guides and instructors of those who are, by their agency, to be retrieved from the service of sin. Their habits of life are devotional: they are not puffed up with self-estimation; but appeared to me willing to learn, as well as apt to teach: and among themselves they appear to be drawn together by a spirit of harmony, which is, I hope, the sincere effusion of their hearts; prompted by that spirit, of which love, gentleness, and goodness are among the most delightful fruits. It is upon the continuance of this spirit among themselves that I raise my principal expectations of their continued success among the natives. Without unanimity there can be no successful combination of their exertions; nor is any blessing upon them to be hoped for, such as has hitherto visibly attended them, and in a very ample measure.

"At every station which I personally visited, the converts were so numerous as to bear a very visible and considerable proportion to the entire population; and I had sufficient testimony to convince me that the same state of things prevailed at other places, which it was not in my power to reach. As the result of my inspection, I should state, that in most of the native villages, called Pas, in which the missionaries have a footing, there is a building, containing one room, superior in fabric and dimensions to the native residences; which appears to be set apart as their place for assembling for religious worship, or to read the Scriptures, or to receive the exhortations of the missionaries. In these buildings generally, but sometimes in the open air, the Christian classes were assembled before me. The grey-haired man and the aged woman took their places, to read and to undergo examination, among their descendants of the second and third generations. The chief and the slave stood side by side, with the same holy volume in their hands, and exerted their endeavours each to surpass the other in returning proper answers to the questions put to them concerning what they had been reading. These assemblages I encouraged on all occasions, not only from the pleasure which the exhibition itself afforded, but because I was thus enabled, in the most certain and satisfactory way, to probe the extent of their attainments and improvements. The experience thus acquired has induced me to adopt the habit of applying the term 'converts' to those alone, for many such I found there were, who, in the apparent sincerity of their convictions, and in the sufficiency of their information, compared with their opportunities of acquiring it, may be considered Christians indeed. They have, as the Society is probably informed, the whole, I believe, of the Liturgy in their own language, accompanied, for several years past, with portions of the New Testament.

"But a very great work has been accomplished, in now providing them with a translation of the whole volume; copies of which are distributed to such as are likely to employ them well, as rapidly as, with the limited means in their possession, the missionaries are able to have them bound. This translation will ever remain a monument of laborious and well-directed piety. My acquaintance with the language was not sufficient to enable me critically to judge of its fidelity to the original; but, in my conversations with the Rev. W. Williams, the principal agent in this great work, I availed myself of every opportunity to ascertain the exact literal rendering of any passages which chanced to be the subjects of our immediate attention; and upon inquiring, which I did very closely, into his reasons for adopting particular words or phrases to express the sense of the original, I was gratified to find that he was invariably prepared with a reason; and my impression is, that where there were conflicting reasons, each carrying weight, he had generally given the preference to that which deserved it.

"In speaking of the character of the converted natives, I express most unequivocally my persuasion, that it has been improved, in comparison with the original disposition, by their acquaintance with the truths of the Gospel. Their haughty self-will, their rapacity, furiousness, and sanguinary inclination, have been softened, I may even say, eradicated; and their superstitious opinions have given place, in many instances, to a correct apprehension of the spiritual tendencies of the Gospel. Their chief remaining vices appeared to me, to be indolence, duplicity, and covetousness. The source of all these may probably be found in the ability of the missionaries and other Europeans to supply their limited wants in return for a very moderate amount of labour; and it is a natural, perhaps necessary consequence, that they should anxiously desire the possession of articles so strange, and at the same time so valuable to them, as the Europeans have to offer; as well as that, through their prevailing anxiety to obtain those much-coveted conveniences, they should adopt a fawning and submissive air toward those who have the means of bestowing them. They retain too much, considering what intercourse they have enjoyed with the English, of their native lounging and dirty habits. I do not think that we met with a single instance, during our stay, of one man who had done a fair day's work, according to an Englishman's reckoning; but they sit about from morning till night,—I am speaking of the neighbourhood of the Bay of Islands,—and occupy themselves, most perseveringly, in doing nothing. In the Thames, I thought, or hoped, that I saw symptoms of a more industrious disposition. I did not scruple to inform the missionaries of my opinion, that they were to blame in suffering their followers to continue this degrading and mischievous course. Their disposition to allow slovenliness and neglect to prevail, was manifested even in some of the places of worship and in their native villages, which were slovenly, and even filthy, in a degree which excited my regret and displeasure. The missionaries allege, that they cannot insist upon a reform of these admitted blemishes, without a risk of disgusting and alienating the natives, who delight in dirt and disorder. But it appears to me that this is a short-sighted policy, more likely, than not, to confirm the nation in habits of the kind here alluded to; and which must be broken off before the New Zealanders can ever form a community worthy to be ranked among civilized Christian nations. They can labour well, it is evident, if properly trained by the influence of superior understandings, and encouraged by the personal example of those to whom they look almost as beings of a superior race. They are of a joyous, yet reflective turn; pleased to be instructed; humble in listening to exhortation; very quick and ingenious in tracing the analogies of religion by comparing spiritual things with spiritual; amenable, apparently, to the use of those outward forms which are necessary to conduct all things with decency and order; yet sensible, so far as I could judge, that these did not form the substance of religion, but that it was something altogether different. Some of them, I think, are deeply and unfeignedly devout. Such I noticed, especially, at the Kauakaua and Maraeti; though I ought by no means to deny the occurrence of proportionate instances at the other stations.

The great problem at present, I think, is, how they may be preserved, to form a Christian nation; for such, if they be preserved, they assuredly should become. But, in mournful sincerity of heart, I express my own opinion, that their numbers have diminished in a fearful ratio since our first connexion with them; and that unless preventive measures can be suggested, the race is wearing out, and will, at no very remote period, altogether disappear. The missionaries refer to instances throughout the country, where the numbers of natives are less by one-third, or even one-half, than they were on the first establishments of Europeans being formed. It presented itself to me as a most remarkable circumstance, that wherever we went the children were very few; very few, indeed, compared with the number of adults, and compared also with the proportion of children among the missionaries themselves, who have generally large families. To what causes this disparity could be attributed I was diligent in endeavouring to ascertain, but came away without receiving satisfaction. The effect of wars is spoken of, as accounting for the diminution of the population; but any one, who reflects for a moment, must be sensible that the wars of the present generation are mere bloodless skirmishes compared with the combats of their forefathers. The introduction of fire-arms has tended much to abate the effusion of blood. Formerly, the hostile bands marched front to front, and with their native weapons almost every man slew or wounded his opponent; so that the slaughter was quite tremendous. But now they are, generally speaking, content with firing from a distance, without doing one another much harm. I was assured, indeed, by an eye-witness of some of the latest conflicts in the Bay of Islands, that he had known many thousand shots to be fired, and, as the result of all this, no more than five or six on each side to be wounded. It seems, indeed, very clear, that the population was greatest when wars were most sanguinary, and is declining most rapidly where wars are nearly extinct. The practice of infanticide I hope, and believe, does not prevail among any who are Christians by profession; but in their native state there can be no doubt that it does prevail. I think that the very infant which I baptized had been saved from death by its mother's hands, through the interposition of Mrs. Fairburn, giving clothing for the child, the want of which would have led to the desperate determination of destroying it as soon as born. If it were not this very infant, yet I am quite sure that an instance of that nature was related to me, and mentioned as having many parallels. Cannibalism, among those who associate much with Europeans, and especially among those under instruction by the missionaries, may be considered as extinct. I believe that the people whom I chiefly saw had no more disposition to devour one another, or any one else, than the same number of our own countrymen would have felt. How, therefore, to account for the perceptible and unceasing diminution of their numbers, I am utterly at a loss. The epidemic which was raging while I was there, and which had visited them in former years, appeared, undoubtedly, to lay very serious hold upon their constitutions; rapidly prostrating their strength, and, I have no doubt, laying the foundation of other fatal disorders. So deeply was I impressed with the persuasion, that deficiency of proper nourishment formed one very sensible cause of their falling victims to this insidious disorder, that I solicited Captain Harding to leave with the missionaries such stores of flour, sugar, and rice, as could be spared from his ship, engaging to replace the same on our return to Port Jackson; and I left a small supply of money for the purchase of similar articles, and of animal food, for the use of the sick and convalescent. These measures were adopted in conformity with the judgment of Mr. Ford, the surgeon attached to the mission, and of the surgeon of the 'Pelorus,' T. H. Nation, Esq., who most obligingly, at my request, visited and prescribed for the sick, and furnished a supply of medicines for the most urgent cases. On my return hither, I preached a sermon in St. James's Church, Sydney, on behalf of the suffering people whom I had visited; and the same thing was done at St. Philip's Church, by the Rev. W. Cowper. The amount of the collections was sufficient to cover the entire expenses which had been incurred by me, and to enable us to despatch a further small supply of medicines and necessary comforts, which I earnestly hope will fulfil the benevolent purpose of those who charitably furnished the means of supplying them. My opinion is, in a few words, that the general state of health among the natives is not satisfactory; that there is some cause, not very obvious, by which their constitutions are undermined; that the investigation of that cause has not been pursued with due energy, or attention to system; and that the wants of the natives, in point of clothing, warmth, and comfort, especially during the winter season, deserve and demand the attention of the Church Missionary Society, and of its charitable supporters, who can feel for the situation of these their destitute brethren.

"It will probably be expected by the Society, that I should offer some remarks upon the constitution of the mission, and its adaptation and probable sufficiency to accomplish the great and holy purposes of its establishment. I have already spoken my sentiments as to the general character and deportment of the missionaries; in which observations I should wish it to be understood, it is my intention to include the lay catechists no less than the clergy. All appeared to me, so far as I was able to judge, to be animated by a good spirit, and a desire, according to their several abilities, to work the work of God. I am, however, in duty bound to state my persuasion, that the present missionary body is inadequate to the successful prosecution of that work and labour of love upon which their cares are bestowed. Indeed, they do not occupy, to the uttermost, even their present limits; and these require to be extended day by day, so that the necessity for additional help is becoming constantly more urgent. The Society has been informed that Mr. Haddfield was added to their number while I remained; and since that time the Rev. R. Taylor has proceeded to join the establishment. The services of one of these gentlemen must, however, be absorbed by the charge of educating the sons of missionaries; and the other will be required to institute a new missionary station at the East Cape, where there appears to be a most favourable opening. The mission, therefore, within its present limits, will continue as inefficiently supplied with clergymen for missionary purposes as before; and it is most earnestly to be desired, for the sake of the high and eternal interests which are at stake, that this deficiency should not be suffered to continue. The natives have now, to a certain extent, been Christianized, through the power of the Holy Spirit, accompanying the efforts of their teachers, and have hitherto lived in that simple and confident reliance on the truth and sufficiency of the doctrines taught them, and in that spirit of dutiful reverence for their teachers, the continuance of which was most earnestly to be desired; as such principles, united with liberty to search the Scriptures, would best have insured to them the enjoyment of the peaceable fruits of righteousness. But it is easy to foresee, that this portion of Christ's flock cannot long continue; if it be even now exempt from the aggressions of that spirit, concerning which, no less truly than of the Gospel, it may be said, that its sound is gone into all lands, and its words unto the ends of the earth. . . . If we are to contend successfully, it must be by a prudent use of those means to which God has promised and annexed His blessing, for the propagation of Christian truth; that is to say, we must not spare the agency of the word, the ministry, and the sacraments; accompanying them with our prayers, that they may be attended by that grace and power, through which alone they can be made effective instruments to build up this people in our most holy faith, as it was once delivered to the saints.

"In my conferences with the missionaries, I found but one opinion prevailing as to the necessity of an immediate increase of the number of clergymen. Many stations are, from necessity, left without a resident minister; and the occasional visits which may be paid cannot be of that frequency or that duration which are necessary to make them fully profitable. The administration of the Sacraments is neither satisfactory to those who officiate; nor so serviceable, it may be feared, as it ought to be, to those who partake of them; because the parties, being associated only during a very brief interval are comparatively unknown to each other; and there cannot be that feeling of confidence on the one hand, nor that knowledge of individual character on the other, upon which the benefit of pastoral superintendence principally depends; neither can the services of lay catechists effectually supply the void between such ministerial visits.

"The Church of England requires to be planted there, in the full integrity of its system; its ordinances administered by a clergy duly ordained; and the clergy themselves subject to regular ecclesiastical authority. I beg it may be understood, that I do not make these observations with any reference to the lay missionaries now in the employment of the Society; all of whom, so far as I can venture to pronounce a judgment, have proved themselves zealous and faithful men. . . . In considering the means of augmenting the number of ordained ministers, some consideration was given by me, in conversation principally with the Rev. Messrs. W. Williams and Maunsell, to the practicability of admitting any of the catechists to Holy Orders. I confined myself to expressing my conviction of the eligibility of this proceeding, under certain supposed circumstances; but forbore to pledge myself, until I should have an opportunity of consulting the feelings of the Society upon the subject, and of profiting by their knowledge of the characters and attainments of the individuals who might probably be proposed to me as candidates for the sacred office.

"I am happy in thinking, that, by my late visit to the mission, a foundation of regard and confidence has been laid between the members of it and myself, which, through the Divine Blessing, may tend much to facilitate any future proceedings, connected with its extension. Upon any subject concerning which the Society may be anxious to consult me, I shall always be prepared to offer the most candid opinion, and to give the best advice in my power. My heart and hope are fixed earnestly upon the success of this holy undertaking; the fruit of which, I trust, will be to spread abroad the knowledge of the truth, and to bring many souls to eternal salvation, happiness, and glory, through our Lord Jesus Christ.

"Praying earnestly that the endeavours of the Society may be blessed to the establishment of His kingdom in the hearts of men, I remain, &c., "W. G. AUSTRALIA."

It is exceedingly gratifying to the Committee, to perceive that the statements of the missionary labourers themselves are so powerfully confirmed and elucidated by the enlarged views of the bishop, as communicated in his letter. The Committee most cordially concur in the judgment of his lordship, "that the Church of England requires to be planted in New Zealand, in the full integrity of her system." This consideration induced the Committee to request the Bishop of Australia to visit the mission, anticipating such information and suggestions as would promote that object. Since the receipt of the Bishop's letter, other steps have been taken by the Committee, directed to the same end. Should it please Divine Providence to favour their views, and to raise up an individual eminently devoted, and thoroughly right-minded, to exercise his paternal authority in the midst of this infant flock, the blessings to be anticipated to New Zealand would be truly great. Our Readers, therefore, will clearly perceive how deep an interest this mission should have in their prayers—"God be merciful to us, and bless us, and cause His face to shine upon us" in this most holy and blessed work!

THE PENNY POST.

EXTRACTS FROM A TREASURY MINUTE, DATED DECEMBER 26, 1839.

THEIR lordships, upon full consideration, have decided to require that, as far as practicable, the postage of letters shall be prepaid, and to effect such prepayment by means of stamps. Their lordships are of opinion that the convenience of the public will be consulted, more especially at first, by issuing stamps of various kinds, in order that every one may select that description of stamp which is most suitable to his own peculiar circumstances; and, with a view of affording an ample choice, their lordships are pleased to direct that the following stamps be prepared:—

1. Stamped covers.—The stamp being struck on pieces of paper of the size of half a sheet of 4to letter paper.

2. Stamped envelopes.—The stamp being struck on pieces of paper of a lozenge form, of which the stationers and others may manufacture envelopes.

3. Adhesive stamps, or stamps on small pieces of paper with a glutinous wash at the back, which may be attached to letters either before or after they are written; and,

4. Stamps to be struck on paper of any description, which the public may send to the Stamp-office for that purpose.

The paper for the first, second, and third kinds of stamps to be peculiar in its water mark, or some other feature, but to be supplied to government by competition.

Having, therefore, communicated with the authorities of the Post-office, my lords are pleased to direct that on the 10th day of January next, the following arrangements shall come into operation:—

The scale of weight already established for General Post letters to be extended to the London district and other local post letters.

This scale is as follows:—

Letters not exceeding half an ounce one penny.

Not exceeding one ounce two pence.

Not exceeding two ounces four pence.

Not exceeding three ounces sixpence.

Not exceeding four ounces eight pence.

The charge on all letters passing between one part of the united kingdom and another, whether by the General Post or the London district, or other local post, to be 1d. per single rate.

Such postage to be prepaid—if not prepaid, to be charged double on delivery.

Letters between the United Kingdom and the Colonies to be charged, if conveyed by packet, and not passing through France, at the rate of 1s. per single rate; and if conveyed by private ship, at the rate of 8d. per single rate in whatever part of the United Kingdom they may be posted or delivered.

Letters between the United Kingdom and foreign countries (those passing to or from or through France excepted) to be charged as follows:—

If conveyed by packet, and posted at the port of departure, or delivered at the port of arrival within the United Kingdom, the present packet rates. If posted or delivered in any other part of the United Kingdom, 2d. per single rate, in addition to the present packet rates, unless where a lower charge shall now exist, in which case such lower charge to continue.

If conveyed by private ship 8d. per single rate, in whatever part of the United Kingdom they may be posted or delivered.

With regard to foreign letters to and from France, or passing through France, my lords consider that, pending such modifications as may be introduced into the treaty with that country, the maximum of the charge for packet and inland postage should not exceed that rate which is now chargeable on a letter to and from London; no alteration being made in cases where the charge under the present treaty shall be less than such before-mentioned rate.

The preceding reductions do not apply to letters passing via France between the United Kingdom and the Mediterranean, Egypt, and the East Indies, which will continue to be charged as at present.

Letters between the United Kingdom and foreign countries will continue to be subject to the same regulations with regard to prepayment as at present.

My lords are pleased to direct that, from and after the 10th of January next, the privilege of franking, both parliamentary and official, shall cease.

The printed votes and proceedings of the Imperial Parliament, or of the colonial legislatures of either of Her Majesty's colonies, if sent in the manner now required by law, to be charged as follows, whether passing from one part of the United Kingdom to another, or between the United Kingdom and the colonies, provided they do not pass through France, or to the East Indies, via Falmouth:—

Not exceeding 3oz. in weight, 1d.

Exceeding 3oz., and not exceeding 4oz., 2d.

And so on, an additional penny for every additional two ounces, without limitation as to weight; such charge to be the same whether prepaid or not.

The privileges now attached to addresses to Her Majesty, to parliamentary petitions, to newspapers, and to letters of soldiers and sailors engaged in service abroad, to remain unaltered, except that a soldier's or a sailor's single letter will be interpreted to mean a letter not exceeding half an ounce in weight.

If any privileged letter or other article become liable to the full letter rates of postage, such rates to be charged according to the scale of rates herein established for letters. The treble duty to which newspapers in certain cases become liable, to be calculated according to the same scale.

All privileges, except those already enumerated, to cease.

The following are exceptions to the regulation which restricts the amount of weight to 16 oz.

1. Parliamentary proceedings, as already named.
2. Addresses to Her Majesty, and parliamentary petitions.
3. Letters and packets received from or addressed to places beyond the limits of the United Kingdom.
4. Letters and packets addressed to or despatched by the Government departments, or such officer as may now have the privilege of franking by virtue of his office; and
5. Deeds, if transmitted under such regulations as the Post-master-general may consider necessary to prevent abuse of the privilege.

With reference to the arrangements herein made, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man are to be considered as parts of the United Kingdom, and the Ionian Isles and Honduras as British colonies.

My lords direct that the fees for late letters be charged as follows:

From the future hour of closing each box until the present hour, 1d. per letter or packet, without regard to its weight; and after the present hour of closing each box 2d. per letter or packet, except where a larger fee is now established, in which case the present fee will continue.

Instruct the Postmaster-general to make arrangements for carrying to the general revenue the fees for late letters, at the same time submitting for the consideration of this board any cases for compensation which he may consider necessary.

WILLIAM JACOB, Comptroller of the Corn Returns, Office of Comptroller of the Corn Returns, Board of Trade, January 2, 1840.

LIABILITY OF TITHES TO THE POOR RATES.

We have been requested to insert the following answers to letters addressed by the Vicar of Llan-saintffraid Glyn Ceiriog to the Poor Law Commissioners.

Poor Law Commission Office, Somerset House, 31st October, 1839.

SIR,

The Poor Law Commissioners, adverting to your letter of the 2nd inst. (the receipt of which was acknowledged on the 8th inst. respecting the amount at which the tithes of the parish of Llan-saintffraid Glyn Ceiriog should be rated to the poor-rate, desire to state their opinion, that as the poor-rate and highway-rate come under the denomination of tenants' rates and taxes, they should be deducted from the amount of commutation rent charge, in assessing the tithes to the poor-rates.

With regard to the land-tax, you will perceive by a reference to the 1st section of the Parochial Assessment act, that it is only tenants' rates and taxes which are expressly authorized to be deducted: and that the only landlord's charges authorized to be deducted, are the repairs, insurance, and other expenses, which may be necessary to maintain the property in a state to command the estimated rent. The commissioners think that the express mention of these taxes and charges operated to prevent the deduction of any other landlord's rates and taxes.

Signed by order of the Board,

E. CHADWICK, Secretary.

The Rev. the Vicar of Llan-saintffraid Glyn Ceiriog.

Poor Law Commission Office, Somerset House, 12nd November, 1839.

SIR,

The Poor Law Commissioners acknowledge the receipt of your further letter of the 1st inst. on the subject of assessing the tithes of the Parish of Llan-saintffraid Glyn Ceiriog to the poor-rate, and in answer to your inquiry whether in assessing the tithe commutation rent charge, which has been fixed at £—, the overseers are to deduct (in addition to the poor's rate and highway-rates) the five per cent. which you receive this year less than the £—, the commissioners desire to state that the amount at which a rent charge in lieu of tithes should be rated admits of less doubt than any other subject of rating. The amount of the original rent charge is placed beyond question; and the variations of each succeeding year can be ascertained with the most perfect accuracy immediately upon the publication of the corn averages in January. The commissioners entertain no doubt that it is not the value of the original rent charge, but the present value of the rent charge (as ascertained by what a tenant would pay for the enjoyment of it subject to the outgoings enumerated in the Parochial Assessment Act), which constitutes the rateable value at the time of the rate made, and as this can be accurately ascertained, that it is not proper that the overseers should resort to an average of the value of several years, which must almost necessarily be less likely to produce a fairer result than the adoption of the value of the present year as the rateable value.

The commissioners are of opinion that no deduction should be made on account of the curate's salary.

Signed by order of the Board,

E. CHADWICK, Secretary.

The Rev. the Vicar of Llan-saintffraid Glyn Ceiriog.

LAW.

QUEEN'S BENCH, NOVEMBER 21.

THE QUEEN v. NICHOLAS HALL, JAMES B. CHAMBERLAIN, SAMUEL TAYLOR, AND HENRY HALL.

This was an indictment against the four defendants. Against the first for an assault on the Rev. Mr. Moore, the curate of Bromsgrove, and against the three last for a disturbance at a vestry-meeting at Bromsgrove. It appeared that there had been a meeting of parishioners on a proposition to make a church-rate, and the proposition had been negatived.

There was then another meeting called, and at that meeting, as no clergyman was present at ten o'clock in the morning, the time appointed to hold the meeting, a Mr. Greening, an inhabitant, was voted into the chair. The meeting was very numerous, and was adjourned from the vestry-room to the Town-hall. Nicholas Hall attended the meeting as one of the churchwardens. At the same time another meeting was held in the school-room of the parish, where the curate took the chair, and where the other churchwarden attended and delivered the vestry-books to the chairman. The defendant, Nicholas Hall, believing that the meeting at the Town-hall was the only legal one, went to demand the vestry-books. They were refused him, and while he stood by the side of the chairman some disturbance took place (accounted for differently by the different parties), and the curate having turned away from him, he went to take the book off the table, which was in front of the curate. The defendant succeeded in taking it off, but it was immediately recaptured, and in the struggle to regain it the alleged assault was committed.

The prisoners were now brought up for judgment.

Mr. Serjeant Ludlow moved for a rule to show cause why a new trial should not be had, on the ground that this was not a riot in law; that it was something sudden without premeditation, and was therefore no assault in law.

The Court refused the rule, and sentenced the defendants as follows:—Nicholas Hall to six weeks' imprisonment in Worcester gaol, and the other defendants to four weeks' imprisonment each.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS.

We are happy to observe that a letter has been addressed by a large body of newsvenders to the proprietors of the Sunday newspapers, "requesting to have the whole edition (of those papers) published on Saturday, and bearing the date of that day." The letter is signed by 140 newsvenders, and does them great credit. We earnestly hope that they will succeed in their efforts.

CATHEDRAL AT CALCUTTA.

(From the Calcutta Chronicle.)

On Tuesday evening, October 8, a crowded and most distinguished company assembled at five o'clock, to witness the solemn laying of the first stone of the new cathedral. Among the assembly were, the Governor of Bengal, and Mr. Bird, who stood near the Bishop. After the Bishop had read the first prayers, the Archdeacon recited the 132d psalm. The Rev. Mr. Pratt, the Bishop's chaplain, next read the inscription, and the list of coins, which were subsequently inclosed in the foundation-stone. The Bishop then made a present of a beautiful silver trowel to Mrs. Forbes, the lady of Major W. N. Forbes, of the Engineers, who has made the designs and plans by which the cathedral is to be built. The Bishop descended into the trench which had been prepared, and after the stone had been laid, pronounced the words, altered to suit the occasion, from the Consecration service. The inscription was inclosed, see page 126 of this Number.

The whole service was most impressive, and did not occupy more than 35 minutes. Nothing could exceed the view which the part of the esplanade around the site covered with carriages, and groups of persons coming from all quarters, presented. The service closed just at sunset.

METROPOLIS.

The London Gazette of December 13 contains a notice of the appointment of the Rev. John Allen, M.A., and Seymour Tremenhare, Esq., barrister at law, as inspectors of schools to be aided by public grants. The salaries are fixed at the rate of three guineas per day each for every day they are employed out of town, and at two guineas per day in town. Their travelling expenses are to be allowed in addition. The appointments have taken place on the recommendation of the Lords of the Committee of Council on Education.

Bethnal Green.—Amongst the donations for providing churches, schools, &c., we have much pleasure in mentioning a munificent gift of 6,000*l.* from "the Rev. J. W. and his sister S. H." We understand this sum will be applied to one of the proposed divisions of the parish, and we cannot but hope that the whole plan, in itself so beneficial and so well supported, will be fully carried out, and the blessings of the parochial system made manifest in a district avowedly one of the most destitute in the means of religious instruction. Thirty-four thousand pounds is, we hear, still required. Sites for two churches have been presented by Captain Sotheby and P. Borgnis, Esq.—Morning Herald.

PROVINCIAL.

Bedford New Church.—On Nov. 21, the cornerstone of the new church at Bedford, near Leigh, was laid by Lord Lilford, patron of the parish church, in the presence of a very numerous assemblage of persons, including a number of clergymen, and the nobility and gentry of the neighbourhood.—Cambridge Chronicle.

Sir W. Heathcote's Annual Prize.—The examinations at Winchester College of the various candidates for the handsome prize annually given by Sir W. Heathcote, Bart., M.P., terminated on Friday, Nov. the 29th, when Mr. Wood, commoner (perfect) was declared to be successful. Honourable mention was made of Messrs. Bathurst, Binder, and Barker.—Oxford Herald.

Scottish Episcopal Church.—Dec. 4.—The first anniversary meeting of the Scottish Episcopal Church Society was held in Edinburgh,—the Right Rev. Bishop Low in the chair. The following resolutions were moved, seconded, and unanimously agreed to:

1st, It was moved by J. Strange, Esq., and seconded by the Rev. D. Bagot, "that the report now read be approved, and ordered to be printed for distribution among the members of the Society, and for general circulation." 2nd, It was moved by the Rev. R. Montgomery, and seconded by the Very Rev. C. H. Terrott, "that from the returns made to the Society, wants have been found to exist in the Church which call both for sympathy and assistance, and which demand a cheerful and ready co-operation from all the members of the Church—a co-operation calculated at the same time to promote a spirit of union and of harmony among themselves as Christians and as churchmen." 3rd, It was moved by A. Urquhart, Esq., and seconded by the Right Rev. Bishop Russell, "that whilst they gratefully acknowledge the success which, under the blessing of God, has attended the efforts of the Society since its constitution on Dec. 4, 1838, this meeting would express their strong conviction of the necessity for increased and steady exertion in promoting the different objects of the Society." 4th, It was moved by Sir G. Leith, and seconded by the Ven. Archdeacon Williams, "that the thanks of the meeting be given to the Right Rev. Bishop Low, for the urbanity and kindness with which he had presided over the meeting."

The New Church in Lancaster.—The Queen, the Duchess of Lancaster, has graciously presented, through Sir Henry Wheatley, the sum of 150*l.* towards the fund for erecting a new church in the county town of her Majesty's duchy.—Manchester Courier.

Gloucester.—We have the pleasure of informing our readers that the Rev. Dr. Warneford has transmitted to the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol the munificent donation of 200*l.*, to be applied by his Lordship in aid of the designs of the Diocesan Education Board established in this diocese. The same liberal benefactor has, in addition to his other contributions to the objects of our Church Building Association, recently invested 1000*l.* towards endowing clergymen in the hamlets of Kingsholm and Hucclecote, and towards erecting a parsonage-house in the parish of Deerhurst.—Gloucestershire Chronicle.

Salisbury.—The Marquis of Lansdowne has subscribed the liberal sum of 100*l.* during the past week to the Salisbury Diocesan Church Building Society, being his lordship's second donation.—Salisbury Herald.

Salisbury Diocesan Board of Education.—On Tuesday last, a meeting was held at the Episcopal Palace, at which were present, the Lord Bishop of Salisbury, the Very Rev. the Dean, the Hon. and Rev. Canon Bouverie, A. Hussey, Esq., G. E. Eyre, Esq., the Reverends Messrs. C. Grove, N. Smart, F. Dyson, M. W. Mayow, J. O. Parr, J. Ward, W. Dalby, R. Moore, G. Pugh, T. Tyrwhitt, Moss King, G. A. Montgomery, F. W. Fowle, and W. E. Hony. This meeting might be considered as the first of the board for active operations. During the past year they have been waiting to see what would be the probable amount of the resources at their command; for on this, of course, must depend the extent to which the objects they have in view could be carried. Though even now the support which it has received is far less than might well have been anticipated, considering the sensation which seemed to have been created in the country on the subject of education on Christian principles; yet the board did not deem it advisable to suspend their good work any longer, but if they could not do all they wished, yet at least to do "what they could." Accordingly, they came to a decision at the meeting on Tuesday, to apply themselves in the best manner in their power to effect their grand object,—viz., the extension and improvement of education, in connexion with the church, throughout the diocese. With this view they adopted the following resolutions:—First, to devote one-third of the amount received as donations, about 600*l.*, to the purpose of making grants towards the establishment of national schools for the poor, in such parishes as may be found to be most destitute of education. A valuable report from the gentlemen who constitute the sub-committee to consider the subject of middle schools, having been read by the Rev. G. Pugh, who had acted as their secretary, the board resolved—secondly, to advance money, by way of loan, towards the establishment of schools of this description in such neighbourhoods as are destitute of them, and where there is a prospect of their being supported when established. The amount of contributions will not allow the board to establish in Salisbury, at the present moment, an institution for the training of masters and mistresses of schools, as had been contemplated. As, however, the want in this respect is immediate, the board has determined, thirdly, to apply a considerable portion of the annual subscriptions to the best mode of training open to them. As soon, therefore, as the metropolitan, or diocesan training establishment shall be open to receive pupils, the board has determined to assist in maintaining six pupils, by contributing the sum of 16*l.* per annum for each. If it should appear that there is a demand for more, and the funds of the board allow of it, the number of pupils will hereafter be increased. These pupils will remain one, two, or three years at the institution, as may be deemed expedient, according to the qualifications of each.—Salisbury Herald.

Bath and Wells Additional Curates Society, &c.—At the annual general meeting of the Bath and Wells' Diocesan Society for Promoting the Employment of Additional Curates in populous places, the Rev. W. B. Whitehead, the incumbent, proposed to employ an additional curate in this parish, the population at the last census being 5,100; and to enable him to do so, the Society in London had granted him the sum of 40*l.*; to this aid the Diocesan Society has, we are happy to say, added 20*l.* By the report of the Bath and Wells Diocesan Church-building Association, just published and distributed, we grieve to see, that "of the population at Chard, only one in five can find room in the parish church." At the late Annual General Meeting of this latter Society, T. E. Clarke, Esq. and the Rev. W. B. Whitehead were elected members of the General Committee for the Deanery of Crewkerne.—Bath Herald.

Thame, Oxfordshire.—The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.—The clergy and laity of the deanery of Ashton, including the towns of Watlington and Thame, held their annual meeting on the 28th of November, at the National School. The chair was most ably filled by the Archdeacon of Oxford, who opened the meeting in a very suitable speech.—Oxford Herald.

New Marriage Act.—It is a remarkable evidence of the unpopularity of the New Marriage Act among Dissenters, that in the district comprised in the Bridgenorth Union, in the county of Salop, which includes 29 parishes, and above 14,000 inhabitants, only one solitary marriage has taken place otherwise than according to the rites and ceremonies of our venerable church, though the Act has now been in operation nearly three years.—Salopian Journal.

Romford.—A vestry was held at Romford on Thursday last, to consider the propriety of rebuilding the present dilapidated church, and of raising the sum of 3,000*l.* upon the church-rates towards the expense of the undertaking. After considerable discussion, and a show of hands, a poll was demanded upon both of these points. At the close of the poll on Saturday night the numbers were—For building the new church, 251; against it, 100; majority for new church, 151. For borrowing 300*l.* on the rates, 231; against it, 131; majority for rate, 100.

Kewick.—The foundation of a new and splendid school has been laid near St. John's Church, Kewick, and the entire edifice will be erected with the least possible delay. This school will be built and endowed at the sole expense of Miss Marshall, sister of the late J. Marshall, jun., Esq., whose charitable and benevolent conduct she so closely imitates. There will be a library attached to the school, and also a dwelling-house for the schoolmistress to reside in.—Kendal Mercury.

Winchester.—The address, signed by a large body of the clergy of the archdeaconry of Winchester, assembled at the chancellor's late visitation, to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, in grateful acknowledgment of the part taken by his Grace in the House of Lords, on the subject of National Education, has led to the following correspondence:—

"Winchester, Oct. 21, 1839.

"My Lord Archbishop,—I have the honour to forward to your Grace, by the mail of this night, an address from the clergy assembled at the late visitation in Hampshire.

"Your Grace does not need testimonies of this kind to assure you of the affectionate respect of every friend to religion and the Church; but they cannot be otherwise than gratifying to you, more especially when they refer, as in this instance, to the course which you deem it right to pursue on occasions deeply involving the welfare of the nation at large.

"I will not trespass further upon your Grace than by expressing the very great pleasure which I have in being the medium of communicating to you, from so large a body of my reverend brethren, their cordial and most grateful acknowledgments.

"I have the honour to be,

"My Lord Archbishop,

"Your Grace's most obedient

"and faithful servant,

"W. DEALTRY,

"Chancellor of the Diocese of Winchester."

"Addington, Oct. 31, 1839.

"My dear Sir,—I beg you to accept my best thanks for the address which you have been so good as to convey to me from the clergy of the archdeaconry of Winchester, and for your own obliging letter. You will readily conceive that I feel more than ordinary satisfaction in this expression of sentiment from a body of clergy of whom I was formerly one, the value of whose approbation, in respect to many at least, I can appreciate from personal knowledge; and whose zeal in promoting the education of the poor is evinced, beyond all contradiction, by the number of schools which have been established within my recollection, under their superintendence, and principally through their exertions. Considering what has been already effected, I look forward with confidence to the progressive extension of the means, and improvement of the methods of education under their auspices. At the same time, I venture to assure them that, humbly relying on support from above in the performance of my bounden duty, I shall never cease to oppose the introduction of any general system which does not require instruction in the doctrines of our holy religion, according to the principles of the National Church, and which does not secure to its ministers the control and inspection of its schools.

"I remain, my dear Sir,

"Your faithful servant,

"Rev. Dr. Dealtry.

"W. CANTUAR."

Sarum.—It is with great pleasure that we learn a society has been formed, termed "The Salisbury Association for the Suppression of Libellous Publications." The evils resulting from the wide dissemination of papers issuing from the licentious press are incalculable; and yet such publications weekly inundate our large towns with their pestiferous contents. Such associations as that referred to cannot fail to be beneficial.—Ch. of Eng. Mag.

Sodor and Man, Isle of Man.—The new chapel of ease at Sulby, in the parish of Lezayre, was opened for divine service on the 24th ult. The chapel is built in the form of a cross; and a boys' school and girls' school are contained under its roof, which, being thrown open by means of sliding-doors, form a portion of the space allotted to the congregation on the Lord's day. It is built after the design approved by the lamented Bishop Ward. The bishop of Sodor and Man preached an excellent sermon on the occasion; but, unfortunately, the rain fell in torrents on that day. His lordship's text was taken from 1 Chron. xxix. 9. The Rev. J. Trealtrough, curate of Leyzare, is the appointed minister.

"TO THE VENERABLE THE ARCHDEACON OF ELY.

"WE, the undersigned clergy of your Archdeaconry, request that you will be pleased to call a meeting of the clergy, on some day previous to the opening of the next session of Parliament, for the purpose of considering what measures should be adopted in reference to the present state of the Church, and various proceedings bearing upon its interests.

"James Scholefield, A.M., Minister of St. Michael's, Cambridge.

"William Metcalfe, Rector of Foulmire.

"Thomas Webster, B.D., Rector of St. Botolph's, Cambridge.

"William Carus, M.A., Vicar of the Holy Trinity, Cambridge.

"George Langshaw, B.D., Vicar of St. Andrew the Great.

"George Spence, LL.B., Vicar of St. Clement's.

"George Coulcher, M.A., Perpetual Curate of St. Benedict.

"George Maddison, Vicar of All Saints.

"George Ray, Perpetual Curate of St. Mary the Less.

"Thomas Boodle, Incumbent of St. Andrew the Less.

"Dated this 26th day of December, 1839."

"In compliance with the above requisition, and for the purpose therein specified, I do hereby appoint a meeting of the clergy of the Archdeaconry of Ely, to be held at the vestry of St. Michael's church, Cambridge, on Tuesday, the 14th inst., at 12 o'clock.

"A full attendance of the clergy is earnestly solicited.

"J. H. BROWNE, Archdeacon of Ely.

"Colgrave, Jan. 1, 1840."

Cambridge Chronicle.

Macclesfield.—An address, signed by twelve clergymen, has been presented to the Rev. C. Girdlestone, M.A., late Fellow of Balliol College, and Rector of Alderley, Cheshire, by the Macclesfield Clerical Society, as a grateful testimonial to the zeal he has manifested in the formation of the society, and for the piety, learning, and urbanity which have characterized all his proceedings in his intercourse with its members.

Walton-on-Thames.—On Friday, the 8th of November, the neat and commodious chapel of ease recently erected at Horsham, in the parish of Walton-on-Thames, and dedicated to the "Holy Trinity," was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Winchester. This sacred edifice has been raised by the subscriptions of the inhabitants and neighbourhood, at the cost of about 1800*l.*, towards which 500*l.* was contributed by the Diocesan Church Building Society, and 250*l.* by the Incorporated Society for Building and Repairing Churches, &c. The site was given by Mr. William Holmes, of Horsham; and Sir Henry Fletcher, Bart., of Ashley-park, has munificently endowed the chapel with a sum of 1000*l.* It is built in the Norman style of architecture, affording sittings to 472 persons; of these 236 are free and unappropriated, for the use of the numerous poor in that part of the parish.

Bedford—Great Meeting to form a Board of Education.—A large meeting was held on December 12th, for the above purpose, at Bedford; the Right Hon. the Earl de Grey, lord-lieutenant of the county, was called to the chair. Upon the platform with his Lordship, and amongst the company, we observed Lord Carteret, Viscount Alford, Lord St. John, the Hon. J. Cust, the Archdeacon of Bedford, Dra. J. Brereton and Tattam, the Mayor of Bedford, and a very large body of the clergy and gentry of the neighbourhood. After prayers had been offered up by the Rev. J. Donne, the secretary pro tem. read a report of the committee formed to conduct the business of the day. The various resolutions were moved by Lord Alford, M. P., Mr. William Astell, Rev. H. Howarth, and Mr. F. M. Pym, and seconded by Archdeacon Bonney, Rev. J. H. B. Mountain, Mr. R. Lindell, and the Mayor. Donations to the amount of 256*l.* 13*s.*, sundry collections, 23*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.*; and annual subscriptions, 69*l.* 15*s.*, were collected in the room after the meeting.—Times.

IRELAND.

Meeting of the Irish Prelates.—The Irish archbishop, and bishops, at a meeting held in Dublin on the 12th ult., resolved to constitute themselves into a society for the relief of widows and orphans of deceased clergymen in Ireland. Our readers are aware of the munificent subscriptions collected, particularly in England, during the years 1834, 1835, 1836, and 1837, to alleviate the distress of the Irish clergy suffering under a cruel persecution. The London committee for managing the fund disbursed during those years, through the hands of the lord primate, about 200,000*l.* On making up their accounts last summer, they had a balance remaining of about 13,700*l.*; this they resolved to vest in the hands of the Irish prelates, for the purpose of establishing a fund for the above object. The Duke of Devonshire, as an extensive tithe-proprietor, has a claim upon the money granted by Parliament for the relief of tithe-owners, on account of arrears due to his Grace of about 20,000*l.*, his dividend upon which will probably amount to 7,000*l.* This sum his Grace, in a truly noble and munificent spirit, has determined to add to the above-mentioned fund. The simple announcement of his Grace's intention is a more glowing panegyric than the most laboured language can supply.—Dublin Evening Mail.

COLONIAL.

COLONIAL CHURCH.

BARBADOES—BRITISH GUIANA.

THE bishop held a visitation at the metropolitan church, George-town, July 18. In his charge he gives the following interesting account of the religious state of the colony:

"During the last two months I have had the advantage of passing through the length of this extensive colony, and visiting the clergy of the English Church in the respective scenes of their labours. With only one exception—no longer the object of earthly admonition—my progress has been every where cheered with one continued scene of unmixed gratification. Every where I have witnessed exertions unvaried and judicious; and everywhere I have observed a marked improvement in the temporal and spiritual condition of the people severally committed to your charge. During my visitation, and amid those kind and respectful courtesies which I have so generally received from the laity, I have met with many an old and early resident, and have heard from his mouth the painful state of spiritual destitution under which this colony, when it first passed into British hands, was every where labouring. In the year 1796, when it was first taken by our troops, and in the year 1803, when it again surrendered, there was only one church on Fort Island, with two ministers of religion, the chaplain of the British forces, and the minister of the Dutch reformed Church, throughout the colony. In 1802, a family, having occasion to visit England, were under the necessity of taking their children with them unbaptized, from the want of a pastor to administer the very initiatory sacrament of our religion. St. George's church was not opened for the performance of divine service until 1810, nor the colony churches in George-town and New Amsterdam until 1819 and 1820, nor the church of the Holy Trinity till 1828; the united colony of Demerara and Essequibo was not divided into parishes until 1824; nor at the commencement even of that year were there more than three clergymen for the religious necessities of a country which, including Berbice, extended in length alone over a space of more than 260 miles. Public schools, with the exception of the Saffron Institution, there were none; and it is not too much to say of the mass of the population, that it was in a heathen and uncivilized state. There are few instances in colonial history, if we except the more modern colonies of Van Diemen's Land and portions of Australia, in which, in so short a time, and under such peculiar difficulties, a country has made so rapid an ecclesiastical advancement. At the present moment, within the space only of fifteen years, the number of churches, including those appropriated to the use of the Kirk of Scotland, and erected principally at the expense of the colony, has increased to fourteen; the number of chapels is three—a temporary building used as such at Bartica Point, a private chapel on Enmore estate, and a proprietary chapel erected on the Parade-ground in George-town, in which a duly licensed minister of our Church officiates. The number of chapel-schools situated in populous neighbourhoods, remote from the parish churches, and built by private subscription, aided by grants from the mother-country out of the mixed fund, and in connexion with the Church of England, is sixteen; the far greater portion of which have been erected within the last three years. I have taken occasion, during my visitation, to ascend the rivers of the Pomeroon, Essequibo, and Courantyne, and to visit the Indians in the places of their temporary abodes. I have seen the Arrowak, the Caribbees, and Worrow Indians working together in the laborious occupation of a large and important wood-cutting establishment. At Touroo Creek, on the Pomeroon, I passed the night in an open shed among a body of the Arrowak tribe, and beheld both the men and women in their domestic habits and ordinary occupations. At Bartica Point I had the opportunity of witnessing the zealous and judicious system adopted by one of our brethren for their civilization and religious advancement. On the Courantyne my corial was manned by them both during my ascent and descent; and I spent some hours among the settlement of the Worrow tribe, who have now for many years, ever since the first establishment of the Moravians on the opposite bank, been congregated about the post. I have been deeply interested with what I have witnessed among a people hitherto, I fear it must be added, too little regarded, and less benefited. There is something, if I may presume to speak of them after so transient an acquaintance, peculiarly mild and pleasing in their countenances. With the simplicity of children, they are attracted by every novelty. They are indolent, but they have little to call forth exertion. The produce of the chase, of their cassava-grounds, and of the river, supplies all the necessities of life. The fibres of the palm or the silk-grass are woven for their beds; and the woods of their native forests provide the ready materials for their simple dwellings, for their weapons of defence, or for their instruments of hunting. Their children are singularly engaging and forward for their years; their women contentedly perform the most menial and laborious offices; and in the men I have witnessed a quiet steadiness of eye and hand in a moment of danger, which gave proof that there was that within them which is capable of greater things. That they are of oriental origin there can be no question. Their figure and several of their customs would seem to bespeak it; and when at the chapel on the Good Hope estate, I beheld four Indians, two men with their wives, devout in their behaviour, and respectable in their appearance, "kneeling before the same table, for the same Christian rite of confirmation, with the descendants of Ham and Japheth." I was much struck whilst at the Touroo Creek, with a conversation which was carried on between an Arrowak chief and the rector of the parish of the Holy Trinity, (within whose extensive and laborious charge the river Pomeroon is included), at the pointedness of his answers, and at the seriousness of look and demeanour with which he subsequently watched the party at their evening devotions; and not less so when, on the Courantyne, I heard, in soft and plaintive cadence, from the mouth of a blind old chieftain, the oft-recurring Hallelujah! as he finished the stanza of some hymn of holy praise, which he had been taught by the Moravians in his youth; and, whilst in the Essequibo and Massarony, I had the yet further gratification of hearing some adult Indians read—of examining a school of thirty-six Indian children, and of meeting their parents and acquaintances no longer, as at a former visit, under an open shed in their naked and almost savage state, but assembled, dressed, and in orderly manner, within a rude yet enclosed house of prayer, and "speaking in our tongue the wonderful works of God."—Church of England Magazine.

Arrival of the Bishop of Newfoundland in Bermuda.—His Lordship arrived in Her Majesty's ship Andromache, from New York, having gone to the United States in the packet-ship Toronto. In consequence of his Lordship having landed in the pilot-boat, when the ship was off St. George's, he did not receive the salute which was ordered. We understand that his Lordship will remain here during the winter, and proceed to Newfoundland in the spring of the year.—Bermuda Royal Gazette.

FOREIGN.

France.—The Archbishop of Paris died on Tuesday, December 31, at the convent of the Sacré Cœur, Rue de Varennes. Count Hyacinthe-Louis de Quélen, Archbishop of Paris, Peer of France, and member of the Académie Française, was born in Paris on the 8th of October, 1772. He was of an old family of Brittany, allied to the house of the Dukes d'Aiguillon. He was entered as a student at the seminary of St. Sulpice, and was ordained priest in 1807. After having been successively Grand Vicar and Bishop of St. Brioux, Vicar of the great almonry, Bishop of Samosata in partibus, and coadjutor of Cardinal Talleyrand de Périgord, M. de Quélen was promoted after the death of the latter, on the 20th of October, 1821, to the Archbishopric of Paris; was created a peer of France, and subsequently member of the Académie Française, in the place of Cardinal de Beaumont. By the death of M. de Quélen, a second place becomes vacant at the Academy.

M. de la Tour d'Auvergne Lauraguais, Bishop of Arras, has arrived in Paris. The garde-noble, who is the bearer of the cardinal's hat for this prelate from the Pope, has arrived from Rome.

The interment of the remains of the late Cardinal Latil, Archbishop of Rheims, took place in the cathedral of his see on the 31st ult., the Bishops of Soissons and Chalons officiating. The utmost respect and order prevailed, but the attendance was by no means numerous.—French Papers.

Ghent, Dec. 23.—M. Laurent (late curé of Gemenick), who is nominated the Bishop of Chersonesus in partibus, and apostolic vicar of the north of Germany, has arrived in that city, and is at the residence of the Bishop of Ghent. He will set out to-morrow for Liege, where he is to be consecrated on the 27th.

Spain.—"The Archbishop of Spain," says the Memorial of Pau, "died recently at Madrid. No example of the state of distress to which many of the Spanish clergy are reduced can be more striking than the case of this prelate. He was in such destitution that it was found necessary to have recourse to public charity to defray the expenses of his interment; and the civil authorities had sequestered his pontifical habits, to pay for some debts which he had been forced to contract in order to support himself."

Russia.—By the following extract, it appears that the separation of the United Greeks from their adherence to Rome is now complete, and that the whole of them have joined the Russian Church:—"The Act of Polozk states, that the number of the united Greek clergy and monks who declared their assent to it, is 1,395; since then the number has increased to 1,607; so that there does not remain a single united Greek congregation in the whole Russian empire which has not joined in the general work of the re-union. His Majesty has issued an order that the denomination of United Greeks shall be entirely abolished."—Hamburgh Paper.

*. An alteration has been made in the price of small Advertisements, in order to meet the wishes of Advertisers.

The ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the second Tuesday in every month. Its circulation is different from that of any other publication. Besides the sale to the Public, it is sent monthly to all the Bishops, Deans, and Chapters, Heads of Colleges, &c., and to the resident Parochial Clergyman of every Parish throughout England and Wales.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED TO PURCHASE CLERICAL PREFERENCE, of small annual value, with present, or a prospect of very early possession. If the Preference should be of such a nature as to admit of a Title being given for Holy Orders, it would be the more desirable. Situation must be healthy. [59]
Address (post paid) D. N., No. 3, North-street, Bristol.

TO BE SOLD, the NEXT PRESENTATION to the valuable Rectory of Tarleton, in the County of Lancashire, producing a clear annual income of 765*l.*, present incumbent in his 74th year.

Particulars may be had on application (if by letter, post paid) to J. Waltham, 19, Scarsdale Terrace, Kensington, London. [48]

WANTED TO PURCHASE, an ADVOWSON, with immediate possession, of the value of from 200*l.* to 400*l.* per annum.
Letters to be addressed (post paid) to P. M., Post-office, Eye, Suffolk. [23]

WANTED TO PURCHASE an ADVOWSON, with immediate possession, of from 300*l.* to 500*l.* per annum and a house.
Letters addressed to Rev. A. B., 14, Bloomsbury Square, London, will be attended to. [71]

WANTED TO PURCHASE, an ADVOWSON, or NEXT PRESENTATION to a LIVING, with an income of 300*l.* to 500*l.* per annum, where there is a prospect of early possession. Within 100 miles of London, or near a railway, would be preferred.

Or the Advertiser would engage to build a good house on a small living, if the patron will either present his nominee, or grant him the right to the next presentation. [132]

Particulars to be forwarded (post-paid) to Rev. C. B., at Mr. Robinson's, No. 11 A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square.

CURATE WANTED in a healthy village, with a population of upwards of 500, in a metropolitan county, about 25 miles from London. Double duty at the Church every Sunday. The stipend will be 100*l.* per annum, and as there is no residence, an addition will be made of 50*l.* a-year towards the expense of a house.

Address, Rev. E. J. (post paid), care of Mr. Robinson, Surveyor, Auctioneer, and Agent for Ecclesiastical Property, No. 11 A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square. [131]

WANTED immediately, a CLERGYMAN in full orders, to give temporary assistance, for three months at least, in a large church. The applicant must be able to produce satisfactory testimonials and references in proof that he is an efficient and consistent clergyman, Evangelical in doctrine, and of sound Church principles. Remuneration at the rate of 100*l.* a-year, and travelling expenses. [130]

Address, Rev. J. C. Franks, Vicarage, Huddersfield.

WANTED, for the Parish Church of Halifax, in Yorkshire, a CURATE of some experience in the Ministry, a Graduate of Oxford or Cambridge, Evangelical in sentiment, and sound in his attachment to the order and discipline of the Church.

The building is large, and requires a voice of more than average power and distinctness.

As the Vicar is usually resident, and there is also an afternoon lecturer, the Sunday duty, which devolves to the two Curates, is not oppressive, while the occasional duty in the week is so divided that each Curate is entirely at liberty one half of every month.

Stipend, 125*l.* per annum.

WANTED also, in the same parish of Halifax, another CLERGYMAN of like qualifications as before, who can afford to accept a Church of very small endowment, pleasantly situated in a large and thriving village, on the line of the Leeds and Manchester Railway, and at the intersection of two good roads, connecting it with Halifax, Huddersfield, Dewsbury, and Bradford.

Since the erection of the church eight years ago, a capacious and handsome School has been built adjacent to the churchyard, and several hundred pounds are subscribed towards a parsonage-house.

A right-minded man of piety, temper, and good discretion, would find this a very interesting sphere of duty. [125]

Applications for both appointments may be addressed to the Venerable Archdeacon Musgrave, Vicarage, Halifax.

TITLE TO ORDERS.

A NOMINATION will be given to a Graduate, whose Testimonials are satisfactory, and who is possessed of a small independence.

Address (post paid) to A. M. Rectory, Oving, near Aylesbury, Bucks. [118]

Apply to Rev. M. L., Mr. Painter's, Wrexham. [95]

VICARAGE HOUSE.

KING'S-LANGLEY, HERTFORDSHIRE.
A Station on the London and Birmingham Railway.

THE Rev. J. W. BUTT, M.A., Vicar of King's-Langley, and late Headmaster of a Grammar School at Bromley, in Kent, receives under his care Twenty-five Sons of Gentlemen, and prepares them for the larger Schools, the Universities, the higher departments of mercantile life, or the military Colleges.

The same unvaried kindness, and the same minute attention to the domestic comfort of the Boys, which pervaded the system at Bromley, and was attended with such eminent success, is undeviatingly pursued at King's-Langley.

Terms, Sixty Guineaes per Annum.

There will be three vacancies after Christmas.

Further Particulars may be known on application to R. Valpy, Esq., Bedford-street, Strand; or at the Vicarage, King's-Langley. [12]

A LADY, about twenty-two years of age, accustomed to superintend the Education of Ladies, and who has been very carefully and religiously brought up, is desirous of obtaining a situation as GOVERNESS. She is an excellent "pianist" and singer, has credentials of great competency to teach both French and Italian from Professors of those Languages. Can read German, Greek, and Latin, and is in every way qualified to superintend the Education of Ladies who are sufficiently advanced in age to appreciate or require such attainments. [26]

The highest testimonials can be given, if required.

Address to the Rev. A. B., Post-office, Norwich, Norfolk.

TO PATRONS AND DIRECTORS OF CORPORATE AND OTHER CHARITABLE SCHOOLS OR NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

A WELL-EDUCATED LADY, accustomed to Teaching, is extremely desirous of undertaking the management of a School. In addition to ordinary tuition, she can, if necessary, instruct in French, Music, Geography, Drawing. The lady is 35 years of age, and is the widow of a physician. She would devote her whole time and energy to the interests of a school entrusted to her care.

HOLY ORDERS.

A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN wishes to receive into his house, after the York and Worcester Examination, one or two Candidates for Holy Orders, to whom he would devote his leisure, either in preparing them for immediate examination, or assisting them in a longer course of study.

Application (if by letter, post paid) to the Rev. F. Trevanion, Wadworth, near Doncaster. [58]

ORGANS.—G. M. HOLDICH returns his most sincere thanks to his Friends and the Clergy in general for the kind support he has hitherto received, and hopes, by moderate price and strict attention, to merit a continuance of their patronage and support. Every description of Organ built, tuned, and repaired. Organs tuned by the Year. Finger Organs for places of worship and private families. Barrel Organs for small Churches from 50*l.* and upwards. Address to G. M. Holdich, Organ Builder, Bishop's Walk, Stangate, Lambeth.

TESTIMONIALS.

I have great pleasure and satisfaction in giving my testimony to the ability and good judgment of Mr. George Holdich, of Bishop's Walk, Stangate, Lambeth, in organ building in general, either for cathedrals, large parish churches where pedals are required, or for chapels or as chamber organs, having played on and heard several of his building, the tones of which have been much admired; and as he has worked his way through all the different branches of organ building, he has made himself perfect master of the true construction of an organ: and if I were to have an organ built either for my own use, or was called upon to recommend an organ builder, I should have no hesitation whatever in recommending Mr. Holdich. I have the fullest confidence in his integrity and uprightness in fulfilling any contract he may undertake.

(Signed) J. B. SALE,
September 25th, 1839. Organist to her Majesty.
25, Holywell-street, Milbank, Westminster.

I have performed on several organs made by Mr. Holdich, the son of the Rev. T. Holdich, rector of Maidwell, in the county of Northampton, with much pleasure and satisfaction. I think very highly of his abilities as an organ-builder, believing that he possesses great mechanical skill, and (what is more important) a vivid perception of true and natural tone—a perception perfectly distinct from mechanical skill, and one, if denied by nature, can never be attained by practice. He applies himself enthusiastically to his art, and I have no doubt he will attain a high reputation in the profession to which he has dedicated his talents.

HENRY JOHN GAUNTLETT,
Organist of Christ Church, Newgate-street, and St. Olave's, Southwark.

HIGH ERCELL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, SALOP.

THE REV. J. MEREDITH, A.M., of Christ Church, Oxford, Master, having resigned extensive Parochial duty, proposes to enlarge the circle of his School engagements. Terms 50 Guineaes per annum, without any extra charges. For pupils under 12 years of age, 40 Guineaes. High Erccell, near Shrewsbury.—Jan. 1st, 1840. [98]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN wishes to obtain a CURACY in a healthy situation, where he might have a prospect of permanency and a convenient house.

Address, Rev. X. Y., care of Mr. Stephenson, 12 and 13, Parliament Street, Westminster. [125]

A YOUNG MAN, of religious character and orderly habits, wishing to prepare for the University, or to read previous to entering into Holy Orders, may have facilities for doing so on very favourable terms, by assisting in the superintendence of younger pupils.

Particulars may be known on application to Rev. S. T. T., 18, Commercial Street, Leeds.

The Advertiser, who has been long engaged in tuition, has vacancies which he would be glad to fill with two pupils about 13 years of age. [126]

PRIVATE TUITION.—A Clergyman, residing in a most delightful and healthy situation in the Isle of Wight, who has had much experience in preparing young Gentlemen for the Universities, public schools, and the higher walks of life, has now TWO VACANCIES. The number of pupils is limited to four. Terms, which are moderate, and other particulars, may be known by letter, addressed A. B., 131, Piccadilly. The most respectable references can be given. [117]

A CLERGYMAN (in Deacon's Orders), without preference, wishes to undertake the office of TUTOR in a Nobleman's or Gentleman's family. He has received his education at Eton and Oxford; and can furnish testimonials of his qualification for the situation he desires.

Address (post paid) to W. P., 75, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury Square, London. [119]

RUPTURE SOCIETY.

THIS SOCIETY has relieved upwards of 29,300 poor persons afflicted with rupture, of whom many hundreds have been cured. It is estimated (though the fact is not generally known) that at least one person in fifteen is ruptured; but among those classes of the community which are engaged in bodily labour, the average has been fixed at one in eight or nine. This sad complaint is not confined to any particular age or sex, nor is it the consequence of immoral behaviour; its tendency, however, is so alarming, that, without timely aid, it frequently terminates by a painful and rapid dissolution, though its fatal consequences may generally be prevented by the careful application of a Truss. The Society relieves patients all over England, but not being able to look to any particular local parish in the way of parochial relief, they conceive this gives them an additional reason for appealing to the Public. Every contributor of one guinea annually, or ten guineas at once, including parishes and public institutions, may recommend three patients each year, to be supplied, in any part of the kingdom, with single or double Trusses of the best quality, each of which would cost from one to three guineas at the maker's.

Donations and subscriptions will be most gratefully received by John Poynder, Jun., Secretary, Bridewell Hospital, New Bridge-street. January 9, 1840. [121]

TITHES COMMUTATION.

It is a matter of surprise and regret that the Clergy have, in the important measure of commutating tithes into a rent-charge, totally disregarded the old adage, that "union is strength." The landowners, by acting upon it, have obtained many advantages. In each parish the individuals possessing wealth and influence are bound together by the tie of common interest, they interchange their knowledge and experience, and confide their interests to acute and practised agents. As, in addition to this, the landowners themselves always have the best evidence of the value of the tithes, they evidently possess advantages that can be safely competed with only by great discretion, vigilance, and activity on the part of the Clergy.

Amongst the Clergy there should forthwith be established facilities for a full and free communication of the methods adopted in each parish for ascertaining the rent-charge, and of the progress and results of the proceedings taken.

Then only can the Clergy, as trustees of the temporalities of the Church, be enabled effectually to oppose plans dangerous or disadvantageous to her interests, and be made acquainted with methods best calculated for preserving her just rights.

I have had personal experience of many cases in which, either from want of knowledge in the incumbents how to assert their rights, or from the influence and management of the landowners, arrangements have been made extremely disadvantageous to the interests of the Clergy.

Considering the large amount and sacred objects of the property at stake, the losses already sustained, and the unalterableness of the fiat of the Commissioners, I have been induced to trespass on your valuable columns, in order to invite all who are concerned, to reflect how worthy the subject is of their most powerful exertions.

As it is the duty of each incumbent to spare neither trouble nor expense, in defending the property entrusted to him, so I would respectfully suggest, it is no less the duty of all who have any experience in the matter, freely and fully to impart it for the present advantage of their brother clergymen, and the permanent benefit of the whole Church.

I am, Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
GEO. JAS. ROBINSON.

GRAY'S IMPROVED CHURCH BARREL ORGANS, in which all the defects of the ordinary instruments are entirely removed, and no bolt-work or shifting of the Barrels necessary.

No. 1. In a handsome Gothic case 10 feet high, with gilt pipes, 60 Guineas.
2. Ditto size larger ditto 75 ditto.
3. Ditto ditto 90 ditto.
4. Ditto ditto 100 ditto.
The instruments may be inspected, and every explanation readily afforded, at the Manufactory of the Inventors, 9, New Road, Fitzroy-square. [77]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, late Fellow of New College, Oxford, who resides in Kent, within twenty miles of Town, receives a few young gentlemen as Private Pupils. The terms are moderate; proportioned to the age of the pupil and the accommodation required. Address (post paid) Rev. A. B., 47, Bedford-row. [17]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, resident within forty miles of London, who receives into his House a limited number of Pupils, who are prepared for the Public Schools and the Universities, will have three vacancies after Christmas. Terms, from 50 to 100 Guineas per Annum, according to age.

Letters addressed to Rev. A. B. C., at Calnes and Co., Booksellers, 2, Halkin-street West, Belgrave-square, will be attended to. [18]

THE Place of SECOND MASTER at the GRAMMAR SCHOOL of QUEEN ELIZABETH at HEATH, near Halifax, Yorkshire, under the Rev. Robert Wilkinson, B.D., Head Master, is Vacant. The stipend, which is a certain proportion of the net income of the Charity, may be stated generally as about or not less than 100*l.* per Annum.

The Second Master will be allowed to reside any where, at his own discretion, in the neighbourhood of the School, and to receive Boarders into his House.

Heath School has an interest in the Milner Scholarships at Magdalen College, Cambridge, and Lady Betty Hastings' Exhibitions to Queen's College, Oxford.

Candidates, being Graduates of either University, are desired to send their Testimonials, post paid, on or before Saturday, the 25th of January, addressed to George Pollard, Esq., President Governor, Stannary Hall, Halifax. Heath School, Dec. 19th, 1839. [30]

WANTED, by a Young Lady, 22 years of age, a Situation as Companion to a Lady, or as Nursery Governess, to instruct two or three children under 12. She is of pious habits, and a Member of the Church of England. Most respectable references can be given. Address (post paid) to A. W., to be left at the Post-office, East Place, Lambeth. [116]

The Clergy are respectfully invited to an inspection of these instruments, which will be found the best and cheapest of the kind yet manufactured. The main defects in the old instruments are, the uncertainty of the keys passing correctly over the pins arising from the brass bolt-work, which, however well manufactured, soon becomes rickety and imperfect in its action; the unavoidable damage to the clogged heads of the barrels in passing them under the brass worm every time they are changed (from these causes alone the hobbling performance of the tune, so frequent in the ordinary barrel-organ, arises), the liability of damage to the pins on a barrel when changed; the noise occasioned by bolt-work at every change of tune, and the inconvenience and, in some instances, the impossibility of changing the barrels during divine service, in which case the range of tunes under command is so limited that, with the greatest care in the selection and distribution of the various metres to be set on the barrels, a change of them is almost always necessary in each service; for instance, in many churches it is the custom to commence with the Morning Hymn, and when this is the case, the barrels must be frequently changed, or none but the limited collection of tunes on one barrel will ever be heard during the service.

JOHN GRAY & SON have by their invention removed all these defects so long complained of in the ordinary barrel-organ, and the truth of which every possessor of one will readily acknowledge. The annexed section will best explain the improvements.

The spindle of the iron frame D, being cut with an endless screw, a single revolution of it changes the tune on each barrel from the first to the second, and so on in succession, to the whole extent of them (thirty in number), a contrary revolution will, of course, produce a return to the first or any intermediate tune that may be desired, its number being ascertained by reference to an index on each barrel. No bolt-work whatever is necessary; and every change either of tune or barrel, is effected with perfect silence and the greatest ease. Upon raising the worm A, it is immediately arrested by a self-acting sling, and there held until relieved by the finger of the barrel turner after he has changed the tune or barrel, and at no time does any necessity arise for touching any part of the barrels with the hand; the possibility of damage to the pins (unless wilfully done) is therefore wholly removed.

Uniformity of plan enables JOHN GRAY & SON to supply these instruments at even less cost than the ordinary barrel-organ, the whole of the mechanism being comprised in one package, and may be set up without the assistance of an organ builder, a matter of no little consideration when required at a distance from the Metropolis. The instrument is wholly independent of an external case, which may, if preferred, be made in the country.

The same unerring principle is applied to an organ of a higher class, for both Finger and Barrels.

TUITION.

THE RECTOR of a small parish in the North of Devon, who has been successfully engaged in Tuition for the last Twenty Years, receives into his family a limited number of Pupils between the ages of eight and fourteen, to educate with his children. Terms Eighty Guineas per annum. References and Testimonials of the most satisfactory character will be given.

Address (post paid) M. A., Messrs. J. and W. Robins, Booksellers, 57, Tooley-street, Southwark. [141]

TO LONDON CLERGYMEN.

A CLERGYMAN responsible for duty, 14 or 15 miles from London, would be glad to effect an Exchange during two or three Months in the Year with a London Clergyman to whom a Country engagement might appear desirable, and whose London duty the Advertiser proposes in the interim to supply.

A letter addressed to the Rev. A. M., Mr. Sotheman, Stationer, Little Tower-street, appointing an interview, will receive immediate attention. [5]

THE INCUMBENT of a Small Living, in one of the most beautiful Counties in England, and near the Sea, yielding about 240*l.* per Annum, with light duty, wishes to Exchange with some Clergyman, who, from ill health, or any other cause, would wish to relieve himself of the Duties of a large Parish, and who would not object to make a sacrifice of income. His age is 38.

Apply (post paid) to John Allen, Jun., Esq., Shireland-hall, Birmingham. [9]

A CLERGYMAN, M.A., hitherto a resident Curate in the centre of England, is desirous for the health of his family, of living after Lady-day, during the whole, or half of the subsequent year, on or near the Southern coast. Dover or its vicinity would be preferred. He would undertake the duty of any Parish so situated, where there is a convenient House, and the Incumbent and his family are desirous of leaving for such a period as is above stated.

Direct X. Y., Ashby de la Zouch, post paid. [38]

TO THE CLERGY.

A GRADUATE of CAMBRIDGE, who can produce most satisfactory testimonials, is desirous of obtaining a CURACY, with Title to Holy Orders, in the Diocese of Peterborough. Address (post paid) M. W., Post-office, Daventry, Northamptonshire. [2]

CURACY WANTED.

THE REV. G. C. GORHAM, B.D., late Fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge, who has had nearly thirty years' experience in the Ministry, is desirous of changing his present Curacy for one with a more convenient Unfurnished House, (in part of stipend, or to be hired,) suited to a family of six children, and to a few (at present three) private pupils. The parochial duty must not be heavy, nor the situation very remote from a town. Ample references can be given to any applicant to whom the Advertiser may be a stranger.

Address (post paid) Maidenhead Parsonage, Berkshire. [57]

WANTED, a CURACY, in the Diocese of Chester, by a Member of the University of Oxford, who expects to be ready to undertake the duties in July next. His principles are perfectly Orthodox, and he can give the most satisfactory references.

Address A. B., Box 123, Post-office, Manchester. [45]

WANTED a COUNTRY CURACY, of not less value than 100*l.* per annum, with a comfortable House, or an equivalent thereto. Unexceptionable references can be given.

Address (post paid) to Mr. J. Thomas, Newaman, &c., Finch-lane, London. [83]

CURACY WANTED, at Lady-day or Midsummer, by a Graduate of Oxford in full Orders, whose views are in exact conformity with the Articles of the Church. The entire superintendence of a parish would be preferred, and the use of the parsonage-house is indispensable.

Address (post paid) Rev. F. W., care of Combe and Crossley, Booksellers, Leicester. [83]

CURACY WANTED by a Fellow of a College in Oxford, who has been three years in Orders. Address to the Rev. M. A., Post-office, Oxford. [81]

A CLERGYMAN, M.A., with good voice and delivery, ordained Deacon and Priest on a College Title, and accustomed to active life, (but, to secure employment, necessitated at present to reside on a small Cure, in a very damp and retired situation,) wishes to obtain, at Lady-day next, a larger field for exertion, and a healthy and cheerful abode. A beneficed person may, by addressing A. C., Post-office, Malvern, obtain a valuable representative, and promote the comfort and usefulness of a talented, experienced, and highly deserving minister. A professional residence necessary, and a few acres of glebe desirable. [79]

AN UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN, a Graduate of Oxford, who has had some experience in the Ministry, and whose voice is equal to a large church, wishes to obtain a CURACY. A town would be preferred. Address (post paid) B. A., Post-office, Stockport. [62]

WANTED, by a Married Clergyman, without Family, a CURACY, with or without a house. He is of active habits, of sufficient physical power for any duties, of orthodox sentiments, and can afford most satisfactory references and testimonials.

Address to Rev. C. D., Post-office, Kingston, Surrey. [97]

CURACY.

WANTED, by a Clergyman in Full Orders, of the University of Oxford, and of sound and orthodox principles, a CURACY, in the South or Western counties. An entire duty would be preferred, and a comfortable house indispensable; if furnished, a proportionable deduction in stipend expected.

Address (post paid) to D. E. F., Post-office, Tonbridge. [99]

WANTED, a Gentleman of Piety and active habits, to assist an Incumbent in the sacred duties of the Ministry, within 20 miles west of London. Stipend, 100*l.* per annum. No house. Direct (post paid) to S. G., 11, Howard-street, Strand. [110]

CURATE WANTED. Incumbent resident. About four or five miles from London. Salary, 100*l.* No house. He must read and preach well, and be desirous to be actively employed in the cause of the Church in poor-visiting and school-visiting. Both the Sunday duty and the weekly Church duty are light. Testimonials to his being orthodox in doctrine, and of sound Church principles, will be carefully required; and it is particularly requested, that the first replies may contain the names of Clergymen, &c. to whom references will be given.

Address (post paid) to B. D., 31, Poultry, London. [115]

CURACY, ADVOWSON, OR LEASE OF CHAPEL.

THE ADVERTISER, a Graduated Clergyman in full Orders, and of moderate Evangelical sentiments, accustomed to minister in populous places, wishes to undertake the duties of a CURACY; or he would willingly take the Lease of a Chapel, if a moderate amount of income might reasonably be expected from his labours. He would not object to purchase an ADVOWSON in an agreeable situation, with immediate, or the prospect of very early possession. Address (post paid) J. H., care of Mr. Jones, Bookseller, Ludlow, Salop. [47]

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHER FRIENDS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTRUCTION.

THE PARISH OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, the largest within the city of Gloucester, containing an increasing population of 3,500 souls and upwards, is destitute of Sunday School-rooms. Yet it was the Rector of this Parish, the Rev. Thomas Stock, who, in the year 1780, projected, and, in conjunction with his friend, Robert Raikes, Esq., established the first Sunday School in Great Britain. The parishioners consist, in a great proportion, of small householders, and the living itself is under £130 per annum, and no globe-house thereon. The present Rector, being wholly unable from his own resources, or those of the Parish, to raise the requisite funds, is constrained to appeal thus publicly to the liberality of the friends of sound and scriptural education. He is persuaded that they will not be insensible to the wants of a Parish which may justly claim the distinction of having originated the whole system of Sunday School teaching.

In aid of the object in question, a Reverend Incumbent, residing at Salisbury, and connected with the Cathedral, has happily suggested a plan, the principle of which was immediately acted upon in his own Parish, and has been adopted already in various other places, viz.:—"That a General Subscription be set on foot, to which each child in every school in the United Kingdom be invited to contribute One Penny." This proposal is now respectfully and anxiously submitted to the favourable consideration of every Incumbent and officiating Minister throughout the two countries, who are hereby earnestly intreated to bring the case of the above-mentioned Parish before such of their young people, as are now sharing in the blessings of Sunday School instruction. By this simple free-will offering an ample Fund would be raised, and the Sunday School-rooms of St. John's Parish would exhibit, to future generations, an interesting and singular memorial of the gratitude of children for their "nurture and admonition in the Lord."

TRUSTEES TO THE SCHOOL BUILDING FUND.

Rev. Thomas Evans, M.A., Vicar of St. Mary de Lode; Rev. John Davies, M.A., Incumbent of St. Nicholas; Rev. F. T. Bayly, B.A., Rector of St. John's, in the city of Gloucester; Rev. F. T. J. Bayly, B.A., Vicar of Brookthorpe; Thos. Turner, Esq., a Director, and Wm. Montague, jun., Esq., Manager of the Gloucester National Provincial Bank of England.—SECRETARIES, Revs. F. T. Bayly, and F. CHEPSTOW UNION.

NOTICE is hereby Given, That the Guardians of the Chepstow Union wish to appoint a CHAPLAIN for the WORKHOUSE.

The required duties will be to perform Divine Service, with a Sermon, on one day in the Week, besides Sunday, to attend the Sick and Infirm, to Catechise the Children once a Month, and instruct them in religious and moral duties twice or thrice a week. The Salary will be 50*l.* a-year.

Clergymen desirous of obtaining the above appointment, are requested to send in their applications with such testimonials as they may think fit, to the Office of Mr. Toye, Solicitor, Chepstow. W. E. TOYE, Clerk. [21]

ANTRON HOUSE.

TO THE NOBILITY, CLERGY, AND GENTRY.

A MOST DESIRABLE ASYLUM will be afforded to invalid persons suffering under NERVOUS DEBILITY, and other Disorders requiring constant Medical superintendence, by the opening of the above-named house. Dr. Henwood intends to receive only a limited number of patients, who will be treated in every respect as members of his own family, so far as their health may admit. Antron House and Grounds are situated on one of the most healthy banks of the Mount's Bay, and near to the town of Helston, Cornwall. Unexceptionable references will be given and required. [19]

Antron House, October 11, 1839.

CLERICAL AGENCY, 4, MAGDALEN-STREET, OXFORD, by a Master of Arts, of long standing, affording, it is presumed, a very useful point of intercommunication to Incumbents and Curates; to Principals of Schools and Graduates; to Parents and private Tutors; to the Clergy desirous of effecting Exchanges; to Patrons of Church Preference, &c.

Address, free of postage, the Rev. M. A., 4, Magdalen-street, Oxford.

N.B. Inquiries are now on the Books for Curacies and Exchanges of Living—for Curates and School Assistants—for Pupils and Assistantships. Also, for an eligible School within 10 or 12 miles of London, where about five or six Pupils are received. [85]

YEARLY TENTHS DUE FROM THE CLERGY.

I. CHRISTOPHER HODGSON, Treasurer to the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne, do hereby respectfully give notice to the Clergy, that the Yearly Tenths became due from them to the Governors on the 25th day of December last, and are required by law to be paid to me immediately afterwards.

CHRISTOPHER HODGSON, Treasurer.
Bounty Office, Dean's Yard, Westminster,
January 1, 1840. [44]

EASTERN COUNTIES' RAILWAY.

A CHAPLAIN will be required in about two months to attend to the Spiritual Instruction of the Workmen on the above line, at Brentwood and its Neighborhood. A Salary of 180*l.* will be guaranteed for one year to any gentleman whose testimonials shall be approved. Satisfactory references will be required.

Address, post paid, to the Clerical Committee, Post-office, Brentwood. [25]

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHERS INTERESTED IN THE EDUCATION OF THE POOR.

WANTED a MASTER, to superintend a National School, consisting of 70 or 80 boys, who will take a lively interest in his charge. Stipend, 20 guineas per annum, with a house rent free, and exempt from rates and taxes, and some few incidental advantages. Address Rev. A. M., New Sawbridgworth, Herts. [72]

EDUCATION.

MISS HUNT begs to inform her friends, that she has lately taken a House in LARK HALL GROVE, CLAPHAM, for the reception of a limited number of Young Ladies, whom she proposes to Board and Educate. Terms, including French, Geography, and Writing, Sixty Guineas per Annum. Under twelve years of age, Fifty Guineas. No extras, except Masters' Terms and Books. The following Clergymen kindly allow reference to be made to them:—Rev. Josiah Pratt, Vicar of St. Stephen's, Coleman-street; Rev. J. C. Williams, Curate of High Wycombe; Rev. J. Prosser, Incumbent Minister, Loudwater, Bucks; Rev. W. Harding, Rector of Hookley, Essex; Rev. W. Edelman, Curate of Wimbledon; Rev. A. R. Symonds, Curate of St. Mary, Whitechapel, London. [40]

SUTTON VALENCE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

A LIMITED NUMBER of BOARDERS is taken by the Head Master, whose whole time and attention is devoted to his pupils. There are exhibitions to St. John's College, Cambridge, for such pupils of this School as have been educated there for three years.

For further particulars apply at the School-house, Sutton Valence, near Maldstone; or to the Rev. W. T. Goodchild, Vicar of East Tilbury, Essex; or at Clothworkers' Hall, Mincing Lane, London.

C. WEAY GOODCHILD, M.A. F.R.S., Head Master.

P.S. The business of the School will re-commence on Thursday, Jan. 30th. [109]

THE Place of HEAD MASTER of the FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL of QUEEN ELIZABETH, at Hesh, near Halifax, is vacant by the Death of the Rev. ROBERT WILKINSON, B.D.

There is a commodious house for a family, or pupils, or both, attached to the School, which is conveniently and pleasantly situated within half-a-mile of Halifax, and on the south and best side of the town.

The present annual income of the Charity, arising from the rents and profits of the estate, may be estimated at 200*l.* per annum (exclusive of the mansion house and premises, for the use of the Head Master), with every reasonable probability of the same being augmented to 350*l.*, consequent on the completion of arrangements now in progress connected with the charity lands, and this income it is proposed to apportion between the Head Master and the Second Master, in the following manner, viz. two-thirds to the former, and one-third to the latter.

This School, jointly with the similar foundations at Leeds and Heversham, has an interest in the Milner Scholarships at Magdalen College, Cambridge.

The Election must take place by the Statutes within Six Weeks from the 29th of December last, the day of the Decease of the late Master.

The Governors pledge themselves to select from the names submitted to their choice that which with equal advantage of general character is recommended by superiority in CLASSICAL attainment.

Candidates being Graduates of Oxford or Cambridge ("Students—the space of Five Years at the least") are desired to send their Testimonials, post-paid, on or before WEDNESDAY, the 5th of February, addressed to

GEORGE POLLARD, Esq.,

President Governor,

Stannary Hall, near Halifax.

N.B. Immediately after the Appointment of the Head Master, the Governors will proceed with his counsel and assistance to the Election of the Second Master.

A Graduate of any Academical distinction will be preferred to a Non-Graduate.

Testimonials of Character and Scholarship must be sent within the same time, and with the (same Address as above. [136]

HULSEAN LECTURES for 1838: the Constitution of the visible Church of Christ considered, under the Heads of Authority and Inspiration of Scripture; Creeds (Tradition); Articles of Religion; Heresy, and Schism; State-Alliance, Preaching, and National Education. By Rev. R. PARKINSON, B.D. of St. John's Coll., Cambridge; Fellow of Christ's Coll., Manchester.

"These are admirable discourses. * * * In the compass of any notice this magazine can afford, the reviewer desires of being able to convey even an outline of the admirable arguments these lectures contain; he must, therefore, content himself with referring all who wish to cast anchor in the troubled sea of modern controversy, to the Lectures themselves: he is sure they will amply repay the perusal."—Brit. Mag.

GREÆK GRAMMAR: Græcæ Grammaticæ Rudimenta, in usum Regiæ Scholæ Etonensæ ...

Græcæ Grammaticæ, or Questions adapted to the Eton Greek Grammar, by the Rev. John Simpson, of Balliol Academy, Herts ...

f. Fabula, Gr. Lat. cum novis Notis, necnon Versione emendata ...

ammatum Græcorum et Poëmatum Delectus; a Versione et Notis, opera T. Johnson, A.M. ... use two last books may be had (as used at Eton) in the Latin version.

Græci: sive, Selecta ex Poëtis Græcis: viz., neri Odysæ., Hesiodo, Theocrito, Callimacho, Iliad., Rhodio, Tyrtæo, Sappho, Erriano, Mimnermo, Solone, Simonide, Theognide, Euripide, Bacchylide, Callistrato, Bione, et Moscho; cum vulgata Versione emendata, ac Notis ...

This may also be had without the Latin version.

Scriptores Græci; sive, Selecta ex Scriptoris Græcis: viz., Herodoto, Thucydide, Xenophonte, Platone, et Luciano ...

This will be found a very useful selection for the upper forms of Schools.

Aristophanis Ranae. Textu fere ad Dindorfianum expresso, lectionibus tamen Personi et Elmsleii hic illic emendato, et in usum juventutis expurgato. 8vo, sewed ...

Euripidis Cyclops, ex Editione Dindorfii, in usum juventutis expurgata ...

SCOTT'S BIBLE, Four Vols. 4to. A PRESENTATION COPY.

Should this advertisement meet the eye of the Rev. W. N., late Curate of D—, who, about two years ago, left the above Work only, in liquidation of his debt of £65, and not one farthing of which has since been paid to a Creditor, who, he knows, is struggling hard to maintain a large and afflicted family, he is interested, if he will not do more, to send him the value of the work, say Six Guineas, through any medium he may think proper to appoint, and through which he may receive the Bible, as the person has not been able to dispose of the Work, and is distressed for even that amount. Please to address A. Z., Post-office, Gundle.

Application for Assurances or farther information, to be made to the Rev. J. Hodgson, or to JOHN BURDER, Esq., Secretaries to the Society, at the Office, 40, Parliament Street; or to any Local Agent in the Country.

* * Prospectuses and Books of Rules may be had at the Office. Attendance from eleven to four o'clock, daily.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE;

OR MONTHLY REGISTER OF

THE AFFAIRS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, AND

OF ITS RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

No. 20.—Vol. II. LONDON, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1840. PRICE SIXPENCE.

The ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the SECOND TUESDAY IN EVERY MONTH, and may be obtained at sixpence per number, or six shillings per annum, by ordering it of any Newsmen in the Kingdom.

Advertisements will be received at the Office, in Southampton-street, until the Saturday previous to the day of Publication.

We particularly request the attention of the Clergy to a project which we have long entertained, of publishing a CLERGY LIST. We have given the particulars of this project in page 156. As this is a matter in which the convenience of the Clergy themselves is very much concerned, we hope that we are not asking too much in requesting them to afford us the necessary information. It will not take any Clergyman more than five minutes to write the names upon half a sheet of paper, and direct them to the Editor of the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE, Southampton Street, Strand.

In consequence of the notice in our last number of the appointment of a Collector of Subscriptions for this GAZETTE in the counties of York, Lincoln, and Nottingham, we have received several enquiries and applications respecting similar appointments for other counties. Some of these are under consideration, and persons will probably be appointed. But we wish it to be understood, that though we shall gladly receive subscriptions from the clergy through the medium of these collectors, we have no intention to depart from our original ground, of sending the GAZETTE free of expense to the resident Clergyman of every parish in the kingdom.

The number of our communications has greatly increased, as might be expected from the altered state of the Post Office arrangements. Some of our Correspondents will see that their suggestions have been attended to; but it is impossible to notice them as we ought without far greater space than our limits will allow.

We have had many enquiries during the present month respecting the legal mode of assessing Tithes, but we feel that we should probably be doing mischief if we were to say any thing upon the subject until the cause has been decided, which is to settle the law upon this point. At present the Judges have "taken time to consider," and we shall not be able to give their decision till our next number.

The Corn Averages for the last fifty years will be found in the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE for November last.

ECCLESIASTICAL NOTICES.

The Lord Bishop of Lichfield will hold his next ordination in London, on Sunday the 8th of March.

The Lord Bishop of Lincoln's next ordination will be held in Lincoln Cathedral, on Sunday the 15th of March.

The Lord Bishop of Peterborough purposes to hold his next ordination on Sunday, 15th of March; and would be glad to be made acquainted as early as possible with the intentions of Candidates. The testimonials and other papers are required to be sent in before the 20th of February.

The Lord Bishop of Worcester's next ordination will be held on the 25th of July.

The Clergy of the diocese of London are informed that there will be a general confirmation this year in the course of the summer.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

FEBRUARY, 1840.

The Dean of Chichester in the chair.

At the General Meeting held on Tuesday, the 4th of February, 1840, the letter of the Bishop of Calcutta, respecting the erection of a cathedral for that see, having been taken into consideration, the recommendation of the standing committee was adopted, namely,—

"The standing committee having taken into consideration the letter of the Bishop of Calcutta, and being fully impressed with the great importance of the undertaking, in its bearing upon the progress of Christianity in India, are of opinion, that the Society should second the munificent intentions and the energetic efforts of the metropolitan. They, therefore, beg to recommend to the board, that a grant of one thousand pounds per annum, for five years, making the sum of five thousand pounds, be made towards the building and endowment of a cathedral church at Calcutta."

The following members having been proposed by the standing committee, were elected to form the committee of general literature and education for the present year—

The Dean of Chichester, J. L. Adolphus, Esq., Rev. Professor Browne, Rev. A. M. Campbell, Rev. Thomas Dale, Rev. Professor Hall, J. R. Hope, Esq., J. H. Markland, Esq., J. D. Powles, Esq., Rev. Dr. Russell, Rev. W. Short, Dr. Thomas Watson.

Mr. Hull brought forward the motion of which he had given notice at the last meeting; namely,

"That his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury be requested to appoint responsible editors to prepare Commentaries on the Old Testament, the Epistles, and the Revelation, in order to complete the Society's new edition of the Bible, so that the whole Bible may be ready for publication at the same time at which Mr. Lonsdale and Mr. Hale may publish their Commentary on the Four Gospels and the Acts."

This was seconded by Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke.

The motion having been negatived by show of hands, a division was called for; when there appeared—

For the motion.... 44 Against it.... 45

The motion was consequently lost.

The Rev. R. Monro gave notice that at the next meeting he would bring forward the following motion:—

"That a memorial be transmitted to her Majesty, and a petition to both houses of parliament, praying that additional means of grace, in accordance with the system of the National Church, be provided to meet the rapidly increasing wants of the population."

A memorial from the Rev. Dr. H. Robinson, the Rev. H. Budd, the Rev. G. Bryan, the Rev. C. J. Yorke, and the Rev. H. B. S. Harris, on the subject of the Society's tracts, was read to the meeting. The memorialists notice passages, which they deem objectionable, in two of the tracts on the Society's list.

The Rev. Dr. Russell moved that this memorial do lie on the table.

Mr. N. Goldsmid seconded the motion.

Mr. Percival White moved, by way of amendment, seconded by Mr. T. Dornford, that the memorial be referred to the standing committee.

The amendment was put and negatived.

The original motion was then carried.

It was then moved by Mr. Percival White, seconded by the Rev. C. Woodcock—

"That a return be prepared by the proper officers of the Society of the number of copies of the Tracts referred to in the several memorials of the five Essex clergymen presented to this Society, which are now in the depository, at what time the last editions of such tracts were severally printed, and the number of copies of such editions."

The motion was agreed to.

Read a letter from the Lord Bishop of Australia, of which the following are extracts:—

"I write now principally for the purpose of forwarding an account of the mode in which I have expended the sums of money intrusted to me by the Society. The benefits arising from this have been such as the receivers can never be sufficiently thankful for, and I trust that the mode of distribution will be satisfactory to the givers."

The following payments have been made in expenditure of the sum of 5000*l.* which has been placed at the bishop's disposal since Feb. 1835.

A letter from the Lord Bishop of Madras was read to the Meeting, of which the following is an extract:—

"I hope, in the beginning of 1840, to send home for the information of our society, a short account, extracted from my private journal, of the state and prospects of the Church in this diocese, where perhaps I may venture to say, that with God's blessing I have not hitherto laboured altogether in vain. Believe me, there is now a noble opening for doing good in India; and we have every reason to hope that a sound enlightened piety, the pure religion of the gospel, will gradually take root here downward, and bear fruit upward. I have now been upwards of a year actively employed in the duties of my office: and so far from being discouraged by the many difficulties which invariably do stand in our way, I feel more than ever confident that much may be effected, and that if it be not effected, the fault will be ours."

"Our Venerable Society will, I am sure, give me all possible support, and none but a colonial bishop can fully appreciate the value of such assistance; I speak not so much of mere pecuniary aid, although truly thankful to obtain it, as of the great moral encouragement which he knows he will always receive from the Society as long as his own unwearied devotion to his duty gives him a right to ask for it."

"Ceylon, I grieve to say, is in a wretched condition with regard to churches. There is but one Church, with the exception of that of the Dutch congregation, worthy of the name in the whole island,—the very pretty Church at Baddagama, the property of the Church Missionary Society."

"This is a discouraging state of things; but even here I am inclined to hope that our Society will assist me. If they would intrust to me a sum, however small, as a beginning for a Church-building Fund, I am certain that their liberality would be well applied."

"Now, as always, let me assure our Venerable Society of my devotion to their service, and of my gratitude to Providence, that the Church has such a friend in need: and believe me," &c.

The board agreed, on the recommendation of the Standing Committee, to grant the sum of 500*l.* to the Lord Bishop of Madras, to form the beginning of a Church-building Fund for the Island of Ceylon.

Read the following extract of a letter from the Rev. G. W. Mahon, Secretary to the Madras Diocesan Committee:—

"The Rev. Messrs. C. S. Kohlhoff and G. Heyne, who were appointed in the beginning of this year to the mission of Tinnevely, have made a representation to the Committee, that the old Church at Muddalore, the largest Christian village in the district, is in a very dilapidated condition, and also too small to contain the congregation, which, including persons of all ages, consists of 966 souls. They endeavoured, in the first instance, to ascertain whether the poor native Christians on the spot were willing to contribute towards a new erection, and were gratified to find, that they readily pledged themselves to the collection of rupees 400. This, considering the extreme poverty of the people, is as much or more than could have been expected. The total amount required for building the church by Messrs. Kohlhoff and Heyne is Company's rupees 3,000; and they having submitted a plan and estimates acceding to our requisition, we have promised to plead for them with your Committee; meanwhile, as they represented the case to be urgent, and the season for building passing rapidly away, we have, in anticipation of your making them a suitable grant of money for the above purpose, ventured to advance the sums required from our own funds."

The board agreed to grant the sum of 200*l.* for the rebuilding of the Church at Muddalore.

The following extracts from a letter of the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, were read to the board:—

"I have lately received letters from King's College, at Windsor, in Nova Scotia, expressive of the gratitude which is felt there for the valuable bounty of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which has been applied to the support of divinity scholarships in that useful institution. The last grant of the Society for this object has been expended in assisting the support of several promising young men, while obtaining such theological knowledge as we may humbly hope will prepare them, under the Divine blessing, to fulfil the pious intentions of the Society, and aid their holy work in promoting Christian knowledge in a distant, but wide and extending field."

"Our labours are not accomplished, although their progress is full of hope, and therefore we venture again to solicit the benevolent assistance of the Society, which we will endeavour to use for the glory of God, and the extension of the blessings of the Gospel of the Saviour."

"I am rejoiced to inform you that the books which the Society were pleased to grant for churches in poor settlements in my diocese, have arrived safely at Halifax, and have awakened already much thankfulness."

The board agreed, on the recommendation of the Standing Committee, to grant the sum of 200*l.* to King's College, Nova Scotia, for the present year, to be applied in the same manner as the former grant to that institution.

Read the following letter from the Rev. R. Kemphorne, Chaplain at St. Helena:—

"I have the pleasure of acknowledging the receipt of the school books kindly granted by the venerable Society in answer to my request. I return the board my very grateful thanks, in which I am quite sure I shall be cordially joined by the benevolent Society at their annual meeting in January. The school which I particularly contemplated in my petition has, I rejoice to say, been established under the auspices of that Society. Before the end of this week also, I think they will have an evening school set on foot in Jamestown, under an efficient master, long accustomed and attached to education. Not only adults, but a considerable number of boys and girls, who are occupied during the day, are likely to avail themselves of this means of instruction. This will make the fourth school under the benevolent Society's direction."

tion; and, after supplying the new schools adequately, I conclude that I shall only be carrying out the wishes of your board by making up the deficiency of the others out of the case you have been good enough to send me.

"I have also to return my thanks for your letter, which preceded the books about a fortnight; also for the very handsome pair of bibles and prayer-books for my churches.

"With regard to the conditional grant of 25*l*. for the erection of the new school, I am inclined to hope that the colonial office at home will render your aid in that quarter unnecessary, by giving us the house which we now rent of them. Should that be the case, I trust the board will not object to its being applied to the repairing and enlarging of the Church in Jamestown, as soon as I can transmit some account of the local subscriptions."

The board agreed, on the recommendation of the Standing Committee, to allow the grant to be applied according to Mr. Kempthorne's request.

Several grants of books were made.

On the 17th Oct., 1839, his Lordship held a Confirmation in the parish Church of St. John, in the said Island of Barbados, at which 350 persons were confirmed.

And on the 18th his Lordship held a private Ordination in the said parish Church of St. John, when John Robinson *, of University College, Durham, was ordained Deacon.

Extracts from an address of the Lord Bishop on laying the Corner Stone of All Saints' Chapel, Barbados.

"I no longer press the expediency of multiplying houses of prayer throughout the land: the call has been answered: on every side the consecrated edifice is rising, and we are praying the Lord of the harvest "to send forth labourers into His harvest:" we are earnestly petitioning the legislature of the land to provide more adequately for their subsistence; for the 'labourer is worthy of his hire.' We are full of hope that many a youthful candidate, animated with the love of souls, and certified that he will be placed above temporal want by the pious and considerate provision of the law, will press forward into the ministry, and carry into the remotest corners of the land, the saving ordinances of our holy faith.

"What a change have a few years of pious exertion and holy liberality effected in the very outward appearance of the country! Our sacred edifices, numerous and conveniently situated, are among the most conspicuous, and not least ornamental, objects, which arrest the eye of the stranger: and may we not, under God, entertain a well-grounded confidence, that on each returning Sabbath there shall go forth from these a sound, which shall carry into every heart the tidings of the Gospel of peace?"

From a letter of the Bishop of Calcutta, dated Nov. 7, 1839.

Bishop's College, and the missions connected with it, are going on as well as under the circumstances could be expected. The Janjera and Barripore Missions are full of hope, I have nothing to retract of the accounts I have rendered now for some years of those interesting scenes of labour. Those who distrusted the tidings of the large accession of converts and enquirers reported to have been there witnessed, are now compelled to believe, after a still wider field opening to a Sister Society at Kishnaghuz: I have heard of no adverse events in those missions, and especially at Barripore the increase seems steady, and the character of the new Christians really admirable.

From a letter of the Bishop of Australia, dated Sept. 12, 1839.

The general state, progress, and prospects of religion are gratifying in a very high degree, and daily almost we witness an improvement. When indeed I observe the striking good effects which display themselves wherever I have been able to station a clergyman, and contrast the existing state with that which would have prevailed if the Society had not been providentially excited to become the instrument in supplying our lamentable wants, I cannot express the joy which I feel at the thought of having been an agent, however humble, in imparting so great a benefit to this community. To the friends and supporters of the Society I am persuaded the contemplation of so much good arising from their exertions and liberality cannot but furnish the most acceptable reward for both.

Since the date of my last letter I have had the pleasure of welcoming to these shores three additional clergymen sent out under the auspices of the Society; viz., the Rev. W. B. Clarke, the Rev. R. T. Bolton, and the Rev. C. Spencer. The testimonials which they have respectively furnished to the Society, and of which an abstract has been forwarded to me, are of the most satisfactory description; and I trust these gentlemen will realize the expectations which the Society has formed of them, by rendering those services which the Church so much requires, in the districts to which I have appointed them.

"Cobourg, Nov. 30, 1839.

"We have before us the Report of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts for the year 1838; and its details are comforting and satisfactory, as well from the evidence they afford of a spreading and deepening interest on the part of the British public for the spiritual welfare of our colonial possessions, as from the proofs they so abundantly furnish of marked and gratifying success in the vast and extending sphere of their Christian enterprise. This venerable Society was established by royal charter in the year 1701; so that one hundred and thirty-eight years have elapsed since first it entered upon 'the field of the world,' which, when we regard the vast extent of the British dominions, it may with propriety be said to embrace. If in former times, with limited means at its command, and peculiar obstacles to encounter abroad, its operations were not marked by results peculiarly striking; yet in looking back upon its earlier days of Christian effort, it must be a great and lasting consolation to reflect that to this effort is mainly to be ascribed the foundation of the Church in the United States of America,—the dropping of that precious seed which has since grown up into a great and goodly tree. Events have subsequently occurred calculated to impair its efficiency, and retard its progress; but it has nobly struggled against them all, and in the energy of its exertions at home, and the magnitude of its operations abroad, it may be said to have 'renewed its youth like the eagle's,' and after a partial slumber to have aroused itself to the spiritual contest as 'a giant refreshed with wine.'

"In the East Indies, including Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Australia, and we may add, the Cape of Good Hope, many labourers of this Society are zealously prosecuting their missionary work; and we have but to peruse the spirit-stirring letter of the excellent Bishop of Calcutta to learn how much success has crowned the labours of these undaunted servants of the Cross. On the once conspicuously favoured but now long benighted East, the 'Sun of Righteousness' seems again to be 'rising with healing in his wings;' and while round the standard of the Cross Jews themselves have begun to rally on the very spot where the Saviour died, the Hindoo is forsaking his pagoda for the temple of the living God, and, casting away his idols, is pressing for admission into covenant with Christ. To the planting of a Middleton, and the watering of a Heber, the God of blessings is vouchsafing indeed an abundant increase; and if, in his inscrutable Providence, those shining lights have been removed from the Eastern Church, a successor has been provided in Bishop Wilson, who with a mind and energy able to grapple with every difficulty, possesses a fervour of zeal, and a glow of piety which animates all around him to press on with an unquenchable ardour in their efforts to pull down the strongholds of Satan, and build up in their room the impregnable fortress of Christian truth."

From "The Church" Canadian Newspaper.

The West as well as the East Indies have long been a field of the Society's labours; and while many of their missionaries are actively and usefully engaged in those Islands, independent of the parochial clergy, who, in some cases, are sustained by the local Government, Codrington College in Barbados is working out similar results to those of Bishop's College at Calcutta.

In British North America, the operations of the Society include the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, the Bermudas, Cape Breton, and Prince Edward's Island. In all these important portions of Her Majesty's dominions, labourers of the Society are to be found; and however inadequate their number is to the spiritual destitution to be supplied, proof is afforded sufficiently gratifying of the philanthropic intentions of the Society, and that their exertions in the cause of the Gospel are only bounded by their pecuniary resources. These, from the lately published Reports of the Society, we are glad to perceive are rapidly increasing;—an evidence that the eyes of the people of England are opening to the magnitude and importance of the work to be performed, and that they regard the dissemination of the principles of the Gospel—so clearly embodied in the principles of the Church of England—as the surest means that can be adopted for binding our Colonial possessions to the Crown.

In the Province of Upper Canada it has been frequently demonstrated that 100 additional clergymen would find immediate employment amongst welcoming flocks; and the letter of the Lord Bishop of Montreal to the Earl of Durham states that the services of 20 additional missionaries are required in Lower Canada. To secure the maintenance of these 120 additional clergymen, the annual sum of 12,000*l*. would be required to be furnished from the Mother Country,—thus affording to every labourer employed in this manner, a stipend of 100*l*. sterling per annum. We are far from meaning that the income of the clergyman should be limited to this scanty sum; but we consider that the residue which would be required to afford him a comfortable maintenance, should be supplied from local resources.

The amount necessary for ensuring the services of 120 additional clergymen in the Canadas, viz., 12,000*l*. per annum, may seem to be large; but what is it when contrasted with the wealth of thousands in the Mother Country? If, for example, an hundred and twenty individuals in England should, by contributing for this object 100*l.* each per annum, effect at once what is required to be done,—need we say that this is an amount which could, without the slightest inconvenience, be spared by twenty times one hundred and twenty amongst the wealthy and the benevolent of our father-land?

HOME REPORT.

PAROCHIAL ASSOCIATIONS.

Two meetings in behalf of the Society have recently been held in important London parishes: the first in St. Andrew's, Holborn, at which the Rev. J. T. Robinson, the rector, took the chair. Resolutions for forming an association were moved by the Bishop of Nova Scotia, Mr. Sergeant Mereweather, W. Tooke, Esq., Rev. Thos. Dale, and the Rev. Dr. Worthington.

The second meeting was called by the Rev. Dr. Short, in the parish of St. George, Bloomsbury; and among those who took part in the proceedings were Mr. Justice Coleridge, J. S. Salt, Esq., W. Lowe, Esq., Sam. Bosanquet, Esq., T. Turner, Esq., Rev. George Hamilton, Rev. J. Maude, Rev. Henry Hughes, and Rev. Ernest Hawkins. An association was regularly formed, and some very liberal donations and subscriptions were at once contributed.

"Barnwood Court, near Gloucester, January, 1840.

"My dear Sir,

"The commencement of a new year reminds me that I have a duty to perform to the venerable Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, in transmitting some account of the operations of the District Committees in this county, as far as they have fallen under my observation during the last twelve months.

"I am happy to say my report is altogether satisfactory. On Thursday, the 4th of April, a public meeting was held at Gloucester, which had the benefit of the Bishop of Nova Scotia's presence. The impulse which his Lordship's attendance gave here and elsewhere, need not be stated. Many new names were added to the annual subscription list, and a liberal collection was made at the doors. The increase of contributions to the funds of the Society in this city is a subject of sincere congratulation to the friends of the Church. In the year 1832 the treasurer's book only reckoned twelve names, with twelve guineas in annual subscriptions, and a donation of thirty pounds. In 1833 the contributors were in number one hundred and forty-six, and the amount of their contributions one hundred and fifty-seven pounds seven shillings. This great advance was owing to the reorganization of the District Committee under the auspices of the Lord Bishop of the diocese, and to the feeling excited by the withdrawal of the parliamentary grant, with the desire to unite in the combined effort throughout the country to supply the deficiency. The chief part of the above sum consisted of donations, but I am enabled to say, that there still remains a steady annual contribution proportionate to the extent and circumstances of the locality.

"On the 5th of April I proceeded with the Bishop of Nova Scotia to attend a meeting at Stroud, where the good cause met with the most encouraging success. The large public room was well-filled, and it was pleasing to observe a great proportion of the labouring classes, who appeared to be much interested in the proceedings. On the following day we were present at a meeting at Wotton Underedge, where a District Committee was formed, R. B. Hale, Esq. M.P. for the Western division of the county, and several others of the leading laity giving their personal aid and support.

"On the 18th of August I was summoned to a meeting at Frampton-upon-Severn, the proceedings of which afforded me the greatest gratification. It was the first I had attended in exclusively a rural district. The room in which it was held was crowded to excess, and a handsome collection was made both of annual subscriptions and casual donations.

"I cannot conclude these few details better than by referring to a most important meeting held at Cheltenham, on Thursday the 31st of October, the Right Hon. Lord Valentia in the chair. Mr. Freshfield, M.P., and many other gentlemen addressed the numerous assemblage at great length, and the result was proportionate to the rank and opulence collected together on this occasion. It may be here added, as a further illustration of the progress of the Society's views in this country, that in the year 1825 the subscription and donation list at Cheltenham only counted ten or twelve names, while, according to the Report of 1838, these amount to eighty-one, the annual subscriptions being sixty-four pounds, six shillings, and sixpence, and donations, forty-five pounds, two shillings and sixpence. Last year there was a considerable increase to both, together with two hundred and forty-two pounds collected at the several churches under the Queen's Letter. I may state, that at the different meetings mentioned above, the expediency of petitioning Parliament for protection to the Colonial Church, and especially against any alienation of the Clergy Reserve, and other Church lands, was forcibly urged, as well as the subject of parochial associations. I have reason to hope and believe, that both these recommendations have been generally adopted.

"I am, my dear Sir, yours faithfully,

"W. SPENCER PHILLIPS."

"To the Secretary of the Society."

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE ENLARGEMENT, BUILDING, AND REPAIRING OF CHURCHES AND CHAPELS.

A MEETING of the committee of this society was held at their chambers, St. Martin's-place, on Monday, the 20th of January, 1840—his grace the Archbishop of Canterbury in the chair. There were present the bishops of London, St. Asaph, Carlisle, Rochester, Ely, Chichester, and Salisbury; the Revs. Archdeacon Cambridge, Dr. Shepherd, Dr. Spry, H. H. Norris, Benjamin Harrison, and T. Bowdler; Benjamin Harrison, II. J. Barchard, J. S. Salt, W. Davis, J. Cocks, Arthur Powell, N. Connop, and W. Cotton, Esqrs.

Among other business transacted, grants were voted towards erecting a new gallery in and enlarging the church at Mortlake, Surrey; re-arranging pews in the church at North Petherton, Somerset; building a chapel at Knackus Knowle, in the parish of Budeux, Devon; building a chapel at East Hyde, in the parish of Luton, Beds.; building a church at Bromley Common, Kent; building a church at Dodworth, in the parish of Silkstone, York; building a church at Thurgoland, in the parish of Silkstone, York; building a chapel at Wellington Heath, in the parish of Ledbury, Hereford; building a chapel in the parish of St. John, Newcastle-upon Tyne; building a chapel-of-ease at Bridlington Quay, in the parish of Bridlington, York; building a chapel at West Bromwich, Stafford; building a chapel at Milton, in the parish of Portsea; rebuilding the chapel at Glyntawe, in the parish of Devynnock, Brecon; rebuilding the church at Rayne, Essex; rebuilding the church at Knowle St. Giles, Somerset; enlargement, re-arrangement of pews, and erecting new galleries in the chapel at Deritend, in the parish of Aston, Warwick; enlarging and repewing the church at Hook, Dorset; enlarging, repewing, and erecting galleries in the church at Godalming, Surrey; building a gallery in the church at Aldborough, Suffolk; rebuilding the church at Shelve, Salop; erecting galleries in the church at Kempston, Beds.; building a chapel at Darfield, Yorkshire.

NINETEENTH ANNUAL REPORT OF HER MAJESTY'S COMMISSIONERS FOR BUILDING NEW CHURCHES.

TO THE LORDS SPIRITUAL AND TEMPORAL OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.

In their last report Her Majesty's Commissioners stated, that 225 churches and chapels had been completed, in which accommodation had been provided for 297,912 persons, including 164,495 free seats, appropriated to the use of the poor.

They have now to state, that eighteen churches have since been completed, at the following places: viz. in the Gray's-inn-road, in the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn, in the county of Middlesex; in the parish of Barnwell, otherwise St. Andrew-the-Less, in the borough and county of Cambridge; at Newbridge, in the parish of Eglwailan, in the county of Glamorgan; in Berwick-street, in the parish of St. James, in the city of Westminster; in Carlisle-street, in the parish of St. Mary, Lambeth, in the county of Surrey; at Newton, in the parish of Mottram, in the county of Lancaster; at Portsmouth, in the county of Southampton; at Tonge, in the parish of Prestwich, in the county of Lancaster; in Trinity-street, in the parish of Rotherhithe, in the county of Surrey; at Trowbridge, in the county of Wilts; at Tipton, in the county of Stafford; at Wellington, in the county of Salop; at Catshill, in the parish of Bromsgrove, in the county of Worcester; at Brymbo, in the parish of Wrexham, in the county of Denbigh; at Frome Selwood, in the county of Somerset; at Gwernaffield, in the parish of Mold, in the county of Flint; at Adlington, in the parish of Standish, in the county of Lancaster; and at Owendun, in the parish of Halifax, in the county of York.

In these eighteen churches accommodation has been provided for 16,500 persons, including 9,775 free seats for the use of the poor. Thus, in the whole, 243 churches and chapels have now been completed, and therein provision has been made for 314,412 persons, including 174,270 free seats for the use of the poor.

Her Majesty's Commissioners beg leave further to report, that eighteen churches are now in the course of building at the following places; viz. at Stayleybridge, in the parish of Ashton-under-Line, in the county of Lancaster; at Bridgewater, in the county of Somerset; in the Wilderness, in the parish of Halifax, in the county of York; at Snetton, in the county of Nottingham; on the Carlton-hill, in the parish of Brighton, in the county of Sussex; at Kendal, in the county of Westmoreland; at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, in the county of Leicestershire; at Stroudhill, in the parish of Stroud, in the county of Gloucester; at Greenwich, in the county of Kent; at Portsea, in the county of Southampton; at Battyford, in the parish of Mirfield, in the county of York; at Dukinfield, in the parish of Stockport, in the county of Chester; at Upper Chelsea, in the county of Middlesex; at Barking-side, in the parish of Great Ilford, in the county of Essex; at Coxley, in the parish of St. Cuthbert Wells, in the county of Somerset; at Bretherton, in the parish of Croston, in the county of Lancaster; and at Eaves-hill and Frobodies, in the parish of Dudley, in the county of Worcester.

The state of the works in each of these churches, on the 1st day of July, is fully detailed in the schedule accompanying this report, marked A.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have further to report, that plans for eight other churches have been approved of, to be built at the following places; viz. at Peckham, in the parish of Camberwell, in the county of Surrey; at Upper Gornal, in the parish of Sedgley, in the county of Stafford; at Rotherhithe, in the county of Surrey; at Chesteron, in the parish of Wolstanton, in the county of Stafford; at the Scholes, in the parish of Wigan, in the county of Lancaster; at Oldbury, in the parish of Hales Owen, in the county of Salop; in the parish of St. Andrew, Plymouth, in the county of Devon; and at Whiteshill, in the parish of Stroud, in the county of Gloucester.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have under consideration plans for eight churches, to be built at the following places; viz. at Farrington, in the parish of Penwortham, in the county of Lancaster; at Foleshill, in the county of Warwick; at Stoke Damerel, in the county of Devon; at Derry-hill, in the parish of Calne, in the county of Wilts; in the parish of St. Mary, Cardiff, in the county of Glamorgan; at Byker, in the parish of All Saints, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in the county of Northumberland; at Park-road, in the Kennington district of the parish of Lambeth, in the county of Surrey; and at Kemberworth, in the parish of Rotherham, in the county of York.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have further to report, that they have made conditional grants in aid of building churches and chapels at the following places; viz. at Dawley, in the county of Salop; in the parish of St. George-in-the-East, in the county of Middlesex; at Kildwick, in the county of York; at Clayton, Great Horton, and Eccleshill, in the parish of Bradford, in the county of York; at Cockermouth, in the parish of Brigham, in the county of Cumberland; at Bensham, in the parish of Gateshead, in the county of Durham; at Morton-with-Arden, in the parish of Bingley, in the county of York; at Duddeston, in the parish of Aston, in the county of Warwick; at Sutton, in the county of York; in the parish of St. Margaret, Leicester, in the county of Leicester; at Bagilt, in the parish of Holywell, in the county of Flint; at Blackburn, in the county of Lancaster; in the parish of Christchurch, Southwark, in the county of Surrey; for two chapels in the parish of St. Margaret, in the city of Westminster; for one at Paddington, in the county of Middlesex; in the Camberwell-road, in the parish of Camberwell, in the county of Surrey; one in the Kennington, and one in the Waterloo, districts of the parish of St. Mary, Lambeth, in the county of Surrey; at Buglawton, in the parish of Astbury, in the county of Chester; at Prickwillow, in Trinity parish, Ely, in the county of Cambridge; at Byker, in the parish of All Saints, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in the county of Northumberland; at Whitby, in the county of York; in the parish of Newtown, in the county of Montgomery; at Derry-hill, in the parish of Calne, in the county of Wilts; at Stoke Damerel, in the county of Devon; at Denbigh, in the county of Denbigh; in the parish of St. George, Southwark, in the county of Surrey; in the parish of St. John, and the parish of St. Andrew, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in the county of Northumberland; at Bretherton, in the parish of Creston, in the county of Lancaster; in the parish of Foleshill, in the county of Warwick; at Whiteshill, in the parish of Stroud, in the county of Gloucester; in the township of Branley, in the parish of Leeds, in the county of York; in the parish of Bradford, in the county of Wilts; in the parish of Whittlesea, St. Mary, in the county of Cambridge; in the parish of St. Mary, Cardiff, in the county of Glamorgan, and at Chesteron, in the parish of Wolstanton, in the county of Stafford; for two chapels in the parish of Keighley, in the county of York; two chapels in the parish of St. John, Hackney, in the county of Middlesex; and ten chapels in the parish of St. Matthew, Bethnal-green, in the county of Middlesex.

Her Majesty's Commissioners annexed a schedule to their last report, containing a list of applications which had been made to them from various places for pecuniary aid towards building new churches and chapels; a copy of which, and of the applications which have since been received, accompanies this report, marked (B).

Since the last report, the parish of St. Mary, Stockport, in the county of Chester, has been divided into two separate and distinct parishes, under the 16th section of the 58th Geo. III. c. 45, the church of the new parish having been endowed out of the revenues of the mother church.

Ecclesiastical districts, under the 21st section of the same Act, have been formed out of each of the parishes of St. Sidwell, in the city of Exeter; St. Giles, Pontefract, in the county of York; St. Mary, in the town and county of the town of Nottingham; Trowbridge, in the county of Wilts; and Radcliffe, in the county of Lancaster.

Contiguous parts of the parishes of Ewell and Banstead, in the county of Surrey, have been assigned as a consolidated chapelry district to St. Andrew's chapel at Kingswood, in the former parish, under the 6th section of the 59th Geo. III. c. 134.

District chapelries have also been assigned, under the 16th section of the 59th Geo. III. c. 134, to St. John's Chapel, Moulsham, in the parish of Chelmsford, in the county of Essex; to St. John's Chapel, Buckhurst Hill, in the parish of Chigwell, in the county of Essex; to Christchurch, in the parish of Warminster, in the county of Wilts; to St. John's Chapel, in the parish of Richmond, in the county of Surrey; to St. Peter's Chapel, in the parish of St. Mary, Stockport, in the county of Chester; to St. Andrew's chapel, in the parish of Trowbridge, in the county of Wilts; and to the following twenty-three churches and chapels in the parish of Manchester; viz. Blackley Chapel; St. Mark's Chapel, in Cheetham; All Saints Church, in Newton; St. James's Chapel, in Gorton; St. Thomas's Chapel, in Ardwick; All Saints Chapel, in Chorlton-on-Medlock; St. Matthew's Chapel, in Stretford; St. Clement's Chapel, in Chorlton-cum-Hardy; Birch Chapel, in Rusholme; St. James's Chapel, in Didsbury; St. Thomas's Chapel, in Heaton Norris; Denton Chapel, St. Stephen and Trinity Chapels, in Salford; and the churches of St. George, St. Michael, St. Paul, St. Anne, St. Mary, St. John, St. Peter, St. James, and St. Andrew, in the township of Manchester.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have also under consideration the division of several other parishes, and the assignment of ecclesiastical districts; but, in consequence of some local difficulties, they are not yet able to report their completion.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have, since their last report, afforded or expressed their willingness to afford the facilities under the Church Building Acts for obtaining additional burial-grounds for the parishes of Barnard Castle, in the county of Durham; Lower Heyford, in the county of Oxford; for the chapelry of Cradley, in the parish of Hales Owen, in the county of Salop; for the parishes of Hanwell, in the county of Middlesex; Saffron Walden, in the county of Essex; St. David, in the city of Exeter; for the chapelry of Accrington, in the parish of Whalley, in the county of Lancaster; for the parishes of St. Michael and St. Alban's, in the county of Herts; Workop, in the county of Nottingham; Cricklade in the county of Wilts; for the chapelry of Poulton-le-Sands, in the parish of Lancaster, in the county of Lancaster; for the parishes of Twickenham, in the county of Middlesex; Bishop's Stortford, in the county of Herts; West Harptree, in the county of Somerset; St. Mary, Reading, in the county of Berks; St. Wollos, Newport, in the county of Monmouth; for the chapelry of Poynton, in the parish of Prestbury, in the county of Chester; for the parishes of Aughton, in the county of Lancaster; Marazion, in the county of Cornwall; and for the workhouse of the Maidstone union, in the county of Kent; and also for sites for new churches and chapels on Chipperfield-common, in the parish of King's Langley, in the county of Herts; at Stretton, in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent, in the county of Stafford; at Eastbourne, in the county of Sussex; at Chatburn, in the parish of Whalley, in the county of Lancaster; at Doddington, in the parish of Wyburnbury, in the county of Chester; at Chittlehampton Holt, in the parish of Chittlehampton, in the county of Devon; at Whiteshill, in the parish of Stroud, in the county of Gloucester; at Blackdown, in the parish of Broadwindsor, in the county of Dorset; at Wray, in the parish of Melling, in the county of Lancaster; at Beaulieu Rails, in the parish of Boldre, in the county of Southampton; at Barcombe, in the county of Sussex; at Chardstock, in the county of Dorset; in the parish of St. Nicholas, Newport, in the city of Lincoln; at Tansley, in the parish of Crich, in the county of Derby; at Harwood, in the parish of Bolton, in the county of Lancaster; at Ryde, in the parish of New Church, Isle of Wight; at Bretherton and Mawdesley, in the parish of Croston, in the county of Lancaster; at Haynford, in the county of Norfolk; at Crakehall, in the parish of Bedale, in the county of York; in the parish of St. Mary, Whitechapel, in the county of Middlesex; at Longford, in the parish of St. Mary de Lode, in the city of Gloucester; at Halewood, in the parish of Childwall, in the county of Lancaster; at Littleworth, in the parish of Faringdon, in the county of Berks; at Wreclesham, in the parish of Farnham, in the county of Surrey; at Foleshill, in the county of Warwick; at Quinton, in the parish of Hales Owen, in the county of Salop; in the Curtain-road, in the parish of Shoreditch, in the county of Middlesex; at Peckham, in the parish of Camberwell, in the county of Surrey; at Leamington Priors, in the county of Warwick; at Hurdfield, in the parish of Prestbury, in the county of Chester; in the parish of Walcot St. Swithin, in the county of Somerset; at Yeaveley, in the parish of Shirley, in the county of Derby; at Laughton, in the county of Lincoln; at Crowborough, in the parish of Withyham, in the county of Sussex; at Eaveahill and Frebodies, in the parish of Dudley, in the county of Worcester; at Wormegay, in the county of Norfolk; at Stanningley, in the chapelry of Bramley, in the parish of Leeds, in the county of York; at Hershaw, in the parish of Walton-upon-Thames, in the county of Surrey; and for ten churches at Birmingham, in the county of Warwick; also for a chapel and parsonage-house at Newton-in-Mackerfield, in the parish of Winwick, in the county of Lancaster; and for a chapel, burial-ground, and glebe-house at Out-Rawcliffe, in the parish of St. Michael-on-Wyre, in the county of Lancaster; and for a parsonage-house and glebe, in the parish of Goodnestone, in the county of Kent; and for parsonages for the parishes of St. Mary, Marlborough, and Trowbridge, in the county of Wilts; Kirklington, in the county of Cumberland; and for St. John's Chapel, at Levens, in the parish of Heversham, in the county of Westmoreland.

Her Majesty's Commissioners, under the powers vested in them by the act of 1st and 2d William IV. c. 38, have declared the patronage of a new chapel built and endowed by Lord Calthorpe, in the parish of Edgbaston, in the county of Warwick, to be vested in his lordship, his heirs and assigns; of a new chapel built and endowed by subscription at Burrowbridge, in the parish of Lyng, in the county of Somerset (with a district proposed to be assigned thereto), to be vested in the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells for the time being; of a new chapel built and endowed by Mrs. Sarah Milward and others, in the parish of St. Clement, Hastings, in the county of Sussex (with a district assigned thereto), to be vested in the Lord Bishop of Chichester for the time being; of a new chapel built by the late John Marshall, Esq., and endowed by his representatives, at Keswick, in the parish of Crosthwaite, in the county of Cumberland (with a district assigned thereto), to be vested in Mrs. Mary Ballantine Marshall, the widow of the said John Marshall; of a new chapel built by the late Thomas Hill, Esq., at the Lye, in the parish of Old Swinford, in the county of Worcester, and endowed by his representatives (with a district proposed to be assigned thereto), to be vested in certain trustees; and of a new chapel built and endowed by subscription in the ville of Burley, in the New Forest, in the county of Southampton (with a district proposed to be assigned thereto), to be vested in the Lord Bishop of Winchester for the time being.

Her Majesty's Commissioners have also to report, that they have under their consideration the following applications for the perpetual patronage of new chapels, which it is proposed to build and endow under the above-mentioned Act, viz.:—from Sir John Kennaway, Bart., and others, for the perpetual patronage to be vested in certain trustees of a new chapel which is building in the parish of Sidmouth, in the county of Devon; from the Rev. Samuel Lysons, for the perpetual patronage to himself and his heirs of a new chapel which he proposes to build and endow in an extra-parochial place called High Orchard, in the city of Gloucester, from Henry Jenkins, Esq., and others, for the perpetual patronage of a new chapel which they propose to build and endow at Rockferry, in the parish of Babington, in the county of Chester, being vested in the Lord Bishop of Chester and four other trustees; from Adam Hodgson, Esq., and others, for the perpetual patronage to be vested in certain trustees of a new chapel which they propose to build and endow at Litherland, in the parish of Sephton, in the county of Lancaster; from Pudsey Dawson, Esq., and others, for the perpetual patronage to be vested in certain trustees of a new chapel which they propose to build and endow at Stainforth, in the parish of Giggleswick, in the county of York; from John Gladstone, Esq., for the perpetual patronage to himself and his heirs of a new chapel which he proposes to build and endow at Toxteth Park, in the parish of Walton-on-the-Hill, in the county of Lancaster; from the Rev. Richard Waldo Sibthorp, for the perpetual patronage to himself and his heirs of St. James's Chapel, at Ryde, in the Isle of Wight, which he has purchased, and proposes to endow; from the Rev. Henry Geary, for the perpetual patronage to himself and his heirs of a chapel which he proposes to purchase and endow at Herne Bay, in the parish of Herne, in the county of Kent; from Sir John Kennaway, Bart., for the perpetual patronage to himself and his heirs of a new chapel which he proposes to build and endow in the parish of Ottery St. Mary, in the county of Devon; from the Archdeacon of Canterbury and others, for the perpetual patronage to be vested in his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury of a new chapel which they propose to build and endow in the ville of Dunkirk, in the county of Kent; and for the perpetual patronage to the trustees of Hyndman's bounty to a new chapel proposed to be built and endowed in the parish of St. Sepulchre, in the town and county of the town of Northampton.

The Exchequer-bills issued to this day amount to 1,500,000*l*.

SOME ACCOUNT OF

THE CHURCHES CONSECRATED IN THE DIOCESE OF CHESTER, in the year 1839.

(Abridged from the Bishop's printed account.)

It is due to those who have taken a lively interest in the increase of church accommodation in the diocese of Chester, to supply them with a slight sketch of what has been accomplished in that way during the present year. This I shall briefly proceed to tell, with such few remarks in passing as may be suggested by the matter in hand.

On June 21st was consecrated a church at Rainhill. The vicar of Prescott built this church by subscription, 500*l*. of which was given by Mrs. Sherbourne, and intended it for a chapel of ease. The pews were so eagerly taken by the inhabitants, and the curate found the sphere of labour so interesting, that his father desired to endow the church under the Act 1, 2 Will. IV. c. 38, and possess the patronage in return. Thus a district has been taken out of the unwieldy parish of Prescott, and 2,000 inhabitants, to whom before it was impossible to give regular spiritual superintendence, have a church within their reach, and the constant ministrations of a clergyman residing amongst them.

One is at a loss to know on what principle any jealousy could have been entertained, as was at first entertained, on the subject of the Act of Parliament which authorises the endowing a church under such circumstances. Granted, that the patron and the incumbent have a vested interest in the parishes within which the church is raised. What can it be except clear gain to the patron and incumbent of Prescott for all future time, that the vicar should have 2,000 or 3,000 fewer persons under his charge? The present vicar has the satisfaction of knowing, that by the zealous exertions through which he endeavoured to provide for this unmanageable portion of the immense flock committed to him, he has been the means of relieving himself and his successors from a burthen which must always have been too heavy for them.

The church is plain and unpretending, with seats for 400. It cost 850*l*.

On the same day was consecrated a church at Halewood, as a chapel of ease to Childwall, or rather to Woolton in the parish of Childwall, also available to the district called Tarbock in Huyton parish. This church is built with such successful exercise of architectural taste, that like its predecessor in the same neighbourhood, the church built last year by Mr. Taylor at Eccleston, it may be recommended as a model to those who have a similar design in view. The cost was 900*l*. with seats originally for 250; but it has been already necessary to increase them to 370, and there is still a demand for room.

The vicar of Childwall has settled 15*l*. from the tithes on this chapel. The Earl of Derby grants an annuity of 20*l*. The rest of the minister's income is supplied by the pew-rents, and a surplus of subscription.

Another call to this neighbourhood was occasioned in October by the consecration of the new church (St. Thomas's) at St. Helen's, built at the sole expense of P. Greenall, Esq. Its construction is ornamental, and somewhat singular, being a cross, with a gallery in each transept, and an organ gallery in the front. The whole roof is arched, without pillars. The communion table and pulpit are especially well contrived, and the position of the minister is very favourable both to himself and the congregation.

A school, in character with the church, is already in operation, and a parsonage-house is in progress. The church, which holds 850, cost 3,200*l*.; but the whole expense of endowment, school, and parsonage, must exceed 6,000*l*. A noble example of wise employment of fortune; and not the first which has been shown by the same family, as is testified by the church at Wilderspool.

The congregation attending on this occasion showed their sense of the liberal example set them, by a contribution of 254*l*.

Two years ago St. Helen's, with a population far exceeding 15,000, had only a single church. The church was capacious and the clergyman indefatigable. Still it was impossible to meet the wants of such a population. The licensed chapel at Parr has been since opened on the outskirts of the town, where a curate's salary is supplied by the Pastoral Aid Society. St. Thomas's, with its minister, provides for another district. Four clergymen unite their labours: and four thousand persons may be accommodated in the three churches now existing in the town. Still a body of many hundred well-dressed men, who marched with us in procession to the church, but were unable to follow beyond the doors, remained to show that the system which has been so liberally begun must be followed up by further exertions in this rapidly-increasing neighbourhood.

It is, however, a matter of thankfulness to know that the last two years have witnessed the erection of five new churches, and the settlement of five additional clergymen within a diameter of five miles. These five churches contain at every season of public worship 2,500 persons; of which number not a fifth, we may confidently affirm, had any opportunity before of attending the Established Church.

The next duty was at Emmanuel church, Bolton. The origin of this church gives it peculiar interest. Two years ago a general anxiety was felt among the inhabitants of Bolton to show some token of respect and gratitude to their vicar, who, for more than twenty years, had laboured amongst them with indefatigable zeal, and with diligence truly disinterested. They raised a large subscription, which was to be laid out in a service of plate, and furnish a memorial to Mr. Slade's family hereafter of the esteem in which he had been held. The vicar heard of their purpose, and saw at once that an opportunity was now given which he had long desired, of increasing the church accommodation in the vast town under his charge. He begged to divert the honour intended for himself, and devote it to the glory of God; and now the church of Emmanuel, Bolton, will remain for ages a monument of his disinterestedness, as well as of the grateful feelings of a flock towards the shepherd who has long "ruled them prudently with all his power." The church contains 700; is handsomely built, with a well proportioned tower; cost 2,200*l*.

From Bolton we proceeded to Adlington, a part of the extensive parish of Standish, three miles from the church, and containing 2,000 inhabitants. Here we find a church built with great economy; holding within a small area 600 persons, by means of front and side galleries. This mode of building, though not ornamental, is very popular. Such a church is easily warmed, and all are within easy reach of the clergyman. The church has been inconveniently crowded from the time of its first opening; and every pew is taken. The church cost 1,560*l*. Her Majesty's Commissioners furnished 400*l*.; the Chester Diocesan Society, 300*l*.; the late Sir Robert Clayton, 500*l*. The rest was obtained by subscription. Sir Robert Clayton also gave 100*l*. for a bell and other requisites; 200*l*. towards a school-room; and 500*l*. towards endowment.

On the following day St. Thomas's church, at Preston, was consecrated; being the fourth church built by the present vicar within the last four years, by means of funds which he has been the sole agent in raising, amounting in the whole (together with the endowments) to more than 20,000*l*. The expense of this church was furnished from the fund called Hyndman's Trust.

The village of Holme consists of 1000 persons, two miles distant from their parish church of Burton, in Westmoreland. Here a chapel of ease was consecrated on the last day of September; being built by subscription, and a grant of 200*l*. from the Incorporated Society. The ground was given, and a liberal portion of the funds was contributed by the Hon. Col. and Mrs. Howard, who, at a cost of 7,000*l*. have also built and endowed a church on their own estate at Levens, and have largely aided the many other good works which have been undertaken in their neighbourhood.

Holme church is built on the plan of that at Casterton, as described by the Rev. W. Carus Wilson in his useful publication, entitled "Hints for Building Churches." He was scarcely credited, in asserting that "a church like that at Casterton could be built for 750*l*." Here the plan is repeated for the same money. An oblong building, surmounted by a tower; having a deep front gallery; and not more remarkable for its cheapness than its neat appearance, and convenient accommodation for 500 persons.

We now proceed to Clitheroe. In the preceding year a church had been consecrated at Chatburn, a village of that parish two miles from the town. The opening of a school-room for evening service some years ago had been welcomed by the inhabitants with unexpected satisfaction. Now the schoolroom serves its proper purpose; and a beautiful village church receives its congregation, in the midst of which their settled minister resides.

This year the advantage of another church and clergyman is given to Clitheroe itself. It contains about 700 on a large area; and by the erection of galleries, as the population increases, will easily accommodate 1,200. The Diocesan Society may be said to have erected this church; having given 800*l.* in a direct grant, and having indirectly contributed 300*l.* towards the endowment, by causing the erection of a church at Oswaldtwistle. The late Mr. Halstead resided there; and when he saw the rising church, and anticipated in his mind the blessings which might follow, he endowed it with 2,000*l.* and afterwards bequeathed a portion of his estate, which eventually produced 4,600*l.* towards the endowment of other new churches which might be built in the parish of Whalley. Of this sum St. James's, Clitheroe, shares 300*l.*

In the district assigned to this church, 1,080 of the people were found to be Dissenters, 650 Churchmen. Had not timely measures been taken, such would have been the case in all our populous towns; and no reflecting person can be doubtful as to the ultimate result. It has pleased God to awaken us; and by a view of the consequences, though through His mercy a distant view, to show us the guilt of conniving at spiritual destitution.

The change cannot be illustrated by an example more striking than is furnished by the parish of which Clitheroe is a part, the vast parish of Whalley. It extends over 108,140 acres; the population being at the last census 97,868. To this population, in 1834, there were 20 clergymen; viz. 17 incumbents of the different chaptries, and 3 assistant curates. There are now 43; viz. 26 incumbents, and 17 curates. Since September, 1835, nine new churches have been opened, and one enlarged; giving an addition of 6,268 sittings, by an expenditure of 27,000*l.* Five more churches are in progress, the sum raised for which exceeds 18,000*l.* And 5,200*l.* are offered as a beginning for four more.

During the same period, viz. since the year 1834, the sum of 7,192*l.* 13*s.* 12*d.* has been expended in the erection of 22 school-rooms; and 2,336*l.* is raised towards building 14 others.

Within a period, therefore, not exceeding five years, there will have been added to the means of religious instruction in this single parish of Whalley, 27 clergymen, 14 churches, and 36 schools.

For many preceding years there has been a duty for the bishop to perform at Blackburn: where, as at Preston, the vicar has made strenuous exertions to meet the wants of his increasing parish by proportionate church accommodation. Consequently, Preston and Blackburn are, perhaps, the only towns of any size in Lancashire, where there is seat-room for one in four of the population. There is still, however, great occasion for another church at Blackburn on the north-eastern side: and the foundation is already laid. The approach to the principal entrance will be through a quadrangle flanked with schools in character with the architecture of the church: and when the proposed plan is completed, Blackburn will possess two of the finest churches in the kingdom.

Passing on, therefore, this year, through Blackburn, we proceeded to Walmersley, in the parish of Bolton, three miles to the north of the town. We left behind the old chapel, with seats for 128 persons, and came to the beautiful building now substituted for it, from a design by Mr. Sharpe, and mainly completed through the exertions of Mr. Haworth. It contains 660, without a front gallery, which is in contemplation, and might easily be added. The cost 2,600*l.*: the whole of which was raised by local subscriptions, except 350*l.* from the Incorporated Society, and 300*l.* from the Diocesan. Schools, in character, and a parsonage-house are in the course of erection: towards which 113*l.* was collected on the morning of the consecration, and the following Sunday raised the sum to 200*l.*

We next proceeded to Tonge, a township in the extensive parish of Prestwich, but in locality more nearly allied to Middleton, with a population of at least 2,000, entirely destitute of ecclesiastical superintendence. Towards this church her Majesty's Commissioners granted 1,200*l.*: to which a local subscription of 700*l.* was added. The accommodation is for 500: and the parishioners welcome the boon which has been bestowed on them, and are likely to secure the residence of their clergyman by the erection of a parsonage.

Broughton church came next, in a different neighbourhood and a different style of architecture. It is built in the oblong form, with side aisles and galleries, and a clerestory, very successful in its proportions and the position of its pillars. The accommodation is for 1,200.

Broughton as well as Cheetham Hill, where a church was consecrated on the following day, is covered by the villas of residents whose business lies in Manchester, from which they are distant about two miles. Hitherto they have been forced to resort with their families to the churches of Manchester: they have now obviated this inconvenience, and provided for themselves and their neighbours at home, taking advantage of the Act 1, 2 Will. IV. And this has been done in a manner suitable to the object. The church at Broughton was built for 5,600*l.*, the valuable site being given by the Rev. Mr. Clowes; but the whole expense has reached several thousands more, towards which the Rev. Mr. Clowes (of Broughton Hall), has been a principal contributor. So has Mr. Loyd to the church at Cheetham Hill, which is one of the handsomest structures of modern times. The tower and spire, perfect in their proportions, are imitated from the church of Louth, in Lincolnshire. The cost has exceeded 13,000*l.* But the effect is answerable to the expenditure. The accommodation is ample for 1,500: and it is worth remarking that both these churches, though comparatively so large, are extremely favourable to the voice, and require less exertion than many others which do not contain half the number of persons. I suspect that the low flat roof which is commonly adopted in modern churches is very objectionable; and the oblong buildings, without aisles or galleries, have uniformly an unpleasant echo. This point, as well as the ventilation, ought to be properly considered in the first construction of the plan. They are very important concerns in the usefulness of churches. Whoever contemplates the building of a church, would act wisely in determining to copy an existing model, according to the size and expenditure intended. He is more likely to escape disappointment by following experience than by making an experiment. For space and economy combined, the old church at St. Helen's is remarkable. It contains 3,000 sittings, and might probably be repeated for 5,000*l.* For an interior at the same time handsome and commodious, together with a moderate expenditure, Christ Church and St. Thomas's, Preston, may be mentioned: or on a larger scale, Broughton. For smaller churches, I have already spoken of Casterton, Eccleston, and Halewood: and to these I may justly add Ashton and Feniscowles, and Bamber Bridge.

The next summons was to Openshaw, a district containing about 4,000, two miles east of Manchester. Here a church has been built at an expense of 4,500*l.*, the whole of which, except a subscription of about 700*l.* was furnished by the Manchester and Eccles Church Building Society. Like the two last mentioned, it has side aisles with galleries and a clerestory.

This district is entirely occupied with factories and print-works. The service was attended by a crowd of operatives, to whom a holiday had been given by their employers, and whose interest in the church is equally gratifying and encouraging. A handsome school adjoining to the church has been built at the sole expense of Mr. Nedin, and we had the pleasure of seeing it filled by three hundred scholars.

I might justly add to the churches deserving of imitation the one which came next in order, St. Paul's, at Staley. It seats 1,003, and cost less than 4000*l.* Both the tower and body of the church, interior and exterior, without the ostentation of ornament, have all the ornament that can be desired.

The site of this church, which is spacious and of considerable value, was given by Lord Stamford, who also liberally assisted the subscription, amounting to 4,000*l.* The 1,000*l.* endowment was granted by the Diocesan Society. It was gratifying to see many persons at the opening service, who probably never had been in a church before; and to know that many have taken pews, who were supposed to hold doctrines very unlike those of the Church of England. A convincing proof was afforded by a collection of 204*l.* that the day was hailed by many present as an earnest of better times.

Passing on to Newton, we see the new church now rising at Staley Bridge, instead of the old and insufficient one; and another at Dukinfield, which has been so long anxiously desired. These will be ready for their congregations in the course of the ensuing summer. And greatly are they needed. For the church at Staley is the first addition made to the accommodation of the establishment since the year 1773, within a space of two miles and a half from its site. In the meanwhile the population inclosed in that space has increased to at least 40,000, and fourteen Dissenters' meeting houses of various denominations have been built during the last 16 years alone, four of which cost 4,500*l.* a piece.

It is grievous to record such things. But it is better that they should be acknowledged and amended, than concealed and rued.

Newton is a township of the large parish of Mottram, formerly a pastoral district, now increased by manufactures to a population of 20,000. The township of Newton alone contains 8,000, totally unconnected with their parish church. The whole cost here was furnished by public contribution; viz. Her Majesty's Commissioners 1,000*l.*, the Incorporated Society 500*l.*, the Diocesan Society 600*l.* The church has therefore been built with strict attention to economy, and like that at Adlington, has galleries on three sides. It contains 820. And there appeared, on this occasion, every reason to anticipate that the establishment, though hitherto a stranger, would be gladly received at Newton.

Mottram parish has now four churches, instead of one: Newton, Staley, and Tintwistle having been added since 1837. Virtually it may be said to have become four parishes; though the secular boundaries and ancient rights remain unaltered.

Probably there is no district in England, even including the Metropolis, in which the church has so much still to do as in that which is passed between Staley and Stockport. The road winds through a continued forest of streets for nine miles, and we meet with a single church in existence: that of Hyde.

Macclesfield is in a more improving state. Ten years ago there were two churches and two clergy for that town. Now there are four churches and seven clergy: for three of whom we have to thank the Curates' Fund and Pastoral Aid Societies. The fourth church, consecrated October 10, is in the district of Hursfield. It is placed in a commanding situation, and is a handsome structure: the arrangement within being peculiar: no centre aisle, but with side aisles, and three rows of pews parallel with the side walls, and facing the centre. Including the galleries there is ample space for 900. Hyndman's Trust furnished 2,000*l.* for the endowment. The Diocesan Society 750*l.*, the remainder being made up by subscription.

Marthal Chapel, consecrated the last in order, is of a very different character, being solely intended for a portion of the wide parish of Rosthorne; and, with the exception of 100*l.* from the Cheshire Rural Chapel Society, built and endowed at the sole expense of Wilbraham Egerton, Esq., whose tenants will derive the principal benefit of the building. It is one of fourteen of a like description, holding from 200 to 400 persons, some with and some without endowment, which have been lately added to the church in the agricultural districts of Cheshire: and bear testimony alike to the zeal of the incumbents, who have taken the responsibility of so much fresh service, and to the liberality of the land-proprietors and residents, who have provided the means for these useful buildings.

The result of this year's exertions on the whole is an addition to the preceding church accommodation of about 13,000 sittings: while pastoral superintendence has been brought within the reach of 54,000 persons, to the vast majority of whom it was before practically inaccessible. The cost of the buildings has been 53,300*l.* of the endowments 11,500*l.* Towards the whole sum 18,350*l.* was derived from what may be termed public sources, though all, with the exception of 2,700*l.* originating in private benevolence: viz. Incorporated Society, 900*l.* Her Majesty's Commissioners, 2,700*l.* Diocesan Society, 3,550*l.* Manchester and Eccles Church Building Society, 4,700*l.* Hyndman's Trust, 6,500*l.* The remaining 46,500*l.* has been contributed by individuals locally or benevolently induced to provide the means of public worship and pastoral care for themselves and those around them and connected with them. It seems a large sum, because we are not accustomed to look upon such objects as a part of our expenditure. And yet how small is the amount, in real fact, compared with the expenditure of the two millions of people resident in the diocese of Chester! How little would be added to the outlay when an acre of ground is covered with buildings, if, at the same time, provision were made that those who are to be employed in the manufactory, or on the surrounding estate, should be treated as immortal beings! How little would be diminished from the annual returns of the business, or added to the annual expense of the establishment, if a hundred pounds or two were devoted to the maintenance of a clergyman who should watch over the eternal interests of those on whom our own temporal interests depend! Indeed it may be justly questioned whether in a temporal point of view a better return would not have been made for capital, if places of worship had been built, and religious instruction provided, with a fraction of those sums which during the last few years have been expended in adding factory to factory, and machinery to machinery, with little consideration of the intellectual machine which is not to perish together with the material things on which it is employed, but to endure for ever.

Still we are thankful for what God has already put within our power, whether it be reckoned much or little. And by His blessing we will proceed in the same career, "pressing onward to that which is before;" and think nothing achieved, till in practice, as well as in theory, every individual of our population has a church which it is possible for him to attend, and a minister who shall know and care for him. J. B. C.

Dec. 10, 1839.

* * It is a circumstance unparalleled, perhaps, in the history of the Church, that eleven churches were thus consecrated in eleven successive days in one diocese.

BANNS OF MARRIAGE.

From the Carmarthen Journal.

We beg to call the attention of our clerical readers to the following statement, with which we are favoured by the Vicar of Llandovery: a certificate of banns of marriage was granted by the Superintendent Registrar of the Llandovery District, to two persons resident in the parish of Llanfer-ar-y-bryn, which marriage was to be solemnized in an adjoining parish, the Superintendent Registrar conceiving he was not restricted to particular parishes, provided the parties resided within the district; and the Vicar, conceiving such procedure to be in violation of the usage heretofore observed in the Church, and contrary to the spirit of the New Marriage Act, which states that "all rules prescribed by the Rubric concerning the solemnizing of marriages, shall continue to be duly observed by every person in holy orders of the Church of England, who shall solemnize any marriage," thought it right to submit the case to the Registrar General, in London, for his opinion and decision, to which the Vicar of Llandovery received the following answer:

General Register Office,
4th Dec. 1839.

Rev. Sir,
I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ult.; and by direction of the Registrar General, to inform you in reply, that the view you have taken of the subject therein submitted for his opinion, with respect to the solemnization of marriage, according to the rites of the Church of England, on the production of the Superintendent Registrar's certificate, is in accordance with what he has been advised, is the true construction of the Marriage Act in that particular, and consequently that the certificate should always be granted subject to the provision that the marriage be solemnized in the church of the parish in which one of the parties resides.

I am,
Rev. Sir, your obedient servant,
THOS. MANN, Chief Clerk.
To the Rev. W. Morgan, Vicarage, Llandovery.

CLERGY LIST.

We beg to lay before our readers a project for the publication of a work which we consider to be of some importance to the clergy. Up to the present time there has never been any general list of the clergy of the Church of England. In the early part of last year we announced one as preparing for publication; but we found the difficulties of forming such a list to be insurmountable, notwithstanding the assistance which we received from several of the Bishops, who kindly afforded us the use of their own documents for the purpose. But the facilities of communicating with the clergy through the medium of this Gazette, and the new arrangements of the Post Office, give us reason to believe that we shall now be able, with the assistance of the clergy, to accomplish this object.

We propose, therefore, to prepare for publication as early as possible, a work to be entitled, "THE CLERGY LIST, and General List of the Benefices of the Church of England." The work will be published annually under the same Episcopal sanction, and under the same management as the Ecclesiastical Gazette. It will consist of three principal parts:

1. An alphabetical list of the whole body of the clergy, including dignitaries, incumbents, curates, lecturers, and those who have no preferment or duty.
2. A general list of all the benefices, with the names of the clergy and the patrons.
3. A list of the patronage in the hands of the crown, the bishops, &c.

The importance of such a publication will readily be admitted. Most of the secular professions already enjoy this advantage. There is the Army List, the Navy List, and the Law List; and if the clergy individually will only lend us a very little assistance, we hope in a short time to supply the deficiency which still exists with regard to our own profession.

All that we ask of them is, that the resident Clergyman of every parish or benefice will have the kindness to write down under the four following heads the requisite information, and send it by post, directed to the Editor of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

1. Name of Benefice, County, and Diocese.
2. Name of Incumbent, and Year of Admission.
3. Names of Curates, Lecturers, &c.
4. Names of Clergy residing in the Parish without Ecclesiastical preferment or duty.

What we particularly wish is, to obtain the names of all the Curates, Preachers, Lecturers, &c. These have hitherto been unnoticed in any list, and there is no possibility of obtaining them with accuracy, but by such an application as this. We therefore hope that this large class of the Clergy will all feel sufficient interest in the project to transmit us their names and the rest of the particulars above, as soon as they conveniently can after the receipt of this request.

It will probably happen that in many cases, owing to the illness or absence of the resident Clergyman, he may not be able to write. In such cases we should feel obliged if some member of his family, or some neighbouring Clergyman, will favour us with the information.

* * * THE CLERGY LIST will be published by CHARLES COX, at the Office of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, No. 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

The price of the Clergy List will be about six shillings, or not exceeding seven shillings.

The publisher particularly requests that those Clergymen who may wish to become Annual Subscribers to the work, or who may desire to purchase copies of it for the first year, will state their wishes in their letter.

LORD JOHN RUSSELL'S BILL, AND CATHEDRAL INSTITUTIONS.

In pursuance of the declaration contained in the speech from the throne, Lord John Russell has given notice of his intention to bring in a bill for carrying out the measures recommended by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, respecting the property of the Cathedrals. This bill is understood to be substantially the same with the bill which excited so much opposition during the last session of Parliament. We are assured that there is every probability that the measure will be carried during the present session, and that there is now not the smallest chance of preserving the integrity of our Cathedral institutions, unless means can be found to raise from their revenues a sum equal to that which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners have proposed to apply to parochial purposes.

We understand, therefore, that as a last resource, a plan has been proposed to the Committee of the caputal bodies, by which this destructive measure may be averted, though at a considerable sacrifice. The plan is, that all existing residentiaries shall contribute five per cent. of their net incomes, and all future residentiaries one-third of such incomes; on condition that the Cathedral and Collegiate Establishments shall be preserved in integrity of numbers, both residentiary and non-residentiary, including also the minor canons, and that their revenues shall remain under their own control. It is proposed to retain the non-residentiary stalls, but to place them under such arrangement as shall make them honorary rewards, and not sources of emolument. It is calculated that by this means nearly the same amount of revenue will be raised for parochial purposes as was proposed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. There will be no difficulty in finding objections to such a measure: but it must be remembered that it is only proposed as a last resource; and if the existing deans and chapters should be able, by such a sacrifice, to provide the sum required by the exigencies of the case, and at the same time to preserve the Cathedral institutions in their integrity, they will be entitled to the gratitude of the whole Church.

PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE.

THURSDAY, JAN. 16.

This day Her Majesty proceeded to the House of Lords and opened Parliament in person. Her Majesty arrived at a few minutes after two o'clock, and proceeded to deliver a most gracious speech from the throne. The only part relating to ecclesiastical affairs was the following:—

"It is desirable that you should prosecute those measures relating to the Established Church which have been recommended by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of England."

In the debate upon the address, the Duke of Wellington remarked that there was no reference to the religion of Prince Albert, though he was quite sure that he was a Protestant. The noble duke stated that he knew the reason of the omission, having read what had been said upon it in certain revolutionary discussions [in Ireland]. He therefore proposed to insert the word Protestant in the Address. After some discussion this was agreed to, and the paragraph in its amended form stood thus,—

"We have heard, with great satisfaction, your Majesty's declaration of allying yourself in marriage with the Protestant Prince Albert of Saxe Cobourg and Gotha."

HOUSE OF LORDS.

SOCIALISM.—FEB. 4.

The Bishop of Exeter brought forward a motion to the following effect—viz. that an humble address be presented to Her Majesty, praying that Her Majesty would be pleased to command that inquiries should be made into the diffusion of blasphemous and immoral publications, especially as to the tenets and proceedings of a society established under the name of Socialists, who were represented, in petitions presented to this House, to be a society, the object of which was, by the diffusion of its doctrines, to destroy the existing laws and institutions of this country.

The motion was supported by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of London and Llandaff, and the Duke of Wellington, and after considerable discussion it was carried.

In the course of a previous discussion on this subject, the Marquis of Normandy observed, with reference to a letter addressed by a clergyman to the Bishop of Exeter, that if, as was stated in the letter to the right rev. Prelate, clergymen heard such doctrines broached, it was their duty to communicate the information to the Home-office, (hear, hear,) but as they had not done so, on them rested the blame that Pare had been retained in office so long. If the writer of the letter were sincere in his intentions of discountenancing such doctrines, when he put the letter, which had just been read, into the hands of the right rev. Prelate, it was obvious that he had not adopted the best mode of proceeding, for time had been lost in the course which had been pursued. Unless magistrates and others interested, in protecting the peace and promoting the morals of society communicated matters of this nature to the Home-office, they must of course occur without the knowledge of Ministers, who were not, therefore, to blame, having no machinery by which to procure the necessary information. When any communications were made to the Home-office, they were always promptly attended to, and every requisite explanation was required.

The Bishop of EXETER said, that if a resident clergyman in such a town as Birmingham were to communicate to any office, any outrage on society or morals which might be committed there, the place would soon be made too hot to hold him.

The charges made against Mr. Pare were, that he had attended meetings where blasphemous and atheistical discussions had taken place; that he was superintendent-registrar of births, marriages, and deaths, at Birmingham, where he also officiated as vice-president of the Social society; that he had a painted board over his office stating the fact, and that he performed his duties as vice-president of the Socialists in the same office where he acted as superintendent-registrar.

FEB. 6.

Lord ERROL read the following answer of Her Majesty to the address of Tuesday last:—

"I shall give directions that inquiry be made into the important matters that are the subject of your address, and you may rely on my anxious endeavours to discourage all doctrines that appear to be dangerous to the interests of morality and religion."

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MR. PARE.—FEBRUARY 6th.

Sir R. INGLIS gave notice that, on the 28th of February, he should bring forward a motion to the effect, that it is the duty of the House to provide better means for the instruction of the people in connexion with the Established Church.

Lord ASHLEY, on being called upon by the Speaker to move, according to notice, "that an address be presented to Her Majesty, praying that Her Majesty will be graciously pleased to give directions that the appointment of Mr. Pare to be registrar of births and marriages in the town of Birmingham be forthwith cancelled," said that, in order to save the time of the house, he would ask the noble lord the Secretary for the Colonies, whether Mr. Pare had ceased to hold the office of registrar of births and marriages at Birmingham?

Lord J. RUSSELL said that Mr. Pare had tendered his resignation, which had been accepted, and he had ceased to hold the office.

Lord ASHLEY said, as Mr. Pare had ceased to hold the office, he should not of course make his motion; but he might be allowed to say, that the Government, if he was guilty, ought to have dismissed him; but, if innocent, he should have been supported by the Government. But he (Lord Ashley) should have an opportunity of bringing the whole subject of Socialism before the house.

Almost every day since the opening of Parliament, numerous petitions have been presented to both Houses upon the following subjects:—

For Church Extension at home and abroad.

Against the Socialists, and the spreading of infidel principles.

Against the Grant to Maynooth.

The enemies of the Church have not been idle. Many petitions have been presented against Church-rates; and some from the Socialists and others of a similar class, praying for an examination of their principles.

LAW.

DILAPIDATIONS AND FIXTURES.

CASE FOR OPINION.

THE Rev. A. B. was instituted to the Vicarage of C. in the year 1834. He received from his predecessor a sum of 300*l.* as dilapidations: and during his incumbency, he thoroughly repaired and enlarged the Vicarage house at an expense of 630*l. or thereabouts, without charging the surplus expenditure on the benefice by mortgage. Besides this outlay he paid his predecessor for the grates and other fixtures, which had been paid for by the predecessor in the same way; and many of them being much worn, he put in new kitchen and other grates, also some marble chimney-pieces; and also hung bells, of which there were none in the house previously.

A. B. vacated the benefice in 1838, and E. F. has since been instituted and inducted to the vicarage.

An arrangement was thereupon made between the above parties, that E. F. should take at a valuation all such fixtures in and about the vicarage house as A. B. was entitled to; but a question has arisen thereon, whether the grates and bells are to be considered as such.

A. B. contends that grates and bells are fixtures chargeable to the successor when they have been put in or purchased by the outgoing incumbent as such from his predecessor. And that he, having so paid for the grates, and having put some of them in new, and having also put in bells altogether new at his own private cost, without charging the benefice as he might have done by mortgage for the surplus cost of repairs and enlarging the vicarage house, those articles are his property and he might have removed them from the house before he left it, and consequently that he ought now to be paid for them under the arrangement made with E. F. taking the fixtures at a valuation.

E. F. on the other hand contends that for the alterations made by A. B. he received 300*l.* from his predecessor for dilapidations; and that A. B. could only have removed fixtures merely ornamental, such as window cornices, wainscots fixed with screws, &c.; that fixtures of domestic use, such as grates and bells, could not, under any circumstances, be removed; but that A. B. was bound to keep and leave them in repair, as a necessary part of the suitable residence attached to the benefice. And he therefore objects to pay for the grates and bells.

Your opinion is requested on the above matter in difference.

OPINION.

I am of opinion that A. B. was entitled to remove the grates and bells, and has now a right to be paid for them by E. F. under the agreement.

J. CAMPBELL.

Temple, Sept. 18, 1839.

* The whole sum laid out on the house and premises by the Vicar during his short incumbency, was 930*l.* being 630*l.* over and above the 300*l.* dilapidation money; besides a further sum of 600*l.* expended in enclosing and breaking up common allotments given under an Enclosure Bill in lieu of tithes. The state of this vicarage had previously been so bad as to afford an excuse for non-residence to incumbents for upwards of a century.

ARCHES' COURT, TUESDAY, NOV. 12.

THE QUEEN V. THE SUPERINTENDENT REGISTRAR OF THE UNION OF SALFORD, IN LANCASHIRE.

JAN. 20.

MANDAMUS.

MR. W. H. WATSON applied to the Court on the part of a gentleman named Brady, and a lady named Hetherington, for a rule, calling upon the defendant to show cause why a mandamus should not issue, commanding him, under the 7th section of the new Marriage Act, to issue a certificate of the fact that he had received due notice, according to the 4th section, that the two parties in question intended to intermarry. It appeared from the affidavit that the parties in question are of the Roman Catholic religion, and that they reside within the union of Salford, in a parish within which there is no Roman Catholic chapel licensed for the celebration of marriages. They proposed, therefore, to be married in a licensed chapel in another parish, without the jurisdiction of the defendant. The refusal of the registrar to grant the certificate was founded upon a circular from the Registrar-General, dated on the 16th May, 1839, which circular was issued upon the authority of an opinion delivered by the law officers of the crown, that the practice of granting certificates in circumstances like the present was not warranted by the statute (the 6th and 7th William IV. c. 85), although it had existed from the passing of that Act up to the issuing of the circular of May, 1839. The learned counsel, who seemed to admit that the power so exercised was not directly conferred upon the superintendent registrar by the Act, referred to several parts of it for the purpose of showing by analogy and induction that the legislature must have intended to confer such authority. The question was one of great importance to a large class of individuals, and the present application was in conformity with what had been the usage from the passing of the Act until May, 1839.

Mr. Justice PATTESON thought that the directions given in the circular of the Registrar-General were correct. He did not think that it was intended by the new statute that a certificate could be given in London which would authorize the parties to be married in Cumberland. Before the passing of that Act, all persons, according to the law of England, must have been married where they resided, and he saw nothing in the statute which altered that part of the pre-existing law, the principal object of the late Marriage Act being to relieve parties from the necessity of being married according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England.

Mr. WATSON observed that, unless the present motion were granted, the parties would be entirely without remedy.

Mr. Justice PATTESON said that he should take the statute and affidavit, and state his decision upon the subject to-morrow.

JAN. 21.

Mr. Justice PATTESON, having taken time to consider the application, expressed now again the opinion which he had intimated already, that the view taken by the Registrar-General upon the subject was correct, and that the rule nisi for the mandamus ought, therefore, to be refused.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH,

WESTMINSTER, FEB. 3.

THE QUEEN V. PRICE.

THIS was an indictment for refusing, on request, to give to the registrar of births, deaths, and marriages, the information directed to be given to that officer under the General Registration Act. The prosecution was under the 20th section of the statute, which enacts, that "the father and mother of every child born in England after the 1st of March, 1837, or in the case of the death, illness, or absence, or inability of the father and mother, the occupier of the house or tenement in which such child shall have been born, shall, within 42 days next after the day of any such birth, give information, on being requested to do so, to the registrar, according to the best of his or her knowledge and belief, of the several particulars thereby required to be known and registered touching the birth of the said child."

The indictment, having been tried, the defendant was found guilty, and upon a former occasion a rule nisi for a new trial had been obtained, upon the ground that the words of the statute were only directory, and that the defendant was not therefore liable to an indictment for a refusal of compliance. Cause having been subsequently shown against the rule,

Lord DENMAN now delivered very briefly the judgment of the Court, declaring that there was no doubt in the mind of the Court that the giving of the information required was "a matter of public concern," indispensable to enabling the registrar to perform the duties imposed upon him by the statute. In refusing to give this information, the defendant had refused wilfully, though innocently, to do that which he was bound to do in law. The registrar was liable to an indictment for not performing his duties, which it would be impossible for him to perform if the parties from whom alone he could procure the necessary information had any discretion as to whether they should give it or not. The rule for entering the verdict for the defendant was therefore discharged.

GRIFFIN V. ELLIS.

This was an action of prohibition. The plaintiff in the action declared that he was tried in the Ecclesiastical Court for not enforcing a church-rate, which was to be partly applied to the payment of expenses previously incurred. To the suit he had offered as a defence the retrospective character of the rate, and he further set out the fact that the debt in question was incurred in consequence of the vestry having, in 1832, refused to make any rate at all, whereby it became necessary in the rate of 1834 to provide for the necessities of the two years together. The defendant in the action had raised three questions for the consideration of the Court: first, whether the rate was good in itself? secondly, whether, supposing it bad in retrospective, that fault was not cured by the necessity created by the vestry, who did not, as was their duty, make an adequate rate in 1833? and thirdly, whether this Court had jurisdiction over the case in the form in which it was presented to the Court.

Lord DENMAN now delivered the judgment of the Court for the defendant, upon the ground of the third objection, stating, that they could not presume, with the information at present before them, that the Court below would not do justice in the case according to law.

Judgment was, therefore, given for the defendant.

UNIVERSITY AND CLERICAL INTELLIGENCE.

OXFORD.

On Tuesday, Jan. 14, being the first day of Hilary Term, the following degrees were conferred:—

Doctor in Music.—Wm. Marshall, Organist of Christ Church, and St. John's coll.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Richard Shepherd, St. Mary Hall; Rev. Joseph Hunt, Queen's coll.; Rev. Mark Dyer French, Brasenose coll.; Rev. Thos. Chas. Hyde Leaver, Fellow of St. John's coll.; Rev. Samuel Henry Russell, Fellow of St. John's coll.; Rev. James Augustus Hessey, Fellow of St. John's coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Thomas Helmore, Magdalen Hall; John Henry Scott, Christ Church.

On Thursday, Jan. 23, the following Degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—Edwd. Sleaf, Brasenose coll.; Rev. John Rowlandson, Queen's coll.; Rev. Robert Blakiston, Queen's coll.; Edwd. Woolcombe, Fellow of Balliol coll.; Rev. John Charles Bentley, St. John's coll.

Bachelor of Arts.—Samuel Andrew, Lincoln coll.

On Wednesday Jan. 22, Mr. John Murray Holland, Scholar of New College, was admitted Actual Fellow of that Society.

Mr. Frederick Naghten (Canon of Oriel), Mr. Edward Monckton Jones, and Mr. David Bartolot Bartolot (Frost's kin), elected and admitted Scholars of Corpus Christi coll.

At a meeting of the Delegates, appointed to determine on the adjudication of the premiums for the designs for the Randolph Galleries and Taylor Building, holden on Tuesday, Jan. 26th, it was resolved that the plans marked No. 8, C. K. C., subject to future improvements in matters of detail, should be submitted for the approbation of Convocation, and that the premium of 100l. be assigned to the above-mentioned plan. Resolved also, that the second premium of 50l. be assigned to the plan marked No. 12, and signed J. Plowman, jun. The plans No. 8, are now known to have been designed by Mr. Cockerell, the architect to the bank; those of No. 12 are the production of Mr. Plowman, the architect of this city. The whole number of plans originally sent in amounted to 28.

In a Convocation holden on Wednesday, Jan. 29, it was agreed that the sum of 150l. be paid out of the University chest to the Signor Enrico Mayer, of Florence, in consideration of that gentleman resigning into the immediate possession of the University the collection of Paintings, Busts, Books, &c. bequeathed by the late Rev. Robert Finch, M.A. formerly of Balliol coll., instead of detaining them, as under the terms of the will he is entitled to do, at his residence in Italy, during his life.

The Lord Almoner's Reader in Arabic commenced a Course of Lectures in the Clarendon, at twelve o'clock on Wednesday, January the 29th.

The Professor of Chemistry commenced his Lectures, in the Laboratory, under the Museum, on Tuesday, February 4th, at eight o'clock in the evening.

The Regius Professor of Hebrew will Lecture during the present Term in the book of Ecclesiastes, on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, beginning on Tuesday the 4th of February. The two Elementary Classes commenced on Tuesday the 4th, and Wednesday the 5th of February; of these, the one is intended for those who are just commencing the Language, the other for such as, being acquainted with the rudiments, require instruction in the higher parts of Hebrew Grammar.

The Reader in Experimental Philosophy commences a Course of Lectures on the Phenomena of Light and Colours, at the Clarendon, on Wednesday, February the 5th, at one o'clock.

The Boden Professor of Sanscrit commences his Lectures on Tuesday, the 11th of February, at the Clarendon, at two o'clock.

JAN. 31.

In a very full Convocation, holden this day, the following Petition was unanimously adopted:—

TO THE HONOURABLE THE COMMONS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.

"The humble petition of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars, of the University of Oxford, "Sheweth,—That the Church of England has been the instrument, under Divine Providence, of countless blessings to the people of this country.

"That it belongs to the very essence of a national church, that her spiritual ministrations should be co-extensive with the spiritual wants of the whole community, offered freely to all, though not enforced upon any.

"That it is at present notorious, and has been admitted in public and authentic documents, that the population of England and Wales having of late increased with a vast and unwonted rapidity, has outgrown the resources of the National Church; and a large proportion of the people are altogether excluded, without their consent or fault, from her public worship, religious instruction, and pastoral superintendence.

"That this spiritual destitution, which is ever least regarded by those to whom it is most pernicious, has chiefly befallen districts the least capable, even if they felt the want, of supplying the remedy. That its immediate consequences, not to advert to future and higher interests, are ignorance, vice, and disunion; and the partial and inadequate, however laudable, endeavours of other religious communities to supply the deficiencies of the Established Church, even while they restrain demoralization, tend to multiply our unhappy divisions.

"That the only effectual remedy for these evils is the extension of the National Church, and nothing has hitherto been accomplished in order to this great end in any degree commensurate with its magnitude and importance.

"That your petitioners do not overlook the benevolent exertions of individuals and societies, who have laboured, even beyond their means, to supply the national want; and they are deeply grateful to the Legislature, and to your honourable House, for the encouragement and facilities extended to these endeavours, and more especially for that enlightened policy which dictated the acts for building and enlarging churches, and for the liberal grants in furtherance of these objects, in the sessions of 1818 and 1823. But these supplies, admitted at the time to be inadequate to the occasion, have been exhausted. Private munificence and the public bounty have only palliated the evil, and the spiritual destitution of the country, notwithstanding these exertions, has increased and is still increasing.

"That this deficiency of religious ordinances and instruction is a national evil; and it will become a great and wealthy people to rest for the supply of a national want either upon private liberality, or upon the voluntary efforts of those poorer districts in which the want especially prevails. That by no altered management or distribution can the remaining resources of the National Church,—a great proportion of whose original endowments have been long since diverted by the State into other channels,—be rendered sufficient to meet the growing evil. The nation alone can counteract it permanently and effectually. Divine Providence has entrusted the nation with unexampled resources; and your petitioners believe that it is the duty of Government and the Legislature to direct them to this end; and the people at large, they do not doubt, will rejoice to see a portion of the national wealth devoted to the honour of Him who gave it, and employed in relieving the spiritual necessities of those by whose industry it has been developed.

"Your petitioners, therefore, with the utmost earnestness, implore your honourable House to take the spiritual destitution of England and Wales into your most serious consideration, and to meet this great and acknowledged evil by such prompt and effective measures as to your wisdom shall seem most expedient, in order to arrest the progress of demoralization, prevent the increase and perpetuation of disunion, provide for the best interests of the community, civil, moral, and religious, and draw down upon a Christian people the blessing of Almighty God.

"And your petitioners will ever pray."

In a Convocation, holden on Thursday, February 6th, the following gentlemen were unanimously approved as Examiners for the Latin University Scholarship, for the present year:—

Rev. Richard Wm. Jelf, D.D., Canon of Christ church; Rev. G. Fuller Thomas, M.A., Tutor of Worcester college; Rev. T. Leigh Cloughton, M.A., Fellow of Trinity college.

In a Convocation, holden at the same time, the Rev. John Ashworth Ashworth, M.A. Fellow of Brasenose college, was nominated a Public Examiner in Disciplina Mathematicis et Physicis; and the Rev. William Edward Jelf, M.A. and Student of Christ church, a Public Examiner in Litteris Humanioribus.

The following Degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Rev. Edward John Pogson, Fellow of St. John's coll.

Masters of Arts.—Mark Pattison, Fellow of Lincoln coll.; Thomas James Brown, Fellow of New College; Rev. Richard Stanley, Brasenose coll.; Rev. Robert Wm. Smith, Scholar of Jesus coll.; Francis Henry Deane, Wadham coll.

Smith's Prizes.—The Examiners yesterday evening adjudged the first prize to Ds. Ellis, of Trinity coll., Senior Wrangler; and agreed that for the second prize Ds. Goodwin, of Caius coll. and Ds. Woolley, of St. John's coll. were so nearly equal that they should be subjected to re-examination on Monday next.

Smith's Prizes.—The result of the re-examination of Messrs. Goodwin and Woolley for the second prize, as announced to take place last week, has confirmed the place of the former gentlemen; the prizemen are, 1st, Ds. Ellis; 2d, Ds. Goodwin.

Clare Hall.—The two silver cups, left by Dr. Robert Green, of Tamworth, were adjudged to Hervey and Green; the first as the reward of regularity of conduct, the second of general learning.

At a Congregation on Wednesday, Jan. 29th, the following Degrees were conferred:—

Honorary Master of Arts.—The Hon. Augustus William Noel, Trinity coll.

Bachelor in Divinity.—Rev. Nathaniel Meeres, St. John's coll.

Bachelor in the Civil Law.—Rev. Reginald Yonge, Catharine hall.

At the same Congregation the following grace passed the Senate:—"To affix the seal to a deed setting forth the consent of the university to the giving up of certain old inclosures specified therein, to be allotted under the Act of Parliament for enclosing the parish of Barton."

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

TO THE CLERGY.

INCUMBENTS of benefices augmented by the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, with lands purchased by them, are empowered in certain cases and with needful consents, to sell any such lands by the 15th and 16th sections of the Act 2 and 3 Victoria, ch. 49. [the whole of which Act appears in the fifteenth number of the Ecclesiastical Gazette.] By the same Act, all incumbents of benefices are enabled to sell buildings belonging thereto, under specified circumstances, as they were by the Act 1 Victoria, ch. 23, authorized to sell their houses of residence, if inconveniently situated, or under any other special circumstances: the proceeds of such several sales to be paid to the Bounty Fund to provide fit houses, or otherwise, for the benefit of the benefices to which the lands sold belong.

TO THE CLERGY.

By the 12th section of the act 2 & 3 Vict. c. 49, the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty are authorized, if they think fit, to accept endowments and emoluments, which have been, or may hereafter be provided, for the use or benefit of any church or chapel, whether already, or hereafter to be built, acquired, or appropriated under the authority of the church-building acts, or under any other authority, for the use or benefit of the incumbent of such church or chapel, or of the spiritual person serving the same, to be held by them upon the trusts declared by the persons providing such endowments; and the trustees of any such endowments are empowered to transfer the same to the said governors, upon the trusts to which the same were subject previously to such transfer.

Price of Corn.—General Weekly Average, received in the week ending Jan. 31:—Wheat, 65s. 2.100d.; Barley, 39s. 0.074d.; Oats, 23s. 10.110d.; Rye, 38s. 1.780d.; Beans, 39s. 9.427d.; Peas, 39s. 8.004d.—Aggregate Average of six weeks which governs duty:—Wheat, 65s. 10d.; Barley, 39s. 7d.; Oats, 23s. 11d.; Rye, 38s. 5d.; Beans, 41s. 1d.; Peas, 41s.

METROPOLIS.

Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.—On the 14th of January a numerous meeting of the parishioners of St. Andrew's, Holborn, was held in the inquest-room, for the purpose of forming a parochial association, in connexion with, and auxiliary to the above Society. There were present the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, the Rev. Mr. Robinson (rector of the parish), the Rev. Dr. Worthington, the Rev. Messrs. Cooke, Smith, T. Dale, Beresford, and Mills; Mr. Tooke, M.P., Sergeant Merewether, Mr. Algar, Mr. Greene, &c. The Rev. Mr. Robinson having been called to the chair, and briefly stated the object of the meeting, the Bishop of Nova Scotia moved, and Mr. Sergeant Merewether seconded, the following resolution:—"That it is the duty and privilege of all Christians, especially those enjoying the blessings of an established Christian church, to contribute according to their means to the extension of Christ's kingdom, by making known his Gospel in foreign parts," which was carried unanimously. The Rev. Ernest Hawkins moved, and the Rev. Dr. Worthington seconded, the next resolution, which was to the effect, "That the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, the oldest missionary society in connexion with the Church of England, has an especial claim to the support of the meeting," which was supported in a most eloquent speech by the Rev. T. Dale, (vicar of St. Bride's,) and was carried. Mr. Tooke, M.P. next moved a resolution, to the effect, "That an association should be formed in the parish of St. Andrew, in aid of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, and naming a committee for that purpose," which was seconded by the Rev. M. Maberley, and supported by Mr. Oliver, and was also carried amidst much applause. Mr. Greene proposed, and Mr. Mills seconded, the next resolution, impressing on the meeting the importance of recommending the Parochial Association to the active support of their immediate neighbours and friends. This resolution was also carried unanimously, and the marked thanks of the meeting having been given to the Bishop of Nova Scotia and the rev. chairman, who briefly acknowledged the same, the meeting separated.

PROVINCIAL.

Bath and Wells Diocesan Church-Building Association.—At the quarterly meeting of the general committee of this association, held at the palace at Wells, on Tuesday, the 7th of January, there were present, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of the diocese in the chair; the Right Hon. the Earl of Cork, the Hon. and Rev. W. T. Law, chancellor of the diocese, the Rev. J. T. Law, Chancellor of Lichfield, the Venerable Archdeacon Brymer, the Rev. Canon Barnard, F. H. Dickinson, Esq., George Sheppard, Esq., Johnson Phillott, Esq., the Rev. Samuel Blackall, the Rev. W. D. Willis, the Rev. C. O. Mayne, the Rev. Charles Deedes, and the Rev. William Gunning. Amongst other business transacted, the grant of 525*l.* towards building the new church at Taunton was confirmed, and payment was directed to be made of the donations received specifically for such purpose; also of the grants towards building the chapel-of-ease at Edington, in the parish of Moorlinch; towards increasing the accommodation in the church at North Pether-ton; and of the remainder of the grants towards rebuilding the churches at Chilcompton and Twerton. An application for aid towards rebuilding the church on a more convenient site for the inhabitants of Stoke Trister and Bayford was taken into consideration, but although the committee were anxious to render assistance, a grant was deferred until it can be ascertained whether some alterations which were suggested cannot be adopted. An application was also presented for aid, towards enlarging, by rebuilding, the church at Knowle St. Giles's; a grant of 50*l.* was voted, with an understanding that it would be increased if a district should be assigned to the church out of the adjoining parishes of Chard and Combe St. Nicholas. A vote of thanks to Miss Field, of Edington, was warmly accorded to, for her great kindness and liberality in originating and carrying on to completion the chapel-of-ease in the parish of Moorlinch, which, through her instrumentality, has been erected for the accommodation of a population of about 400 persons, and at which a large congregation has assembled every Sunday since it was opened.

Bath and Wells Diocesan Curates' Fund Society.—A quarterly meeting of the committee of this valuable society was also held at the palace at Wells, on Tuesday last, when payment was ordered of the grant towards the employment of a minister at St. John's chapel, in the parish of Weston near Bath; also of part of the grants voted to the parishes of Bedminster, Lyncombe and Widcombe, and Walcot; and a provisional order was given for payment of the grant to the parish of Midsomer Norton, when the coal-owners of the parish should come forward with a similar sum of 25*l.* Application was made for a continuance of the grant for St. John's chapel, Weston, which, in consequence of the circumstances not being altered, was accorded to. An application from the Rev. W. J. Brodrick was also taken into consideration for a grant towards the maintenance of an assistant curate at St. Mark's church, in the parish of Lyncombe and Widcombe, and the committee voted the sum of 40*l.* towards such purpose. This society, and the Diocesan Church-building Association, employ their funds in the promotion of such truly useful objects, that we sincerely hope a blessing may attend their praiseworthy labours.—Bath Chronicle.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORDS SPIRITUAL AND TEMPORAL OF THE UNITED KINGDOM OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND, IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.

The Humble Petition of the Archdeacon and Clergy of the Archdeaconry of Exeter, humbly sheweth,

That your Petitioners being led to believe, that measures affecting the Ecclesiastical discipline and polity of the Church of England, will be speedily submitted to the consideration of Parliament, are anxious to express their sincere desire that all Ecclesiastical and Clerical offences may be duly corrected, and to assure your Right Honourable House, that they will at all times most cordially concur in all such provisions as being based on sound Ecclesiastical principles, may be deemed expedient for the efficiency of their sacred office.

But while your Petitioners thus desire to assure your Lordships of their readiness to recognize the sanctions of the civil power as auxiliary to those of the spiritual, they beg leave humbly to remind your Lordships that the infliction of Ecclesiastical censures for spiritual offences is a power which was vested in the Church by its Divine Founder, and has been exercised by it in every age, and that as their spiritual authority does not emanate from any human source, so neither can it be duly exercised by any one, except the Bishop, in whom the Divine institution of the Church has vested it.

That your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that should any measures be submitted to your Lordships for the Improvement of Ecclesiastical Discipline, your Lordships will be pleased not to interfere by any legislative enactments, with the full exercise of that jurisdiction over the Clergy, which your Petitioners believe to belong to each Bishop in his own diocese, and to be essential to the episcopal power and authority, and to the well being of the Church.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

Tithe Rent Charges.—According to the average prices per bushel of wheat, barley, and oats, for the seven years ending at Christmas, 1839, published in the London Gazette of the 3rd January, and which govern the payment of tithe rent charges for the current year, a rent charge of 100*l.* at the time of commutation is worth 98*l.* 15*s.* 9*d.*

Alstone New Church.—On Tuesday last the splendid new Church at Alstone, near Cheltenham, was consecrated by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol. Its extreme length, from the back of the altar to the back of the free seats, is 130 feet 6 inches; transversely through the transept, from south to north, it is 107 feet 6 inches in the clear; the width of the nave is 56 feet 6 inches; the clear height, between the floor and the ceiling, is 47 feet 6 inches. The ceiling is of wood, with very thin panels, and deep seated compartments. It contains 2,085 sittings, 485 of which are free. When the ground surrounding the Church is occupied with buildings, it will be one of the finest spots in Europe, as, we understand, it is intended to erect handsome villas on either side of the road. The Church ground is enclosed in front by iron railings, with two carriage drives and foot paths to the principal doors. The south-east and north boundaries are enclosed by stone walls.

Under the will of the Rev. Thomas Whitfield, B.D., for many years Rector of Winterbourne, Gloucestershire, formerly of Fyfield, Berks, and late Fellow of St. John's College, an honorarium of 50*l.* is appointed to be given to every member of the College, not being on the Foundation, who shall be placed in the First Class at the Public Examinations.

It has been determined to take down the very old church of St. Michael, which stands close to Worcester Cathedral, and build a parish church upon another site.

Yorkshire.—T. N. S. Sotherton, Esq., M.P., has most generously offered the sum of 500*l.* towards the erection of a church at Goole. It is to be hoped that this noble offer will meet with corresponding liberality on the part of others, and that an object so essential to the well-being and respectability of the town will at length be attained.—Watchman.

We hold out, to the imitation of the Manchester cotton, and of the Monmouth and Glamorgan iron lords (as well), the noble example of the Bristol Cotton Company, who have contributed 1,000*l.* to the funds for erecting a new Church. The proposal also to provide church room for the increasing population of St. Philip's will, we trust, be supported by a large body of Protestant Christians, besides those who have already set a noble example of munificence.—Bristol Journal.

The Duke of Devonshire has recently instructed his agent in Ireland, to give 100*l.* towards the erection of a Church at Kilmurray, the Protestant inhabitants not having a place of worship. The munificence of his Grace has given the greatest pleasure to a numerous portion of his tenants in that district.—Record.

Lord John Russell has sent a donation of 50*l.* to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.

The Rev. C. P. Eden, M.A., Fellow of Oriel College, in addition to his former donations, has lately presented to the new Church at Littleworth, near Faringdon, Berks, a handsome service of Communion Plate, value 40*l.*

His Grace the Archbishop of York has given the munificent donation of 200*l.* to the York Central Diocesan Society for the Education of the Poor. His Grace had previously subscribed 200*l.*—Oxford Herald.

Sir Robert Peel has subscribed 50*l.* towards building a new Church in the hamlet of Attleborough, in the parish of Nuneaton, Warwickshire.

Church in the Groves.—At a meeting of gentlemen interested in the erection of the contemplated Church in this populous district, it was thought desirable to purchase an acre of ground lying between the Sutton drain and Wincolmllee, provided it could be obtained at a moderate price; and the following gentlemen generously subscribed the annexed sums:—Mr. A. Terry, 100*l.*; Mr. E. Spence, 100*l.*; Mr.

J. Hewetson, 100*l.*; Mr. E. Gibson, 50*l.*; Mr. J. Wilkinson, 50*l.*; Mr. W. Laverack, 50*l.*; the Messrs. Hammond, 50*l.*; Messrs. Popple, 50*l.*; Mr. C. Pease, 20 guineas. We congratulate this densely populated vicinity on the probable speedy commencement of a new church in a quarter so loudly demanding the extension of our beloved Establishment.—Hull Packet.

Lancashire.—Among the list of donations to the Liverpool Collegiate Institute, nearly 10,000*l.*, were the following:—John Gladstone, Esq., 500*l.*; Robertson Gladstone, Esq., 150*l.*; William Potter, Esq., 150*l.*; John Moss, Esq., 150*l.*; Lord Viscount Sandon, M.P., 100*l.*; Cresswell Cresswell, Esq., M.P., 100*l.*; the Right Hon. Lord F. Egerton, M.P., 100*l.*; W. E. Gladstone, Esq., M.P., 100*l.*; Thomas Gladstone, Esq., 100*l.*; Thomas Bright Cross, Esq., 100*l.*; Rev. A. Campbell, M.A., Rector of Liverpool, 100*l.*; John Neilson Gladstone, Esq., 100*l.*; Rev. Thomas Tattershall, D.D., 25*l.*; Rev. R. H. Formby, M.A., 25*l.*; Thomas M. Gladstone, Esq., 10*l.* 10*s.*; Thomas Stuart Gladstone Esq., 10*l.* 10*s.*—Liverpool Times.

The late Bishop of Lichfield.—The friends of the late Dr. Butler have determined to erect a monument in the chancel of St. Mary's Church, Shrewsbury, as a perpetual record of his eminent virtues as a Christian, and his talents as a scholar, which, undoubtedly, deserve to be recorded. The Duke of Sutherland, Earl of Liverpool, Earl of Powis, Earl of Berwick; Lord Hill; the Hon. R. H. Clive, M.P.; the Hon. and Rev. H. Noel Hill; the Hon. Thomas Kenyon; Sir Rowland Hill, Bart., M.P.; Sir R. Jenkins, M.P., &c., have formed a committee, and subscriptions will be immediately commenced.

Cheshire.—At the Michaelmas Cheshire quarter sessions, a motion was carried by a majority of twenty magistrates for appropriating 7,000*l.* of surplus funds of the navigation dues of the river Weaver for building and endowing three new churches on the banks of the river, for the especial use of bargemen navigating vessels, and others employed on the banks; and it was further resolved to apply to parliament for a bill to enable the magistrates to effect that design; at recent sessions a motion was made to rescind that resolution, and to oppose any bill for the purpose of building churches, but lost by a majority of ten, and minute for applying to parliament confirmed.

The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts has received 100*l.* from Miss Harley, with notice of a legacy of 2000*l.* from Miss Johanna Green.

Increase of Church accommodation in the Diocese of Chester.—Many of our readers may be little aware of the surprising increase of Church accommodation which has been afforded of late years to the inhabitants of this diocese. Notwithstanding the twenty new churches which were consecrated last year, no less than seventeen more have been added during the present one, affording an addition of about 13,000 sittings, while pastoral superintendence has been brought within the reach of 54,000 persons, to the vast majority of whom it was before practically inaccessible. The cost of the buildings has been 53,300*l.*: of the endowments, 11,500*l.*—Chester Courant.

Attachment to the Church.—Perhaps nothing could exhibit in a stronger point of view the liberal disposition of the farmers of Furness, and their attachment to the Church, than the circumstance of their sending, gratuitously, one hundred and five horses and carts, in order to lay down stones for the rebuilding and enlargement of Rampside Chapel, on which occasion upwards of four hundred loads of most excellent stones were laid down. What makes this circumstance more creditable to the farmers in question is, that all the above teams were furnished by individuals who neither reside in the chapelry, nor have any property in it, nor immediate connexion therewith. The farmers within the chapelry have a separate day, or rather days, for the performance of similar praiseworthy deeds, but were kept back on this occasion on account of the great numbers so liberally coming forward from the adjoining neighbourhood.—Cumberland Paper.

Meeting of the Clergy.—A meeting of the clergy of the Archdeaconry of Ely was held on Tuesday, 14th January, in the vestry of St. Michael's Church, in this town, pursuant to requisition.

At the time appointed (twelve o'clock) the chair was taken by the venerable Archdeacon Browne. The attendance of the clergy was very numerous.

The Archdeacon explained the object of the meeting, which was, to take into consideration the steps it became the clergy to adopt in consequence of measures now in agitation; and stated that a petition would be submitted to the meeting.

The petition was then read at length.

The Rev. Professor Scholefield entirely concurred in every statement contained in the petition, the adoption of which he proposed.

The Rev. W. Metcalfe briefly seconded the petition.

The Rev. F. H. Maberly suggested that parliament should be petitioned to remove all impediments to the building of churches by private individuals.

The Archdeacon observed, that this object was already provided for by recent enactments.

The petition, on being put, was carried unanimously.

Another petition was then read, praying that the management of the government grant be not left wholly in the hands of laymen, and one of them a Roman Catholic.

The Rev. J. Fendall proposed its adoption, in an impressive speech, in which he enlarged upon the various topics referred to by the former speakers.

Both the petitions having been agreed to, and signed by those present, the meeting separated.—Camb. Chron.

Wiltshire.—The Annual Meeting for transacting the business of the two Church Societies—the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, was held at the Depository, St. Thomas's Churchyard, on January 9th; it was attended by the Lord Bishop, Archdeacon Macdonald, and other clergy. A report was read by the secretary, giving a satisfactory statement of the proceedings of the parent society, and of the Salisbury district in the last year. The sale of bibles, prayer-books, and other religious publications, had much exceeded in number that of any former years since the Depository had been established. The secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel reported that associations had been formed in many parishes of the diocese, to make known the objects, and obtain support for that society. The Rev. E. Duke, jun., was appointed secretary in the place of the Rev. W. E. Hony, resigned.—Salisbury Herald.

Lincolnshire.—Patrons of the Church.—The church accommodation of Grantham being inadequate to the increasing population of its neighbourhood, it has been proposed to erect a new church, the greater number of the seats to be free. The proposal has been embraced by the Earl of Brownlow, Lord Lieutenant of the county, who has presented the munificent sum of 500*l.* towards the fund. The Earl of Harrowby, Sir John Charles Thorold, bart., and Sir W. E. Welby, bart., have respectively subscribed 200*l.*; and Mr. and Lady Caroline Turner, 225*l.*; his Grace the Duke of Rutland and the Marquis of Exeter have given 50*l.* each.

Berkshire.—Newbury Diocesan School.—On the 15th January, the new school at Newbury, Berks, in connexion with the Oxford Diocesan Board of Education, was opened with the customary formalities. The most influential of the gentry and clergy of the neighbourhood were present, and have taken the greatest interest in the proceedings. Mr. Henry J. Potter has been appointed to the head-mastership. Similar schools in connexion with the same board are in course of formation, at all of which the same system will be adopted, viz. instruction in the doctrines and duties of Christianity, as taught by the established Church, classics, mathematics, French, and all the branches essential to a sound English education. The schools are to be periodically visited by the parochial clergy, who will examine into the progress and attainments of the pupils.—Times.

Wormegay, Norfolk.—On New-year's-day a national school-room was opened in the parish of Wormegay, for the children of that and the parish of Tattenhill; upwards of 100 children were entertained on the occasion with roast beef, &c., and plum-pudding. The Rev. H. L. Davies delivered appropriate exhortations to, and prayed for the children and those connected with the school.

Too much praise cannot be given to Daniel Gurney, Esq., of North Runeton for his kind donation of the site on which the school is built, and a cottage adjoining it, together with a liberal subscription towards the building; and all this to parishes in which he had not any property till he purchased the place on which the room is built.

Convert from Romanism.—It is known that the first wife of Don Carlos died during the residence of that prince in England, and that she was buried at Gosport. A Spanish priest, Don Barnabas Rodrigues, was stationed in that place by Don Carlos's desire, whose chief duty it was to say masses for the repose of the soul of his deceased wife. This gentleman has, we understand, lately become a convert to Protestantism, and has published his reasons for abjuring the faith in which he was educated.—Berks Chronicle.

Bury St. Edmunds.—New Church.—A meeting of the subscribers of the proposed new church has been held for the purpose of selecting a design from among the competing architects. The plan selected is that of Mr. Ranger, of Queen's-square, Westminster, who binds himself to see the building erected for 3,000*l.* The plan is a very splendid one, in the early English style of architecture; the spire will be 160 feet high; the church will contain 700 sittings on the floor, and will have a gallery sufficiently large to accommodate 200 children.—Bury Herald.

Diocese of Worcester.—The Rev. W. N. Tilson Marsh, of Oriel College, son of the Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Birmingham, has been appointed to the new church at Leamington: Patrons, the Trustees. Petitions against Socialism, against the grant towards Maynooth, and in favour of church extension, have been numerous signed in this diocese during the last month.

Owing to the exertions of the Rev. Frank Hewson of St. Paul's, Worcester, and others, in behalf of boat and barge-men, the committee of the Worcester and Birmingham Canal Company has caused a circular to be sent to the different carriers on the line, requesting them to work as little as possible on Sundays. It is hoped that this canal and others will soon be closed altogether on the Sabbath.

Earl Howe has, in the kindest manner, given through the Rev. J. Allport, a site for a new church at Birmingham.

At a meeting lately held in Worcester, the Bishop of Rochester in the chair, it was resolved to establish a second general National School for boys; the school-room selected for this purpose is that of St. Martin's Parish, which was erected a few years ago through the praiseworthy exertions of the Rev. W. J. Chesshyre, curate of St. John's.

The Rev. Duncan Campbell has been appointed to the curacy of St. Peter's, Worcester, under a grant from the Pastoral Aid Society, and has entered upon the duties of his cure. The vicar, the Rev. G. L. Foxton, has been but lately appointed by the Patrons, the Dean and Chapter.

The selection of a gentleman to be recommended to the Lord Bishop of the diocese for the appointment of clerical principal of the Gloucester Training and Commercial School took place on Tuesday last. The candidates were twenty-five in number, and the choice of the board fell upon the Rev. Miles Atkinson, a first-class Oxford man, and otherwise highly distinguished.

IRELAND.

Church Education Society for Ireland.—The following is extracted from a statement published by the Society.

"The principles which the society has thus bound itself to support, having been found to be identical with those of the National Society for England, the committee, at an early period of their labours, became convinced of the importance of effecting, if practicable, an union between the two institutions. They rejoice to be enabled to state that their proposal for that purpose was most kindly and favourably received. The united Churches are thus become identified in the cause of scriptural education, and the sympathy and support of the Church of England are pledged to her weaker sister in Ireland. His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, besides the kindest offices in promoting the union, has further bestowed upon the Church Education Society the sanction of his venerated name, and has aided the funds by a munificent donation of 100*l*.

"The means the Society purposes adopting, or which it has already adopted, to carry out these important ends, are—

"1st. To connect itself closely with all the diocesan societies at present existing in the country, and to endeavour to promote the formation of others where none have been yet established. In this important work the committee are happy to state that they have already made considerable progress. Every diocesan association previously in operation has united itself with the society. A number of new associations have been formed where none had before existed, and not less than nineteen diocesan societies are now in connexion with the central committee in Dublin. The returns of these societies being as yet incompletely furnished, the committee are unable to make a general statement of the number of schools in connexion. But in the diocese of Armagh, there have been returned 158 schools, containing 12,099 children, of whom 4,043 are Roman Catholics; while at the southern extremity of Ireland, in the united diocese of Cork and Ross, the committee find connected with them not less than 102 schools, containing 4,053 children, of whom 1,259 are Roman Catholics.

"2dly. The Society will give assistance to schools, already established upon the foregoing principles, and where practicable, will aid in the establishing new ones on an improved system.

"3dly. It will aim at improving the qualifications of teachers by a suitable training. In this department of their labours they hope to derive most valuable assistance from the co-operation of the National Society in England, which has most generously offered to extend every advantage, in this respect, to the masters of the Church Education Society, which it affords to any of its diocesan branches in England. The importance of this can scarcely be overrated. The society-teachers will have the benefit of the superior opportunities afforded at the English training schools, and will, by intercourse with the people of that country, acquire improved habits of the most valuable kind.

"4thly. The committee propose to establish model schools in all the dioceses in Ireland. They are already actively engaged in completing the arrangements for a central one in Dublin, on an improved system, the Archdeacon of Dublin having kindly placed at their disposal, for that purpose, the parish school of St. Peter, and they hope, early in spring, to commence the necessary preparations for the formation of similar schools throughout the country.

"5thly. To remedy the total deficiency of a proper supply of books and school requisites, by which the efficient working of their schools is so seriously impeded, the committee have resolved without delay, to establish a depository in Dublin. They gratefully announce that they have been aided in this department of their labours by the Venerable Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, which has placed at their disposal a munificent grant of books to the value of 500*l*."

Association for Promoting the Knowledge of the Christian Religion.—The number of children who attended Catechetical Examinations, held according to the regulations of the Association in the year 1839, was 11,137; the number of children returned as having attended the Weekly Catechetical Lectures given by the clergy, was 12,270. The Association distributed amongst the children 2,245 premiums, for attendance on the Lectures, and for answering at the examinations. The total number of prayer-books sold at reduced prices, and distributed gratuitously, in the year 1839, was 10,000.

Additional Curates' Fund Society for Ireland.—This Society, which was established in April last, has already made grants for the employment of eighteen additional clergymen, in those parts of the country which are most in need of such assistance. They are to be placed in parishes in Antrim, Down, Longford, Westmeath, King's County, Tipperary, Galway, Roscommon, Cork, Wicklow, and Fermanagh. The success thus rapidly attending the exertions of this new institution is truly gratifying.

FOREIGN.

Egypt.—The first stone of the new church for the English at Alexandria was laid with great ceremony on the 15th of Dec. last by Colonel Campbell, the late Consul-general. It is to be called the church of St. Mark.

Prussia.—Gniesen, Dec. 31.—The Archiepiscopal Chapter has at length put an end to the Church mourning. The churches lost their revenue, and the peasant was dissatisfied at the interruption of the usual divine service.

France.—The new cardinal (De Latour d'Auvergne) has been appointed Archbishop of Paris, and the ordinance to that effect has received the King's signature.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—We learn from St. Petersburg, that a long answer has been published in the Russian, German, and French languages, to the Papal allocution against the union of the united Greek with the Russian Greek church.

The late Rev. James Geldart, LL.D. Rector of Kirk Deighton, was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge. On taking the degree of B.A. in 1783, he was first of his College in the Mathematical Tripos. Marrying early he was not a candidate for a fellowship. His three sons were educated at Cambridge, and have all been fellows of their respective Colleges; his eldest son is Regius Professor of the Civil Law; the second is Rector of Little Belling, in the county of Northampton; and the youngest is a Barrister at Lincoln's Inn. Of his three daughters, the second is married to Henry Jephson, M.D. Leamington, the celebrated physician. The late Rector of Kirk Deighton was the senior Magistrate for the West Riding of York. His services as a Justice of the Peace were duly appreciated in his neighbourhood, particularly by the poor, to whom he was ever accessible, and kindly considerate in the impartial execution of his office. He was the author of a valuable little treatise on the Poor Laws.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

TO A CLERGYMAN REQUIRING ABSENCE FROM HIS PARISH, ON ACCOUNT OF HEALTH OR GOING ABROAD.

AN Orthodox CLERGYMAN, prepared with a satisfactory testimonial, will be disengaged for one year, or a longer period, early in March, or at the ensuing Lady-Day, to undertake the charge of a Parish during the absence of the Incumbent. Stipend not so much an object, as the satisfaction of a well-regulated Country Parish, where the population does not exceed 600.

A modern-built, well-furnished House, which would be taken all due care of, as there are no Children; either of the Midland Counties would be preferred; a responsible servant left in the House not objected to.

Letters addressed to the Rev. F. N. W., Post Office, Gloucester. [177]

THE Rev. S. C. SAXTON'S ESTABLISHMENT, for the Board and Education of YOUNG GENTLEMEN (conducted on strictly religious principles), re-opened on Friday, January 31st, 1840; when he will be happy to receive the Sons of such Parents as may be disposed to place them under his care.

Terms from 25 to 40 Guineas per annum, varying according to age.
Darley Dale, Dec. 31st, 1839. [244]

TUITION.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, a Graduate of Oxford, who has had many years experience in Tuition, and is now residing in a Midland County, is desirous of receiving into his House a limited number of YOUNG GENTLEMEN to educate with his own Children. [145]

The most satisfactory references can be given, and further particulars known, by addressing (post paid), T. C., 16, New Broad-street, City: or the Rev. A. M., Post Office, Bedford.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, M.A. of the University of Oxford, and resident in a healthy and conveniently situated Village in Hertfordshire, within 23 miles of London, receives five Pupils into his Family, to prepare for the Public Schools, or the Universities. The highest references and testimonials will be given.

Further particulars may be known, by applying (if by letter, post paid), to the Rev. C. M. A., Post Office, St. Alban's. [151]

A GENTLEMAN wishes to place his Son in the Family of a pious Married Clergyman, 30 to 40 years of age, educating three or more than four Boys, from 12 to 15 years of age. The Advertiser wants for his Son the comforts of a respectable Establishment, and to meet with a Gentleman that takes a pleasure in Tuition, and whose Clerical duties will enable him to give up a great part of his time to the studies and amusements of his Pupils, so as to make all improving to them: the Advertiser is also anxious that the lady at the head of the establishment should be an accomplished intellectual gentlewoman, that could command the respect and attention of the young people, laying the foundation of such habits and manners as shall qualify them for good society in after life: near Town would be preferred, in a dry warm situation: the terms will be liberal, and the advantages expected must be corresponding.

Address in reply, for J. H. at the Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, in the Strand, London. [166]

SOCIETE EVANGELIQUE DE GENEVA, Colporteur Department. Extract from the last Occasional Paper, by the London Central Committee, Nov. 1839:—"How affecting it is to contemplate a Committee of our brethren at Geneva, rejoicing over such instances of the power of Divine truth, seeing the door open before them, which gives them access to a mighty harvest ready for the reapers, having fifty Colporteurs waiting to go forth and disseminate that word which the Lord hath declared shall not return to him void, and yet are obliged to say, 'For want of the gold and silver we cannot send you.' In Britain there are thousands who have bread enough and to spare, but they have not yet been awakened to an interest in the souls of 32,000,000 French people, and therefore we must wait until the Lord in his goodness sends us aid! The Geneva Committee, in the face of these difficulties, and not knowing whether it may please the Lord of the harvest to send them help or not, but in the strength of his promise and in faith, came at once to this Resolution, at their meeting of the 2nd October:—

"That the Colporteur department do not limit the number of its Agents until the end of May, 1840." And "That active measures be taken to collect funds for this special purpose." The Central Committee will not believe that English Christians can look upon these resolutions of the Geneva Committee with an eye of indifference."

Subscriptions and Donations will be thankfully received by the Rev. R. Burgess, 10, Cadogan-place, Hon. Secretary; Captain H. Layard, 3, Mabledon-place, Burton Crescent, Assistant Secretary; and Sir W. R. Farquhar, Bart. Treasurer; and James Nisbet and Co. 21, Berners-street: as also for the general purposes of the Sociétés Evangeliques of Paris and Geneva. [180]

CURATE AND TUTOR.

THE Advertiser is desirous of engaging a Gentleman to undertake the Duties of Two very small Parishes, a mile apart, and with a joint population of 190. Also to give his two sons, who are seven and eight years of age, a little daily instruction in the rudiments of Latin, and the usual branches of a good English education. A title for orders would be objected to. Stipend £100 per annum, together with an excellent House, Garden, Stables, Coach-house, &c. The soil is dry, the climate salubrious, and the country pretty. The gentleman might take two or three other pupils if he wished to do so. A preference would be given to a single man.

For further particulars apply to A. M. Post office, Spilsby, Lincolnshire. [209]

Persons assured for the whole term of Life in Great Britain or Ireland respectively, will have an ADDITION made to their Policies every seventh year, or an equivalent REDEMPTION will be made in the future payments of Premium, at the option of the Assured.

The Fourth Septennial Valuation will be made up to Christmas, 1844.

Assurances for Short Periods may now be effected in this Office at considerably reduced rates of Premium.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.—In addition to the benefit of the late Reduction in the Rates of Premiums, this Company offers to Assurers the advantage of an allowance for the loss of Rent of Buildings rendered untenable by Fire.

The Company's Rates and Proposals may be had at the Office in London, or of any of the Agents in the Country, who are authorized to report on the appearance of Lives proposed for Assurance.

HENRY DESBOROUGH, Secretary.

92, Cheapside, Feb. 1840.

A CLERGYMAN, M.A., of the University of Cambridge, who has lately left his Curacy, is very desirous of meeting with another immediately. His tenets are orthodox, in strict accordance with the Articles of the Church. A liberal Stipend will be required, and satisfactory references given.

Direct to Rev. G. B. Bintry, near Guist, Norfolk. [253]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN wishes to obtain a Curacy in a healthy situation, distant not more than four hours journey from London, where he might have a prospect of permanency and a good-sized house, either a parsonage or to be rented. Address X. Y., care of Mr. Stephenson, 12 and 13, Parliament Street, Westminster. [250]

A CLERGYMAN is desirous to obtain a temporary or permanent engagement in or near London, where the weekly duty is not heavy. The Advertiser's testimonials will be found satisfactory. Address (post paid) to N. E. Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, Southampton-street, Strand. [256]

A LADY, a Member of the Church of England, living in good Society, in a respectable town in Kent, wishes to receive into her house a widow, or unmarried lady, as Boarder. As it is presumed such advantages for a home are not often offered, it is hoped that no one will apply who cannot give satisfactory references.

Letters directed to Rev. P. S. Ewell, Dover, will be forwarded to the Advertiser. [186]

TO GRADUATES OF THE UNIVERSITIES OF OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE,

Who are preparing for Admission into Holy Orders.

DURING the QUARTER preceding TRINITY SUNDAY, the Rev. WILLIAM HENRY WHITWORTH, M.A. Head Master of Kensington Proprietary School, late Fellow and Tutor of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, proposes to receive one gentleman as a resident, to be prepared for the Examination previous to admission into Holy Orders, strictly in accordance with the doctrine and principles of the Established Church of England. Terms, Fifty Guineas. [184]

TO BE SOLD, by Private Contract, the AD-VOWSON and NEXT PRESENTATION to a most valuable Rectory, in one of the most eligible of the Midland Counties. It is an agricultural parish, limited population, and single duty. Age of the Incumbent 45. The income is £424, arising from about 320 acres of good useful glebe land, upon which are a few acres of thriving plantations, and several ponds of water.

There is an excellent newly-built parsonage, with corresponding offices, and 3 acres of garden and shrubberies. The whole is surrounded by preserves, well tenanted, and situate in a rich and most beautiful neighbourhood.

Such excellent preferment is seldom offered for sale; and to any gentleman desirous of providing for a younger son it is invaluable. The most respectable references will be given.

For further particulars, application may be made at the Law Offices of Messrs. Batye, Fisher, and Sudlow, 20, Chancery Lane, London. [262]

MR. VALPY is commissioned to offer the following:—

ADVOWSON for SALE, with a prospect of early possession, in a favourite county, value about 690*l.* per annum.

As the House is of the best description, the Purchaser should possess property independent of the Living.

NEXT PRESENTATION, with prospect of early possession, of a desirable Living, about 90 miles from Town, value from 800*l.* to 1000*l.* per annum, with an excellent House and Grounds.

NEXT PRESENTATION, to a small Living, about 100 miles from Town, of about 100*l.* per annum. The present Incumbent 80 years of age; suitable as a Title to Orders.

PROFITABLE EXCHANGE. The Incumbent of a small Living within 90 miles of London, value 400*l.* per annum, will EXCHANGE for one of less value, with any gentleman aged 54 or upwards. Warwickshire, Shropshire, Herefordshire, Berkshire, or near London, preferred.

Apply, if by letter, free, to Mr. R. Valpy, Clerical and School Agency Office, 36, Bedford-street, Strand. [246]

ADVOWSON with prospect of early possession, to be SOLD, being a Rectory on a turnpike-road about 80 miles from Town in a good situation, the income nearly 300*l.* with a Parsonage-house, and the population under 300.

AN ADVOWSON to be DISPOSED OF in a Midland County, within a few miles of a First Class Railway Station, in the midst of good society. Income about 1000*l.*; a large population.

N.B. In this case the right of Presentation can be immediately exercised. [257]

ADVOWSON, RIGHT OF PRESENTATION AND IMPROPRIATE RECTORYAL TITHES OF TYTHE-KINGTON IN THE COUNTY OF GLOUCESTER.

TO BE SOLD by Private Contract the Perpetual ADVOWSON and NEXT PRESENTATION to the Vicarage of Tytherington in the County of Gloucester, pleasantly situated about 3 miles from the Market Town of Thornbury, together with an excellent newly built Parsonage house contiguous to the Church, with corresponding offices, Lawn, Shrubberies, and walled Garden, and a Glebe of about 64 Acres; Tithes commuted, and Annual Value of the Living 409*l.* per annum. The present Incumbent is in his 39th year.

Also the Improprate Rectoryal Tithes of the said Parish of Tytherington extending over 2,145 acres of meadow Pasture and arable Land, and which have recently been commuted into an annual rent-charge of 450*l.* The Purchaser will be entitled to the Rent-Charge upon the completion of the Purchase, and payable half-yearly.

For further particulars and price, apply to Mr. Baxter, Solicitor, Alveston, near Thornbury. [254]

TO BE SOLD BY PRIVATE CONTRACT, THE NEXT PRESENTATION on the demise of the present Incumbent, now of the age of 74 years, or thereabouts, to the compact and valuable RECTORY OF TOLLERTON; comprising an excellent Parsonage-house, with a large walled-in Garden, Stabling, Carriage-house, and appropriate Out-offices, in the rural Village of Tollerton, and 218 Acres of superior Pasture and Arable Land, with suitable Farm-yards, Barns, Stables, Sheds, and other Out-houses; distant from Nottingham six miles.

For particulars and further information, apply to Messrs. Clarke, Tynmore, and Pladgate, Solicitors, 43, Craven-street, Strand; or to Mr. Leeson, Solicitor, Nottingham. [168]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

TO NOBLEMEN AND GENTLEMEN OF FORTUNE.

A CLERGYMAN, having the NEXT PRESENTATION to one of the most desirable Livings in the country, subject to an aged life, wishes to exchange it for an immediate Presentation to a larger Town Living in any part of England. To a Nobleman or Gentleman of fortune, wishing to introduce a Son into the Church, this advertisement offers peculiar advantages, as the Parish in question is small, in a beautiful part of the country, on excellent roads, and the society of the very first respectability.

Application (by letter only) addressed Rev. X. Y., care of Mr. Donaldson, Southampton-street, Strand, London. [228]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT. [248.]

A RECTORY, in Gloucestershire, above 300*l.* per annum, with house and glebe, and small population, for one of equal value, with the option of purchasing the Advowson or Next Presentation at a stipulated sum.

Apply (post paid) Mr. S. Roberts, Post-office, Cheltenham.

WANTED, with immediate, or prospect of very early possession, the ADVOWSON of (and next presentation to) a LIVING in an Agricultural district, and with a population not exceeding 1000, in one of the following counties—Gloucestershire, Worcestershire, Herefordshire, Salop, Kent, or Northumberland, or in the North or East Riding of Yorkshire.

Address A. B., Post Office, Tewkesbury. [211]

WANTED in a retired Parish in Bucks an ORTHODOX CURATE for three months, beginning on the first of April. He will have the use of a small furnished house, and the services of one maid-servant. Population between 900 and 1000. He must give unexceptionable references of being active in visiting his parishioners, and attending schools.

Address Rev. A. B., Post Office, Stony Stratford. [213]

WANTED, by the Resident Incumbent of a Country Parish in the North Riding of Yorkshire, an Unmarried Clergyman as CURATE, to take the active charge of a population of about 1,100, with a Church and Chapel of Ease, distant from each other 3 miles, and in which are three duties in summer and two in winter every Sunday. Salary 100*l.* per annum.

Address A. B. Post Office, Nottingham. [261]

WANTED by a Resident Incumbent of a town parish, a Curate of Orthodox principles. Stipend 100*l.* The Advertiser would not object to give a title.

Address (post paid) Rev. M. A. Mr. Parke's, Wolverhampton. [247]

WANTED by a Clergyman in full orders, of sound Church and Evangelical views, an eligible CURACY. Full particulars are requested in reply.

Address to Rev. B. K., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office. [249]

WANTED, by an unmarried Priest of the Church of England, a CURACY in, or in the immediate neighbourhood of, one of the Cathedral towns. The South of England would be preferred. Apply to the Rev. N. J. at Mr. Robinson's, No. 11A, Hart-st., Bloomsbury. [258]

WANTED, immediately, a Clergyman in Full Orders, to undertake the Charge of an extensive Parish, in the West of England, till Lady-day, with the prospect of a continuance for the following year. The applicant must be able to produce satisfactory testimonials and references that he is an efficient and consistent Clergyman of sound Church principles. As the church is large, and the population, upwards of 1500, scattered over several miles, he must possess a powerful voice, and be of active habits. Remuneration at the rate of 150*l.* per annum, with surplice fees. Also, the use of the Vicarage-house, furnished; for which, if continued on for the following year, a proportionate deduction will be required.

Address (post paid) to L. W. care of Mr. Jones, Bookseller, Ludlow, Salop. [200]

WANTED TO PURCHASE, in or within 50 miles of London, the ADVOWSON or NEXT PRESENTATION of a RECTORY, from 300*l.* to 600*l.* per Year, with early possession. Post town desirable. Might not object to endow a new church, population being large and respectable.

Particulars (post paid) to T. W. M., Messrs. Pemberton, Crawley, and Gardiner, Whitehall place. [178]

WANTED, by a Graduate of Cambridge, a Title for Holy Orders. He would prefer the charge of a small Parish, but would be glad to assist a Clergyman incapacitated through age or ill health.

Address R. N. Post-office, Cirencester, Gloucestershire. [217]

WANTED, immediately, a CLERGYMAN in Deacon's or Priest's Orders, to assist in the Duties of a populous district in Yorkshire. He must be Evangelical in doctrine, of sound Church principles, and have a voice equal to a large church. Stipend 90*l.* a year.

Letters (post paid) containing references may be addressed to C. D., Mr. Somersdale, Bookseller, Leeds. [253]

WANTED immediately for three or six Months, a CURATE in Full Orders and of strictly Orthodox principles, to take half of the duties in a country parish where the Vicar is resident.

Address (prepaid) to Rev. W. W., Mr. Gilbert, Bookseller, Spalding, Lincolnshire. [252]

WANTED TO PURCHASE, an ADVOWSON in Wiltshire, of the value of about 150*l.* per Annum. Address G. G. at Messrs. Hatchard & Sons, Piccadilly. [163]

WANTED, by a Graduate of Oxford, of Orthodox views, who has been in the Church about 15 years, a CURACY, in the County of Kent. A single Parish with double service on Sunday, or where a Second may be added, and a population of not above 500, would be preferred.

Address to the Rev. —, at Mr. Lloyd's, Bookseller, Harley-street, Cavendish-square, London. [162]

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN, of more than Ten Years' standing in the Church, is desirous of meeting with a CURACY near London, where a good house can be procured. He would not object to undertake any gentleman's duty for a year or more during his absence, if he could have a comfortable furnished house by way of remuneration.

Address (post paid) Rev. P., care of Mr. Mortimer, Bookseller, 21, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, London. [190]

WANTED, by a Gentleman, who has taken High Honours at Oxford, a CURACY, as a TITLE FOR ORDERS. Sentiments moderate. No objection to Tuition which will not interfere with his ministerial duties. Apply (if by letter, post paid), B. G. L., at the Office of the Ecclesiastical Gazette. [167]

CURACY WANTED.

AN UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN, a Graduate of Oxford, who has been upwards of nine years in Holy Orders, and whose voice is equal to the largest Church, wishes to obtain a COUNTRY CURACY. He is Orthodox in doctrine, and of sound Church principles. The entire superintendence of a Parish would be preferred. The most satisfactory references can be given.

Address (post paid), to the Rev. C. Dowling, West Kingston, Chippenham, Wilts. [176]

CURACY WANTED by a young unmarried Clergyman of active habits and some experience. He took honours in both Triposes at Cambridge, and would have no objection to unite with his Curacy the office of Private Tutor to the Incumbent's family. Satisfactory references will be given.

Address Rev. T. C., Arrington, Cambridgeshire. [199]

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN in full Orders, and Fellow of a College in Oxford (to whom Stipend is not an object), wishes to meet with a CURACY, either for a definite or indefinite period. He is of orthodox sentiments, and can produce the most satisfactory references and testimonials.

CURACY WANTED, by a Graduate of Oxford, M.A. in Full Orders, whose views are in exact accordance with the Articles of the Church. A house is indispensable.

Address (post paid) Rev. F. W., Messrs. Combe and Cromley, Leicester. [221]

A CURATE will be wanted after Lady-day, for a Parish in Shropshire, where the population is small, and the Parsonage suited for an unmarried Clergyman, or one with a small family. Stipend 80*l.*

Address with references, A. B. Mr. Stephenson's, 12, Parliament-street. [238]

CURATE WANTED for a Country Parish in Nottinghamshire. Stipend 100*l.*; no House. Unexceptionable references will be required.

Address (prepaid) F. D., 15, York Road, Lambeth. [257]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN who has been in Orders 7 years, wishes for a CURACY in the Country with a house, or where one can be rented. The Advertiser would not object to take duty for a few Sundays, if likely to lead to a permanency. Hants, Surrey, or adjoining counties preferred.

Apply by letter (post paid) to X. Y., Post Office, Southampton. [245]

CURACY WANTED, with a Title for Orders, by a Graduate of Oxford, the Son of a Beneficed Clergyman. The Advertiser would prefer a Curacy under a resident incumbent. The amount of salary no object, provided it be sanctioned by the Bishop of the diocese. Respectable references can be given with College testimonials, &c.

Address C. D., Stamp Office, Bath. [204]

THE CHAPLAIN to the Middlesex Hospital begs to acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt of Two Parcels, kindly forwarded in consequence of his Advertisement in the Ecclesiastical Gazette for October: one from Suffolk; the other seemingly from a county north of London, with each book separately folded.

A SCHOLAR, of St. David's College, who completed his terms at Christmas last, and is not of age to take Holy Orders, is desirous of engaging himself as a Private Tutor in a Family. He is permitted to refer to the Principal and Tutors for testimonials of character and ability.

Address, post paid, to A. B., St. David's College, Lampeter. [173]

TO THE CLERGY.

IT is proposed to establish a SCHOOL, on a large and very liberal scale, for the EDUCATION of the SONS of the CLERGY; a School, in which all the branches of knowledge which ought to form the subject of instruction to a Christian gentleman shall be taught by masters of the highest qualifications. And it is calculated, from accurate inspection of the expenses of other large establishments, that this can be effected, with Board and Lodging, for a charge of £30 per annum to each scholar. The Sons of the Laity will be admitted, but at a higher rate of payment; and the profit thereon accruing will be applied to the Education of Orphans of Clergymen, Founding of Scholarships, &c. It is thus contemplated that the Institution will eventually more than cover its own expenses; but a fund must necessarily be raised in the first instance to bear the charges incident to the formation of the establishment.

The highest Dignitaries of the Church have expressed their approbation of the plan; and those Clergymen who are favourable to the establishment of such an Institution, and may feel disposed to take advantage of it for the education of their Sons, or be willing to promote so desirable an object by donations or subscriptions, are requested to forward their names, at their earliest convenience, to the Rev. C. E. Plater, Charlton in Dover. [203]

GRAY'S IMPROVED CHURCH BARREL ORGANS, in which all the defects of the ordinary instruments are entirely removed, and no bolt-work or shifting of the Barrels necessary.

No. 1. In a handsome Gothic case 10 feet high, with gilt pipes, 60 Guineas.
2. Ditto ditto 75 ditto.
3. Ditto size larger ditto 90 ditto.

The instruments may be inspected, and every explanation readily afforded, at the Manufactory of the Inventors, 9, New Road, Fitzroy-square. [77]

HOME and COLONIAL INFANT SCHOOL SOCIETY.

The Committee have several applications for Men and their Wives as Teachers for Infant Schools, both for Home and Colonial service, and they would feel much obliged to Clergymen and others to recommend persons of decided piety, members of the Established Church, between twenty and forty years of age, of moderate education and fond of Children.

One or two Superior Masters are also wanted.

The time occupied, expense of training, &c., may be obtained by addressing the Honorary Secretary, Gray's-Inn Road, King's Cross.

Subscriptions and Donations are earnestly solicited, and may be paid to Messrs. Williams, Deacon, and Co., Bankers; John Bridges, Esq., Treasurer, 23, Red Lion-square, or any member of the Committee. [215]

FINGER ORGAN FOR SALE (GREAT BARGAIN).

A CLERGYMAN in the County of Devon, has to offer for Sale, a very neat and well-toned FINGER ORGAN, with powers sufficient for a Church, capable of accommodating four or five hundred persons. Price Sixty Guineas only.

Address, by letter, post paid, L. M. N., 4, Mylne-street, Pentonville, London. [150]

COLONIAL CHURCH SOCIETY.

THE Lamentable Want of Clergymen Catechists and Schoolmasters in our Colonies, and for British Residents in Foreign Lands, has brought this Society into operation, and loudly calls for assistance from all those who acknowledge the paramount claims of our countrymen, and desire the extension of the Redeemer's Kingdom. An Appeal of the Society, just published, may be had, gratuitously, at the Office, No. 5, Exeter Hall.

Contributions received at Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, and Co., Lombard-street; Williams, Deacon, and Co., Birchington; Herries, Farquhar, and Co., St. James's-street; the Office, 5, Exeter Hall; Hatchard and Co., Piccadilly; Nisbet and Co., Berners-street; Seeleys, Fleet-street. [208]

A VACANCY having occurred in the MASTERSHIP of the late ABBEY MILTON SCHOOL, removed to BLANDFORD, Dorset.

The Fees will proceed to an Election at the Crown Inn, Blandford, on Thursday, June 11th next.

Candidates are required to send testimonials of their character and abilities (post paid), on or before the 5th of April next, to Mr. Coombe, Solicitor, Dorchester, from whom particulars of the Institution may be procured. [173]

CHURCH PREFERMENT.

WANTED TO PURCHASE, a PERPETUAL ADVOWSON or NEXT PRESENTATION, with prospect of immediate possession, or where the intended Incumbent might undertake the entire duty as Curate. The net income must exceed £500, but not be much more than £600. A good house, with three or four acres of land attached, is indispensable. Kent, Surrey, Sussex, or the Midland Counties, preferred. [187]
Address by letter, or personally, by previous appointment, Messrs. Ward and Burroughes, 35, Lincoln's-inn-fields.

CHURCH ACCOMMODATION.

CASE OF THE VILLAGE OF FLUSHING, IN THE PARISH OF MYLOR, IN THE COUNTY OF CORNWALL.

THE Population of the Parish of Mylor amounts to about 3000 souls, of which number nearly 2000 are inhabitants of Flushing.

The Parish Church will accommodate only 450 persons, and is situated at a considerable and inconvenient distance from the Village, which precludes many of the Parishioners, and especially the old and infirm, from attending Divine Service, even once on the Sabbath.

The Children of the Sunday Schools established in the Village are almost entirely prevented by the same causes, from attending Public Worship. A large and increasing population is thus deprived of the blessings of Communion with the Church of England.

In order to provide for the spiritual wants of the Inhabitants, a Meeting was held at Flushing, on the 13th day of December, 1839.

The VICAR, in the Chair:

When it was resolved,—
"That measures be taken for building a Chapel of Ease in the Village of Flushing, and, as the classes for whose benefit it is principally designed, are poor, and quite unable to raise the necessary funds themselves, the friends of the Established Church are earnestly requested to contribute towards this desirable object, without whose aid so important an undertaking cannot be effected."

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer, William Rogers, Esq., Cornish Naval Bank, Falmouth; the Vicar, at Mylor; and the Secretaries, R. S. Sutton and Walter Leslie, Esqrs., Flushing.

ADDRESS TO THE PUBLIC.

In issuing the present Circular, I beg to solicit your favourable attention to its object.

The Members of the Church of England appear at length to be aware that they have been too long supine to the most important interests of their venerable and apostolic Church; and are now, although late, earnestly endeavouring to remedy the neglect of former years, by supplying the deficiency of Church Accommodation for an increasing population.

In very many Parishes, whilst the Parish Church stands solitary, and is situated at a remote distance from the existing locality of the parochial population, numerous Meeting-houses of Dissenters have been erected in the Villages, thereby ostensibly furnishing an accommodation for religious worship at people's own doors; and they have been too too successful in estranging many from the Apostolic Church.

From the foregoing representation of the case of the Parish of Mylor, the erection of a Chapel of Ease at Flushing appears not only desirable but even indispensable, in a religious and moral point of view, for upholding the Church of Christ in the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England.

A hope is indulged that the individual and collective generosity of friends and members of our Apostolic Church, lay as well as clerical, may be liberally extended to the spiritual wants of a large but needy population, in aiding them to build a house of prayer for the worship of Almighty God, where they and their little ones may enjoy the blessing of engaging in the scriptural form of sound words of the true and faithful Church of Christ; and where they may join in the formularies and services, as used by the venerable Church of our forefathers.

As the amount of the anticipated aid to be afforded by the Church Building Societies, is usually regulated by the amount which the Parish itself can provide, it is therefore hoped that this appeal for pecuniary assistance may prosper, and may experience the favouring countenance of a Christian brotherhood.

I have the honour to be.

Your very humble servant,

[146] EDWARD HOBLYN, Vicar.

YEARLY TENTHS DUE FROM THE CLERGY.

I, CHRISTOPHER HODGSON, Treasurer to the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne, do hereby respectfully give notice to the Clergy, that the Yearly Tenths became due from them to the Governors on the 25th day of December last, and are required by law to be paid to me immediately afterwards.

THE RESPIRATOR;

OR,

INSTRUMENT FOR GUARDING THE LUNGS FROM THE INJURIOUS EFFECTS OF KEEN OR RAW AIR.

THIS Instrument, one of the inventions of a Professional Gentleman, who has for many years been occupied in the cultivation of Experimental Philosophy, upon its first appearance was favoured by a strong approval of its principle on the part of the most eminent Members of the Medical Profession. The experience of many thousand persons in this and other Countries has confirmed very satisfactorily the correctness of their anticipations; and while it has ever been set forward with very guarded representations, there are, among severe sufferers, some, in all parts of the country, who are prepared to maintain that it has been the instrument of even prolonging their lives. Several cases have also already occurred of persons who had been compelled for some years to winter abroad, but who are now enabled by the aid of the RESPIRATOR to remain altogether in England—some in the practice of an arduous profession involving with it exposure to the Climate at all hours.

The Prices fixed on this Instrument, the workmanship of which is extremely delicate, are very moderate, and place them within the reach of all classes, while they bear no proportion to its value to persons whose feelings prompt them to avoid inhaling keen or raw air. The best Instruments are all finished in WHITE instead of BLACK Leather, the latter having been found to stain the lips.

The RESPIRATOR is procurable from respectable CHEMISTS and SURGICAL INSTRUMENT MAKERS in London, and all the larger Country Towns, and from Agents in Paris and other Places.

RESPIRATOR OFFICE, 82, CHEAPSIDE, LONDON.

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHER FRIENDS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTRUCTION.

THE PARISH OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, the largest within the city of Gloucester, containing an increasing population of 3,500 souls and upwards, is destitute of Sunday School-rooms. Yet it was the Rector of this Parish, the Rev. Thomas Stock, who, in the year 1780, projected, and, in conjunction with his friend, Robert Raikes, Esq., established the first Sunday School in Great Britain. The parishioners consist, in a great proportion, of small householders, and the Living itself is under £130 per annum, and no glebe-house thereon. The present Rector, being wholly unable from his own resources, or those of the Parish, to raise the requisite funds, is constrained to appeal thus publicly to the liberality of the friends of sound and scriptural education. He is persuaded that they will not be insensible to the wants of a Parish which may justly claim the distinction of having originated the whole system of Sunday School teaching.

In aid of the object in question, a Reverend Incumbent, residing at Salisbury, and connected with the Cathedral, has happily suggested a plan, the principle of which was immediately acted upon in his own Parish, and has been adopted already in various other places, viz.:—"That a General Subscription be set on foot, to which each child in every school in the United Kingdom be invited to contribute One Penny." This proposal is now respectfully and anxiously submitted to the favourable consideration of every Incumbent and officiating Minister throughout the two countries, who are hereby earnestly intreated to bring the case of the above-mentioned Parish before such of their young people, as are now sharing in the blessings of Sunday School instruction. By this simple free-will offering an ample Fund would be raised, and the Sunday School-rooms of St. John's Parish would exhibit, to future generations, an interesting and singular memorial of the gratitude of children for their "nurture and admonition in the Lord."

TRUSTEES TO THE SCHOOL BUILDING FUND.

Rev. Thomas Evans, M.A., Vicar of St. Mary de Lode; Rev. John Davies, M.A., Incumbent of St. Nicholas; Rev. F. T. Bayly, B.A., Rector of St. John's, in the city of Gloucester; Rev. F. T. J. Bayly, B.A., Vicar of Brookthorpe; Thos. Turner, Esq., a Director, and Wm. Montague, Jun., Esq., Manager of the Gloucester National Provincial Bank of England.—SECRETARIES, Revs. F. T. Bayly, and F. T. J. Bayly.—TREASURERS, Thomas Turner, and Wm. Montague, Esqrs.

In addition to the Sunday School Contributions already acknowledged in the Ecclesiastical Gazette of the last Month, the following have been received:—

Bowden, Cheshire, including Attrineham, Carrington, Ridgway, Miss Cliffe's Boarding School, 3 Servants and a Friend	£6 0 0
Hanxwell, Kirby Ravensworth, Patrick Brompton, Yorkshire	1 0 0
Pluxton, Derby	0 6 0

Sunday School Contributions, and other Donations, will be gratefully acknowledged by the Rev. F. T. Bayly, Rector of St. John's, Gloucester; and may be remitted, however small the amount, by Post office Order, to the National Provincial Bank of England, Gloucester; or to Messrs. Spooner, Attwood, and Co., 27, Gracechurch-street, London, "to the Account of the Rev. F. T. Bayly, in aid of St. John's School Building Fund."

Subscriptions, &c., in aid of the above object, received by Mr. Geary, Master of the Covent Garden Church Sunday School. [181]

THE Place of HEAD MASTER of the FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL OF QUEEN ELIZABETH, at Heath, near Halifax, is vacant by the Death of the Rev. ROBERT WILKINSON, B.D.

There is a commodious house for a family, or pupils, or both, attached to the School, which is conveniently and pleasantly situated within half-a-mile of Halifax, and on the south and best side of the town.

The present annual income of the Charity, arising from the rents and profits of the estate, may be estimated at 200*l.* per annum (exclusive of the mansion house and premises, for the use of the Head Master), with every reasonable probability of the same being augmented to 350*l.*, consequent on the completion of arrangements now in progress connected with the charity lands, and this income it is proposed to apportion between the Head Master and the Second Master, in the following manner, viz. two-thirds to the former, and one-third to the latter.

This School, jointly with the similar foundations at Leeds and Heversham, has an interest in the Milner Scholarships at Magdalen College, Cambridge.

The Election must take place by the Statutes within Six Weeks from the 29th of December last, the day of the Decease of the late Master.

The Governors pledge themselves to select from the names submitted to their choice that which with equal advantage of general character is recommended by superiority in CLASSICAL attainment.

Candidates being Graduates of Oxford or Cambridge ("Students—the space of Five Years at the least") are desired to send their Testimonials, post-paid, on or before WEDNESDAY, the 5th of February, addressed to

GEORGE POLLARD, Esq.,
President Governor,
Stannary Hall, near Halifax.

N.B. Immediately after the Appointment of the Head Master, the Governors will proceed with his counsel and assistance to the Election of the Second Master.

A Graduate of any Academical distinction will be preferred to a Non-Graduate.

Testimonials of Character and Scholarship must be sent within the same time, and with the same Address as above. [159]

ANTRON HOUSE.

TO THE NOBILITY, CLERGY, AND GENTRY.

A MOST DESIRABLE ASYLUM will be afforded to invalid persons suffering under NERVOUS DEBILITY, and other Disorders requiring constant Medical superintendence, by the opening of the above-named house. Dr. Henwood intends to receive only a limited number of patients, who will be treated in every respect as members of his own family, so far as their health may admit. Antron House and Grounds are situated on one of the most healthy banks of the Mount's Bay, and near to the town of Helston, Cornwall. Unexceptionable references will be given and required.

Antron House, October 11, 1839.

ROMFORD UNION.

THE GUARDIANS of this UNION are desirous of appointing a CHAPLAIN for the New Union Workhouse at Romford. He will be required to do duty and to preach twice every Sunday, and to attend at the Workhouse once a day during the week, for the purpose of reading prayers, visiting the sick, and superintending the moral and religious education of the children. A Salary of 100*l.* a year will be given. A gentleman taking pupils will not be objected to. Testimonials, addressed to the Board of Guardians of the Romford Union, are requested to be left at my office at Ilford. [179]

EDMUND GRIFFIN, Clerk of the Union.

CLERGY ORPHAN CORPORATION.

President.—The Lord Archbishop of Canterbury.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL COURT of the Society for Clothing, Maintaining, and Educating Poor Orphan Children of Clergymen of the Established Church of England, until of age to be put apprentice, will be holden at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Wednesday, the 27th February next, at three o'clock in the afternoon precisely, to elect children into the schools, and on other business.

Another election of Orphans will take place at the end of May. [223]

METCALFE'S NEW and ORIGINAL PATENT of TOOTH-BRUSH, made on the most scientific principle, and patronized by the most eminent of the Faculty. This celebrated Brush will search thoroughly into the divisions of the Teeth, and will clean in the most effectual and extraordinary manner. Metcalfe's Tooth-brushes are famous for being made on a plan that the hairs never come loose in the mouth. An improved Clothes-brush, that cleans in a third part of the usual time, and incapable of injuring the finest nap. A newly-invented Brush for cleaning velvet with quick and satisfactory effect. The much improved Flesh-brushes, as recommended by the Faculty. Horse-hair Gloves and Bands. EPISCOPAL CHAPEL IN HUNTLY, SCOTLAND.

STATEMENT OF THE REV. JAMES WALKER.

TO the small Congregation of the Episcopal Communion in Huntly I have officiated for upwards of fifty-seven years. The congregation was at one time very respectable, and, immediately before the ill-advised expedition of Prince Charles Stuart in 1745, had built and finished an elegant chapel. On the fatal termination of that expedition, this house was burnt down to the ground by the royal army: the congregation was dispersed and subjected to such hardships and inconveniences as the present generation would scarcely believe; but, notwithstanding this cruel and unmerited persecution, they kept steadfast to their principles, and were thankful when they could find a place (however mean) where they could meet to offer up their public devotions to God in safety: they knew not the one Sunday where they could meet the next. At last, in the year 1772, they ventured to build an Episcopal Chapel in the form of an obscure dwelling-house with chimneys, the only form they could adopt with safety. Even at first, this house was never comfortable, and although it has received frequent repairs since that time, at present is far from being convenient. The most respectable of the congregation are dead and gone, and the present members (though in general very willing; are far from being able to contribute what would be necessary either to repair the old or build a new one. About two years ago I called the earnest attention of my congregation to the state of the chapel, and a distinguished individual in this place subscribed fifty pounds towards the repairing it. Encouraged by this handsome subscription, instead of laying it out in repairing a house which could never be rendered comfortable, I resolved to use my utmost endeavours to obtain such assistance as would enable me to erect a plain and decent edifice suitable to the worship of Almighty God. Accordingly I applied to my worthy diocesan, the Right Rev. Bishop Low, who, entering warmly into my views, immediately procured from the Venerable Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, fifty pounds, to which he kindly added his own subscription of ten, the excellent Dr. Joshua Watson, five, the Lord Bishop of Durham, five, and from the deceased Dr. Ireland, late Dean of Westminster, and some of my friends in this country, I have been able to obtain about twenty pounds more. But, alas! this sum is far short of accomplishing the object I have in view. The great exertions which the Church of England is making towards erecting new churches and chapels in its own country, and the kind and liberal aid which it has generously rendered to almost every application from this country, renders me diffident to make a personal application to those who, I know, are well disposed to aid every design of this nature. Most anxious, however, am I to accomplish this object; and I shall feel most grateful to every friend who shall aid me in this good design.

"This illustrious band of Christian Reformers is represented in such a manner as the Meeting probably was: the colouring is brilliant without being gaudy, and a rigid discipline has restricted all efforts of too flighty an imagination."—Times, January 9th.

"The subject is a bold and difficult one, and it has been mastered with consummate skill. The whole picture marks the genius of the Artist, and imparts an inexpressible charm to this his best work."—Morning Chronicle, January 10th.

"Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg is the descendant of him who was emphatically the leader of Protestantism. He is descended from that Elector of Saxony who at Spire signed his name at the head of six princes and fourteen cities to that famous Protest which was made in contradiction to the decision of the Diet of Augsburg, and which constituted the foundation of the name of Protestant."—Viscount Melbourne's Speech, House of Lords, January 16th.

SIZE OF THE ENGRAVING, WITHOUT MARGIN, 30½ INCHES BY 22½.—PRICE TO SUBSCRIBERS,

First Class.—India Proofs before letters, Ten Guineas; Second do. India Proofs, Eight do.; First Class.—Plain Impressions, Five Guineas; Second do. ditto, Three do.

Each Class of Impressions to be delivered successively.

INTRODUCTION.—The memorable event which this engraving is intended to represent, will be found described by Seckendorf, Sleiden, Mosheim, &c. and may be thus briefly stated. The Diet of Spire in 1526 passed a resolution essentially favourable to the Reformation, but which the Pontiff, Clement VII., and his great coadjutor, the Emperor Charles V., determined to annul. For this purpose they summoned a second Diet at Spire in the spring of 1529. All the chief princes and deputies of the empire were present. King Ferdinand presided for his brother the Emperor, then in Spain, and he contrived to procure a majority: the resolution therefore of 1526 was rescinded. But the Reformers now had gained sufficient strength not to be cast down by such proceedings. Being denied a hearing in their defence, Luther and Melancthon drew up a Protest, and on the 19th of April the Elective Princes in the minority again appeared before the Diet. This at first was also refused; but with great resolution they obliged the Diet to receive their solemn protestation. In substance it declared, "That they would not obey the tyrannical edicts imposing Church tradition before Scripture, because such was contrary to the law of God; That the Scriptures were the sole and touchstone of their conduct; That the Bible was the sole interpreter of itself to the conscience; and That they appealed to a General Council and to all unsuspected judges."—DESCRIPTION OF THE PICTURE: In the central group of the picture are the Elective Princes who thus stood boldly forward. John Constance, Elector of Saxony, the chief leader in this event, brother and successor to Frederick the late protector of Luther, is exhibiting to the king "The Protest" to which he, and those who surround him, had set their seals; on his right, Wolfgang, the Prince of Anhalt, and Philip, the Landgrave of Hesse; on his left, in front, George, Margrave of Brandenburg, with the Dukes Ernest and Francis of Luneburg.

It is a remarkable fact, that our most gracious Sovereign the Queen, and Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg, are both lineal descendants of John Constance, that Elector of Saxony who first signed and declared this Protest; and the illustrious House of Hanover is descended in a direct line from Ernest, one of the above Dukes of Luneburg.

THE BIBLE CYCLOPÆDIA.

THIS work was announced in 1834, under the direction of the Committee of General Literature and Education appointed by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge: but the publication was postponed in consequence of some alterations in the arrangements of the Society. Considerable progress has now been made in the preparation of the Work; and although it must necessarily appear without any responsibility on the part of the Committee by whom it was first announced, it will be prepared from the same materials, and conducted upon precisely the same principles and plan as at first contemplated.

JOHN W. PARKER, therefore, respectfully announces, that on the 1st of March will appear the First Number of

BIBLE CYCLOPÆDIA;

BEING A COMPREHENSIVE DIGEST OF THE

CIVIL AND NATURAL HISTORY, GEOGRAPHY, STATISTICS, AND GENERAL LITERARY INFORMATION

CONNECTED WITH THE SACRED WRITINGS.

The object of this Work is to present to the general reader a comprehensive digest of the information which has appeared in former Dictionaries of the Bible, and, at the same time, to open new sources of illustration, which will serve to throw additional light upon subjects connected with the study of the Sacred Volume.

Notwithstanding the labours of former writers, especially of Calmet and his various Editors, much remains to be done in this department of literature, and much requires to be undone. Many of the theories which were till lately received among Biblical critics, have given way to the more accurate information which has been obtained in the progress of research; and many interesting and important discoveries have recently been made in those countries which were the scenes of the various transactions recorded in Scripture. This is the case more especially with regard to Egypt, where an entirely new path has been laid open to the Biblical Student, by the progress which has been made in the language and literature of that very remarkable people.

Much of this additional information is due to the labours of foreign writers, whose works are inaccessible to general readers. Of these labours free use will be made. But in thus rendering them available to English Students, great care will be taken to exclude the rash and mischievous speculations into which some of these writers, especially those of the German school, have fallen.

In making the works of others, whether English or foreign, subservient to our purpose, it will be a constant object throughout to avoid equally those fanciful theories which serve only to encumber the important subjects to which they refer, and that tendency to scepticism which has produced such lamentable effects in other countries. And it is humbly hoped, that by thus pursuing the plain path of sober investigation, some service may be rendered to the cause of Sacred Literature, and some additional assistance afforded to those, who, by the study of God's Holy Word, are endeavouring to acquire that knowledge, which, under His blessing, may lead them to life eternal.

This Work will be printed in small folio, in a distinct and readable type, but with due regard to economy of space. It will be completed in from twenty-four to thirty Numbers, to be published Monthly, at 1s. 6d. each, and will form one or two handsome Volumes, at the option of the purchaser.

GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON

TO

THE NEW TESTAMENT:

ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO THE USE OF COLLEGES AND THE HIGHER CLASSES IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS;

BUT ALSO INTENDED AS A CONVENIENT MANUAL FOR BIBLICAL STUDENTS IN GENERAL.

By the Rev. S. T. BLOOMFIELD, D.D. F.S.A.

Vicar of Bisbrooke, Rutland; Editor of the Greek Testament, &c. &c.

In the formation of the present Work the Author has carefully avoided the defects found in preceding lexicographers, either of vague and embarrassing prolixity of matter and superfluity of explanation or of obscure brevity. Accordingly, instead of employing, in the way of proof or illustration, mere references to Scripture or to the Classical Writers, he has consulted the convenience of the reader, by adducing the very words, and thus bringing before him all the materials for judgment. Though forming his work, in a great measure, on the basis of preceding lexicons, the Author, relying on the ample resources supplied by the researches of a long series of years, has ventured to exercise his own judgment throughout, altering the arrangement of significations where expedient, or otherwise moulding such matter as, after due consideration, he saw fit to adopt, and every where intermixing a large portion of original matter, so as to supply whatever seemed necessary to complete the lexicography of the New Testament. In short, the author's great aim has been to make the work complete in itself, at once brief and perspicuous, and especially adapted to serve as a companion to his edition of the Greek Testament, by supplying that minute verbal and grammatical information which would have been out of place in a commentary on Scripture.

OBSERVATIONS on the GOVERNMENT, LAWS, STATE of SOCIETY, STATE of CRIME, and the SYSTEM of TRANSPORTATION, in NEW SOUTH WALES, during Six Years' Residence in that Colony. [149]

Shortly to appear, the First Volume of A NEW TRANSLATION of the GENUINE WORKS of FLAVIUS JOSEPHUS, with Copious Explanatory and Critical Notes, Preliminary Dissertations, and many Graphic Illustrations.

The Jewish historian, whose writings, and especially his animated narrative of the war waged by his infatuated countrymen with the Romans, are justly reckoned among the most important remains of ancient literature, is at present little known to the English public except through the medium of a translation which, in an extreme degree, is uncouth and repulsive. Whiston's Josephus, although it has long held a place in all libraries, is such as is likely to be continuously perused by few but the most laborious readers; and thus it has happened that a work, peculiarly attractive in itself, has been scarcely thought of otherwise than as a book of reference, indispensable indeed, but never to be made the companion of a leisure hour. And yet, even as a book of reference, Whiston's translation of Josephus has been far more relied upon and commended than its intrinsic merits could warrant; for, besides his errors and oversights, which are numerous, the extreme awkwardness of his style throws a degree of ambiguity into every paragraph, and darkens almost every sentence.

The present translator, who has devoted years to his task, confidently hopes that the version he is about to submit to the public may at once challenge criticism, in regard to the most essential qualities, and may recommend his author to the many who read books of this class only when they can be pleased and entertained.

In the Notes and Dissertations, embracing as they will every subject which may seem to need elucidation, it will be attempted to meet the expectations, as well of the erudite, as of the less-informed reader.

The Graphic Illustrations, which will be numerous, and in the preparation of which expense is not considered, will bring together whatever time has spared in art, or the modern industry of research has gleaned, of a pictorial kind, and which may serve to place before the eye the personages, the scenes, the apparatus, the costume, which this various and eventful history embraces.

An ample Prospectus, and Plan of the Work, with Specimens, will shortly be issued. [153]

A CATECHISM of the APOSTLES' CREED, with Scripture Proofs. By the Rev. J. P. WILSON, M.A. Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, and Perpetual Curate of Marsh Chapel, Lincolnshire. Adapted for Sunday, National, and Poor Law Union Schools.

"This is a very small, but at the same time a very useful tract. It is intended for the use of Sunday Schools; but we think that any school will be greatly profited by its perusal. Small as is the tract, it contains a vast quantity of matter. We feel assured that it has only to be known, to secure a very extended circulation. Not a single topic embraced in the Creed but the reader will find it amply discussed. The author's views, we may remark, are sound and scriptural, while his style and method are simple and natural."—Church of England Quarterly Review, Jan. 1844.

Application for Assurances or farther information, to be made to the Rev. J. HODGSON, or to JOHN BURDER, Esq., Secretaries to the Society, at the Office, 40, Parliament Street; or to any Local Agent in the Country.

. Prospectuses and Books of Rules may be had at the Office. Attendance from eleven to four o'clock, daily.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. It should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE;

OR MONTHLY

REGISTER OF

THE AFFAIRS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, AND

OF ITS RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

No. 21.—VOL. II.

LONDON, TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1840.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

The ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the SECOND TUESDAY in EVERY MONTH, and may be obtained at sixpence per number, or six shillings per annum, by ordering it of any Newsmen in the Kingdom.

THE proposal which we made in our last number for publishing an ANNUAL CLERGY LIST, has been received by our subscribers, and by the clergy generally, in a manner far exceeding our expectations. The communications which have been sent to us from all parts of the country have been of the most encouraging nature, and the number of them has been so great as to leave no room to doubt that we shall be able, within a reasonable time, to accomplish this desirable undertaking.

Nothing can exceed the obliging disposition shown by many of the clergy to assist in furnishing information for the work; and we feel much regret that we cannot, at present, do more than offer them this general acknowledgment. We would gladly have written individually to all those clergymen who have already rendered assistance, as well as to those who have promised it; but we can assure our correspondents that we have found it no light duty even to read through the mass of communications which have been made to us on this subject, since the announcement in our last number. For the present, therefore, we can only say, that we shall gladly accept the gratuitous offers of assistance which we have received, and that we intend to communicate further with the writers.

Our space will not allow us to enter more fully into the subject here, but at page 181 we have repeated our statement of the project, with some further particulars, which we hope will be satisfactory to some of our correspondents.

We venture now to make a more urgent request to those of the clergy who have not yet noticed our former application, that they will do us the favour of giving us the information required under the three heads in page 181, addressing it to the editor of the "Ecclesiastical Gazette," 14, Southampton-street, Strand.

We would particularly request the RURAL DEANS to afford us their assistance in obtaining the requisite information in their several deaneries.

We have the pleasure to observe, in this number, a considerable addition to our subscription list for the "Ecclesiastical Gazette." This has arisen principally out of our correspondence respecting the Clergy List. But, from the same cause, we have also had a considerable addition to our gratuitous circulation, inasmuch as it has brought to our notice many new ecclesiastical districts where it had not yet been sent to the resident clergyman. In a future number we shall have to notice some inquiries and suggestions arising out of this correspondence.

ECCLESIASTICAL NOTICES.

The Lord Bishop of Lincoln's next ordination will be held in Lincoln Cathedral, on Sunday the 15th of March.

The Lord Bishop of Peterborough purposes to hold his next ordination on Sunday, 15th of March.

The Lord Bishop of Worcester's next ordination will be held on the 25th of July.

The Lord Bishop of Ely will hold his next ordination in London, on Sunday, the 31st of May.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

MARCH, 1840.

The Rev. J. Endell Tyler in the chair.

At the General Meeting held on Tuesday, the 3d of March, 1840, the following report from the Standing Committee was laid before the Board:—

"The Standing Committee beg to report to the Board, that in pursuance of the resolution of the Board agreed to at the general meeting in December last, by which they were empowered to add some members from the Society at large to the sub-committee appointed to consider the best means for the counteraction of anti-Christian and immoral principles, they have added to it the following gentlemen: namely,

"The Rev. Sanderson Robins, Rev. Isaac N. Allen, Rev. John Harding, Rev. Richard Harvey, Rev. Thomas Jackson, Rev. Henry Melvill, Rev. George Pearson, Rev. J. M. Rodwell, Rev. Theyre T. Smith, Rev. Daniel Wilson.

"The Standing Committee beg further to report to the Board, that they have received a resolution of the sub-committee, by which it appears that it is deemed necessary for the attainment of the objects for which the sub-committee was appointed, that it should have the power of publishing books and tracts suitable for these objects.

"The Standing Committee having carefully considered the subject, are of opinion that it would be desirable for the Board to appoint a special Committee for this purpose.

"They therefore beg to recommend to the Board, "That the Members of the Standing Committee, together with the foregoing ten members of the Society, who are Members of the existing sub-committee, be now constituted a Special Committee, to consider the best means which may be devised for the counteraction of the anti-Christian and immoral principles that are at present obtruded on the young and inexperienced in our populous towns and throughout the country:

"That the Special Committee shall have the power of publishing such books and tracts as they shall deem requisite for the attainment of the objects for which they shall be appointed, subject to the approbation of three Episcopal Referees:

"That his Grace the President be requested to nominate three of their Lordships, the Bishops, to be the Episcopal Referees for this purpose:

"That the above power be granted to the Special Committee for one year from the date of their appointment:

"That the Standing Committee be empowered to authorize the treasurers to pay for the purchase of copyrights, and other contingent expenses of the Special Committee."

It was agreed, That this Report be taken into consideration at the next General Meeting.

The following Report from the Standing Committee was then read:—

"The Standing Committee beg to report to the Board, that in consequence of the increase of the Society's business, especially as relates to the Secretaries' department, they have thought it right to submit the subject to the consideration of a sub-committee, from whom they have received the following report:

"The sub-committee having taken into consideration the duties at present devolving on the Secretaries, and the Assistant Secretary, and the increasing business of the Society, do recommend the Standing Committee to propose to the Board,

'That the Standing Committee have authority to engage an additional Assistant Secretary, and to assign to him such amount of salary as they may deem sufficient.'

"In consequence of this report, the Standing Committee request that they may be empowered to appoint an additional Assistant Secretary, and to assign him such an amount of salary as they may deem sufficient."

This report having been read, Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke moved, that that part of it which recommends the appointment of an additional assistant secretary be adopted.

This was seconded by Mr. E. Moore, and carried. Mr. Clarke then moved, by way of amendment on the latter part of the report, that the standing committee do state to the board the amount of salary which they recommend.

This amendment was seconded by Mr. Trant, and having been put from the chair, was negatived. The part of the report to which the amendment referred was then adopted.

Mr. Clarke then moved, as another amendment, That the standing committee do, at the next monthly meeting, recommend to the board a person to be appointed as an additional assistant secretary.

The Rev. J. S. Boone seconded this amendment, which was negatived on a show of hands. A division having been called for, there appeared,

For the amendment . . . 26

Against it . . . 34

The amendment was consequently lost.

The original motion was then put from the chair, and the Report was adopted.

The following Members of the Society were appointed the Committee of Auditors for examining the treasurers' accounts:—

Rev. Dr. Russell, Rev. Dr. Short, Rev. A. M. Campbell, Newell Connop, jun., Esq.; J. Delafield, Esq.; J. H. Markland, Esq.

The Rev. Robert Monro requested to be allowed to withdraw the motion of which he had given notice at the last general meeting. This having been acceded to, Mr. Monro gave the following notice of motion for Tuesday, the 7th of April:—

"That a humble address be transmitted to her Majesty, and a petition to both houses of parliament, calling attention to the great want of church accommodation which exists in various parts of England and Wales, and praying for the adoption of efficient measures for the removal of such want."

The Rev. R. Harvey gave notice, that at the next general meeting he should move as follows:

"That his grace the president be requested to summon a special general meeting on the earliest day convenient to his grace, and that the standing committee be requested to prepare, in the mean time, a memorial to her Majesty, and a petition to both houses of Parliament, on the subject of the extension of the national Church"

A letter was read from the Rev. Dr. Hinds, of Yardley, Buntingford, making application for aid towards the building of a church in New Zealand for the emigrants now on their way thither.

The following are extracts from his letter:

"The clergyman, Mr. Churton, who has been appointed by the Society for Propagating the Gospel, will find on his arrival a congregation sufficiently large to make it important that immediate steps should be taken about the erecting of a suitable place of worship for them, and numbers are preparing to follow. The office of endeavouring to obtain assistance for this purpose has devolved on some friends of the colony, of which I am one; and we have now collected rather more than 270*l.*, besides a present of the communion-service plate. I regret that I cannot, with this application, send any precise statement of the probable cost of the building, owing to the great uncertainty about the rate of wages and other particulars in a new settlement; but supposing, as a rough estimate, that 800*l.* or 1000*l.* may be required, the Society will not, I trust, consider that a grant of 100*l.* will be disproportionate.

"There is another object to which I wish to call the Society's attention. One of the emigrants—the lady of one of the leading members of our Church—has endowed with 101 acres of land an infant school, which is to comprehend children of the aborigines and of the colonists; and which, with God's blessing, may prove a powerful instrument of civilization and Gospel light. She has taken with her two experienced teachers; and will herself inspect and superintend the establishment, for which she is well qualified. Now, although the endowment will, in time, be more than adequate for the purpose, for some years it will require extraneous support. I am endeavouring to collect subscriptions for this purpose also; and shall be glad if the Society concur with me in viewing it as an object highly deserving of some aid from its funds."

The board agreed to grant 100*l.* towards the erection of the church, and books to the value of 10*l.* for the use of the school.

A letter was then read from Captain J. Montagu, in behalf of St. George's church, Hobart Town, Van Diemen's Land. It appeared from a memorial addressed to Captain Montagu by the trustees of the building, that the sum of 1,260*l.* had been contributed by individuals in the colony towards the erection of a church in the southern part of Hobart Town, and that the government had made a grant of 1,250*l.*, together with a sum of money, in lieu of ground for a site, (288*l.* 12*s.*), making 1,538*l.* 12*s.* The church was so far completed as to have been consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Australia in May, 1838. Owing, however, to several of the subscribers having left the colony, and others having become defaulters, the trustees find the whole available sum totally inadequate to the expenditure, which has amounted to 3,495*l.*, the church being left upwards of one thousand pounds in debt. In the midst of a poor population, in which further church accommodation is required, the trustees are desirous of erecting galleries, with sittings for 400 persons; but funds are wanting for the purpose. The Bishop of Australia has offered some aid towards this object, which would also be assisted by the government; but additional means are required before the work can be commenced.

It was agreed that 100*l.* be granted towards St. George's church, Hobart Town.

The Secretaries laid before the meeting a return respecting the tracts referred to in the several memorials of the five Essex clergymen presented to the Society. The return stated the number of these tracts now in the Depository, at what time the last editions of such tracts were severally printed; and the number of copies of such editions. This return had been prepared in pursuance of Mr. Percival White's motion at the last general meeting.

The particulars stated in this document having been read,

Mr. Percival White moved that the return be printed.

This was seconded by Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke.

Mr. T. Dornford moved, as an amendment, that Mr. White be furnished with a copy.

The amendment, which was seconded by the Rev. R. Harvey, was negatived.

The original motion, That the return be printed, was then also negatived.

An application was made by the Rev. H. J. Newman, Bandon, Ireland, for a supply of one thousand Common Prayer Books for the use of schools, and poor aged Protestants in the united diocese of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross. He stated, that the former grant of one thousand Common Prayer Books had been judiciously distributed under the direction of the Bishop, but that the want of a fresh supply had now become very great.

The Lord Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, strongly recommended this application to the favourable consideration of the board.

One thousand Common Prayer Books were granted accordingly.

A letter was read from the Rev. H. O. Sewell, Secretary to the Quebec Diocesan Committee, and Church of England Missionary for parts adjacent to Quebec. The following are extracts:—

"My missionary charge comprises within its limits six regular stations for divine service, viz. Lake Beaufort, Stoneham, Valcartier, Jacques Cartier, Bourg Louis, and Portneuf. In these settlements we have, during the past year, been enabled, by Divine grace, to complete two buildings, commenced long since, to serve as churches, and to build two new ones from the foundation; while preparations are also making to erect others at each of the remaining settlements. These buildings are, indeed, but small and rough, but still they are dedicated to the worship of God and his Christ, according to the forms of our Apostolic Church. They have been erected partly by the exertions of the settlers themselves, partly by subscriptions raised in Quebec, aided in one instance by a donation of 25*l*. from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, to whose liberality the Church in this country has long been under the deepest obligations.

"With the exception of a quarto Bible at Jacques Cartier, and a quarto Book of Common Prayer, at Valcartier, the new churches are yet without desk or altar books.

"It is my earnest prayer, that God will put it into the hearts of the members of the Society, in granting appropriate books, to show, that though separated by distance, we are still one with the venerable Church of England, and considered by her as her offspring, still needing a helping hand."

Books were granted accordingly.

The Rev. H. A. Greaves, incumbent of Stonehouse, applied for a grant of Common Prayer Books, for the use of the Royal Marines stationed at the Stonehouse barracks. A letter was also received from Colonel Adair, commandant of the corps, stating that ninety copies would give every second man in church a book.

It was agreed that ninety Common Prayer Books be granted from the fund of Clericus.

Several grants of books were made.

The Secretaries stated to the Board, that it was necessary that all District Committees and members of the Society, who were desirous of having their accounts settled before the annual audit should make their remittances before the end of the first week in April.

The following legacies were announced:—

Miss Elizabeth Harrison, late of Kelvedon, Essex ... £ 100
Mrs. Sarah Bullen, late of Windsor, Berks..... 30

The following donations were then announced:—

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

4, Trafalgar Square, March 5th, 1840.
CONVERSION OF INDIAN TRIBES.

Extracted from "The Church," a Canadian Newspaper.

"Most, if not all, of the Tucaroras have been baptized and profess Christianity. In the autumn of 1838, our stations were visited by the Lord Bishop of Montreal. Above a hundred and ten persons, nearly all Indians, were confirmed, having been previously examined and approved by their Missionaries. The confirmation was evidently attended with a divine blessing, and the number of communicants at one of our churches has since been doubled. In admitting persons to the holy communion, the rubric is strictly followed. Each of them undergoes an examination by the clergyman, or in his absence by the catechist, in the presence of their brethren; and should any one be convicted of drunkenness or any other crime, he is refused admittance to the sacrament till he has openly confessed his guilt, and evinced fruits of amendment.

When variance exists between any of the communicants, care is taken that the contending parties are reconciled before they are allowed to come to the Lord's table."

Indian Mission at Munsee-Town.

"John Wampum is a young Indian of the Munsee nation, who but a few years since knew not a letter of the alphabet, and his acquaintance with the English tongue was equally limited. Having been a candidate for baptism for the last two years, having committed the Church catechism to memory and portions of the Scriptures, and being sound in the faith as it is in Jesus, he was baptized a few Sundays ago. He, with many others at Munsee-town, can now join in our beautiful Church service, and in singing the psalms and hymns, for which I have provided them with prayer-books, &c.

"It may be necessary further to inform you, that old Munsee-town, where I officiate every other Sabbath, is distant about fourteen miles from my residence, where my native congregation consists of Chippaways and Munsees. I have admitted into our Apostolical Church by baptism, from time to time, such as have given me evidence that they were under the influence of true religion; all of whom, without a single exception, have since continued walking worthy of their high vocation. I have a day and Sunday school in connection with the mission. Should I arrive at their village in time on Saturday evenings, I assemble them for divine worship, and, when I remain over Sunday, have two services on that day, both morning and evening.

"On the other Sabbaths, I have to attend to two congregations of white people, one at the village of Delaware, and the other in the township of Caradoc, where the average attendance may be from forty to seventy in each place. There are also Sunday schools at both places; the latter is superintended by a most zealous, pains-taking young man, who labours indefatigably in promoting the best interests of the children committed to his care, both at the day and Sunday schools, from that word alone 'which is able to convert the soul and make wise unto salvation.' The marriages solemnized in this Mission average from ten to twenty yearly; the communicants about thirty, including the converted Indians."

SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION OF NOVA SCOTIA.

For a distance of 200 miles along the south-east coast, occupied by many thousand persons, there is not a single clergyman of the Established Church, and not more than one minister of any denomination. The inhabitants, in a petition recently forwarded to the legislature, state that they feel it as the greatest calamity which has fallen to their lot, to be cut off from the opportunity of worshipping God after the manner of their fathers; and they painfully anticipate the same spiritual destitution for their children, unless effectual measures are soon taken to remedy so great an evil.

INDIA.

BARRIPORE.

Extracts from a Report of the Rev. C. E. Driberg.

"The sacrament of baptism has been twice administered since my last Report. On the first occasion, 12 souls were admitted into the fold of Christ, and on the second, 180. On the occasion of the last, the Bishop of Calcutta, with the Archdeacon and Rev. Mr. Pratt, were present: about 400 people were assembled, and after a very impressive address made to them by the Archdeacon, which was rendered into Bengali by me, 56 persons, who had formerly been baptized, received the rite of confirmation. It was indeed an interesting circumstance to hear the whole of the confirmation service read to the people in their own language by the Bishop. In the afternoon, the 180 above mentioned were baptized, the Archdeacon kindly assisted in administering the sacrament. * * * I am thankful to say that the last year did not close without many encouragements to persevere in the path of duty; namely, the increasing attendance at the altar; the earnest longings in catechumens to become members of the Church; the increased number of inquirers; the opening in one or two new villages;

the anxiety of Christians for the enlargement of Christ's kingdom.

Weekly visits are, as hitherto, paid to the Christians in their houses; and it is gratifying to observe with what pleasure and thankfulness they receive the visits of their minister, and how desirous they are of them, especially in time of sickness.

At Howra there have been baptized

since last Report 35

Tallygunge, after a long probation 44 adults.

And also..... 28 children."

Extracts from a Letter of the Bishop, dated 12th Sept. 1840.

"In the generality of cases in the country, the actual duties of a clergyman are not to be estimated merely by the service performed by him in the church. A more correct view may be derived from tracing upon the map the distances at which, in very many instances, the clergy are placed from one another, and considering how numerous and how widely extended must be the calls of duty among a population scattered over so wide a surface. I am anxious that in every engagement made by the Society of a clergyman's services, it should be distinctly impressed upon their attention, that it is not an appointment of ease or profit which they are coming to, but one which demands the constant exercise of great activity and much self-denial. There is nothing arranged or established here as at home, enabling a clergyman to profit by the exertions of his predecessors. He has his own way to make entirely for himself, and the demands in consequence upon his physical and mental resources will be too much for any except those who can be content to sacrifice much of their personal comfort and present advantages, in the hope of laying the foundations deeply and firmly of that Church, which, under God's providence, may prove, I trust, in future ages, a refuge and a resting-place for pure religion, under those trials which I think are evidently preparing for it in the future progress of our society. I should at this moment be able to employ fifteen more clergymen than we have; in addition to which, while writing this I have received a letter from Archdeacon Hutchins, dated the 2d instant, containing the following paragraph:—'I at present want clergy for the following stations, in which the provisions of the Act of Council have been so far complied with as to entitle them to a salary under that Act: namely, St. George's, Hobart Town; Browne's River; Brighton; Avoca; Launceston; George Town; Perth; Hamilton, and Oatlands.' These nine stations, added to those enumerated in my paper, and one or two others which I have in contemplation, present no less than twenty-four vacant stations*, having the cure of many souls attached to them; on whose behalf, I am certain, the warmest sympathies of the Society will be called forth."

* Besides the clergymen enumerated in the foregoing Report, six have sailed for New South Wales, and four for Van Diemen's Land. Indeed, the greater part of them must have arrived before this time.

HOME REPORT.

Mr. Saintsbury having resigned the office of Under-Treasurer and Receiver, it was resolved at the last General Meeting, that the thanks of the board be given to him for his past services, and that in future the Secretaries and Treasurers of the several districts be requested to make their remittances payable to the order of "the Society."

To the Secretary of the Society.

Barnwood Court, near Gloucester, Feb. 20, 1840.

"MY DEAR SIR,—By way of postscript to my last communication, I have much pleasure in sending you a short notice of a very spirited and successful meeting, held at Stow-on-the-Wold in this county, in aid of the funds of the Society. The result was in every respect most satisfactory; and it was remarked that some member of every tradesman's family in Stow was present. The liberality of the Rev. Dr. Warneford, who resides in the neighbourhood, was again displayed in the good cause by an enclosure of twenty pounds. The same sum was remitted by Lord Redesdale, both expressing their regret at being unable to give their personal attendance.

"Nearly fifty pounds were collected at the door. The Rev. R. W. Ford, Rural Dean, presided; and I need not add that the Bishop of Nova Scotia's affecting details of the spiritual destitution in our colonies produced an effect highly advantageous to the interests of the Society.

"I am, my dear Sir, faithfully yours,

"W. SPENCER PHILLIPS."

A meeting was held on Wednesday last, the 4th inst., at the School-Room, St. George's, Bloomsbury, to give information on the subject of the Society's operations and claims. It is gratifying to add that the Secretary of the Parochial Association has already received for the present year more than 200*l.* in subscriptions and donations.

The clergy and many most respectable inhabitants of the parish attended.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE ENLARGEMENT, BUILDING, AND REPAIRING OF CHURCHES AND CHAPELS.

A MEETING of the Committee of this Society was held at their chambers, St. Martin's-place, on Monday, the 17th February, 1840,—the Lord Bishop of London in the chair. There were present, the Bishops of Salisbury, St. Asaph, and Ely; the Ven. Archdeacon Cambridge; the Revs. Dr. D'Oyly, Dr. Shepherd, H. H. Norris, B. Harrison, and T. Bowdler; Joshua Watson, N. Connop, jun., H. J. Bar-chard, W. Davis, J. S. Salt, Benjamin Harrison, J. Delafield, and A. Powell, Esqrs.

Among the other business transacted, grants were voted towards building a gallery in the church at Ickham, Kent; building a church at Bury St. Edmunds, Suffolk; building a chapel at Withnell, in the parish of Leyland, Lancashire; building a chapel at Ash, Kent; building a chapel at Buglawton, in the parish of Astbury, Chester; building a chapel at Batley Carr, in the parish of Dewsbury, Yorkshire; building a church at Brighton; building a church at Rhymney, in the parish of Bedwely, Monmouth; enlarging, by rebuilding, the chapel at Poulton le Sands, in the parish of Lancaster; rebuilding the chapel at Robeston Watham, Pembroke; enlarging, by rebuilding, the church at Little Birch, Hereford; rebuilding the church at Friesthorpe, Lincoln; building a gallery in the church at Crinow, Pembroke; repewing the church at Diseworth, Leicester; enlarging the chapel of St. Bartholomew, Birmingham.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

RELIGIOUS AWAKENING AT KISHNAGHUR.

IN May last, the Committee of the Church Missionary Society received intelligence of a remarkable religious awakening at Kishnaghur, a station of the Society sixty-two miles N. by E. of Calcutta, where the Rev. William J. Deerr, one of its missionaries, had been diligently labouring during several years. The particulars of this awakening, thus communicated, were collected by the Ven. Archdeacon Dealtry, who went to Kishnaghur in February 1839, for the purpose, at the request of the Bishop of Calcutta, assisted by the Rev. Krishna Mohana Banerjee, a native missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. This deeply interesting information was printed in the Church Missionary Record for June last; and subsequently published as a separate tract, with such additional particulars as had reached the Committee to the end of October. They have now received a full and detailed report from the Bishop of Calcutta himself, in a letter to the Earl of Chichester, the President of the Society, written from Ruttunpore on the Bhojrup, near Anunda Bas, twenty-five miles from Kishnaghur, Oct. 30, 1839. The Bishop's visit to Kishnaghur was the commencement of a visitation of his vast diocese; which his Lordship calculated would occupy him eighteen months. The Bishop's visit took place eight months after the Archdeacon's: consequently, a space of time had elapsed sufficient to test, to a considerable extent, the real character of the work at Kishnaghur. The Bishop's examination of the state of things there was carried on personally at different points, and made with every practicable degree of caution and circumspection. The result yielded full satisfaction to the Bishop's mind; after, as will be seen, making a large allowance for what may ultimately prove to be unsound, and temporary excitement only. His Lordship has most kindly and considerately communicated, in full detail, to the Society what he saw, the information which he acquired, and the views and suggestions which occurred to him, as calculated to put the Committee completely in possession of the state of the mission, and to guide them in adopting such further measures as may, through the Divine blessing, be the means of sustaining and extending a work so hopefully begun.

The information comprised in the Bishop's letter is so interesting and important, that the Committee have deemed it advisable, as in the former instance, to lay it before the members of the Society in a separate tract. They trust that it may, through the influence of the grace of God, awaken the sympathy, and excite the prayers, of very many; so that His blessing may largely rest on the missionaries, the converts, and the surrounding heathen population—His word have free course and be glorified—and a numerous and pure Christian Church be gathered, and consolidated, to the praise and glory of his grace.

PRELIMINARY REMARKS.

"Bhojrup, near Kishnaghur, Oct. 30, 1839.

"I have now been twelve days in the midst of the mission villages of this station, accompanied by my chaplain, the Rev. John Henry Pratt; and have been examining, to the very best of my power, the mighty work which has been for these two years going on: a work it is—and a great one I cannot doubt—a work of the Lord Jesus—of the same character as that for which St. Paul gave thanks without ceasing, on account of the Philippian converts: being confident of this very thing, that He which had begun a good work in them would perform it until the day of Jesus Christ—a work, at the same time, requiring all the caution, fear, distrust, discipline, incessant nurture, which the Churches in the Apostolic times demanded, and without which the fairest prospects have been found, in every subsequent age, to fade and disappear; but a work calling for joy, gratitude, adoration to the God of all grace, and which may possibly issue in the awakening of the whole body of the Kurta-Bhojas to that inquiry after the Gospel which has already commenced, and bring 100,000 souls within the boundaries of the Christian Church.

"When I last wrote to your Lordship in February, I mentioned my design of beginning this winter's branch of my second visitation by coming to Kishnaghur. We arrived here on Saturday the 19th instant; and the accidental delay of the steamer, which was to have met us at Moorsheadabad, has given us a week's additional opportunity for observation. The progress of things generally, since the Archdeacon's report in February, has been most encouraging. Seventeen new villages have welcomed the Christian instructors. The number of those who are asking the way to the heavenly city is now above 4,000. The number baptized is, including those of which I shall presently give some account, between 1,000 and 1,100. The demand for teachers stretches over an extent of eighty miles—from Hooghly to the Jellingha; and a family of seven Gooroos, who have had many thousands—perhaps 8,000 or 9,000—under their direction, as spiritual guides, have embraced the Gospel, and placed themselves among the catechumens of the missionaries. Nor does there seem, at present, any given limit to the flowing tide: the current is widening and deepening daily on all hands; and, I confess, I stand astonished and overwhelmed with the goodness and grace of God in Christ Jesus! "One day spent as yesterday was," in the village of joy (Anunda Bas), is worth—as my honoured predecessor, bishop Heber, said at Trichinopoly in 1826—"years of ordinary life." I find it difficult, indeed, to sober down my mind to that cool and discriminating point of judgment, which I know I ought to do, in estimating the real good likely to be effected. But I will do my best to moderate my feelings; and your Lordship and the Society will still deduct from my statements whatever you may think needful or safe. We are in a world of sin and temptation: we have an active, powerful adversary. The human heart is deceitful: appearances are treacherous. Popular movements of any kind draw in numbers of ill-informed followers. The habits of heathen society soon steal behind the Christian inquirer, and entangle him in the old ambush. The result of real conversions, even at home, and in our largest parishes, and where crowded congregations in every quarter promise abundant fruit, is comparatively small—what, then, are the allowances to be made for our feeble flocks in pagan India? Still, the work of grace is, I am persuaded, begun in this station; and these indications of the Spirit of God moving, as it were, on the face of the waters, are causes of admiration, hope, and praise. Such beginnings of things, indeed, may, and will to a certain extent, fail; but, without these beginnings, all would remain fixed in death-like sleep. And these very beginnings are what prophets and kings have desired to see, and have not seen them—if I may allude to our Lord's language, with humble reverence, on such a theme.

"In my further remarks, I do not know that I can pursue a better course, than first to give your Lordship a sketch of my proceedings since I have been in the station. I will then offer such information as I have obtained, on the origin and preparatory steps of this great movement. The prospects and chief dangers of the mission will next occupy a few lines.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BISHOP AT KISHNAGHUR.

I. On our arrival at Kishnaghur, the first tidings which greeted us was the extraordinary fact of two or three Gooroos having come over to the faith of Christ. These were afterward stated to be seven. One had been for many years in a Christian school at Burdwan. They are all of one family, about two days' journey from Kishnaghur; and appear, so far as can be judged, to be sincere in their inquiries—for they are inquirers only. They said to Mr. Deerr, 'We hear you have the true doctrine—we are seeking truth. We are Kurta-Bhojas—we hope by devotions to obtain a sight of God, and, through that sight, salvation. We know there is only one God, the Creator of all. We know that without sacrifice there is no salvation. Put us under instruction. We renounce Hindooism—we give up caste—we wish to be Christian disciples.' To these inquirers, Mr. Deerr began at the same place, so to speak, and preached unto them Jesus. He declared the mystery of godliness: he presented to them the doctrine of God manifest in the flesh. They were struck with this sight of God—this appearance in the flesh. They are now under instruction. What will be the result, time will show. But the first step is of the greatest moment. They cannot retreat. They have given up Hindooism: reproach, difficulty, persecution they must now encounter. This they know. Nor is there one earthly inducement for these leaders to embrace the Gospel. They lose a large income, collected annually from perhaps 8,000 or 9,000 disciples. They have nothing to gain, but spiritual riches in the knowledge of Christ. The Society will be careful to observe, that the conversion of these Gooroos cannot yet be affirmed—much less any movement whatever among their followers. But there is every reason to hope that some of the seven will stand their ground; and that, ultimately, some thousands of their people may give in their names to the Lord.

"The next information we received was, that the statements published in consequence of the Archdeacon's visit in February had by no means been overcharged—that the flocks were generally conducting themselves well—that as few relapses had taken place as could have been expected, and as few instances of gross misconduct—that an evident improvement in the morals, family order, conduct in civil society, submission under injuries, diligence, and honesty, was observable, with some exceptions—that the money borrowed for seed-corn, after the total desolation of the inundated river, 5,000 Company's rupees, was now being repaid—that the increase of inquirers had been steady, and, as nearly as possible, at the same ratio before the inundation, during it, and after its effects had passed. To this particular I beg your Lordship's attention: it is decisive, and most important. We learned, further, that seventeen villages had joined the flocks of catechumens since the Archdeacon's visit; and that messengers were continually arriving, from forty to sixty miles' distance, to beg for instruction—that one or two villages having failed to obtain teachers, had sent on to Berhampore, to the missionaries of the London Society, but had been very properly referred back to their own pastors—that the number of baptized persons was nearly 700; probably, with their infant families, 1,000, or more—that more candidates were in a state of preparation for that Sacrament in every quarter—that nearly 200 were considered ready for confirmation—that ten chapels had been built of mud and bamboo, with open verandahs, costing about 100 Company's rupees each, and capable of standing ten or twenty years with care—that there were twenty catechists employed, of various abilities, but not very satisfactory persons: indeed, the character of the native teachers is too often dubious in the extreme—that the Rev. C. H. Blumhardt had arrived, and was applying himself to learning the language—that the Rev. Messrs. Krauss and Lipp were expected: they arrived on Monday the 21st, and were directed by the committee to plant themselves in Solo, and in some other central spot, with the Rev. A. Alexander and catechist Rozario, for the same purpose—that their grand wants were (1) catechists of really solid piety and character, (2) houses for the missionaries, (3) schools for Christian children, (4) chapels in the larger neighbourhoods—that then, as the three newly-arrived missionary brethren acquired the Bengalee (two years for a tolerable, and five for a competent knowledge, will, alas! be necessary; but much may be done earlier, in a variety of subsidiary labours) all would proceed well—and, finally, that an Auxiliary Local Society had been formed, to aid the Calcutta Corresponding Committee, and were about to circulate an appeal to the different stations for help: 600 or 700 Company's rupees had already been sent there, from friends in the army of the Indus; and 2,500 Company's rupees had been collected at a fancy sale at Calcutta for female schools. With this cheering information we set forth.

"It was on Saturday, the 19th of October, that we arrived at Kishnaghur; and on Monday, the first assemblage from the nearest villages took place there, in the Church-Missionary Boys' Heathen School: 200, or 300, were present; and about forty were admitted to confirmation, after two hours as close examination as I could institute. Mr. Deerr, however, was ill with fever: his health is much shaken, and he could in no way leave his couch; and I had no competent interpreter, so that I was unable to learn all which I could have wished: it was a blessed sight, notwithstanding. Most of the men had been Kurta-Bhojas of the Mahomedan class: many were advanced in life, with fine Musulman features, black flowing beards, and eyes brightening as questions were proposed. I looked at them again and again with indescribable affection; and said to myself, as Dr. Buchanan, when on a visit to the Syrian churches, 'Can these be children of Abraham?' I was strongly reminded, also, of the scenes which I had witnessed near Calcutta, in the Janjera and Barripore missions of the venerable and incorporated Society. There was the same fervour in responses; the same simplicity of faith; the same occasional point and acuteness in their replies, which had made me almost start from my chair at that time.

EXAMINATION OF THE PEOPLE, AND ADMINISTRATION OF CONFIRMATION AND BAPTISM.

"On Tuesday the 22d we proceeded to Solo, twenty-two miles. As I entered the first mission Bungalow erected in this new mission, where a desolate wilderness stretched two years before, I paused, to give thanks to God, and adore His providence and grace. We bowed our knees as soon as we met—the Rev. A. Alexander, whom I had ordained deacon the preceding Friday, Mr. Pratt, Mr. Rozario, and myself—to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that He would strengthen us by His Spirit in the inner man, and enable us to rise up, by the boundless love of Christ, to all the fulness of God. After breakfast, a large concourse filled every part of the chief room—36 feet by 18: there must have been more than 150. Morning prayers in Bengalee were read; and I preached from Acts xiv. 22: 'Confirming the souls of the disciples; and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.' Such an audience I had never addressed before in Bengal. In the south, at Tanjore, in 1834-35, I had. My heart leapt within me for joy. The examination which followed was entirely satisfactory; as Mr. Alexander has been twenty-one years in the country, and twelve years in the Society's service, and was a perfect interpreter. I especially addressed the candidates for confirmation; and told them, that as they had stood firm for eight or nine months—and had testified this, so far as I could learn, by their spirit and conduct—I was now about to inquire of them whether they would confirm and ratify the vows of their baptism publicly before the Church; and that if they were ready to do it, I would, after the example of the apostles, lay my hands upon them, and implore the grace of the Holy Ghost—that they would then, by renewed bonds, be dedicated to the Lord—and that assuredly He, who had promised His Holy Spirit to them that ask Him, would not withhold that blessing, when solemnly and humbly sought for on so great an occasion. I confirmed twenty-seven. The Holy Communion was then administered, for the first time, at Solo, to the missionaries only; as we thought it safer not to admit even those confirmed to these blessed mysteries till they should be further instructed. Indeed, I may assure your Lordship and the Society, that I have endeavoured to err on the side of caution, rather than of precipitancy, in our proceedings. There are about twenty villages in Mr. Alexander's district around Solo; and a friend in Calcutta is designing to erect, at his own expense, as we understand, a suitable chapel, with solid walls, to contain 500 or 600 persons, at a cost of 3,000 Company's rupees.

"On our return to Kishnaghur on Thursday, we found that the delay of the steamer would allow us a few more days; and we instantly formed a plan for visiting Anunda Bas and Ranobunda, where many candidates for baptism, as well as confirmation, were anxiously awaiting us. On Monday the 28th, accordingly, we reached Rutenpore, where I began this letter, and on Tuesday celebrated divine service at Anunda Bas—so termed from the beauty of its site—about two miles from the little river Bhojrup, which flows gently, like the waters of Siloah, and blesses, instead of desolating, like the Jellingha, the lands which it inundates. Here a crowd of 500 filled the missionary chapel; with verandah and tent-cloths extended beyond, to defend them from the sun. There were 150 or 160 candidates for baptism, approved by Mr. Deerr—who had now risen from his sickness, and was, for the first time, with us; and upward of 100 candidates for confirmation, of those baptized in February by archdeacon Dealty: the rest, to the number of 250 or more, were catechumens and heathen. The service lasted about three hours, in an atmosphere inexpressibly hot, and we were pressed on all sides with human faces. I began, therefore, with the examination for baptism. The candidates were arranged in rows. 'Are you sinners?'—'Yes, we are all sinners,' was resounded from one end of the chapel to the other. 'How are you to obtain forgiveness?'—'By the sacrifice of Christ,' re-echoed the crowd. 'Who is Christ?'—'The only Son of God.' 'What do you mean by His sacrifice?'—'We were sinners, and deserved God's wrath; and Christ bore that wrath in the stead of us,' shouted some. 'He suffered in our place,' cried other voices. I pause, to call the Society's attention to this point: the Kurta-Bhojas uniformly seize on the doctrine of atonement: they say, 'This is what we have been seeking for.' It seems that their notion of obtaining a sight of God is met by the doctrine of a God incarnate suffering for man. Thus our missionaries, like St. Paul, know nothing among their converts but Jesus Christ and Him crucified; which, though still a stumbling-block to some, and folly to others, is Christ the power of God, and the wisdom of God, to them that are called of all nations, and kindreds, and tongues, and people. But I proceed. 'How is your heart to be changed, and made holy?'—'By the Holy Ghost.' 'Why do you desire baptism?'—'To obtain the pardon of our sins.' 'Will you renounce all conformity to idolatry; poojaha, feasts, processions, &c.?'—'We renounce them all.' 'Will you give up caste?'—'Yes; we have already.' 'Will you forgive injuries for Christ's sake?'—'Yes.' In short, I went over the chief points in the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, and the other topics in the Catechism. I then asked Mr. Deerr how long they had been under instruction. He replied, a year, or more. I inquired if they had been living consistently. He answered, 'Yes.' Upon this, I begged Mr. Deerr to proceed with the baptismal service, in Bengalee. When he came to the questions, I paused, and said, 'The Church requires two witnesses for each candidate for adult baptism—will, then, the baptized Christians present be witnesses for them?' They shouted that they would. 'Will you advise, assist, warn, and strengthen them?' They answered, 'Yes.' The sight now was most touching. The flock already baptized, with keen look, were waiting to know whether the new candidates would be admitted. I said, 'Then I accept your sponson.'

The Rev. Mr. Pratt and Mr. Alexander, with the catechists presenting the moveable font, then proceeded along the lines of catechumens, and administered holy baptism. I then stood in the midst; and received them in a body into Christ's Church, pronouncing, as well as I could, in Bengalee, the prescribed formula. The rev. brethren then again went round, and signed them with the sign of the cross, repeating to each the appointed words of signature. It is impossible to conceive the solemnity and joy on every countenance.

"The baptisms being ended, I explained the nature of confirmation or ratifying: and having the candidates before me—above 100—I asked them if, after eight or nine months, they were ready to stand to their baptismal engagements; or if, on the contrary, they repented of their vows. They shouted, with thrilling energy, 'No, we do not repent: we stand to our baptismal dedication.' I inquired whether they were prepared to go on, under the banner of Christ, to their lives' end, whatever they might be called to do, or to suffer. They replied, 'Yes.' I asked, in what way they hoped to do so. 'In the strength of Christ,' was the shout of answer, almost in the words of the apostle: for all our doctrine in these missions is simple, apostolic, old-fashioned truth; without superstition on the one hand, and without fanaticism or neglect of means on the other. When the confirmation was over, I addressed a brief exhortation:—'Your village never deserved the name of Anunda Bas till these days of the Son of man: it is now the abode of joy. Three kinds of joy are in it—joy in the tidings of a Saviour, as the angels sang—joy in your hearts, by this Saviour being born and formed within you, as the apostle speaks—and joy in heaven, over many sinners who have repented. You, who are confirmed, have now given in your names again as the soldiers of Christ; and the Holy Ghost has been, and will be, communicated to you, in answer to prayer. You who have come to holy baptism, repenting and believing, have been 'made children of God, members of Christ, and inheritors of the kingdom of heaven.' You, who are inquirers and catechumens, have this day seen in what holy bonds you are to be knit to Christ. You, who are spectators only, are now invited to examine the evidences of the Christian faith, and no longer to worship an unknown God. Let joy fill every heart—the joy of inquiry, the joy of expectation, the joy of baptism, the joy of confirmation in Christ, the joy of a Saviour born into the world, the joy of the heart receiving this Saviour, the joy of angels exulting over penitent sinners. There is only one class of persons which causes no joy—the hypocritical—the false-hearted—the backsliding—the obstinate—the impenitent. What joy can there be on the account of these treacherous and rebellious spirits? None; except to the devil, the great adversary, and his angels!"

"The following day, Wednesday, the 30th, the same blessed duties were repeated at Ranobunda; with this difference, that the candidates for baptism were more numerous, about 260; and those for confirmation fewer, 15. But the crowd, the attendant inquirers, the heathen, the eager answers of the examined candidates, &c. were the same. I can truly say that I never was so penetrated with the beauty of our liturgical offices for baptism and confirmation, as during these visits. The prayers and thanksgivings of the first, the imposition of hands and invoking of the Holy Ghost of the second, were appropriate indeed! The one was the sign and seal and first day, in the eye of the Church, of the heavenly birth; the other was the descent of the strengthening grace of Christ upon the new-born Christian converts—all was simple, sublime, scriptural.

"We returned on Thursday to Kishnagur, and welcomed Messrs. Krauss and Lipp from Calcutta; and, in the evening, laid the first foundation of the boys' sleeping apartments; to be succeeded, as we hope, by houses for the missionaries and girls' schools, and appropriate buildings for commencing Christian education vigorously, as the mission proceeds. On Friday I spent several hours with the four brethren, consoling, advising, admonishing, exhorting, to the best of my power. The number of baptisms was above 400; and of candidates for confirmation, 182, or a few more. The baptisms, added to the 600 or 700 previous, raises the whole number to between 1,000 and 1,100, and, with the families, many more; while the confirmation of nearly 200, out of 650 or 700, is a very high proportion, considering how many children were among those baptized. It is a pleasing fact, that a little subscription was begun here on Sunday, in this small station of fifty or sixty persons; and the subscription paper shows already between 500 and 600 company's rupees."

The Bishop then gives an account of the Origin and Preparatory Steps of the Awakening, for which we regret that we cannot find room.

CHURCH EDUCATION SOCIETY FOR IRELAND.

At a meeting of the Committee, held at 115, Grafton-street, Dublin, on Wednesday, 19th Feb. 1840, the very Rev. the Dean of Lismore in the chair, Resolved—"That in consequence of the arrangements lately made between the National Board of Education and the [Presbyterian Synod] of Ulster, it be notified to our diocesan associations, through their secretaries, that this Society neither has, nor ever has had the remotest intention of applying for assistance from the National Board, inasmuch as that board appears to have made no approximation whatever to the fundamental principle of Christian education, from which this Society never will depart,—namely, the Scriptural instruction of every pupil in their schools.

(Signed) "H. COTTON, Chairman."

NATIONAL SOCIETY.

National Society Subscription Committee Rooms, 50, Leicester Square, 26th Feb. 1840.

SIR,

Two years have now elapsed since many influential persons united in endeavouring to improve, extend, and develop the actual system of National Education through the medium of the National Society.

The object at that period of the Archbishop of Canterbury, as president of that Society, and of the other Bishops who agreed to sanction and aid our common cause, was purely religious and independent of political influences. The designs of those who, under their guidance, endeavoured to increase the resources of the National Society, were of the same independent character.

Education had always, until then, been viewed as a domestic question. The system in force identified the parochial clergy, the school managers, the school supporters, and the scholars themselves, with the institutions of the country.

The dependence of our poorer neighbours upon their landlords and employers for instruction, was a source of mutual benefit and happiness.

Those who devoted their time and talents gratuitously to the public good, were repaid by the grateful feelings of their tenantry; and no interference of a political character disturbed the School committees, which bring lay and clerical friends of education so happily together.

All that the system seemed to require was greater governing vigour and ecclesiastical superintendence, with larger pecuniary support. Upon this understanding, a special Committee of Inquiry and Correspondence was appointed in the month of April, 1838; the Bishops generally undertook to form and regulate diocesan boards on the model of that in Westminster; and the lay friends of the Church, without reference to any political bias, combined with the collegiate and parochial clergy to give them moral influence and pecuniary assistance.

Thus the movement in behalf of Church-education began with the authorities of the National Society, and was under their direction: but it did not long remain in their peaceful hands. During the session of 1839 the appointment of a Committee of the Privy Council brought division among public men who had previously agreed, "with reference to fundamental principles rather than particular plans, to become new members of the National Society," and led to the collision of the two branches of the legislature on a subject in regard to which, more than any other, the upper house was entitled to deference, because there alone the heads of the Church can give utterance to the sentiments of the clergy.

The Committee of Inquiry and Correspondence, after having exerted itself to organise the country for educational purposes, was authorised by a resolution passed at the great meeting, held in Willis's Rooms, on the 28th of May last, to form a subscription committee, in order to found a Church training institution, and promote education generally.

In the mean time, the proposal made by the authorities of the National Society, in their letter of the 19th of July, to promote a general inspection of all schools through the agency of diocesan boards, was not acceded to by the Committee of Council; and when it became known that state-inspectors had been appointed—while the clergy, who had built schools in expectation of support from government unconditionally, became burdened with a condition disapproved of by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and by school-managers generally—the importance of increased support to the Society became more than ever urgent.

Under these circumstances, the Subscription Committee of the National Society address you. 17,000*l.* and 2,000*l.* per annum have been already subscribed for the general purposes of the Society, by about 1,500 persons; the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge has given 5,000*l.*; collecting agents have been employed with success in various towns; and in order to extend the circle of their exertions to places where an immediate canvass would be impracticable, the Committee have, by means of correspondence, obtained many thousand signatures to a declaration which embodies the recognition of fundamental principles, with an assurance of some future pecuniary support.

The more such signatures can be multiplied, the greater will be the strength of the National Society, numerically, morally, and financially. If, therefore, you, whose zeal in the cause of Christian truth gives your support a special value, feel disposed to aid in completing the National Society's extended operations, according to the original plan sanctioned by the Archbishop in February, 1838, you will greatly oblige the members of this Committee by returning the inclosed declaration with your own signature, and those of any friends who live near you, either by return of post, or as soon after as you can conveniently do so. The term "use their exertions," is understood to mean a contribution in money, together with any good offices which in your own judgment may appear conducive to the interests of the Parent Society in its corporate character, over and above the claims of diocesan or other boards.

Whatever money may thus be raised will be dispensed again in grants through the different dioceses; and as the poorest districts are those in which education is most needed, the central funds of the Parent Society will invigorate every provincial effort. It has now supporters of every grade in life,—yeomen, farmers, tradesmen, and mechanics, as well as gentlemen, with their wives and daughters; and thus by degrees we hope to interest in behalf of Church education, by means of central funds, a daily increasing circle of subscribers.

If it should appear to any one who has already kindly signified his adhesion to the National Society, that to do so a second time is superfluous, the Committee would respectfully request him to remember the important and critical events which have occurred in the interval.

A Committee of Council still exists, against which the great majority of peers, spiritual and temporal, have protested. Through the agency of inspectors and grants of public money, that committee, of which the members may hereafter be Roman Catholics or Socinians, is now endeavouring to obtain an influence, directly or indirectly, over all schools. Against that influence, poor as they are, and much as they compassionate their poorer neighbours, more than 160 clergymen and school committees, by refusing to accept the public grants, in reliance on which they had built school-houses, have entered their solemn protest—a protest rendered doubly influential by the fact, that whilst great exertions were made to overcome their scruples, the authorities of the National Society left each individual to the ut-fettered exercise of his own judgment. It was not until after an independent decision had been made, that they relieved those claimants by a loan, the opportune arrival of which saved one clergyman from the danger of a threatened arrest.

Shall it then be said, that while those conscientious men remain indebted to the Society, and while money thus appropriated is inapplicable to other cases, the persons who came forward in 1838, before the struggle commenced, evince less interest now, when the independence of all Church schools is invaded? Can others, who have hitherto been inactive, remain so? Is it not rather a reason for tenfold exertion? and the more so when we consider, that if, in 1838, the persevering energy of a few revived the dormant sympathies of thousands, those same persons who now appeal to you do so with all those sympathies and energies united, in behalf of the same cause, and in support of the same venerable primate.

A large majority of peers voted to address the Queen against the Privy-Council committee; a similar vote was given by more than 300 members of the lower house, including a majority of Protestant members, who, on a question affecting the Church, may fairly be said to deserve more consideration than the representatives of Romanists. Nine-tenths of the gentry wish to uphold the legitimate influence of the clergy over parochial schools. All fathers and mothers in the land are anxious that their children should be rescued from Socialism and Chartism.

Let us, then, unite every where in support of the Incorporated National Society, whether as churchmen anxious to uphold our common faith, and transmit it unimpaired to our descendants; or as citizens, who believe that, in order to insure the due performance of their social duties, the children of the poor, like the children of the rich, ought to be catechised and taught the elements of Christian truth. Let us contribute, each according to his means, whatever be our station in life; and a progressive fund will be raised, far greater than is likely to be exacted in these times from taxation, to complete, in a systematic manner, the work, which may otherwise proceed slowly and irregularly, but which a vigorous effort, and that alone, can render adequate to the emergency.

If, after perusing this letter, you should be disposed to aid their efforts in the same spirit which dictates their appeal, the Committee will be glad to benefit by your valuable assistance; and while their operations extend to all classes, in all places, through the medium of regular correspondence and agency, they will endeavour to render your share in the undertaking as little onerous and as largely influential as possible.

The favour of an early answer is earnestly requested, in order that your name may be added to the large number of others already given in, before new steps are taken to obtain support on a scale worthy of the occasion.

I am, Sir,
Your very obedient humble Servant,
ASHLEY, Chairman.

Copy of Proposals for improving and extending National Education through the agency of the "NATIONAL SOCIETY for Promoting the Education of the Poor in the Principles of the Established Church." Circulated under the sanction of his Grace the President, in the month of February, 1838.

It appears, from the report of June, 1837, that the Society has now on its list:—

NATIONAL SCHOOLS.	SCHOLARS.
10,856 Daily and Sunday.	558,180 Daily and Sunday.
6,068 Sunday only.	438,280 Sunday only.
In 12,391 towns and villages.

These are maintained through the clergy, partly by local contribution, and partly by the parents, who, when they can afford it, pay one penny, twopence, or threepence a-week, for each child. They are therefore distinct from charity schools. Treasury grants, and the sums raised by the Queen's letter, have been hitherto confined to buildings.

The expenses of printing, stationery, clerks, &c. and of the Metropolitan Model School for Teaching Bell's System and the Infant School System, in Westminster, exceed the Society's actual income.

With means thus insufficient, but based upon the comprehensive principle of Church-membership and clerical co-operation, the Society's labours have extended to almost every parish in the land; and if lay members of the Church would now come forward with support on a corresponding scale of magnitude, to complete the work so wisely begun, more especially in the metropolis and other large towns, there would be no occasion for new schemes, or new machinery, or new influences.

The leading objects now sought to be promoted, are,—

1. IMPROVEMENT;—2. EXTENSION;—3. DEVELOPMENT of the actual system.

By improvement is meant principally, the training of masters themselves, under a system of sound discipline, classification, and honorary encouragement, which shall elevate their characters, enlarge their attainments, and stimulate their ambition as a body, by holding out to professional excellence a certain hope of professional advancement. Good masters will then ensure to us good schools—the rate of payment will rise in proportion to their superior worth,—and children, trained from earliest infancy in communion with the Church, will learn to fear God and honour the Queen for the remainder of their lives.

By extension is meant the establishment of new schools or classes for poor tradesmen and farmers, and, if possible, the union of many schools, now conducted on independent principles, with the Society, under the president and standing committee at Westminster; so that, by unity of design, and concentration of force, they may, in concurrence with diocesan or parochial committees, direct and strengthen the system in all its ramifications.

By development is meant the adaptation of the old system of the Society to new wants and higher purposes, by availing ourselves of all the machinery which the Church itself affords, parochial, collegiate, and diocesan,—by increasing the number of masters in each school,—and by instituting a class of junior teachers, who shall carry out the Monitorial System.

We may thus obtain in every diocese an organized and efficient body of masters, and in every school an adequate number of well trained teachers, under subjection each to his own head-master. He will remain under the parochial clergy, and they under the bishop; who, being himself one of the heads of the Parent Society, under the Primate, and able to confer his license agreeably to the canon, as a high moral privilege and reward, will give life, energy, counsel, and, under Divine Providence, blessing to the whole undertaking.

The present juncture calls imperatively for exertion. It has therefore been deemed expedient, by several influential persons, that an example be set of subscription and benefaction, in order that funds thus raised may be applied, under the direction of the president, vice-presidents, and standing Committee, in such manner as they may deem best, to these great national objects.

Declaration appended to the above Circular in February, 1838.

List of persons who, with reference to fundamental principles rather than particular plans, are willing to become new members of an old Society, thus incorporated by royal charter, under her Majesty, with Church and State.

[This declaration of adhesion to the National Society was signed by 1,200 influential persons during the spring and summer of the year 1838; and led, after the formation of diocesan and other boards, to the present effort in behalf of the central funds of the incorporated National Society.]

Central Infant School, Tufton-street,
Men's Boarding-house, Cannon-row,
Women's Boarding-house, Smith's-square, } Westminster.

The committee of the National Society have now two houses for the separate reception of male and female teachers, in which they are comfortably boarded and lodged, accustomed to regular and domestic habits, and instructed in religious and useful knowledge. The men's boarding-house is under the care of a clergyman, who resides therein, and who also gives instructions at the women's boarding-house, which is under the care of a matron.

All persons, on applying for admission, are required to produce a certificate, signed by the clergyman of the parish where they have last resided. They must also produce testimonials of their moral and religious character, from three respectable householders, to whom they have been personally known for a sufficient time; these testimonials to be entirely in the handwriting of the persons who sign them, and countersigned by the clergyman of the parish in which the several householders reside.

The applicants will be examined as to their knowledge of the Bible and Prayer-book, of sacred history and geography, and in reading, writing, spelling, grammar, and arithmetic; the women will also be examined in working, sewing, &c. Unless they can, 1. read fluently, and spell correctly from dictation; 2. write a fair, legible hand; 3. are well practised in the first four rules of arithmetic; and 4. have a competent knowledge of Holy Scripture and of the Prayer-book,—it is needless for them to apply, as they will at once be rejected.

The men are to present themselves for examination on Tuesdays at the Boarding-house in Cannon-row, exactly at nine o'clock A.M.; and the women at the Boarding-house in Smith's-square, at the same hour, on Wednesdays; bringing with them in each case their certificates and testimonials.

Unmarried men are required to enter the men's boarding-house, and to pay ten shillings each a-week in advance, for their board and lodging. Unmarried women are, in like manner, required to enter the women's boarding-house, and to pay seven shillings each a-week, in advance, for their board and lodging.

The above payments are respectively reduced to five shillings a-week on the promotion of each person to be a candidate for a situation.

The instruction afforded by the Society, both at the boarding-houses and in the central school, is gratuitous.

EMPLOYMENT OF TIME.

The time of the masters in training is divided between the boarding-house and the central school. At the former, they study under the principal; at the latter, they are trained by the master in the practical art of teaching and governing a school. All females in training are required to attend for a fortnight in the infant school.

After probationers have received sufficient general instruction, and become expert in the art of teaching, they will be promoted to be candidates for a situation. Good moral conduct is especially regarded in this promotion; and a weekly report of the conduct of the teachers, both in the boarding-houses and at the central school, is laid before the School Committee.

APPOINTMENT OF THE REV. E. FIELD AS INSPECTOR.

*National Society's Office,
Sanctuary, Westminster, 13th Feb. 1840.*

REV. SIR,

I have it in command from the Committee of the National Society, to inform you, that at a meeting of the Committee, held on the 5th inst., it was unanimously resolved to appoint you one of the Society's inspectors of schools. In announcing to you this appointment I am directed to add, that your commission to execute your office must in every case be derived from the Bishop of the diocese: and you should put yourself into immediate communication with the diocesan or district board. I feel confident that you will never fail to obtain the cordial co-operation of the clergyman and school managers. When I have further consulted the Committee, I shall be prepared to send you full instructions for the performance of your duties.

Believe me, Reverend Sir,

Your faithful and obedient Servant,
JOHN SINCLAIR, Secretary.

The Rev. Edward Field.

CLERGY ORPHAN CORPORATION.

THE Annual General Court was holden at the Freemasons' Tavern on Wednesday, Feb. 26, the Lord Bishop of London, V.P. in the chair. The Court was attended by the Right Hon. Lord Kenyon, the Ven. Archdeacon Cambridge, and many of the lay and clerical supporters of the charity. Dr. Shepherd, one of the Treasurers, exhibited a statement of the receipts and expenditure during the last year, and reported the institution to be in a flourishing state in all respects. The Archbishop of Canterbury was then re-elected President, the Lord Bishop of London Vice-President, and Archdeacon Cambridge and Rev. Dr. Shepherd were re-appointed Treasurers of the Corporation. After filling up vacancies in the two committees, the Court proceeded to the election of orphans, and six boys and twelve girls were admitted into the schools. There will be another election at the Quarterly Court at the end of May.

REPORT OF THE TITHE COMMISSIONERS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES.

TO HER MAJESTY'S PRINCIPAL SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

MY LORD,—It is our duty to report to your Lordship the progress of the commutation of tithes in England and Wales during the past year.

We have now in office 4,993 agreements, of which 3,980 have been confirmed; and of these 1,916 have been received, and 1,990 confirmed during the year 1839.

We have in the office 414 awards, of which 178 have been confirmed; of these, 357 have been received, and 172 confirmed, during the year 1839.

We believe that rent-charges have now been fixed in about 5-12ths of the tithe districts of the country (exclusive of those parishes or places the tithes of which have been commuted by local acts of Parliament).

We have received 2,184 apportionments, of which 1,157 have been confirmed; of these, 1,521 have been received, and 933 confirmed, during the year 1839, and 823 have been received during the last six months of that year.

The progress of voluntary agreements has been considerably accelerated during the past year; that of apportionments very much more so. More time is usually consumed by this last process than the six months originally contemplated by the legislature. Allowing, however, for this fact, the receipt of apportionments is at length following up the receipt of agreements with tolerable regularity.

We have to repeat this year the satisfaction we have before expressed at the amicable manner in which the apportionments have been completed. This part of the commutation, it was feared, would be the most beset by strife and difficulties. The event has proved such fears groundless.

Angry appeals are the very rare exception; contented acquiescence is the general rule.

This result has unquestionably been principally produced by sufficient time having been allowed for the completion of the process by valuers, named by the landowners themselves, possessing, and, as the event proves, deservedly, their confidence.

But if this full allowance of time has produced harmony, it has also produced delays, which have not been without their inconveniences.

To explain more fully the cause and effects of these delays, we append to this report a circular of our own, issued in August, 1838, which we also appended to our last report.

We very earnestly wish to draw the attention of both tithe-payers and tithe-owners to the cautions and advice contained in it.

While the business of apportionment remains in the hands of the land-owners, the policy and provisions of the Tithe Act leave the entire control over that process to them, and give us no such control at all.

We regret that the tithe-owners, as a body, seem very partially aware of this fact. We continually receive from them requests and complaints, which show that they believe it to be in our power to regulate and direct the movements of the apportioners.

It is important they should understand more generally that our power over this process only begins when we have resorted to the decided step of removing it altogether from the hands of the land-owners, and taking it into our own; and when, for the first time, we ourselves select, instruct, and pay the persons who conduct it.

On the expense, the inconvenience, and the wide irritation, which would follow our being generally called on to take this step, we have before dwelt.

These considerations induce us the more anxiously to repeat our hope that the parties will keep the probable duration of the process of apportionment steadily in view while making their own arrangements; that the tithe-owners, who have compositions, will keep their right to them entire till after the completion of the apportionments, and that the land-owners will make such stringent contracts with the apportioners and mappers as may effectually prevent any delays not wholly inevitable.

In all cases, however, in which wilful loitering with the apportionments can be proved, we wish it to be understood that we shall, on a distinct statement and request from the tithe-owners, feel bound to interfere at once.

Legal doubts and difficulties as to the effect of the hop clauses, have obstructed the commutation in some important districts. They are now sufficiently removed to enable us to work those clauses with comparative ease and confidence.

During the progress of this work, however, it has appeared to us that a slight further simplification of those clauses might be practicable and useful. We do not think fresh legislation necessary or advisable for this subject alone; but, should an opportunity occur, we think it may be worth the attention of the legislature.

As the Tithe Acts at present stand, though we have power to declare that the rent-charges shall begin before the confirmation of the apportionment, we have no power to stop the perception of tithe in kind before the apportionment is confirmed.

The hardship of allowing tithe in kind to be collected after a rent-charge has been actually declared, has been strongly pressed on us. If, however, a power should be vested in us of extinguishing the tithe before the confirmation of apportionments, such a power must obviously be accompanied by others which would secure the receipt by the tithe-owner of an unapportioned rent-charge.

Unless the receipt of voluntary agreements should appear likely to fall permanently and considerably short of the average of last year, we do not think it expedient to extend our compulsory proceedings beyond the four classes of cases enumerated in the annexed circular.

We have the honour to be, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient servants.

W. BLAIRE,
T. W. BULLER,
R. JONES.

Jan. 1, 1840.

To the Right Hon. the Marquis of Normanby.

•• The circular alluded to will be found in the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE for Sept. 1838: but for convenience sake, we give the extract relating to the four classes:—

"The Tithe Commissioners therefore announce, that while the voluntary commutation proceeds at the pace at which it has lately proceeded, it is their intention to interfere compulsorily only in a limited number of cases, which will consist—

- "1. Of those in which litigation is in progress.
- "2. Of those in which tithe has been taken in kind prior to the appearance of this circular.
- "3. Of cases in which the Commissioners are requested by both tithe-owners and land-owners to interfere.
- "4. Of cases in which an incumbent has been recently appointed, or may be hereafter admitted to a rectory or vicarage, and becomes thereby owner of the great or small tithes."

EXTRACTS FROM THE FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE REGISTRAR-GENERAL OF BIRTHS, DEATHS, AND MARRIAGES, IN ENGLAND.

(Presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of Her Majesty.)

I HAVE obtained from the registrars of dioceses in England and Wales, pursuant to the provisions of the act for marriages in England, lists of all chapels belonging to the Church of England within their respective dioceses, wherein marriages may lawfully be solemnized according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, distinguishing which have a recognized ecclesiastical division annexed to them, and which are chapels licensed by the bishops under the act above mentioned. From returns thus furnished by the registrars of dioceses in the year 1838, it appears that in 14 dioceses no chapels had been licensed under the Act of 6th and 7th William IV. cap. 85, and that the following number had been licensed under that Act, in the following dioceses—namely, Chester, 65; St. David's, 3; Exeter, 2; Lichfield, 12; London, 3; Ripon, 2; Salisbury, 1; Winchester, 4; Worcester, 1; and York, 2; being in all 95. From the dioceses of Bangor and of Lincoln no returns have been received.

Early in the year 1837, I called attention, by means of the notice subjoined in the Appendix, to the registration of places of public religious worship not belonging to the Church of England, under the provisions of the Act for Marriages in England, which registration, under that Act, and the subsequent Act passed in the first year of her present Majesty, cap. 22, has been effected to considerable extent. The number of places of worship registered from the 31st of January, 1837, when the first registry took place, to the last day of December, 1838, has been 1,332.

I will now offer a few observations upon the degree of success which has attended registration in the first year under the new system, in regard to the number of births, deaths, and marriages registered, in England and Wales, as appears from the certified copies deposited in this office. Those numbers have been as follows:—

Births	399,712
Deaths	335,935
Marriages	111,481

The number of registered births at sea, certificates of which have been received bearing dates prior to July 1, 1838, is 13; of deaths, 154. I do not include these numbers in the abstracts, as the uncertainty which attends the transmission of the certificates makes it impossible to know whether all existing records of such births or deaths for any given period are received.

I will first advert to the registered marriages, because herein it may be assumed that the deficiency will be least, and that the anxiety of the parties married, or their friends, to secure a legal record, will render the omission to register a marriage a circumstance of rare occurrence. This assumption is supported by the abstract of answers and returns, under the Population Act of 11 Geo. IV. c. 30, in which, while the annual average number of unentered baptisms mentioned in the returns for the years 1821 to 1830, both inclusive, is 17,194, and that of burials 9,387, that of marriages is only 320. Yet it will appear that the number registered in the year ending June 30, 1838, is less by 4,627 than the number estimated by Mr. Finlaison in his letter of Feb. 2, 1839, which I subjoin in the Appendix—from whence (assuming that estimate to approximate closely to the truth), it might be inferred that many marriages had taken place which had not been duly registered; and negligence might be imputed to those on whom the duty of registration devolved. But I am of opinion that such omission cannot fairly be so imputed, except to a very small extent, and that the apparent deficiency is attributable to another cause—namely, the great additional number of marriages, which, as I have been informed by many clergymen, were, under a misapprehension of the object and effect of the recent Act for marriages, solemnized immediately before that Act came into operation, and before the period when they would otherwise have taken place, thus causing a deficiency in the returns for the ensuing year.

With respect to the registration of deaths, I am prepared to show that the deficiency is probably very small—that it is much smaller than the average deficiency in the registration of burials in the parochial registers—and that the system now established has, even in the first year, been eminently successful.

The circumstance before-mentioned necessarily causing a deficiency in the number of deaths registered in the first year of registration affects in a much greater degree the registration, of births for the same period; for the time which intervenes between the event and the registration of the same is ordinarily much longer in the case of birth than in that of death, and a greater portion of the whole number is thus excluded from the register. The deficiency appears in the returns for the quarter ending September 30, 1837; for no birth which had occurred before July, 1837, could be registered at all; and of those which occurred in August and September, many were not registered till after September, and were included in the quarter ending December 30th, 1837. A comparison of these quarters will afford some idea of the extent of the deficiency arising from the foregoing circumstance, the births registered in the September quarter being 74,588; in the December quarter, 89,528. But the last mentioned quarter is also deficient, as a comparison with the two following quarters will show:—

Births registered in the quarter ending
March 31, 1838.. . . . 113,815
Ditto ditto June 30, 1838, 121,781 and the whole of the deficiency in the December quarter must be attributed to causes other than that before-mentioned.

There is undoubtedly some deficiency in the registration of births, even for the quarter ending June 30, 1838, but the deficiency is less than that which has long existed in the registration of baptisms. The preface to the population abstract for 1831 shows that the mean average annual registration of baptisms of the years 1821 to 1830, both inclusive, was 375,349; and, by application of the same method of calculation, which has been employed with respect to deaths, it will appear that the number of baptisms registered in the year 1838, bearing the same proportion to the probable population of that year, would be 444,589. Now, the registered births of the fourth quarter were 121,781, which, multiplied by four, would exceed by more than 40,000 the estimated number of registered baptisms for the same period. I am, therefore, justified in stating that, although the registration of births has not approached so nearly to completeness as that of deaths, it has, since the commencement, made a considerable and progressive advance, and during the fourth quarter of the first year attained a superiority in point of numbers over the average registration of baptism. Among the counteracting causes which affected it in the commencement, I may here mention the novelty of the measures—some indifference to the advantages which it conferred—much ignorance and misapprehension as to its character and objects—and an extensive and stubborn opposition. I need only point to the great increase in the number of entries in the third and fourth quarters of the first year, in order to show that those impediments to registration have not continued to prevail against it, but that it has been attended with progressive success—a success which I attribute mainly to the diffusion of a true knowledge of the beneficial tendencies of the measure, and to the diligence and intelligence of the local officers by whom it is carried into execution.

I confidently expect that a progressive improvement will continue to take place under the operation of the existing law. I also entertain no doubt that in some respects improvement may be effected by a judicious application of legislative amendments. But as a call for frequent changes can be justified only by a more urgent need than at present exists, and as a correct view of the extent and nature of the requisite remedies can result only from a more mature experience than is yet possible in this early stage of the present system, I deem that I shall best fulfil my duty if I now abstain from offering my opinion upon that subject.

I am aware that with a progressive population, and especially with a population of which the ratio of increase appears to have varied so considerably in different parts of the kingdom (varying between the years 1821 and 1831, from 2 per cent. in the North Riding of Yorkshire to 36 per cent. in Monmouthshire), an attempt to form a table of mortality, showing the expectation of life at successive ages, deduced alone from the abstracts of deaths for a single year, must be attended with great risk of error. I shall, therefore, not attempt to form any such table from such materials, but shall exhibit only recorded facts, accompanied with such deductions as are clear and unimpeachable, and may serve to render comparison more easy.

The largest and most important collection of facts relative to deaths at various ages, made hitherto in this country, is the table given in the preface to the population returns for 1831, containing the ages of 3,938,496 persons (of whom 1,996,195 were males, 1,942,301 females), buried in England and Wales during 18 years, 1813-1830. In the subjoined table I have afforded the means of comparing the result of this registration of burials with those of the registration of deaths for the year ending June 30, 1838, reducing each to the same denomination, and exhibiting their respective proportions to a common total. The difference between them will be found to consist chiefly in the larger proportion of deaths of infants, which appear in the registration of deaths—a difference which was to be expected; for it was known that it was in the record of such deaths that the registration of burials was principally deficient.

Table showing the proportion of Deaths at different ages, out of 10,000 Deaths of Males, of Females, and of both sexes, according to the Registers of Burials in 1813-1830, and according to the Registers of Deaths for the year ending June 30, 1838.

SOCIALISM.

THE following letter has been addressed by Lord Normanby to the Lords-Lieutenant of the different counties throughout the kingdom:—

“Whitehall, February, 1840.

“My Lord,—An address having been presented to the Queen, praying Her Majesty to direct that steps be taken to prevent the diffusion of blasphemous and immoral doctrines by printed publications, and by other illegal means, and Her Majesty, in reply to that address, having given an assurance that inquiry should be made into the important matters which form the subject of the address, and that reliance might be placed upon her determination to discourage all doctrines and practices dangerous to morality and religion, I have to request your lordship to call the attention of the justices of the peace of the county of ——— to this subject at their next meeting at the General Quarter Sessions of the county.

“I am further to request your lordship to recommend to the magistrates assembled at Quarter Sessions, and to any magistrates to whom you may think it advisable, to make any communication before the time of the session, that in case they should receive information of any printed blasphemous publication, or of blasphemous speeches delivered at public meetings, and should deem it necessary to make known such information to the Government, for the purpose of having it considered whether a prosecution may be expedient, they should transmit to me such information, with a report of the speech or a copy of the speech or a copy of the publication, together with all necessary proofs which they may be able to procure.

(Signed)

“NORMANBY.

“To the Lord-Lieut. of the County of ———.”

CLERGY LIST.

IN the First page of this Number of the Gazette, we have endeavoured to offer our acknowledgements to those Clergymen who have kindly attended to the request which we made in our last, and have assisted us in our object of publishing a Clergy List.

The communications which we have received have not only put us in possession of much valuable information, but have shown us that the project is fully appreciated by a very large portion of the Clergy. Many of the Incumbents have not only given us the information which we requested, but have further assisted us by sending the names and other particulars respecting parishes in their neighbourhood where it was not likely, owing to local circumstances, that we should obtain it from resident Clergymen. Some of these communications we shall acknowledge privately. We ought particularly to mention that a great many of the Curates have most kindly and promptly attended to our request. And in some cases we have to thank the ladies of Clergymen's families for having afforded us the required information.

It is evident however from the returns, that there are still a great many cases in which the request has been forgotten or overlooked. We therefore think it necessary to repeat our notice of last month, with one or two alterations, which will render the object more clear.

With regard to the suggestions which have been made to us respecting the contents, we can only say that we will adopt all that can be adopted without increasing the size and price of the book beyond what we have already proposed. The second part will certainly contain the names of the Patrons, the value of the living, and the amount of the population.

We beg to lay before our readers a project for the publication of a work which we consider to be of some importance to the clergy. Up to the present time there has never been any general list of the clergy of the Church of England. In the early part of last year we announced one as preparing for publication; but we found the difficulties of forming such a list to be insurmountable, notwithstanding the assistance which we received from several of the Bishops, who kindly afforded us the use of their own documents for the purpose. But the facilities of communicating with the clergy through the medium of this Gazette, and the new arrangements of the Post Office, give us reason to believe that we shall now be able, with the assistance of the clergy, to accomplish this object.

We propose, therefore, to prepare for publication as early as possible, a work to be entitled, “THE CLERGY LIST, and General List of the Benefices of the Church of England.” The work will be published annually under the same Episcopal sanction, and under the same management as the Ecclesiastical Gazette. It will consist of three principal parts:

1. An alphabetical list of the whole body of the clergy, including dignitaries, incumbents, curates, lecturers, and those who have no preferment or duty.

2. A general list of all the benefices, with their population and value, and the names of the clergy and the patrons.

3. A list of the patronage in the hands of the crown, the bishops, &c.

The importance of such a publication will readily be admitted. Most of the secular professions already enjoy this advantage. There is the Army List, the Navy List, and the Law List; and if the clergy individually will only lend us a very little assistance, we hope in a short time to supply the deficiency which still exists with regard to our own profession.

All that we ask of them is, that the resident Clergyman of every parish or benefice will have the kindness to write down under the four following heads the requisite information, and send it by post, directed to the Editor of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

|--|
| 1. Name of Benefice, County, and Diocese. |
| 2. Name of Incumbent, and Year of Admission, with name of Patron. |
| 3. Names of Curates, Lecturers, &c. |
| 4. Names of Clergy residing in the Parish without Ecclesiastical preferment or duty. |

What we particularly wish is, to obtain the names of all the Curates, Preachers, Lecturers, &c. These have hitherto been unnoticed in any list, and there is no possibility of obtaining them with accuracy, but by such an application as this. We therefore hope that this large class of the Clergy will all feel sufficient interest in the project to transmit us their names and the rest of the particulars above, as soon as they conveniently can after the receipt of this request.

It will probably happen that in many cases, owing to the illness or absence of the resident Clergyman, he may not be able to write. In such cases we should feel obliged if some member of his family, or some neighbouring Clergyman, will favour us with the information.

THE CLERGY LIST will be published by CHARLES COX, at the Office of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, No. 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

The price of the Clergy List will be about six shillings, or not exceeding seven shillings.

The publisher particularly requests that those Clergymen who may wish to become Annual Subscribers to the work, or who may desire to purchase copies of it for the first year, will state their wishes in their letter.

CHURCH BUILDING ACTS.

THE Bishop of London has laid upon the table of the House of Lords a Bill entitled "An Act to further amend the Church Building Acts." The following are the outlines of the Bill:—

The preamble enumerates the several previous Acts; namely, 58 Geo. III. c. 45; 59 Geo. III. c. 134; 3 Geo. IV. c. 72; 5 Geo. IV. c. 103; 7 and 8 Geo. IV. c. 72; 1 and 2 Wm. IV. c. 38; 2 and 3 Wm. IV. c. 61; 7 Wm. IV. and 1 Victoria, c. 75; 1 and 2 Victoria, c. 107; and 2 and 3 Victoria, c. 49, adding, and whereas it is expedient to further explain and amend some of the provisions of the said several recited Acts. Be it therefore enacted, &c., Clause 1 provides that the Commissioners may assign a district chapelry, or district chapelries, out of a district chapelry already formed.

Clause 2 enacts that license in mortmain be not necessary in cases of endowment, grant, or conveyance, in or of houses, lands, &c., under the Church Building Acts.

Clause 3 provides that the Commissioners, with consent of the bishop, may, in certain cases, augment the stipend of the incumbent or minister of a church or chapel out of the surplus pew-rents. This power not to be exercised where surplus pew-rents have been invested in Government securities to form a fund for building or purchasing a parsonage-house, &c.

Clause 4. Subscribers to the building and endowment of a church or chapel, under 1 and 2 Wm. IV. cap. 38, may send, for the consideration of the Commissioners, a declaration as to whom they propose the patronage thereof should belong, &c.

Clause 5 provides that the right of patronage not to be affected by reason of nomination not having been sent to Commissioners, &c.

Clause 6 will describe who shall be entitled to make such nomination: the amount of qualifying subscription is at present blank.

Clause 7 provides that where the bishop is authorized to grant the patronage of a church built under 1 and 2 Wm. IV. c. 38, and 1 and 2 Vict. c. 107, an endowment of houses, lands, &c., worth at least 1,000*l.*, or of 1,000*l.*, to be laid out in houses or lands, may be taken.

Clause 8 provides that the major part in value of subscribers to a church or chapel may, in certain cases, appoint new trustees.

Clause 9 enacts that the Commissioners, with consent of bishop, or bishop alone, as the case may be, may order that the fees for the performance of the offices of the church, or for making &c., catacombs, &c., or belonging to any church (with a district) built under 1 and 2 Wm. IV. c. 38, and 1 and 2 Vict. c. 107, shall belong, after the avoidance of the parish church, to the incumbent of such church or chapel.

Clause 13 enacts that this Act shall extend only to that part of the United Kingdom called England and Wales, and to the Isle of Man, and to the Islands of Guernsey, Jersey, Alderney, and Sark.

A BILL

FURTHER TO EXPLAIN AND AMEND THE ACTS FOR THE COMMUTATION OF TITHES IN ENGLAND AND WALES.

Prepared and brought in by Sir Edward Knatchbull and Lord Mahon.

WHEREAS by an Act passed in the seventh year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Fourth, intitled, "An Act for the Commutation of Tithes in England and Wales," it is enacted, that from the first day of January next following the confirmation of any apportionment in any parish under the said Act, the lands of such parish shall be absolutely discharged from tithes, except as in the said Act is provided in certain cases, and instead thereof there shall be payable to the person entitled to such tithes, and in that behalf mentioned in the said apportionment, a sum of money in the nature of a rent-charge issuing out of the lands charged therewith; and by an Act passed in the first year of the reign of her present Majesty, intitled, "An Act to amend the said first-recited Act," provision is made for the lands in a parish being discharged from tithes (except as in the said first-recited Act is excepted) by agreement between the parties to any parochial agreement or supplemental agreement, from certain days preceding or following the confirmation of the apportionment, instead of the said first day of January next following such confirmation; but so that the first payment of the rent-charge be made and recoverable at the expiration of six calendar months from the time from which such lands are discharged from the payment of tithes; and by an Act passed in the last Session of Parliament, the commissioners appointed under the said first-recited Act are enabled by their award, and the land-owners and tithe-owners by supplemental agreement, in like manner to fix the period at which any rent-charge shall commence:

And whereas after an agreement for, or award of, rent-charge has been made and confirmed by the said commissioners, much delay is often occasioned in settling and adjusting the apportionment before the same can be confirmed by the commissioners, and by reason of the lands remaining subject to tithes or composition for tithes in the meanwhile, such tithes in many cases continue to be taken in kind, or may be so taken on the determination of any composition existing at the date of such agreement or award, notwithstanding that the parties have agreed for, or the commissioners awarded, the sum which under the provisions of the said Acts ought to be taken as the permanent rent-charge payable instead of such tithes; and great hardship is thereby occasioned, contrary to the spirit and intent of the said Acts:

I. Power to declare lands discharged from tithes in certain cases after award or agreement for gross rent-charge.—And whereas it is expedient to make provision for remedy thereof, and otherwise to explain and amend the said recited Acts, in manner hereinafter mentioned; Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That in every case where an annual sum by way of rent-charge shall have been fixed in any parish, instead of the tithes of such parish, either by agreement or award, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, by a declaration in writing under their hands and seal of office, or the hands of any two of them, at any period after the confirmation of any such agreement or award respectively, and before the confirmation of the apportionment to be made in respect of the rent-charge so fixed, upon the application in writing of any land-owner, and upon his giving such security to the said commissioners, as they shall in their discretion think sufficient for the due payment to the parties entitled thereto of such rent-charge from the period to be fixed in such declaration, to declare that the lands in such parish shall be discharged from the payment or render of tithes, or composition or rent instead of tithes, from such day as the said commissioners shall fix in such declaration in that respect; and that, instead thereof, the annual payment or rent-charge so fixed by any such award or agreement respectively, shall be paid to the person entitled to the same by half-yearly payments, commencing and calculating from such period of discharge from tithes named in such declaration as aforesaid.

II. Provision for recovery of such rent-charge.—And be it enacted, That in every such case, if the land-owner giving such security shall not make due payment to the person entitled to the same according to the tenour of such security, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners from time to time, as and when any half-yearly payment of such rent-charge shall accrue, and the same or any part thereof shall remain unpaid for the space of twenty-one days from any day fixed for payment thereof, and notwithstanding judgment shall have been previously issued in respect of any former arrears, to sue for and recover any such half-yearly payment, or so much thereof as shall from time to time remain unpaid in respect thereof, against the land-owner giving such security, by taking out a summons returnable before a judge at chambers, to compute what is due in respect of such rent-charge; and it shall be lawful for any judge before whom such summons shall be returnable, on production of such security, and on proof by affidavit of the amount so due as aforesaid, and of the service of such summons on such land-owner or on any occupier of any of the lands of such land-owner in any such parish, by leaving the same at his place of abode, to order judgment to be signed at the suit of the said commissioners, and execution to issue in due course against such land-owner accordingly, or his goods, chattels, and estates, for the amount so due, and the costs of such application, judgment, and execution, as in the case of an ordinary judgment in an action of debt; and such security shall be available against such land-owner giving the same up to and including the half-yearly payment accruing due next before the confirmation of such apportionment, and shall be in full force notwithstanding any change in the party entitled to such rent-charge.

III. Remedy for the land-owner against whom execution has issued.—And be it enacted, That in every such case the said commissioners shall make due inquiry as to any payment of rent-charge made by any such land-owner in respect of such security, previous to the confirmation of the apportionment of such rent-charge, and shall endorse on such apportionment a certificate of every such payment; and such land-owner shall thereupon, after the confirmation of such apportionment, be entitled to recover the amount specified in such certificate against the lands of the said parish subject to such rent-charge, in the proportions fixed by such apportionment, by distress and entry on such lands respectively, and shall have the like remedies or modes of recovery as are given to the owners of rent-charge for recovery thereof in the said recited Acts, or any of them.

IV. If security insufficient, arrears may be recovered as if accruing after apportionment.—And be it enacted, That if such security shall be insufficient to meet the full amount of payments which shall accrue due in respect thereof, or the land-owner giving the same shall fail to make good the amount due thereon by the space of twenty-one days next after the date of the confirmation of the apportionment of such rent-charge, it shall be lawful for the person entitled to the benefit thereof to recover the same, by the said remedies or modes of recovery given by the said recited Acts, or either of them, in respect of rent-charge fixed under any confirmed apportionment, in like manner as if the amount so due and in arrear had accrued subsequent to the confirmation.

V. Security to be free of stamp-duty.—And be it enacted, That every security taken by the said commissioners, by virtue of the provisions of this Act, and every assignment thereof, shall be free of stamp-duty.

VI. Extension of power to fix sum to be paid after determination of composition, and period for commencement of rent-charge.—And whereas by the lastly-recited Act the said commissioners are empowered, by any award, or by a supplemental award, after a parochial agreement, in certain cases, and under certain provisions, to fix the sum to be paid in consideration of the time, if any, which may intervene between the termination of any previous agreement or composition for tithes, and the time at which any such rent-charge shall commence; and the said commissioners are enabled by their award, and the tithe-owners and land-owners by a parochial agreement, after an award, are in like manner enabled to fix the period at which the rent-charge shall commence; and it is expedient to extend such power in manner hereinafter mentioned: Be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the said commissioners at any time before the confirmation of the apportionment of any rent-charge, by a supplemental award, to exercise the said powers so given to them for fixing the sum to be paid for such intervening time as aforesaid, when the same shall not have been previously fixed by their award, and also, by a supplemental award, to exercise the powers so given to them for fixing the period at which any rent-charge shall commence, as well after an award as after a parochial agreement, where such period shall not have been previously fixed by any such award or agreement, or by any supplemental award or agreement, under the said lastly-recited Act.

VII. Extension of powers to substitute fixed rent-charge instead of contingent rent-charge.—And whereas by the said lastly-recited Act powers are given to land-owners and tithe-owners, and also to the said commissioners, to substitute a fixed rent-charge, in certain cases, instead of a contingent rent-charge, where lands are partially exempted from the payment of tithes or rent-charge by reason of having been parcel of the possessions of a privileged order, and it is desirable to extend such powers in manner hereinafter mentioned: Be it enacted, That such power shall extend to all cases where, by reason of lands being partially exempted, by custom or otherwise, from the payment of tithes, or by being subject to a shifting or leaping modus, or other customary payment, or render due only on certain contingencies, a contingent rent-charge has been already fixed, or would, according to the provisions of the said firstly-recited Act, be fixed in respect of such lands; and it shall be lawful for the said commissioners at any time before the confirmation of the apportionment of any rent-charge, by any award, or by a supplemental award, where an award or parochial agreement has been made before the passing of this Act, or for the land-owners or tithe-owners, by a parochial agreement or supplemental agreement, where a parochial agreement or award has already been made in respect of such lands, to exercise such powers, in such manner and subject to the same conditions as are given by the said lastly-recited Act in cases of lands formerly part of the possessions of a privileged order.

VIII. Extension of powers in respect of lammas and common lands.—And whereas by the said lastly-recited Act certain provisions are made and powers given in respect of the tithes of lammas and common lands, which powers are to be exercised by the land-owners and tithe-owners by parochial agreement, or by a supplemental agreement after a parochial agreement, and by the commissioners by compulsory award, or by a supplemental award after an award; Be it enacted, That such provisions may be carried into effect, and such powers exercised at any time before the confirmation of the apportionment of any rent-charge, by the land-owners and tithe-owners, by a supplemental agreement after an award, or by the commissioners by supplemental award after a parochial agreement.

IX. Extension of powers of conveyance of lands to trustees and feoffees for parochial purposes.—And be it declared and enacted, That so much of the said lastly-recited Act as relates to the vesting of an estate of inheritance as to any lands in any ecclesiastical tithe-owner and his successors, notwithstanding the same be made by any corporation sole or aggregate, or any trustees or feoffees for charitable purposes, otherwise restrained from or incapable of making any such valid conveyance or assurance, extends to trustees or feoffees of parish property, or of property held by or vested in such trustees or feoffees for parochial or other uses or purposes, or in the nature of a parochial or public trust.

X. Power to parties to parochial agreement and for commissioners to declare amount of extraordinary charge.—And be it enacted, That in any case where the parties to a parochial agreement, or the commissioners in the case of an award, shall have proceeded, according to the provisions of the said recited Acts, to ascertain and fix a rent-charge in any parish wherein any of the land shall at the time of making such agreement or award be cultivated as hop grounds or market gardens, and in case of proceeding by award when notice shall have been given that the tithes of any of the lands so cultivated should be separately valued, it shall be lawful for the said parties to declare in such agreement, or for the said commissioners to declare in such award, the amount of extraordinary charge per acre to be in future payable in respect of hop grounds and market gardens or any district therein respectively in such parish; and the rent-charge mentioned in every such agreement or award respectively shall, subject to the addition of such acreable extraordinary charge, consist of the amount agreed for or awarded in respect of the tithes in such parish, other than the tithes of the lands cultivated therein as hop grounds and market gardens respectively, and the ordinary charge in respect of the lands so cultivated as hop grounds and market gardens respectively added thereto.

XI. Extraordinary rent-charge need not be distinguished on separate lands in apportionment.—And be it enacted, That it shall not be necessary to distinguish in any apportionment the amount of extraordinary rent-charge to be charged upon the lands of each individual land-owner, which shall be cultivated as hop grounds, market gardens, orchards, fruit plantations, or mixed plantations of hops and fruit; provided that the acreable amount of extraordinary charge for all the lands so cultivated respectively in any district which shall have been assigned, or in any parish wherein any extraordinary rent-charge shall have been declared previous to the confirmation of the instrument of apportionment shall be inserted therein.

XII. Half-yearly payments of rent-charge to be regulated by averages declared in January preceding.—And be it enacted, That every half-yearly payment of rent-charge under the said recited Acts, or either of them, shall from time to time be regulated by the averages published under the provisions of the said first-recited Act in the month of January next preceding every such half-yearly day of payment.

XIII. Commissioners may adjudicate parochial boundaries on requisition of land-owners of any parish.—And whereas by the said lastly-recited Act powers are given to the said commissioner or any assistant commissioner upon the application in writing of not less than two-thirds in number and value of the land-owners in any parishes or townships, to set out and define the boundaries of such parishes or townships in manner in the said Act provided, and it is expedient to extend such power in manner hereinafter mentioned: Be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the said commissioners or assistant commissioner, but at the sole discretion of the said commissioners, and only in such manner as they shall see fit and proper, to exercise all and every the powers so given by the said lastly-recited Act relating to boundaries of parishes or townships, on the application in writing of two-thirds in number and value of the land-owners of any one parish or township whose boundary shall be in question, notwithstanding the land-owners in the parish or township adjoining such boundary shall not join in such requisition: Provided always, That said commissioners or assistant commissioner shall, twenty-one days at least before proceeding to make inquiry and adjudicate on such question of boundary, cause a notice to be sent by the post or otherwise given, addressed to the churchwardens and overseers, and also to the surveyors of every parish interested in such boundary, of the intentions of the said commissioners or assistant commissioner to proceed on the question of such boundary, and shall specify in such notice a time and place of meeting so to proceed therein, and shall annex to each copy of such notice a copy of the application of the land-owners requiring the commissioners to make such inquiry and adjudication, and shall also cause a copy of such notice to be inserted, once at least, in two successive weeks previous to the day of such meeting, in some newspaper having circulation in the county where such parish is situated; and no assistant commissioner shall proceed in any such inquiry without exhibiting at such meeting the papers containing the advertisement of such notice, and also a certificate, under the hands of the said commissioners, or any one or two of them, of one copy of such notice having been respectively sent to such churchwardens and overseers, and a copy to such surveyors as aforesaid; and the assistant commissioner shall thereupon proceed in all respects, and his proceedings shall be as valid and binding as if the said inquiry had been instituted on the application, in writing, of two-thirds in number and value, as well of the land-owners of the parish to which such notice shall have been so sent, as of the parish causing such inquiry to be instituted.

XIV. This Act to be taken as part of recited Acts, and of 1 and 2 Vict., c. 64.—And be it enacted, That this Act shall be taken to be a part of the said recited Acts, and also of an Act passed in the second year of the reign of her present Majesty, entitled, "An Act to facilitate the Merger of Tithes;" and in the construction of this Act, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction, the several words used in this Act shall have and bear the same interpretation as is given to such words respectively in the said Acts or either of them; and whenever a word importing the singular number or masculine gender only is used, the same shall be understood to include, and shall be applied to several persons or parties, as well as one person or party, and females as well as males, and several matters or things as one matter or thing respectively, and the converse.

XV. Act may be amended or repealed this session.—And be it enacted, That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

LAW.

CONSISTORY COURT, TUESDAY, FEB. 18.

SPRY AGAINST FLOOD.

DR. LUSHINGTON gave sentence in this case, which was a suit for perturbation of church seat by the Rev. Dr. Spry, the rector of St. Marylebone, against Mr. Flood, the vestry-clerk, the question being as to the admissibility of an allegation on the part of the vestry responsive to the libel, the latter pleading that Dr. Spry had been forcibly dispossessed of one of two pews which had been appropriated to the rector when the new church was built, and prior to its consecration. The present allegation pleaded, that by the act 51 Geo. III. c. 181, the vestrymen had the power of letting all the pews in the new church, save those appropriated to the poor, and that in taking possession of the pew in question, and in pursuance of that power, they had exercised a just and proper discretion. The learned judge observed, that, although the jurisdiction of the Court was not taken away by the act, he must administer the law as modified by it, and to do this, he must first ascertain its true construction. Under the old law Dr. Spry had a possessory right, and the vestry-clerk, the person proceeded against, would have been a disturber, and in a new church, where there is no prescriptive title, if the Court were not fettered by statute, it would allot proper sittings for the rector, his family, and servants. The Act

"That the vestrymen shall set out and appropriate such a number of seats for the gratuitous accommodation of the poor, and such a number of other pews or seats for the use of the parishioners, as the vestrymen shall think necessary, proper, and convenient." This was a complete alteration of the common ecclesiastical law, dispossessing the churchwardens of the authority they would otherwise possess under the superintendence of this Court, and conferring it upon the vestry; and no power of supervision over the vestry was given to this Court, which had never exercised a supervision over the discretion of vestrymen in this matter, vestrymen never having had such discretionary power under the old law. The clause, moreover, was imperative upon the vestrymen, who if they failed to obey its directions would be liable to indictment. The next clause gave the vestrymen authority to let the pews, "save and except such as were to be appropriated to the poor." Here, then, were general words followed by an exception, which did not include the rector; and expressio unius exclusio alterius. It was true that you are not so to construe acts of Parliament as to affect common law rights; but this act directly overturned all the common law upon the subject. Under the strict terms of the act, therefore, he was under the necessity of admitting so much of the allegation as pleaded that the vestry had the power of taking possession of, and of letting, the pew, which disposed of the main question. But it had been also pleaded by the vestry, that in doing so, they had exercised a sound and just discretion, and various circumstances were alleged to show that they had done so. The Court, however, had no power to decide this point. The vestry were the sole judges, uncontrollable by this or any other ecclesiastical authority, and he therefore thought he ought not to admit that part of the plea, which was wholly superfluous. But these facts having been pleaded with the view of calling for the Court's opinion as to the discretion exercised by the vestry, he was bound to say that, assuming all the facts to be true, they did not satisfy his mind that a just and proper discretion had been exercised. Had the case hinged upon this point, he should have had no hesitation in saying, that all the circumstances taken together would not convince him that, for the sake of a paltry saving of a few pounds, it was wise, just, expedient, or proper, to deprive the rector of this pew, or to exact a rent for it. He admitted, therefore, that part of the allegation which pleaded the law, and rejected all the remainder, which went to bring irrelevant issues into discussion, and if they had not been irrelevant, it was his clear and undoubted judgment that they would not establish the position sought to be maintained.

SIR WILLIAM SCOTT ON DILAPIDATIONS.

I AM of opinion that Dilapidations go beyond what is generally understood by complete repairs in common tenantry; at least beyond what I understand by that expression. I understand by Dilapidations (and I think I am fully supported by the decisions of competent courts in understanding so), such repairs and renewals, and if I may use the word, renovations, if necessary, of the house and its appendages, as will enable the incumbent to enter upon and inhabit them at the period the law entitles him to take possession, or as soon after as may be, allowing time for these repairs, &c.

Dilapidations, therefore, will include not only all repairs merely substantial, but likewise some of a more ornamental nature. The house must be in proper condition as to white washing and paint, because it cannot otherwise be decently inhabited. I do not mean that it is to be new whitewashed and painted, if the whitewashing and painting is fit for use; but if it is not so, the executor is bound to whitewash and paint it anew. I need not add that the floors, ceilings, and cornices must be in good condition, as likewise, windows, frames, doors, and locks, and every part of the apparatus of a decent habitation. When I say in good condition, I mean that each should be in a sound and proper condition, fit for its respective use—their being plain is no sufficient objection against them. It would be endless for me to particularize the articles to which memory without having the several articles proposed to me, with an inquiry upon each. But I lay down the general principle to be this, that Dilapidations are such repairs and renovations as are proper to make the house habitable with decent convenience, respect being had to the value of the benefice to which the house belongs. I take this to be the strict principle of law applying to Dilapidations. I need not add that in practice this principle ought not to be acted upon with a minute and sordid rigour, but ought to be moderated in the adjustment by a liberal disregard of things trifling in their own nature and value.

WM. SCOTT.

Doctors Commons, 27th June, 1795.

In a subsequent Opinion,—

Marble hearths, chimney-pieces, locks on doors, belong to the successor, and cannot be removed nor charged for. So paper on walls, ranges and stoves, if fixed, belong to the successor. Papering* is not a dilapidation, it is considered a furniture; though painting and whitewashing clearly are.

25th July, 1795.

* * * The correspondent to whom we are indebted for a copy of this opinion informs us, that it has for years been acted upon in the diocese of York. He then adds:—"The common-law lawyers are so little conversant with Ecclesiastical matters, that it is no wonder such opinions as the Attorney General's, given in your last number, should differ from those of the most learned civilians. If any thing were wanting to prove the vagueness of the law on this subject, and the want of some more fixed and definite standard, it would be found in the opinions which have been submitted to the public in your excellent paper."

Another correspondent observes, "That the opinion of the Attorney General, given page 157 of the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE, is directly at variance with the law deduced from the last decided case (Wise v. Metcalfe), in Gibbon's excellent Treatise on Dilapidations; which every incumbent would do well to study on entering upon any benefice. Perhaps the agreement prejudiced the general right of E. F."

In our next Number we will give the case above referred to.

PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

FRIDAY, FEB. 21.

THE Bishop of ELY presented two petitions from the clergy of Bury St. Edmund's, the first praying their lordships not to sanction any measure which would interfere with the authority of the bishops, and the second (which was read at length) against certain recommendations of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, which they conceived, if acted on, would be attended with injurious effects.

The Bishop of LONDON presented a bill, which was read a first time, for amending the Church Building Act.

The Marquis of BUTE presented petitions from Glasgow and Cupar, and from parishes in Ayrshire and Renfrewshire, praying their lordships to adopt some measure for settling the question of Church patronage in Scotland.

The Earl of ABERDEEN presented petitions against the intrusion of ministers into the Church of Scotland.

MONDAY, MARCH 2.

CHURCH DISCIPLINE.

The Bishop of EXETER said he had several petitions to present to their lordships on a subject which had excited much painful interest: he alluded to the subject of Church discipline. It was his misfortune to be opposed on that subject to the opinions of those whose judgment he revered, and whose characters he respected and esteemed; but, in presenting those petitions, he was authorized to state that communications had taken place between the bishops, and he was rejoiced to say that, without a sacrifice of principle being made by any one, they were able to agree together, and to produce and promote, both before their lordships and the other house of Parliament, such a measure as would, it was hoped, be satisfactory to the Church at large and to their lordships. (Hear, hear.) The right rev. prelate then presented petitions from the clergy of the deanery of Chester, of Barnstaple, of Penrith, and several other places, praying that in any measure which might be introduced for the improvement of Church discipline, care should be taken to preserve the ancient jurisdiction of the bishops in their respective dioceses.

The Bishop of LONDON confirmed the statement of the right rev. prelate, that a measure was in progress for the improvement of Church discipline. The only difficulty in the case had reference to certain legal points, on which the advice and assistance of the legal authorities in the house would be required.

SCOTLAND.

The Bishop of LONDON presented a petition from a parish in Scotland, praying that some measure should be adopted for settling the question of Church intrusion in that country.

The Duke of Richmond presented petitions against the intrusion of ministers on non-consenting parishes from Inverness and various other places in Scotland. The noble duke said he wished to ask the noble viscount whether there was any probability of any measure being speedily laid before Parliament to reconcile the parties who were at variance on this question? He believed that it was almost impossible to describe the feeling of excitement which now prevailed on this subject. (Hear, hear.) He wished a measure to be introduced that would satisfy the moderate men of all parties; but if that were not quickly done, the noble viscount might find it next to impossible to satisfy any party.

Viscount MELBOURNE said he was not ready to state that Government would be able speedily to introduce a measure on this subject, although they were as anxious to do so as the noble duke. Looking to the interest and importance of the question in dispute, the noble duke must himself see that such a measure ought not to be introduced without due and mature consideration.

TUESDAY, MARCH 3.

MAYNOOTH COLLEGE.

The Earl of GALLOWAY said he rose to present a petition from the Protestant Association of Edinburgh; and as it was very short, and the subject was of importance, he begged leave to read it. The noble earl then read the petition, which prayed for an inquiry into the nature and tendency of the books used as class-books at Maynooth College, and setting forth that, if those books were such as they had been described to be, it was inconsistent with the duty of a Christian Government any longer to supply funds for the support of that college.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

TUESDAY, FEB. 11.

Mr. T. DUNCOMBE moved for leave to bring in a bill "to relieve from the payment of church-rates that portion of her Majesty's subjects who conscientiously dissent from the rites or doctrines of the Established Church." Lord JOHN RUSSELL, in a smart and sensible speech, exposed the consequences that must inevitably result from such a measure as that proposed by Mr. T. DUNCOMBE. After a short but spirited discussion, Mr. DUNCOMBE's motion for leave to bring in the bill was negatived by a majority of 61; the numbers being 66 and 117.

TUESDAY, MARCH 3.

FIRST FRUITS AND TENTHS.

Mr. BAINES (a dissenter) rose for the purpose of moving, in pursuance of notice, for a committee of the whole house, to take into consideration the propriety of abolishing the first fruits of the clergy in England and Wales, and the more effectual rating and the better collection of the tenths applicable to the augmentation of the maintenance of the poor clergy. Having stated on former occasions

* At this period paper was an expensive article, and a luxury. Now it is common every where, and as cheap as sions the objections to which the existing law upon this subject was liable, he should now state what alterations he proposed to make. In the first place, his plan was to abolish first fruits altogether, and in the next place, he thought that all livings under the yearly value of 300*l.* should be exempt from the payment not only of first fruits, but of tenths also. All he wished was inquiry. If the committee should say this was not a proper subject to be investigated, it would not become him to press it further on the consideration of the house. But feeling it to be a matter of paramount importance, and having been urged from a variety of quarters, most of all by the poorer clergy (?), to bring their claims before Parliament, he begged to move that the house do now resolve itself into committee, with the views stated in the above notice.

Mr. G. KNIGHT seconded this motion. Lord John Russell and Mr. Goulburn opposed it.

The house then divided, when the numbers were Ayes 38
Noes 17

Majority in favour of the motion —21

On returning to the gallery, the house were in committee, Mr. AGLONBY in the chair.

Mr. BAINEs moved the following resolution:—“That it is expedient to provide for the abolition of the first fruits and tenths of the clergy, as at present in force in England and Wales, after the next avoidance, and in lieu thereof, that one-tenth be contributed by all archbishops, bishops, and others of the clergy whose incomes shall be above 500*l.*, to be applied to augment the stipends of the poor clergy, the building of churches, and other purposes.”

The resolution was agreed to; the Chairman was ordered to report the resolution to the house, and ask leave that a bill might be brought in conformably to this resolution.

This was accordingly done, and leave was given.

The newspapers attribute the success of Mr. Baines to the absence of the Conservative members.

Sir ROBERT H. INGLIS has postponed his motion on Church Extension till after Easter. The delay affords time for the parishes and congregations which have not petitioned to prepare and forward their petitions to Parliament.

UNIVERSITY AND CLERICAL INTELLIGENCE.

Proposal for a new Prize (in a Letter from the Bishop of Calcutta to the Vice-Chancellor) which will be submitted to Convocation on the 13th instant.

TO THE REV. THE VICE-CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD.
Bishop's Palace, Calcutta, June 12, 1839.

Rev. Mr. Vice-Chancellor,

1. I am requested by a Gentleman of the Civil Service of the Hon. The East India Company, in this Presidency, to submit the proposal of a Prize for the Members of the University, if you should see fit to accept of the same.

2. The subject on which this gentleman (who begs me to suppress his name) is desirous of proposing a prize, is thus described in a letter to myself.

“For the best refutation of Hindulism in its main systems, both exoteric and esoteric; to consist of such arguments, and be conveyed in that form of address, which are most suited to Indian genius, modes of thinking, and state of knowledge, and most likely to carry conviction to the understanding and heart of the Indian Pundit; together with such a statement of the evidences of Christianity as may be most suitable to the mental and moral character of learned Hindus, and the state of information among them; the whole treatise being so constituted, as, together with the more necessary and essential arguments, to furnish also, judiciously interwoven, those elementary principles of morals, natural theology, metaphysics, historical evidence, &c. &c. and those historical facts, which the perverted condition of the Hindu intellect, and its want of correct historical information, may render indispensable, in order to the clear apprehension of the reasoning which is to form the principal subject of the treatise.

“Any considerations connected with the subject, which the writer may think interesting, and important to the European reader, but which have not a direct bearing on the primary object of the Treatise, (the conversion of learned and philosophical Hindus to Christianity) might be thrown into an Appendix.”

3. The Gentleman has lodged two hundred pounds sterling in the banking house of Messrs. Roberts, Curtis, and Co., which will be paid to your order, at a moment's notice, by a check drawn by the Rev. D. Wilson, Vicar, Islington, London.

4. The proposer leaves it entirely to the University to determine the classes of students, or members, to whom the prize should be proposed. He supposes that justice cannot be done to the subject in less than three or four hundred pages; and he wishes that the successful candidate should print a certain number of copies of the essay, at the direction of the University.

5. The gentleman further suggests that Mr. Professor Wilson, and Dr. Mill, late Principal of Bishop's College, Calcutta, might be advantageously referred to by persons intending to write for the prize, with respect to the best works to be consulted for information on the nature of Hindulism, and the state of sentiment and morals in India.

6. He states to me, also, that he is anxious to draw the attention of academical youth to the consideration of the welfare of India, and wishes the projected work to be adapted for learned Hindus, i. e. both such as are learned in their own religious and philosophical literature, and those who have received a good English education. The treatise should, in short, be in such a form, as to be at once, without further preparation or modification, a suitable work to be put into the hands of the English-reading natives, and also fit for translation into Sanscrit; and, with the latter view, it would, we think, be advisable to have it written in the form of dialogue, the different parts of the subject being introduced by questions or objections from a pupil, and expounded in his teacher's reply.

7. But all these intimations are intended to be entirely subordinate to the judgment of yourself, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, and the Heads of Houses, and the proposer of the prize will be perfectly satisfied in whatever way his main object shall be carried into effect.

8. I cannot close this letter without tendering my grateful acknowledgments to the University for all their consideration to myself since my matriculation the 1st of May, 1798; and to assure them that it is with no slight feelings of gratification I find myself called upon, in this distant country, to be the channel of communication with them on so important and deeply interesting a subject.—I have the honour to be, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, your obedient humble servant,

D. CALCUTTA.

OXFORD.

JESUS COLLEGE, FEB. 7, 1840.

A SCHOLARSHIP, open to the six counties of North Wales, with preference to Denbighshire, being now vacant, the Principal and Fellows have appointed Thursday, the 27th instant, for the election of a proper person into the vacant place. Candidates must have attained the age of sixteen years, and they must not exceed that of twenty-four years. Their letters must be sent in to the Principal and resident Fellows six days previous to the day of election.

On Wednesday, Feb. 12, in full convocation, a loyal and dutiful address of congratulation to Her Most Gracious Majesty, on the auspicious event of her marriage with Prince Albert, was unanimously agreed to, and a deputation appointed to present the same to Her Majesty on the throne.

In a convocation holden on Thursday last, Mr. Cockerell's plans for the Randolph Galleries and Taylor Building were approved.

In the same convocation a prize of 200*l.* for an Essay in refutation of Hindulism, proposed by a gentleman of the Civil Service of the Hon. East India Company, through the Lord Bishop of Calcutta, was accepted. We have reason to believe that Professor Wilson will give a few public lectures on this subject, and thus afford some valuable information on the nature of Hindulism, and the state of sentiment and morals in India, to those who may be desirous of becoming competitors. The compositions are to be delivered on or before the 14th of January, 1842, and all candidates must be members of the university, having their names on the books of some college or hall, on the day of sending in their essays.

In a congregation holden the same day, the following degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Edward Everard Rushworth, Fellow of St. John's coll.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Edward Daubeny, Demy of Magdalen coll.; Rev. Charles Tombs, Scholar of Pembroke coll.; The Hon. Charles Leslie Courtenay, Christ Church.

Bachelors of Arts.—Robert Smith, St. Edmund hall; Jas. Barclay, Christ Church; Charles Augustus Fowler, Oriel coll.

At the same time the Rev. Chas. Henry Hartshorne, M.A. of St. John's coll. Cambridge, was admitted ad eundem.

The Regius Professor of Divinity will begin a private course of lectures on St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, on Thursday, Feb. the 20th, at one o'clock. These lectures are intended for junior members of the university, as well as for those who have taken the degree of B.A.

The Rev. William Henry Price, M.A. Scholar of Pembroke coll. admitted a Fellow of that society, on the foundation of Thomas Teedale, Esq.

Mr. William Green admitted a Scholar of Pembroke coll. on the foundation of Cutler Boulter.

Rev. Henry Highton, B.A. elected and admitted a Fellow of Queen's coll. on Mr. Michel's foundation.

PEMBROKE COLLEGE.

There will be an election in Pembroke coll. on Thursday, the 12th of March, for an Exhibitor on the foundation of Mr. Oades. Candidates must not have exceeded the age of nineteen, certificates of which, and good conduct, must be presented to the Master or Vice-gerent, on or before Tuesday, the 10th, when the examinations will begin.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

An election to Three Scholarships now vacant in this coll. will be holden on Friday, March the 20th. One, on Sir Simon Bennet's foundation, is open to persons born within the province of Canterbury, and two are open without any limitation as to place of birth. The examination will commence on Tuesday, the 17th, and candidates are required to present in person to the Master the usual testimonials of good conduct from their respective colleges or schools, together with certificates of their baptism, on or before Monday, March the 16th.

In a convocation holden on Wednesday, Feb. 19th, addresses of congratulation to His Royal Highness Prince Albert, and to Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent, on the recent nuptials of Her Most Gracious Majesty, were unanimously agreed to.

In the same convocation, the seal of the university was affixed to a power of attorney, constituting Mr. F. J. Marrell and Mr. W. Biddle, attorneys, in order to demand, on the part of the university, and under the advice of an eminent counsel, possession of certain lands at Boulter's Lock, near Maldenhead, which have been entered upon by the Thames Navigation Commissioners; and to do other things necessary for maintaining the rights of the university in that quarter, and obtaining compensation for property which has been taken.

In a convocation holden on Thursday, Feb. 20th, the nomination of the Rev. John Ashworth Ashworth, M.A. Fellow of Brasenose coll. to be a Public Examiner in Disciplina Mathematica et Physica, was unanimously approved.

In a congregation holden at the same time, the following degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Rev. Henry Holloway, Fellow of New College.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Robert Francis Bute Rickards, Balliol coll. grand compounder; Hon. Edward Cecil Curzon, Christ Church; Rev. Henry Mills, Balliol coll.; Rev. Geo. Carter, St. John's coll.; Rev. Charles Henry Tyler, Trinity coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—William Lewis Wigan, Christ Church; Brownlow Charles Warren, Exeter coll.

In a convocation holden Feb. 21st, the following gentlemen were nominated as a deputation to carry into effect, in conjunction with the Vice-Chancellor and Proctors for the time being, the plans approved by convocation for the erection of the Taylor Building and the University Galleries; with powers to confer with the architect as to the improvements in matters of detail; to arrange the contracts with builders; and (in the event of these contracts being approved by convocation) to defray all expenses of the Taylor Building out of the Taylor Fund, in pursuance of the will of Sir Robert Taylor; to employ in aid of the Randolph Fund such monies, the property of the university, as may be available for that purpose; and to transact any other business which may be necessary for the completion of the projected buildings; submitting their accounts annually for the approval of the Delegates of Accounts.—The Principal of St. Alban hall; the Master of University; the Warden of Merton; Dr. Kidd; the Warden of All Souls; Mr. Liddell, Student of Christ Church. This proposition was opposed, (chiefly on the ground that it would be an ill application of the funds of the University Press,) but carried, by a considerable majority, the numbers being, Placet, 72; Non Placet, 53.

LINCOLN COLLEGE.

Three open Scholarships will be filled up on Saturday, March 28th. Candidates are required to present testimonials to the rector on or before Tuesday, March 24th.

ORIEL COLLEGE.

An election of Three Fellows will take place on Friday, April 24th, with a preference for natives of the counties of Somerset and Devon, and of the old diocese of Worcester, respectively. Candidates must be Bachelors of Arts, who have determined; and they are requested to present the usual testimonials to the Provost of Oriel, as early as possible.

On Thursday, Feb. 27th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Master of Arts.—Rev. David Williams, Jesus coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Uvedale Corbett, Student of Christ Church; David Edwards, Jesus coll.

The Margaret Professor of Divinity will begin a course of lectures on Tuesday, the 24th of March, at one o'clock, in the hall of Magdalen coll. The lectures are intended for Students in Divinity who have passed their examination for the degree of B.A.; and those gentlemen who desire to attend, must call in person upon the Professor, on Monday, the 23rd, between the hours of two and four, or on Tuesday, the 24th, between the hours of ten and twelve, with the certificate of their examination, and with a written recommendation from the governor of their college, or from their tutor.

On Thursday, March 5th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Master of Arts.—Rev. Henry Powell Foulkes, Balliol college.

Bachelors of Arts.—Hon. Charles Somers-Cocks, Christ Church; Granville Sykes Howard Vyse, Christ Church; Charles Whitaker, Brasenose college.

The Professor of Political Economy continues his Lectures on Colonization on Saturday, March 7th, and the first four days of the ensuing week, at two o'clock, at the Clarendon.

The Examiners appointed by the Trustees of the Lusby Scholarships have given notice that an examination will be holden in Magdalen hall, on Thursday, the 19th instant, and the following days, for the purpose of electing a Scholar on that foundation. The Scholarship is open to all Members of the University of not less than four, nor more than eight, Terms' standing. Gentlemen who desire to offer themselves as candidates, are to signify their intention to the Vice-Principal, and to present certificates of their standing, and testimonials of their good conduct, signed by the head of their house, or their tutor, on or before Wednesday, the 18th.

A vacancy having taken place in the Laudian Professorship of Arabic by the resignation of Dr. Knatchbull, an election of a proper person to fill the same will be holden in the President's lodgings, St. John's college, on Monday, the 16th of March, at eleven o'clock.

On Thursday, March 5th, William Duncan Bathurst, Esq. Scholar of New College, was admitted Actual Fellow of that Society.

Rev. Edward Hill, M.A. Student of Christ Church, admitted ad eundem of the University of Cambridge.

CAMBRIDGE.

At a Congregation on Wednesday, Feb. 12th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—Clement James Drage, Emmanuel coll.; Charles Sanderson, St. John's coll.; Alexander Annand, Jesus coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Fitzhenry William Ellis, Trinity coll. At the same Congregation the following graces passed the Senate:—

To sanction a petition to the Chancellor for the purpose of obtaining for Mr. Pepps, of St. John's coll. the degree of Doctor in Divinity by Royal Mandate.

Also to confirm the following report of the Fitzwilliam Syndicate:—

"That Mr. Basevi has certified to the Vice-Chancellor that Mr. Baker has executed works in the building of the Fitzwilliam Museum to the value of 34,000*l.* or thereabouts; and Mr. Basevi has thereupon recommended that a sum of 5,000*l.* be now paid to Mr. Baker on account of the said works, in addition to the sum of 25,500*l.* already paid to him on that account.

"That although the above mentioned sum of 5,000*l.* exceeds the instalment which Mr. Baker is at present entitled to demand according to the terms of the contract; the Syndics, under the circumstances stated in Mr. Basevi's certificate and letter, beg leave to recommend to the Senate that the sum be paid to Mr. Baker, provided that he is willing to agree that the balance to be retained by the Vice-Chancellor until six months after Mr. Basevi shall have duly certified the entire completion of the works, shall, according to the terms of the contract be not less than 10 per cent. upon the whole amount of the contract; and that Mr. Baker's sureties are willing to agree that the payment of the sum of 5,000*l.* as above proposed, shall not affect or impair their present liability under the contract."

The Syndics further recommend—

"That Mr. Basevi be authorized to order the execution, at a cost not exceeding 1,000*l.* of certain works at the Fitzwilliam Museum not included in Mr. Baker's contract; it being advisable that such works should be completed previously to making any further contracts for the finishing of the building."

At a Congregation, Feb. 14, the following grace passed the Senate:—

To present an Address to her Majesty the Queen, upon her Majesty's marriage.

At a Congregation on Feb. 17, a petition to the House of Commons was unanimously agreed to in favour of Church Extension in England and Wales.

Bell's Scholarship.—The Vice-Chancellor has given notice that an election of two scholars upon this foundation will take place on Friday, the 3rd of April next. That the members of any college (except King's college and Trinity hall), sons or orphans of clergymen, who were admitted between the commencements of 1838 and 1839, may be candidates. The candidates are required to signify their intention of offering themselves on or before Saturday next, the 29th instant, in a Latin Epistle, to be presented to each of the electors, who are—The Vice Chancellor, the Regius Professor of Divinity, the Regius Professor of Civil Law, the Lucasian Professor, and the Public Orator.—The examination will commence on Monday, the 9th of March, at ten o'clock, at the Law Schools.

At a Congregation on Wednesday, Feb. 26th, the degree of Doctor in Divinity was conferred by Royal Mandate on the Right Rev. Henry Pepps, of St. John's coll. the New Bishop of Sodor and Man.

At the same Congregation the following degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—James Brown, Trinity coll.; Barrett Edward Lampet, Corpus Christi coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Charles Tizard Davies, Queen's coll.; Kenneth M'Kenzie Pugh, St. John's coll.

The Rev. Ed. Hill, of Christ Church, Oxford, was admitted ad eundem of this university.

At a congregation on Monday, March 2nd, a grace passed the Senate to present addresses of congratulation to Prince Albert and the Duchess of Kent.

At a congregation on Wednesday, March 4th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Master of Arts.—Thomas Cockburn Dawes, Corpus Christi coll.

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Henry White, Trinity coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Charles Reginald Burnet, Trinity coll.; William Evans, Trinity coll.; Frederick Russell Mills, Trinity coll.; John Mason Neale, Trinity coll.; Conway Lucas Rose, Trinity coll.; Julius Lucius Brencley, St. John's coll.; Colin Campbell, St. John's coll.; John Watson Hepworth, St. John's coll.; Thomas William Hulkes, St. John's coll.; George Henry Ray, St. John's coll.; Henry Charles Sellar, St. John's coll.; Robert Charles Willy, St. John's coll.; Gardiner Guion Guyon, St. Peter's coll.; Alfred Lambert, Pembroke coll.; Henry Annesley Hotchkiss, Clare hall; Hugh Weightman, Trinity hall; Joseph Lawson Sisson, Jesus coll.; Edmund Stanley Stanley, Jesus coll.; Charles William Selby Lowndes, Christ's coll.; Joseph Spence, Christ's coll.; Walter Allnutt, Catharine hall; Benjamin John Armstrong, Caius coll.; John Birch Reynardson, Corpus Christi coll.; James Young, Corpus Christi coll.

Dr. Newcome's Prize, at St. John's college, for the best proficient in Moral Philosophy among the commencing Bachelors of Arts whose names have appeared on the Tripes, was adjudged on Wednesday last to Dr. Calder. The subjects of examination were Paley's Moral Philosophy, Whewell's Foundation of Morals, and Neville's Defence of Paley against the objections of Whewell and Sedgwick.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

POSTAGE OF PARISH REGISTERS.—In answer to our remarks in page 126, No. 19, that "the transcripts of parish registers will all be charged double postage unless prepaid," a correspondent observes, "the within extract from our Baptismal Act, unless repealed (of which I am not aware), will continue to exonerate the bishops and clergy from the charge of postage of many ounces of parchment of extracts from parish registers."

"52 Georgii II. Cap. 146. Sec. 11.

"And be it further enacted, that the superscription upon all letters and packets (i. e. of copies of the register books of baptisms) to the several offices of the said registrars aforesaid shall be indorsed and signed by the churchwardens or chapelwardens of each respective parish and chapelry in England (in the form contained in schedule E), and that all such letters and packets shall be carried and conveyed, by means of his Majesty's post-office, to, and be delivered at the offices of the said registrar without postage or other charge being paid or payable for the same."

TITHE COMMUTATION.

METROPOLIS.

CHURCH EXTENSION.—Address of the Lay Union on Church Extension, Jan. 28th, 1840.—If such an institution as an Established Church be maintained at all, it should be maintained, like all other national establishments, with a proper regard to its efficiency and suitableness, under the changing and advancing circumstances of the state. That the same establishments, for instance, should be sufficient for 15,000,000 of people, which were originally framed for 5,000,000, is an idea which would never have been tolerated with respect to the army, the navy, or the administration of justice; and yet, apparently from mere want of thought and recollection, this very absurdity has become quite a customary supposition with respect to the Church. Our army, which, a century since, consisted of 18,000 men, at an annual cost of 650,000*l.*, is now raised to 110,000, and demands above 7,000,000*l.* per annum; our navy, which was then maintained for 350,000*l.* per annum, now requires more than 5,000,000*l.*; while our Courts of Law and Equity have experienced a similar increase. Even within the last few years we have witnessed the addition of divers new Courts and new Judges, and a still further augmentation is at present demanded. Nor in the Church alone ought a different kind of calculation to be used, nor the establishment which was suitable three centuries since be deemed equally suitable now. The augmentation in the population which has taken place (of from 5,796,000 in 1730, to 13,894,574 in 1831), has indeed fallen principally upon particular districts and neighbourhoods; so that while some localities, experiencing only a moderate increase, have still been tolerably supplied with the ordinances of religion, others, suddenly growing up to ten or twenty times their former population, have become like provinces abandoned to heathenism. Buckinghamshire, for instance, which had a population of 80,500 in 1700, had only 146,529 in 1831, and these were distributed among 213 parishes. But Lancashire, which, in 1700, had but 168,200 inhabitants, contained, in 1831, no fewer than 1,336,854; and this immense number was divided into no more than 231 parishes. The Tower Hamlets, in the same manner, have sprung up from being nothing more than a few scattered, thinly peopled villages, to contain, at the present moment, a population of 367,864; and yet this prodigious mass of human beings has been left in the charge of less than 20 parochial incumbents. Nor has the Legislature wholly denied this duty, or repudiated the obligation. From 1809 to 1820, an annual grant of 100,000*l.* was made for the increase of small livings. In 1818 and 1825, two sums, together amounting to 1,500,000*l.*, were voted for the erection of new churches. Thus about three millions have already been devoted to these purposes within the last 30 years. But such a sum, to repair the neglect of centuries, and to remove the spiritual destitution of probably a third part of the population, is manifestly inadequate. It is out of all proportion to the other branches of the public expenditure. In the five and twenty years which have elapsed since the war, the sums expended on our army and navy, on a peace establishment, have exceeded three hundred millions; to the Church, or rather to the religious necessities of the people, less than three millions has been awarded. Recent occurrences, however, have given to this question a new and an alarming interest. It might have been reasonably prognosticated that great masses of population, rapidly accumulating in particular districts, without any provision for their religious wants, would become vicious, turbulent, discontented, and dangerous. All this, which might have been easily foreseen, has recently shown itself to exist in fact. A spirit of insubordination, deeply rooted and extensively diffused, is now found to exist in many of the most populous districts of the country, and has clearly manifested its dangerous character by breaking forth into actual rebellion. Within the course of a very few years, Bristol, Nottingham, Birmingham, Bolton, and more recently Newport and Sheffield, have been made the scenes of actual or of attempted insurrection; and in each case we observe the elements of disturbance to have been previously provided, by the growth of large masses of people without any adequate provision for their religious instruction.

PROVINCIAL.

Dorsetshire.—The dissenters have just been defeated, by a large majority, in their attempts to obstruct the levying of a church rate at Weymouth. —Salisbury Herald.

New Churches.—The incorporated Society for the Building of Churches and Chapels have voted grants towards the building of a chapel at East Hyde, in the parish of Luton, and for the erection of galleries in Kempston church. —Essex Mercury.

Gloucestershire.—The Rev. Samuel Lloyd, vicar of Horaley, Gloucestershire, having given away annually more than half the proceeds of that small living, and subscribed 120*l.* to rebuild the church, has paid 200*l.* more to the contractors, trusting in the liberality of the friends of our establishment to reimburse him this unavoidable excess of expenditure beyond the contributions raised already. —Gloucestershire Chronicle.

Christ Church, Lansdown.—The consecration of Christ church, Lansdown, Cheltenham, lately took place, and was attended by upwards of 2,000 persons, mostly of the upper and middle classes.

The Bishop of Llandaff has caused a monument to be erected to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. Beek, of Oriol College, Dean of Bristol, and formerly rector of Upton, Berks. —Watchman.

Church Building Association.—At a meeting of the Diocesan Church Building Society, lately held at the Clerical Society's Rooms, Upper Close, (the Lord Bishop in the chair,) it was agreed to give 100*l.* towards the erection of a church at New Catton, with an expression of regret that the present state of their funds did not allow them to do more, and 40*l.* towards the alteration of the church at Cromer, by which 400 additional free sittings will be provided for the poor. It was also determined to rescind their former resolution, by which it was agreed to pay over, as in the last two years, to the parent Society, the whole of the receipts, and to restrict the future contributions to one-fourth of their annual income. —Norfolk Chronicle.

Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.—The sermon on behalf of this Society was preached at Christ church, Bath, by the Rev. Dr. Hook, vicar of Leeds, and chaplain to the Queen. The preacher selected his text from Ps. xcvi. 10—"Say among the heathen that the Lord reigneth." The meeting was held the next day at the Assembly Rooms. The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells took the chair, and opened the meeting with prayer. The room was crowded in all parts. On no former occasion has there been a fuller attendance, which evinces the deep interest the public take in the proceedings of the Society. —Bath Post.

Bath and Wells Collegiate Institution.—The Bishop of Bath and Wells having long contemplated the foundation of a diocesan collegiate institution, in order to the training of candidates for holy orders, in conformity with the cherished desire of our reformers, that between the academic degree and entrance into the ministry there should be a course of preparatory instruction, has decided on immediately commencing the execution of such a plan in connexion with his cathedral city, and has appointed the Rev. J. H. Pinder, A.M., late principal of Codrington College, Barbados, to be Professor of Theology at Wells. To meet the cost of this excellent appointment (400*l.* per annum), the lord bishop and two gentlemen of the diocese have munificently subscribed 100*l.* each for ten years. A portion of the remaining 100*l.* per annum is yet to be provided. —Bath Chronicle.

Bath.—Church-rates.—A petition in support of church-rates to both houses of Parliament has been prepared by the Bath Church of England Lay Association. The Association has also prepared a petition against the Deans and Chapters Bill. These petitions are now in the course of signature. The Association has just published its sixth annual report.

Chippenham.—Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.—A District Committee has been formed at Chippenham to embrace that Deanery, and also the Deanery of Malmesbury, in support of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, under the presidency of the Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol. It already numbers among its vice-presidents the Ven. T. Thorpe, Archdeacon of Bristol, Joseph Neeld, Esq. M.P., T. H. S. Sotherton, Esq. M.P., G. H. W. Henneage, Esq. M.P., T. G. B. Estcourt, Esq. M.P., J. Anstey, Esq., and R. H. Pollen, Esq. As an old ally of the Church, whose aim and endeavour it is to publish the Gospel of Jesus Christ in all lands, but especially in the colonies and dependencies of our own empire, it has pre-eminent claim upon the liberality of every Church family in the county. Every information respecting the Society's operations, with its papers and instructions for the establishment of parochial associations, may be had of Mr. Jas. Noyes, High-street, Chippenham, who is duly authorised by the committee to receive the annual subscriptions of members and the contributions of collectors, which, however small, will be gratefully acknowledged. —Salisbury Herald.

Exeter.—We announce, with great satisfaction, that the Lord Bishop has been pleased to authorize the clergy of his diocese to preach sermons and cause collections to be made in aid of the funds of that excellent charity, the Devon and Exeter Hospital, in all churches and chapels being distant not less than fifteen miles from the towns of Barnstaple and Plymouth, where similar institutions are now established. The list of benefactions, donations, and collections, will be advertised in the early part of March. —Cornwall Gazette.

IRELAND.

(From the Dublin Evening Packet.)

The following letter has been addressed by the Lord Bishop of Down and Connor to his flock, and has been inserted by his Lordship's request in the Belfast Chronicle:—

"TO THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED CHURCH OF ENGLAND AND IRELAND, IN THE DIOCESE OF DOWN AND CONNOR.

"Beloved Brethren,—In the Belfast Commercial Chronicle and the Ulster Times of February 1st, there is announced, in very conspicuous characters, a Grand Oratorio and opening of the new organ in St. Patrick's chapel, Donegal-street, Belfast, on Friday, the 7th of February, 1840.' In this announcement I perceive a temptation to you, in common with the public at large, to contribute your countenance and pecuniary aid to a sect of Christians who are in doctrine Dissenters, and in worship separatists from the Church of which you profess yourselves to be members. Allow me, then, as your spiritual overseer, to remind you, that in the judgment of that Church, as well as of the Legislature of the kingdom, the peculiar articles of the belief and practice of the sect in question, and especially 'the invocation or adoration of the Virgin Mary,' which is to be a part of the promised exhibition, are 'superstitious and idolatrous;' and, accordingly, allow me to put you thus on your guard against a temptation into which you might otherwise be led through inadvertence, and to admonish you to 'touch not the unclean thing,' lest you be 'partakers of other men's sins.'

"Your affectionate Bishop and servant for Jesus' sake,
"RICHARD DOWN AND CONNOR."

COLONIAL.

CANADA.—CHURCH LANDS.

A BILL has passed the Legislative Council, by which the lands called the Clergy reserves are placed at the disposal of the Governor and the Legislative Council for the following purposes:—first, to pay all the stipends of those of the Clergy of the Churches of England and Scotland to whom the faith of the Crown is pledged during their lives; then that one half the annual fund arising from the sale "shall be allotted and appropriated to the Churches of England and Scotland in this province, and shall be divided between the said Churches in proportion to the number of their respective members;" and that "the residue of the said annual fund (namely one half of the whole) shall be divided among the other religious bodies or denominations of Christians now recognized by the constitution of the laws of this province."

••• This is appropriation with a vengeance. The other denominations are said to amount to seventeen, and all are to share in the plunder of that which belongs by right to the Church of England only. But happily this Bill cannot become law until it has been laid for thirty days upon the table of both houses of Parliament in England; and if either house shall address the Queen against it, the measure is lost.

Ecclesiastical Intelligence.—On the 28th Jan. the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of the diocese of Barbados and the Leeward Islands consecrated a chapel-of-ease, called Holy Innocents, erected on part of the glebe land in the parish of St. Thomas, in the island of Barbados; and at the same time his lordship consecrated the burial-ground thereto belonging. —Barbadian.

FOREIGN.

Through the liberality of the Prussian Government, the British residents at Coblenz of Rhine lately obtained the use of the chapel in the late Elector's Palace in that town for the performance of divine service according to the rites of the Church of England. An humble petition was a few days since addressed to her Majesty the Queen-Dowager Adelaide, praying for a small donation towards defraying the expenses of the said chapel. Scarcely had her Majesty received the petition, when, with her usual generosity, she was graciously pleased to forward, through Earl Howe, the sum of 25*l.* to Messrs. Deinkard and Jordan, the trustees of the fund at Coblenz. —Record.

TESTIMONIALS OF RESPECT TO CLERGYMEN.

NATIONAL DAY SCHOOLS

In the Parish of St. Clement's, Oxford.

THE WANT of a NATIONAL SCHOOL

having been long and seriously felt in this Parish, the Rector (the Rev. J. W. Hughes) and Churchwardens have availed themselves of an opportunity unexpectedly offered, to purchase, for the sum of 325*l*. the Disanting Chapel in St. Clement's, which is, in all respects, a most commodious and suitable edifice for a School. Of this sum 250*l*. has been raised without the aid of any Government Grant in the Parish and in Oxford; but being unable to make up the deficiency, they venture to make this appeal to the Clergy and Friends of the Established Church, in the hope that their charitable assistance may enable them to complete this arrangement, which, under God's blessing, will tend both to the spiritual improvement of the parish and the general good of the community.

Contributions will be thankfully received by the Rector, Rev. J. W. Hughes, Holywell-street, and by the several Bankers in the City of Oxford. [272]

ART-UNION.

THE SUBSCRIPTION LISTS for the current Year will close in time to give the Prize-holders an early selection from the Works in the Exhibitions of the Royal Academy, of the Society of British Artists, and the Societies of Painters in Water Colours; and before the closing of the British Institution.

Subscriptions are received, and Prospectuses may be had, at the London and Westminster Bank, 38, Throgmorton-street; and at the Branch Offices of the same, 9, Waterloo-place, Pall Mall; 155, Oxford-street; 213, High Holborn; 12, Wellington-street, Borough; and 87, High-street, White-chapel; by Messrs. P. and D. Colnaghi and Co., Pall Mall East; Messrs. Colnaghi and Puckle, Cockspur-street; Mr. R. Jennings, 62, Cheapside; Mr. Thomas Brittain, Collector, 17, Southampton-place, Euston-square; and by any Member of the Committee.

ART-UNION.

The SUBSCRIBERS of the Year 1838-9 are informed, that for each Guinea subscribed, they will receive, in August next, an impression from an Engraving by LUCAS, of a Picture by F. R. LEE, R.A. selected by the holder of the Prize of 150*l*. [302]

WANTED, by the Resident Incumbent of a Village Parish, distant about 30 miles from London, an UNMARRIED CURATE, who has been in Holy Orders for two years at the least. The stipend is 100*l*. No surprise fees of any kind. He must read and preach well, and be active in visiting the poor. Testimonials to his being Orthodox in Doctrine, and of sound Church Principles, will be indispensable. It is particularly requested that the first replies to this advertisement contain the names of Clergymen to whom reference may be made.

Address, post paid, to A. B. at Mr. Bradfield's, Bookseller, Bishops Stortford, Herts. [356]

TITLE FOR HOLY ORDERS IN THE DIOCESE OF LICHFIELD.

ANY GENTLEMAN, to whom pecuniary circumstances are not an immediate object, may hear of a TITLE, by addressing a letter to Rev. J. M. F. D. at Mr. Langbridge's, Bookseller, Bull-street, Birmingham. [370]

CURACY WANTED by a Fellow of a College in Oxford, who has been three years in Orders. Address, Rev. M. A. Post-office, Oxford. [358]

WELLS DIOCESAN COLLEGE.

THE BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS

Having long contemplated the foundation of a Diocesan Collegiate Institution, in order to the training of Candidates for Holy Orders, in conformity with the cherished desire of our Reformers, that, between the Academic Degree and entrance into the Ministry, there should be a course of preparatory instruction, has decided on immediately commencing the execution of such a plan, in connection with his Cathedral City, and has appointed the Rev. J. H. PINDER, A.M. late Principal of Codrington College, Barbados, to be Professor of Theology at Wells.

It is proposed to open the Institution at Easter next.

The Students to be required to bring with them their College Testimonials.

The Students to attend the daily Lectures of the Professor, and to be present at the Morning and Evening Services of the Church.

The Students, with permission of the Parochial Clergy, to be led to visit the sick and aged, and to acquaint themselves, by frequent attendance at the Wells Central School, with the National System of Education.

During residence, the Students to be considered amenable to the superintendence, and under the paternal care, of the Professor.

A testimonial with reference to the Christian mind and character, as well as the competency in learning, of each Student, to be delivered by the Professor to the Bishop, before such Student can be admitted a Candidate for Holy Orders.

The instruction received by the Students from the Professor to be free.

The course of study to be subject to the approval of the Bishop.

Palace, Wells, Jan. 20, 1840.

Further information may be had by applying to the Rev. Professor PINDER, Partis College, Bath. [346]

A CLERGYMAN (in Deacon's Orders), without

Preferment, wishes to undertake the office of TUTOR in a Nobleman's or Gentleman's Family, either at home or on travel. He has received his Education at Eton and Oxford, and resided for some time in Germany, with the language of which country he possesses a good acquaintance; and he can furnish testimonials of his qualifications for the situation he desires.

Address, prepaid, to W. P., 75, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury. [331]

A GRADUATE of OXFORD, of some Experience, and of strictly Orthodox views, is in want of a COUNTRY CURACY, with a House. Stipend, 130*l*. as upwards. The West of England would be preferred.

Address, T. Y. Post-Office, Ashhorn, Derbyshire. [352]

A CLERGYMAN, of some Experience in the Ministry, would be glad to take charge of a small Country Parish, with the use of a comfortable Parsonage, which he would take in part payment of the stipend.

Letters, prepaid, addressed to C. D. Post-Office, Chesterfield, will be attended to. [367]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, who has had

A much experience in his profession, and has Testimonials of a very satisfactory nature from his late Incumbents, wishes to obtain a CURACY, with a stipend of not less than 100*l*. per annum.

Please to address, T. E. care of the Rev. Giles Powell, 43, Chandos-street.

Mr. Powell makes no charge to Incumbents who kindly allow him to recommend Curates to them. [374]

AN UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN, who is not extreme in his views, and is accustomed to town duty, wishes to exchange the Curacy of a small parish in Oxfordshire, with a furnished house and a stipend of 80*l*. per annum, for a more lucrative engagement in or near London, without a house.

THE INCUMBENT of a village on the coast of Kent, with a good house, and an income of about 300*l*. per annum, wishes to exchange his preferment. His age is 50, but the time of life of a Clergyman who may wish to effect a permutation with him will be immaterial.

Proposals are requested to be sent, prepaid, to the Rev. Giles Powell, 43, Chandos-street, St. Martin's-place. [372]

A BENEFICE well situated in Ireland, would be exchanged for one in England or Wales, or for an appointment in the Colonies. It is worth 400*l*. per annum.

Apply, post-paid, to John Fitzgerald, Esq. Solicitor, 62, Lower Baggot-street, Dublin. [377]

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN (in Deacon's Orders) who has had the entire care of a parish where the incumbent was not resident, is desirous of obtaining a CURACY. He is a Graduate of Oxford, of strictly Orthodox principles; and, having been for two years first Classical Assistant in a large School, would not object to devote a part of his time to public or private tuition. Testimonials unexceptionable.

Apply to Rev. R. D. 5, Cecil-street, Strand. [354]

CURACY WANTED.

A GRADUATE of Cambridge, possessed of a small independence, wishes for a CURACY, with Title for Orders in the Diocese of Norwich. He would not object (if required) to undertake any Tuition which would not interfere with his ministerial duties.

Address, A. B., Mr. Lorking's, Bookseller, Long Melford, Suffolk. [366]

CHURCH EXTENSION.

THE ATTENTION OF THE CLERGY is earnestly requested to this interesting and all-important subject. Much depends on their exertions within the next three or four weeks.

The Motion of Sir Robert Inglis has been postponed till after Easter. On the meeting of the House after the recess, it will be immediately brought forward. The degree of success which will attend it must greatly depend, under God's blessing, on the amount of popular support which the question shall receive in Petitions in favour of the measure.

Above One Thousand Parochial Petitions have already been presented, and there is no reason why this number should not be quadrupled in the course of the next three weeks. In many parts of the country no movement whatever has yet taken place. But on the other hand, wherever the subject has been taken up, the greatest readiness to petition on the part of the people has always been found to exist.

A feeling of despondency still lingers in some minds, giving rise to fears "that there is no hope of success," &c. Whereas, if the real state of the case is examined, it will be found that scarcely ever was a great question brought before Parliament with brighter prospects. Neither of the two great parties, into which the Legislature is divided, is yet pledged to oppose the proposition. Many leading Members on both sides are known to be favourably disposed. Every thing seems to depend, under God, on the degree of popular feeling which may be manifested. No Government is likely to make a grant of money for such a purpose without a public call; but no Government will long withhold it, if the desire of the people for such a grant be clearly expressed. Under what circumstances, then, could the Petitions of the people be more desirable or more effective, than under these?

It is hoped that the Parochial Clergy will now, with one consent, employ the time which remains before Easter, in preparing Petitions from their respective Parishes. The following is a specimen of one form of Petition, which is now adopting in the Archdeaconry of Taunton.

To the Honourable the Commons of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled,

The Petition of the undersigned inhabitants of the Parish of _____ in the County of _____ Humbly sheweth,

That your Petitioners are of opinion that it belongs to the very essence of a National Church that her spiritual ministrations should be co-extensive with the spiritual wants of the community.

That it is at present notorious that the population of England and Wales has outgrown the resources of the National Church, and that a large portion of the population are altogether excluded from her public worship, religious instruction, and pastoral superintendence.

That the only effectual remedy for these evils is the extension of the National Church. That it is the humble prayer of your Petitioners, that you will be pleased to adopt such measures as may appear to your Honourable House most expedient for the purpose of remedying the growing evils arising from the acknowledged deficiency of Church room.

And your Petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

AN IMPORTANT RECTORY in a Midland County, near the Grand Junction Railway, having a large population, (chiefly Manufacturers,) an income exceeding 1,000*l.* per annum, exclusive of a residence; in the midst of good society.

A RECTORY in an Agricultural District, on the high road, about 80 miles from London. Income nearly 300*l.* per annum; a small Parsonage-house, and the population under 300.

A PERPETUAL CURACY, in one of the most esteemed parts of the South of England for health and society; about 90 miles from town, and near the terminus of a railway. The income at present is about 300*l.* per annum, but it is capable of being increased.

And also, the NEXT PRESENTATION to a RECTORY, in one of the most fashionable Watering Places in the South-Western parts of the Kingdom. The population is large, and includes a considerable portion of the opulent and influential Classes as permanent inhabitants. The income is expected to be about 600*l.* per annum.

For particulars apply (if by letter, post paid) to Mr. Robinson, Surveyor, Auctioneer, and Agent for the Valuation and Transfer of Ecclesiastical Property, No. 11 A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square. [371]

TO THE CLERGY.

THOSE CLERGYMEN who approve of the Plan for Establishing a SCHOOL for THEIR SONS, (vide ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE, Feb. 11, page 165,) and have not already signified the same, are requested at their earliest convenience, without pledging themselves to any particulars, to forward their names to the Rev. C. E. FLATER, Charlton in Dover. [350]

GRAY'S IMPROVED CHURCH BARREL ORGANS, in which all the defects of the ordinary instruments are entirely removed, and no bolt-work or shifting of the Barrels necessary.

DIRECTIONS.

Lift the worm A, which will raise the key frame, and at the same time relieve the worm from the teeth on the barrel.

Draw the pin B, and then turn the spindle C of the iron frame D, either way, as may be required for the change of tune.

When the tune is fixed upon, insert the pin B, and upon dropping the worm A, the barrel will be ready to perform.

The Clergy are respectfully invited to an inspection of these instruments, which will be found the best and cheapest of the kind yet manufactured. The main defects in the old instruments are, the uncertainty of the keys passing correctly over the pins arising from the brass bolt-work, which, however well manufactured, soon becomes rickety and imperfect in its action; the unavoidable damage to the cogged heads of the barrels in passing them under the brass worm every time they are changed (from these causes alone the hobbling performance of the tune, so frequent in the ordinary barrel-organ, arises), the liability of damage to the pins on a barrel when changed; the noise occasioned by bolt-work at every change of tune, and the inconvenience and, in some instances, the impossibility of changing the barrels during divine service, in which case the range of tunes under command is so limited that, with the greatest care in the selection and distribution of the various metres to be set on the barrels, a change of them is almost always necessary in each service; for instance, in many churches it is the custom to commence with the Morning Hymn, and when this is the case, the barrels must be frequently changed, or none but the limited collection of tunes on one barrel will ever be heard during the service.

JOHN GRAY & SON have by their invention removed all these defects so long complained of in the ordinary barrel-organs, and the truth of which every possessor of one will readily acknowledge. The annexed section will best explain the improvements.

The spindle of the iron frame D, being cut with an endless screw, a single revolution of it changes the tune on each barrel from the first to the second, and so on in succession, to the whole extent of them (thirty in number), a contrary revolution will, of course, produce a return to the first or any intermediate tune that may be desired, its number being ascertained by reference to an index on each barrel. No bolt-work whatever is necessary; and every change either of tune or barrel, is effected with perfect silence and the greatest ease. Upon raising the worm A, it is immediately arrested by a self-acting sling, and there held until relieved by the finger of the barrel turner after he has changed the tune or barrel, and at no time does any necessity arise for touching any part of the barrels with the hand; the possibility of damage to the pins (unless wilfully done) is therefore wholly removed.

Uniformity of plan enables JOHN GRAY & SON to supply these instruments at even less cost than the ordinary barrel-organ, the whole of the mechanism being comprised in one package, and may be set up without the assistance of an organ builder, a matter of no little consideration when required at a distance from the Metropolis. The instrument is wholly independent of an external case, which may, if preferred, be made in the country.

The same unerring principle is applied to an organ of a higher class, for both Finger and Barrels.

No. 1. Inga handsome Gothic case 10 feet high, with gilt pipes, 60 Guineas.

2. Ditto size larger ditto 75 ditto.

3. Ditto ditto ditto 90 ditto.

The instruments may be inspected, and every explanation readily afforded, at the Manufactory of the Inventors, 9, New Road, Fitzroy-square. [290]

ADVOWSON, RIGHT OF PRESENTATION AND IMPROPRIATE RECTORIAL TITHES OF TYTHERINGTON IN THE COUNTY OF GLOUCESTER.

TO BE SOLD, by Private Contract, the Perpetual ADVOWSON of and NEXT PRESENTATION to the Vicarage of Tytherington, in the County of Gloucester, pleasantly situated about three miles from the Market Town of Thornbury, together with an excellent newly-built Parsonage-house contiguous to the church, with corresponding offices, Lawn, Shrubberies, and walled Garden, and a Glebe of about 64 acres; Tithes commuted, and Annual Value of the Living 400*l.* per annum. The present Incumbent is in his 39th year.

Also the Improprate Rectorial Tithes of the said Parish of Tytherington, extending over 2,145 acres of meadow Pasture and Arable Land, and which have recently been commuted into an annual rent-charge of 450*l.* The Purchaser will be entitled to the rent-charge upon the completion of the purchase, and payable half-yearly.

For further particulars and price, apply to Mr. Baxter, Solicitor, Alveston, near Thornbury. [321]

PUPILS.—A CLERGYMAN, residing on his Living in a healthy situation by the Sea, who has for the last few years undertaken the education of his own family, is desirous of taking Two Pupils (if brothers, at 100*l.* per annum each) under the age of 15. Independent of the usual instruction requisite for youths of that age destined to the Universities or Liberal Professions, the Advertiser offers the advantages of being domesticated with his own family, and having a parental attention bestowed on the cultivation of religious and moral principles and gentlemanly habits.

Apply Rev. C. F. F. at the Ecclesiastical Gazette Office. [279]

TROWBRIDGE, WILTS.
TRINITY CHURCH.—Nearly 4,000*l.* having been just raised by private Subscription, principally in the Town of Trowbridge, for the above Church, assistance is now asked from friends elsewhere, towards the erection of a House for the Minister. 600*l.* more is required.

The Rector has given 125*l.* for the site, and the Curate of Trinity Church 200*l.* towards the House; "Come and help us."

Any Contributions will be gratefully received by the Rev. F. Fulford, Trowbridge.—Feb. 15th, 1840. [269]

DIRECTORS.

Richard Low Beck, Esq.	Charles Hensley, Esq.
Edmund C. Buxton, Esq.	Joseph Hoare, Esq.
John Burgess, Esq.	J. Francis Maubert, Esq.
William Clay, Esq. M.P.	Joseph Pease, Esq. M.P.
James Dawson, Esq.	John Taylor, Esq.
Thomas Fowler, Esq.	J. Scholefield, Esq. M.P.
Francis Fox, Esq.	John Travers, Esq.
W. Storrs Fry, Esq.	George Vaughan, Esq.

The Directors hereby give notice to Members whose Premiums fall due on the 5th of April next, that the same must be paid within thirty days from that date.

The Premiums of Members (who are the only proprietors) are payable yearly, half-yearly, or quarterly, on the 5th of January, 5th of April, 5th of July, and 5th of October, either of which several days constitutes the commencement of the year to Members. Persons, therefore, desirous of entering the Society, as Members, on the 5th of April next, should appear at the Office on or before that day.

Abatement of Forty per cent. already allowed and expected to be continued Annually to Members of the METROPOLITAN LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY of five Years' standing. The undermentioned Assurances bear date the 5th of January, 1840.

Age.	Sum Assured.	Annual Premium paid for first five years.	ABATEMENT OF PREMIUM, on sixth payment.	would assure at the increased age of the party.	or, would reduce future payments to.
	£	s. d.	£	s. d.	£
36	3000	88 12 6	35 9 0	1035	53 3 6
42	3000	106 2 6	42 9 0	1010	65 13 6
56	2000	113 6 8	45 6 8	663	68 0 0

The above shows a result admitting of advantageous comparison with any other institution for Life Assurance. This rate of abatement has been declared upon all Members' Assurances effected during the year 1835 and the early part of 1836, and is founded upon data justifying the expectation that the same rate of abatement will be declared, in succession, to every Member in respect of his sixth and following yearly payments;—or, if varied, the rate of abatement is expected to be rather increased than diminished. The new or second Assurance would, after five years, be entitled to the same rate of abatement as the first policy;—the premium thus remitted being equal, if laid out in a new Assurance, to a bonus of about one-third the amount of the sum represented by each policy. Any such increase of the Assurance, if desired, must however be subject to the discretion of the Directors, as in the case of the original Assurance.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Advantages possessed by the Church with reference to the public administrations of the sacrament of baptism—Painful considerations which arise on viewing these administrations as they actually take place.

Chapter II.—The profanation of the baptism a natural consequence of the vice and ignorance of the people and of the superstitious notions and bad customs which prevail with reference to the sacrament of baptism.

Chapter III.—Measures suggested for the removal of these disorders—Original design of the office of godfathers and godmothers, as testified by the ancient usages and prescribed discipline of the Church.

Chapter IV.—Amount of trouble and moral charge to be incurred by those who would co-operate in removing these disorders and restoring Church discipline.

Chapter V.—An attempt to form some nearer estimate of the number of labourers that would be required in any given district, and the quantity of work that would fall to the share of each of them.

Chapter VI.—How to set the work on foot—Its possible extent; its equal suitability to the most extensive or most limited sphere of operation.

Chapter VII.—Some reasons for adopting the suggested course.

Chapter VIII.—Answer to some objections which might be made against it.

NOTICE.

THE attention of the CLERGY is particularly requested to the CHRISTIAN REMEMBRANCE, or Churchman's Biblical, Ecclesiastical, and Literary Miscellany, for which a new Editor has been engaged, and the promises of assistance from several distinguished Clergymen have been recently obtained. It is conducted strictly on Church principles, and combines the main features of a Review and Magazine; Reviews of all the principal Theological Works, and short notices of others. An original Essay, or a Sermon by a Dignitary of the Church, in addition to the usual intelligence, will be found in its pages. But one main object of the Proprietors is to make it the medium of Correspondence on points of general interest between the Clergy of all parties, in whatever part of the country they may reside. Particular attention is requested to the Numbers for April and May, which may be considered as specimens of what the Work is intended to be.

THE FAMILY SANCTUARY; a Form of Domestic Devotion for every Sabbath in the Year, containing the Collect for the Day; a portion of Scripture, an Original Prayer and Sermon, and the Benediction.

"This Work is written with judgment, with purity—not with enthusiasm; nor here we seen any one which contains so many true recommendations to public regard."—Church of England Quarterly.

"The Family Sanctuary forms a valuable Manual of Domestic Devotion, and will undoubtedly be prized by families who are in the habit of assembling themselves together for social worship and religious instruction on a Sunday morning or evening."—Ibid.

"The manner in which the Author has carried out the plan of his work is such as to render it valuable, not only for family use, but also to those who may be at a distance from Church, or who, from any cause, may be unable to attend her Sabbath Services."—London Mission.

"The pious principles and Catholic Spirit of the work fit it to be universally acceptable and useful, even among those who conscientiously dissent from the Author as to the propriety of adhering to forms of prayer."—Scottish Guardian.

CHRONICLES OF THE ANCIENT BRITISH CHURCH.

"The Chronicles of the Ancient British Church is a very creditable little work, containing in forty-eight close-printed octavo pages, more information, the writer believes, than is to be obtained anywhere else in three times the space, and for five times the price. It seems as if it would be an useful tract for the clergy to place in the hands of their more intelligent parishioners."—British Magazine, March, 1840.

TE DEUM and JUBILATE, set to Music in the Key of E flat major (Verse and Chorus, by W. H. HAVERGAL, A.M. Rector of Astley, Worcestershire.

Price to Subscribers (large paper), 8s.

The Profits will be devoted towards the erection of a Vestry for the Author's Parish Church.

M.M. This Te Deum and this Jubilate were sent in for the Gresham-Medal of 1838. On the recal of the Manuscript, a note was politely forwarded to the then anonymous Author, certifying him that "The Jubilate alone, amidst a number of works of very great merit, stood second in the judgment of the Umpires. The Te Deum was not admissible because the words are not taken exclusively from Holy Scripture."

NEW WORKS FOR STUDENTS IN DIVINITY, COLLEGES, AND SCHOOLS;

PRINTED FOR LONGMAN, ORME, AND CO., PATERNOSTER ROW.

1. GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON TO THE NEW TESTAMENT;

Especially adapted to the use of Colleges and the higher Classes in the Public Schools, but also intended as a convenient Manual for Biblical Students in general.

By the Rev. S. T. BLOOMFIELD, D.D., F.S.A.,
Vicar of Bisbrooke, Rutland; Editor of "The Greek Testament," &c. &c.
In 1 vol. foolscap 8vo, price 9s. cloth lettered.

In the formation of the present work the author has carefully avoided the defects found in preceding lexicographers, either of vague and embarrassing prolixity of matter, and superfluity of explanation, or of obscure brevity. Accordingly, instead of employing, in the way of proof or illustration, mere references to Scripture or to the Classical Writers, he has consulted the convenience of the reader, by adding the very words, and thus bringing before him all the materials for judgment. Though forming his work, in a great measure, on the basis of preceding Lexicons, the author, relying on the ample resources supplied by the researches of a long series of years, has ventured to exercise his own judgment throughout, altering the arrangement of significations where expedient, or otherwise moulding such matter as, after due consideration, he saw fit to adopt, and every where intermixing a large portion of original matter, so as to supply whatever seemed necessary to complete the lexicography of the New Testament. In short, the author's great aim has been to make the work complete in itself, at once brief and perspicuous, and especially adapted to serve as a Companion to his edition of the Greek Testament, by supplying that minute verbal and grammatical information which would have been out of place in a commentary on Scripture.

"To say a word in praise of Dr. Bloomfield's well-earned and well-established reputation as a first-rate classic, would be superfluous; and it is therefore only necessary to say, that he has displayed his extensive erudition in the volume before us, and produced by far the best Lexicon to the New Testament that has ever been published. The information is so full and complete, that nothing will be found wanting to the young scholar, collegian, or private student, for reading the New Testament in the original language."—Church Magazine.

"Much has been done of late years to facilitate the study of the Greek Testament; and the Lexicon of Parkhurst, with the improvements of Mr. Rose; and the more recent Lexicon of Dr. Robinson, edited by the learned author of the Manual before us, have laid the student of Holy Scripture under the deepest obligations. Yet the size and consequent price of these works are felt by many as matters of inconvenience. A Lexicon, therefore, of greater compression, and yet marked by sound and accurate scholarship, was still greatly needed; and that desideratum Dr. Bloomfield has here supplied. There can be no doubt that it will soon be introduced into general use."—Methodist Magazine.

2. By the same Author,

THE GREEK TESTAMENT,

With Copious English Notes, Critical, Philological, and Explanatory; Third Edition, greatly enlarged and very considerably improved, in two large and closely-printed volumes, 8vo, price 2l.
handsomely bound in cloth lettered.

"Much as has been done in the two preceding impressions, the third edition is yet further enlarged and very materially improved. In addition to his own researches, Dr. Bloomfield has availed himself of various suggestions for the improvement of his work, which in its present state exhibits the results of the labours of all preceding critical editors of the New Testament, as well as of his own researches for more than thirty years.

Upon the whole, without depreciating the merit of the labours of preceding editors, this third edition may justly be regarded as the most valuable for Biblical students that has yet been issued from the press in this country."—Rev. T. Hartwell Horne's Introduction to the Holy Scriptures, 9th edit. 1839.

3. COLLEGE & SCHOOL GREEK TESTAMENT, With ENGLISH NOTES.

Second Edition, with Additions, and a new Map of Palestine, adapted to the Gospel History. One thick vol. 12mo, 10s. 6d. cloth lettered.

"This edition of the Greek Testament supplies a desideratum in scholastic literature. The Notes (which are strictly grammatical, scholastic, and elementary) furnish to the juvenile student every requisite aid for the correct interpretation of the New Testament."—Christian Remembrancer.

4. THUCYDIDES.

New Recension of the Text, with copious English Notes, Critical, Philological, and Explanatory; Examination Questions, &c. For the Use of Colleges and the Public Schools. 3 vols. post 8vo, 27s. boards.

"We feel confident that no reader of Thucydides will fail to purchase an Edition where, be his scholarship what it may, he cannot rise from its perusal without having learnt much that he did not know before, and which he cannot obtain elsewhere."—Gentleman's Mag.

5. THE HISTORY of the PELOPONNESIAN WAR, By THUCYDIDES.

Newly Translated into English, and accompanied with very copious Notes, Philological and Explanatory, Historical and Geographical; with Maps and Plates, 3 vols. 8vo, 2l. 5s. boards.

"We can pronounce this work to be quite indispensable to all who would hope to understand the text of the greatest of historians, but most obscure of writers."—Gent. Mag.

6. A GREEK-ENGLISH AND ENGLISH-GREEK LEXICON,

For the Use of Colleges and Schools.

By the Rev. J. A. GILES, LL.D.

Late Fellow of C. C. C. Oxon; Head Master of the City of London School.

In one thick vol. 8vo. Price 1l. 1s. cloth lettered.

The object of the compiler has been to reduce into a small compass, and at a reasonable price, for the use of Colleges and Schools, the best information and most useful matter, found hitherto in several distinct volumes. With this view he has condensed the contents of the GREEK-ENGLISH part into so small a space (at the same time retaining a larger number of words than any other volume of the same size) as to leave room for the introduction of an ENGLISH-GREEK LEXICON, at least twice as comprehensive as any that has yet appeared. Indeed, this second part will be found to contain every particle of information which is to be procured from other Lexicons, and a great quantity besides. A short Grammar has been prefixed, which may be found useful to those who do not wish to multiply books, and will be glad to find the present volume serve them for two purposes.

"This is a worthy companion to Riddle's Latin Dictionary, containing all the information necessary to a student; and, what is of equal importance, no more. The author is generally successful in developing the structure and composition of the Greek language; avoiding the quibbling derivations which disfigure the older Lexicons, and especially that of Schrevelius, he points out the genuine radicals so far as they can be discovered with certainty."—Athenaeum.

7. THE NEW ETON GREEK GRAMMAR;

Or, the ETON GRAMMAR in ENGLISH: and the Latin Rules of Syntax and Prosody arranged with the English in parallel columns; with many important additions, together with Practical, Analytical, and Philosophical Notes.

By CLEMENT MOODY, of Magdalene Hall, Oxford,
Late one of the Masters of Tunbridge School, and Editor of the Eton Latin Grammar in English.

One volume 12mo, 4s. cloth.

In this Grammar are followed out the simplified plan and easy principles of the New Eton Latin Grammar. The analogy between the two languages is developed, chiefly from the elaborate work of Vossius; and the Notes have been carefully selected and condensed from Matthiae, Thiersch, Buttmann, and other learned grammarians.

Price 12s. bound.

The LATIN-ENGLISH (7s.), and ENGLISH-LATIN (5s. 6d.)

Portions may be had separately.

"Riddle's Complete Dictionary is the best of its kind in our language, and we rejoice to hear that in our provincial schools it is fast superseding all others. The Abridgment is a careful condensation of the original."—Athenaeum.

"By far the most judiciously condensed School Dictionary I have ever met with, and by its clear exposition of the primary meaning of words, leads the student to the secondary and metaphorical ones, with admirable judgment and good taste. I consider it as a very able, and, I may add, a very philosophical work."—Extract from a letter from the late Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry to the Publishers.

"This is not merely the best, but also the only, edition of Herodotus for schools. The licentious anecdotes have been removed without injuring the continuity of the narrative, and students may read the original account, and escape the impurities by which they were previously liable to be disgusted. The Notes are selected with care, and concentrated with great ability. The Questions are calculated to awaken the attention of the negligent."—Athenaeum.

TO THE CLERGY.

THE Clergy are referred to Vol. II., page 7, of this GAZETTE for full information upon the state of the affairs of the "Clergy Mutual Assurance Society," and they are requested to make known to their "relations amongst the Laity," the advantages which will not fail to accrue to them as well as to the Society, by their keeping up as it were a family connexion with the Clergy, by means of an institution, which being eminently successful in every branch of its business, invites them as the fathers, brothers, and sons of Clergymen, to make their Life Assurances in it on the most favourable terms.

* * Prospectuses and Books of Rules may be had at the Office. Attendance from eleven to four o'clock, daily.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE;

OR MONTHLY

REGISTER OF

THE AFFAIRS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, AND

OF ITS RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

No. 22.—Vol. II.

LONDON, TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 1840.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

We have again to acknowledge the receipt of a very great number of communications for the CLERGY LIST. We are particularly indebted to many of the RURAL DEANS, who have answered our appeal to them, by sending us lists of all the Clergy in their Deaneries. And we have also to offer our best thanks to the Incumbents of many extensive parishes, for having sent us lists which include all their Dependent Chapelries and Districts.

We shall be glad to receive any further communications which may be sent to us before the 1st of May. The particulars which we ask for will be found in p. 206 of this Gazette, where we have endeavoured to correct a misapprehension respecting one of the heads of inquiry.

We have again the pleasure to notice a large addition to our Subscription List; and we have also felt much satisfaction in making a considerable augmentation to our Gratuitous List during the present month. We again state, that one of the greatest gratifications which have arisen out of the establishment of this GAZETTE, has been the manner in which it has been appreciated by many of the Clergy, to whom it is not convenient to become subscribers. And though it is absolutely impossible to maintain this work upon its present footing without a great number of subscribers, we do not wish to press for subscriptions urgently, because we are well assured that it will receive sufficient support from the body at large without any such appeals. In some cases where the GAZETTE has been irregularly delivered, our Correspondents seem to have supposed that it has been withheld, on account of their not having subscribed. We beg to assure them that in no instance has it been intentionally withheld; and we hope that in all cases of irregular delivery, they will make inquiry of the local post-masters respecting it.

We shall be glad to correct any errors in our issue of this publication. At the same time we must request a little consideration for the Publisher, on account of the difficulty which attends the directing and sending by post nearly eleven thousand numbers monthly from one office. It would very much facilitate the correction of such errors, if the Gazettes which are sent erroneously or in duplicate were merely re-directed upon the same envelope.

••• We beg to state, that it is our intention to insert the appointment of clergymen to Curacies as well as to incumbencies in our monthly list of preferments. We request that such Curates as may wish their appointments to appear will have the goodness to transmit their names.

The ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the SECOND TUESDAY IN EVERY MONTH, and may be obtained at sixpence per number, or six shillings per annum, by ordering it of any Newsmen in the Kingdom.

It is also sent regularly every month, free of all charge, to the Resident Parochial Clergyman of every Parish throughout England and Wales.

Advertisements will be received at the Office, in Southampton-street, until the Saturday previous to the day of Publication.

tions of the Society, according to the report of October, 1832, has been found insuperable. And they think it, upon the whole, most advisable to recommend to the Board, that all further proceedings of the Society on this matter should cease; and that the editors should be allowed to publish their work in such manner as they shall think fit.

"The Standing Committee beg to report, that they make this recommendation with the approbation of his Grace the President, and with the concurrence of the editors, to whom they consider the Society greatly indebted for the endeavours which they have used to carry its intentions into effect."

It was agreed, that this report be taken into consideration at the next general meeting.

Mr. Hull gave the following notice of motion for the next general meeting:—

"That a committee of three members be appointed to prepare a commentary such as was advertised in 1832, with power to publish maps and engravings, and pay for contributions ten guineas a sheet: such commentary, when prepared, to be printed, and submitted to the Board before any part of it is published."

The secretary then read the following report respecting the Society's mission in the Scilly Islands:—

"The Standing Committee beg to report to the Board, that they find it necessary to bring under consideration the state of the Society's mission in the Scilly Islands."

"The Board is aware that for a long period the Society has maintained two clergymen as missionaries in the islands of St. Martin, St. Agnes, Treco, and Bryhar, and has paid the salaries of the schoolmasters in those islands."

"But the Scilly Islands having recently been declared, by an order in council, issued under the authority of parliament, to be under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Exeter, it has been notified to the Society, that the two clergymen heretofore employed by the Society in those islands cannot be recognised as missionaries by the bishop, and that they cannot be allowed to officiate in the islands, except as assistant curates to the chaplain of the lord proprietor. The management of the schools has also lately been taken in hand by the lord proprietor, who has shown great anxiety to provide for the education of the islanders."

"The character of the Society's connection with these islands having thus undergone a complete change, and it never having been the practice of the Society to support or maintain parochial clergymen in any diocese, the Standing Committee think it necessary that measures should be taken to make some provision for the spiritual benefit of the islands, and then to bring the Society's present connection with them to a close."

"The Standing Committee therefore beg to recommend that the following resolutions, which they have agreed to after a full consideration of the subject, be adopted by the Board:—

"1. That a pecuniary grant be made by the Society on behalf of the Scilly Islands, by way of endowment; the interest to be applied towards the support of clergymen who may be hereafter appointed to serve the churches in the islands of St. Martin, St. Agnes, Treco, and Bryhar; and that for this purpose a trust be created, and placed in the hands of the Lord Bishop of Exeter, the Archdeacon of Cornwall, and the lord proprietor of the Scilly Islands, for the time being."

"2. That the proposed endowment fund be three thousand pounds."

"3. That a pension for life of 75*l.* per annum each be granted to the Rev. James Lane, and the Rev. George Woodley, the late missionaries of the Society."

"4. That the pensions already granted to schoolmasters who have retired on account of age and infirmity be continued to them during their lifetime."

"5. That no new pensions be granted to the present schoolmasters, but that their salaries be continued for half a year after the cessation of their connection with the Society."

It was agreed that this report be considered at the next general meeting.

The secretary stated, that the Standing Com-

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

APRIL, 1840.

The REV. DR. RUSSELL, in the Chair.

At the General Meeting of the Society, held on Tuesday, the 7th of April, 1840, the following Report from the Standing Committee was read to the Board:—

"The Standing Committee beg to call the attention of the Board to the state of the question respecting the Commentary upon the Bible proposed to be put forth by the Society."

"It was the intention of the Board, as expressed in the report of the 2nd of October, 1832, that the Society should publish an edition of the Holy Scriptures, with explanatory notes and practical applications appended to each chapter."

"In pursuance of that report, his grace the president appointed the Rev. John Lonsdale and the Rev. W. H. Hale to be the editors of the work: and they were authorised to obtain the assistance of others for carrying into effect the intentions of the Society."

"It appears, however, from statements which the editors made to the Standing Committee and to the Board, in 1836 and 1837, and which were printed in the annual reports for those years, that they were disappointed in their expectation of obtaining the requisite assistance from others; and that in the autumn of 1833, they found themselves under the necessity of beginning an original Commentary upon the Gospels, upon which they have continued to labour jointly, as regularly as the circumstances in which they were placed would permit. They also stated that there was no prospect of their being able to proceed more rapidly: that they did not expect to be able to complete more than the four Gospels, and the Acts of the Apostles; and that, had it not been for the encouragement which they had received, they should long ago have requested the Society to relieve them from the task which had been imposed upon them."

"After the last of these statements had been read to the Board in July, 1837, by the dean of Chichester, the editors were requested to proceed with the work, and to finish the four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles: Archdeacon Bather having, at the request of the Standing Committee, and with the approbation of his grace the president, and of the Board, undertaken to prepare the practical reflections."

"At the general meeting in November, 1838, the secretaries stated to the Board, that the Standing Committee had received a communication from Archdeacon Bather, to the effect, that he felt himself constrained to relinquish the office which he had undertaken. The secretaries were then directed by the Board to communicate the circumstances to his Grace the President, and to request his advice."

"Since that period, several discussions have taken place upon this subject at the general meetings of the Society: and the Standing Committee have recently received a communication from the editors, in answer to one from the secretary, from which it appears, that they have completed the Commentary on the four Gospels, but feel themselves under the necessity of declining to be responsible for more."

"The Standing Committee regret, therefore, to state, that under the peculiar circumstances of the case, the difficulty of carrying into effect the intenmittee had taken into consideration the letter of Mr. Justice Burton, dated January 6, 1840, which had been referred to them at the January meeting; and that the Committee were of opinion, that of the several objects which Mr. Burton considered advisable, towards supplying the religious wants of the colony of New South Wales, that of "the establishment of a college, founded on the principles of the national Church, for the education of persons in the colony for the ministry, and as schoolmasters," appeared to them the one to which the Society could the most appropriately afford its aid. The Standing Committee, therefore, recommended that the sum of three thousand pounds should be placed at the disposal of the Lord Bishop of Australia, towards the erection of such a college at Sydney. It was proposed, that this grant should be made at the general meeting in May.

The following members of the Society were proposed to the Board to form the Tract Committee for the year ensuing:—

Rev. Dr. D'Oyly,	Rev. R. G. Baker,
Rev. Dr. Dealtry,	Rev. J. Endell Tyler,
Rev. J. Lonsdale,	Rev. C. B. Dalton.
Rev. J. G. Ward,

The secretary reported, that the Lord Bishop of London, in consequence of his various engagements, had signified his intention of resigning his office as one of the episcopal referees, and that his Grace the President had been pleased to nominate the Lord Bishop of Salisbury an episcopal referee.

The following report, which was laid before the last general meeting, was taken into consideration:—

"The Standing Committee beg to report to the Board, that in pursuance of the resolution of the Board, agreed to at the general meeting in December last, by which they were empowered to add some members from the Society at large to the sub-Committee appointed to consider the best means for the counteraction of anti-Christian and immoral principles, they have added to it the following gentlemen: namely,

"The Revs. Sanderson Robins, I. N. Allen, John Harding, Richard Harvey, Thomas Jackson, Henry Melville, George Pearson, J. M. Rodwell, Thyeir T. Smith, Daniel Wilson.

"The Standing Committee beg further to report to the Board, that they have received a resolution of the sub-Committee, by which it appears that it is deemed necessary for the attainment of the objects for which the sub-Committee was appointed, that it should have the power of publishing books and tracts suitable for these objects.

"The Standing Committee having carefully considered the subject, are of opinion, that it would be desirable for the Board to appoint a Special Committee for this purpose.

"They therefore beg to recommend to the Board,

"That the members of the Standing Committee, together with the foregoing ten members of the Society, who are members of the existing sub-Committee, be now constituted a Special Committee, 'to consider the best means which may be devised for the counteraction of the anti-Christian and immoral principles that are at present obtruded on the young and inexperienced in our populous towns and throughout the country.'

"That the Special Committee shall have the power of publishing such books and tracts as they shall deem requisite for the attainment of the objects for which they shall be appointed, subject to the approbation of three episcopal referees:

"That his Grace the President be requested to nominate three of their lordships, the Bishops, to be the episcopal referees for this purpose:

"That the above power be granted to the Special Committee for one year from the date of their appointment:

"That the Standing Committee be empowered to authorize the treasurers to pay for the purchase of copyrights and other contingent expenses of the Special Committee."

It having been proposed that this report be adopted, Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke moved, by way of amendment, that it be adopted with the omission of the following words, 'subject to the approbation of three episcopal referees':

"That his Grace the President be requested to nominate three of their lordships, the Bishops, to be the episcopal referees for this purpose.'

The amendment was seconded by Mr. Percival White, and negatived.

The report was then adopted.

The Rev. Robert Monro brought forward the motion of which he had given notice at the last general meeting, and proposed the following resolution for the adoption of the Board:—

"That a humble address be transmitted to her Majesty, and a petition to both houses of parliament, calling attention to the great want of church accommodation which exists in various parts of England and Wales, and praying for the adoption of efficient measures for the removal of such want."

Mr. G. J. P. Smith seconded this motion.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Monro, having read a form of a petition, moved that this be the form of petition, and was seconded by Mr. Smith.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Clarke, seconded by Mr. Campbell:—

"That Mr. Monro, with five other members now present, be a Committee to prepare for the adoption of this meeting an address and petition in conformity with the resolution just passed."

This amendment was put from the chair, and negatived.

The Rev. Dr. Nihill proposed, by way of amendment—

"That it be referred to the Standing Committee, to prepare an address and petition in conformity with the resolution just passed."

This was seconded by Mr. John Sharp, and carried.*

The Rev. J. D. Hales gave the following notice of motion for the general meeting in May:—

"That all clergymen subscribing annually one guinea to the foreign translation fund be at liberty to apply for Bibles, New Testaments, Common Prayer Books, Homilies, and all authorised formularies of the united Church of England and Ireland, (as by law established,) on the terms of the Society, provided such publications be intended for their own use and distribution, or for sale to the poor, or for the use of charitable institutions, with which they are locally or parochially connected."

The following notice of motion for the May meeting was given by the Rev. William Palmer:—

"Resolved.—That this Society will not in future, either at general meetings or through Committees responsible to itself, exercise any function or take upon itself any responsibility which belongs of right to the bishops of the Church: and especially that it will in no case, mediately or immediately, directly or by implication, pronounce any decision upon doctrine; nor select or alter books or tracts for the general supply of the churches of these kingdoms and the colonies: but will confine itself to the raising of money, and to the management of subordinate details of its application and expenditure, under the direction of the archbishops and bishops; and in choosing or rejecting, altering or abridging, printing and selling, or distributing books and tracts, it will follow implicitly the recommendation of the Archbishop of Canterbury, with the other archbishops and bishops, or of such persons as they may be pleased to appoint to be their deputies for the purpose."

Resolutions to be moved at the May meeting, if

Mr. Palmer's motion is carried.

"(1).—That the 28th, 29th, and 30th rules of the Society be altered, and for the future stand thus—

"XXVIII. That every book or paper so recommended be referred to their lordships the Bishops, and be forwarded to them in succession, or to such persons as they shall think fit to appoint to examine the same in their behalf.

"XXIX. That their lordships the Bishops, or a majority of their number, shall have power to make such orders and regulations touching the examination, preparation, and selection of books and tracts to be placed on the catalogue of the Society, as to them shall seem fit; and to alter the same from time to time; and to appoint such persons as they shall think proper to carry the same into effect; and that all such orders, regulations, and appointments, being duly notified to the secretary of the Society, under the hand of his Grace the President, shall be as binding upon the Society as if the same were duly made at any general meeting.

"XXX. That the Standing Committee be required to place upon the Society's catalogue any book or tract which shall be certified to them as fit to be published by the Society, by such persons or person as may be authorised by the majority of the Bishops to certify the same; and to remove from the Society's catalogue any book or tract which shall at any time be in like manner certified as unfit to be continued thereon."

"(2).—That the 21st and 32nd rules of the Society be henceforth repealed; and that the subsequent rules be numbered accordingly."

A letter was read from the Rev. H. R. Larking, Messina, requesting some assistance from the Society in behalf of the British congregation at that place. They are in want of a large Bible and Common Prayer-Book for the desk, and books for the communion table of the chapel, as well as Bibles and Common Prayer-Books for distribution. Mr. Larking says, "Such a grant could not be better placed than among the people here. For a quarter of a century they have been compelled to live almost as heathens."

This application was recommended by the Lord Bishop of London to the favourable consideration of the Society.

The books applied for were granted.

The Rev. Sir R. H. Dukinfield applied for the grant of a large Bible, Prayer-Books, and books for the communion table, for the performance of Divine service in a church now erecting in South Australia. A supply of books and tracts for the use of the poor in the Colony was also requested.

The Board agreed to grant the books for the church, and books and tracts to the value of 15*l.* for the poor.

A memorial from the Rev. Hastings Robinson, D.D., the Rev. H. Budd, the Rev. Guy Bryan, the Rev. C. J. Yorke, the Rev. H. B. S. Harris, on the subject of some of the tracts on the Society's list, was laid before the meeting.

Mr. E. F. Moore moved,

"That this memorial be referred to the Standing Committee, with a request that they would consider it, and report thereupon, if they should think fit."

Mr. J. C. Meymott seconded this.

Mr. T. Dornford then moved, by way of amendment, that the memorial be read to the meeting.

Mr. G. J. P. Smith seconded this amendment.

The amendment was negatived.

Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke then moved, as an amendment, the substitution of the word "as" for "if," in Mr. Moore's resolution.

This amendment was seconded by Mr. G. J. P. Smith, and negatived.

The original motion was then carried.

Several grants of books were made.

Several letters of acknowledgment were laid before the meeting.

The donations to the amount of 239*l.* 10*s.* were then announced.

The secretaries stated that the annual meeting of treasurers and secretaries of diocesan and district committees will be held at the Society's house on Wednesday, the 6th of May next, at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Seventy-five new members were admitted.

THE PETITION.

"To the Honourable the Commons of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled.

"The humble petition of the undersigned members of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge

"Sheweth,

"That your petitioners deem it to be the bounden duty of the state to make adequate provision for the public worship of Almighty God, and for the religious instruction of the people, according to the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England; and to take care that such provision be from time to time increased in proportion to the increase of the population.

"That the population of England and Wales has increased by more than five millions during the last twenty years.

"That the whole number of churches erected during that period, either wholly or in part by means of parliamentary grants, has amounted to no more than 243: that the portion of the population which can be accommodated in them is less than 315,000, and the free accommodation for the poor is less than 175,000.

"That although many other churches have been built or enlarged by the exertions of societies and of individuals during the same period, yet all that has hitherto been accomplished by public bounty or private munificence has hardly served to mitigate the evils arising from this deficiency, and a large proportion of the people are still altogether excluded from the public worship, the religious instruction, and the pastoral superintendence of the Church.

"That this deficiency of pastoral superintendence and religious instruction is a great national evil, and has been productive of much demoralization among the people, especially in the more populous districts.

"That the only effectual remedy for this deficiency is an immediate and progressive increase in the number of churches; and that this can only be adequately accomplished by the efforts of the Government and the Legislature.

"Your petitioners, therefore, earnestly implore, that your Honourable House will be pleased to take into your most serious consideration the spiritual destitution of the country, and to adopt such measures as in your wisdom you shall deem expedient for the speedy remedy of the existing deficiency, and for such a progressive enlargement of the Church Establishment in England and Wales as shall prevent the recurrence of this evil, and shall provide efficiently for the spiritual interests of the people."

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

4, Trafalgar Square, April 11th, 1840.

MR. SAINTSBURY having resigned the office of Under Treasurer and Receiver, it is requested that the Secretaries and Treasurers of the several districts will make their remittances payable to the order of the "Society."

A great movement in behalf of the Society has been commenced in the city. In compliance with a requisition, signed by 400 merchants, bankers, and traders, the Lord Mayor convened a public meeting at the Mansion House, to "consider the insufficient provision now made for Divine worship and religious instruction in the Colonies, and to take measures for enabling the Society to supply this lamentable deficiency."

The meeting took place on Wednesday last, April 8, and was very numerously attended. Among the heads of the Church there were present, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishops of London, Winchester, Bangor, Hereford, Norwich, Rochester, Nova Scotia. They were supported by the sheriffs, Aldermen Thompson, Venables, Messrs. Wilson, Labouchere, Hoare, Manning, Tritton, Twining, &c.

The following are the resolutions, which were carried unanimously:—

Resolution 1. Moved by the Archbishop of Canterbury; seconded by Thomas Wilson, Esq.

"That it is the bounden duty of the English nation, in gratitude to Almighty God for its manifold spiritual privileges, and the great extent of her commerce, to use every means in its power to spread the knowledge of the Gospel throughout the world, and especially in countries peopled from its own shores, or forming a part of the British empire."

Resolution 2. Moved by the Bishop of London; seconded by John Labouchere, Esq.

"That the want of an adequate public provision for the worship of God and the religious instruction of the people in the Colonies and dependencies of the Crown imposes the strongest obligation upon individuals to take measures for the supply of this lamentable deficiency."

Resolution 3. Moved by the Bishop of Nova Scotia; seconded by Mr. Sheriff Evans.

"That the long-continued and increasing efforts of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel to provide Churches and Clergymen for the Colonies, and to maintain missionaries in heathen lands, entitles it to the approbation and support of all who pray for the extension of Christ's kingdom upon earth."

Resolution 4. Moved by Archdeacon Wilberforce; seconded by Chief Justice Robinson.

"That the merchants, bankers, traders, and other inhabitants of the city of London, from their intimate connection with the British Colonies, are called upon to promote their spiritual welfare by contributing towards the execution of the Society's designs."

Resolution 5. Moved by Charles J. Manning, Esq.; seconded by Henry Hoare, Esq.

"That a committee be formed in the city for the purpose of carrying the foregoing resolutions into effect; and that sub-committees be named for each ward or parish, with a view of obtaining for the Society a regular and permanent support among all classes of the inhabitants."

Resolution 6. Moved by the Bishop of Llandaff; seconded by the Bishop of Bangor.

"That the thanks of this meeting be given to the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor for his ready and courteous compliance with the prayer of the requisitionists in granting to them the use of the Egyptian Hall, for presiding upon this occasion, and for the able and dignified manner in which he has filled the chair."

Upwards of 1000*l.* were contributed, and there is every reason to anticipate a large amount of annual subscriptions when sub-committees shall be formed according to the plan proposed in the fifth resolution.

MISSIONARIES.

The Society has recently determined to assist in maintaining a Clergyman at Adelaide, South Australia. The Rev. James Farrell, who has been appointed to this duty, will sail in the course of a few weeks. Intelligence has been received of the arrival of the Rev. A. W. Street, appointed to the junior professorship at Bishop's College, Calcutta.

MADRAS.

The Madras diocesan secretary has recently sent home a very gratifying report of the progress of religion and education in that diocese. The following are extracts:—

"Three missionaries, young, active, and zealous, are occupying the scenes of former missionary exertion, Tinnevely, where, till recently, only one was employed. Entirely new stations have been formed at Madura, Dindigul, and Combaconum, while the circle has been greatly extended in the neighbourhood both of Tanjore and Trichinopoly. Attempts have been made, not without expense, to establish separate missions at Pulicat, thirty miles to the northward; and, closer under our eye, at the old seat of Romanism, St. Thomé; while the operations under the Vepery mission have been extended to various villages in a space stretching thirty miles westward.

"The station at Vellore has been again supplied with a missionary in the recently ordained deacon, the Rev. F. H. A. Schmitz.

"On the feast of Epiphany the Rev. Messrs. Kohlhoff and Heyne were admitted to priest's orders, and catechists Godfrey and Abishaganaden to deacon's orders. Mr. Godfrey is to be placed at Trichinopoly, which station, I regret to add, will for the present be under his sole charge, it having pleased God to remove from this world the Rev. D. Schreyvogel: he departed this life on the 16th Jan. 1840, at Pondicherry, at the age of sixty-three.

"Since the return of the Bishop, Mr. M'Leod, from Bishop's College, has been admitted on the list of the Society's catechists; he bids fair to be a valuable acquisition, and purposes offering himself for holy orders in about twelve months."

BRITISH N. AMERICA.

The Rev. Alex. Williams has been approved as missionary to Upper Canada. Mr. Alex. Campbell will be ordained by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday for some mission, probably in New Brunswick.

The Society has resolved to grant 100*l.* a year towards the stipend of a Clergyman to be stationed at Fernando Po.

To the Right Honourable the LORDS SPIRITUAL AND TEMPORAL in Parliament assembled.

The humble Petition of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, Sheweth:

That from the earliest period of our Colonial history, a desire has been professed by the Government of Great Britain to provide for Divine Worship and Religious Instruction in the Colonies, and that the public faith has been solemnly pledged to the discharge of this important duty.

That in the year 1701, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel was incorporated for the express purpose of assisting in the accomplishment of these great objects, and, from that time to the present day, has been engaged in the building of Churches and maintenance of clergymen throughout the foreign dependencies of the empire.

That in pursuance of the measures adopted and recommended by the Society, episcopal sees have been erected in Nova Scotia and Canada, and, more recently, in the West Indies, in Upper Canada, and in Newfoundland; and that the Church of England has been recognised as the Established Church in the colonies.

That from the time when the Canadian provinces were ceded to the British crown, public attention has been perseveringly directed to the maintenance of a Protestant clergy in those extensive territories, as will be seen by referring to the royal instructions to the governors of the province, and more especially to the Acts of Parliament for the better government of Canada, passed in the years 1774 and 1791.

That the last-mentioned statute, having recited that his Majesty had been graciously pleased, by message to both houses of Parliament, to express his royal desire to be enabled to make a permanent appropriation of land in the said provinces, "in such manner as may best conduce to the due and sufficient support and maintenance of a Protestant clergy within the said provinces, in proportion to such increase as may happen in the population and cultivation thereof," enacted, that no grant of land should be valid, unless one-seventh part thereof should be allotted and appropriated for the support and maintenance of a Protestant clergy; and that the profits arising from such lands "should be applicable solely to the maintenance and support of a Protestant clergy, within the province in which the same shall be situated, and to no other use or purpose whatsoever."

That in the year 1819, his Majesty's law officers gave an opinion relative to the rents and profits of the clergy reserves in the Canadas, in which they state, that "they think the Governor would be justified in applying such rents and profits to the maintenance and support of clergy of the Church of Scotland, as well as those of the Church of England, but not to the support and maintenance of ministers of Dissenting Protestant congregations."

That, in consequence of the urgent spiritual wants of the colonies, and the insufficiency of the proceeds of the clergy reserves, to meet the expense of maintaining an adequate number of clergymen, annual Parliamentary grants were voted for that purpose, and the distribution of them was entrusted to this Society.

That upon the discontinuance of such grants in the year 1831, the Society was encouraged by Government to keep up the full number of clergymen then in connexion with it; and as regarded clergymen who had been employed previously to that year, a specific agreement was made for the payment of three-fourths of the salaries of those stationed in Upper Canada and Nova Scotia, from funds under the controul of Government, on condition that such as were stationed in Lower Canada, New Brunswick, Prince Edward's Island, and Newfoundland, should receive payment in the same proportion from the Society. And, although there was no arrangement equally definite respecting their successors, or any additional clergymen whose services might be required in settlements not provided for before the year 1831, it was announced to the Society in that year, by his late Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, that the clergy reserves in the Canadas, and the Church and school lands in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, would be so appropriated as to afford, at no distant period, the means of supporting a Protestant clergy in those provinces, and thus relieve the Society from a burden too heavy to be borne permanently by a charitable institution.

That relying on these assurances, the Society, in addition to very extensive operations in the West Indies and Australia, has undertaken, since the year 1831, to engage and assist in maintaining forty clergymen in Upper and Lower Canada, over and above the number employed in those provinces at the time of the withdrawal of the Parliamentary grant; and that a still further addition, of an hundred and fifty clergymen, is required to meet the wants of the numerous emigrants from the mother country now settled in British America.

That the Society has therefore seen, with great alarm and regret, a bill recently passed by the legislature of Upper Canada, enacting that the whole of the clergy reserves in that province shall be sold, and that the proceeds of such sales, and of sales heretofore effected under the provisions of the Act of 1827, shall be vested in any securities within that province, and the interest divided among the Churches of England and Scotland, the Presbyterians of the United Synod, and all other "religious bodies or denominations of Christians now recognized by the constitution and laws of the province;" which are understood to be as follows:—

Methodists, of which there are several denominations.	Congregationalists.
Roman Catholics.	Lutherans.
Baptists.	Mennonites.
Independents.	Tunkers.
	Moravians.
	Quakers.

That, without expressing any opinion upon the propriety of supporting the ministers of dissenting denominations from public funds, the Society regards with the deepest concern the proposed departure from the practice hitherto observed by the British Government, and solemnly sanctioned by Parliament, of making provision for the maintenance of clergymen of the Church of England, in proportion to the growing population of the colonies, and thus supplying the spiritual wants of her Majesty's subjects, who have settled in British America, confiding in the assurance of the Government and Legislature, that they and their children should be furnished with means of religious instruction similar to those which they enjoyed at home.

That if it be thought fit to afford religious instruction to Dissenters at the public charge, such charge should be borne by funds other than those set apart by Parliament for the maintenance of clergymen of the Established Church; and that at a time when one hundred and fifty additional clergymen are required to minister to congregations in the Canadas, and the sum of money applicable to the maintenance of clergymen is insufficient to meet the necessities of the case, it will be highly detrimental to the interests of our holy religion, to sanction a bill by which that sum will be reduced to an inconsiderable pittance.

That there are several important questions respecting the true meaning and interpretation of the Act of 1791, upon which it is desirable to obtain the opinion of her Majesty's judges before the bill upon your lordships' table becomes the law of the land.

That although by the Act of 1791, power is given to the Colonial legislature of Canada to vary or repeal, subject to a veto on the part of either house of the Imperial Parliament, the provisions of that Act for the allotment or appropriation of clergy reserves, and for the erection of parishes, grave doubts are entertained respecting the competence of the Colonial legislature to interfere, in such manner as will divert the application of the clergy reserves from the purposes specifically defined in the statute; much more to transfer a fund provided for a Protestant clergy to the maintenance of the Roman Catholic religion, an event which must certainly happen, if the plan now proposed for adoption in Upper Canada be regarded as a precedent for the adoption of a like plan in the Lower Province.

That it is also doubtful whether the Clause (41) of the Act of 1791, enabling the provincial legislature to vary or repeal the provisions of that Act respecting the allotment and appropriation of lands for the maintenance of a Protestant clergy, gives them any authority to legislate respecting lands already allotted or appropriated, and still more, whether it empowers them to apply the proceeds of lands sold under the authority of the Act of 1827, to purposes not contemplated in that Act.

That supposing these legal questions to have been decided in conformity with the sentiments of the existing government of Upper Canada, it will remain for your lordships to consider the justice and expediency of the provisions contained in the bill recently transmitted from that province.

That in the message on the subject of the clergy reserves addressed by his Majesty, in January, 1832, to the House of Assembly of Upper Canada, recommending them to consider how their authority might be used "most advantageously to the spiritual and temporal interest of his Majesty's faithful subjects in that province," it was declared as the result of his Majesty's inquiries, that the changes sought for in the disposition of the clergy reserves might be carried into effect "without sacrificing the just claims of the Established Churches of England and Scotland;" and the Society trusts that the claims which were recognised so explicitly in the year 1832 will not be overlooked at the present time.

That so late as in the year 1839 two measures obtained the approbation of the provincial legislature of Upper Canada, by the first of which it was provided, that salaries of 100*l.* a year should be paid from the proceeds of the clergy reserves to each clergyman of the Church of England, resident according to certain specified terms in that province; while by the second it was provided, that the reserves should be sold, and the purchase money be paid into the hands of the receiver-general of the province, to be appropriated by the Imperial Parliament to religious purposes.

That although the first of these enactments, after having passed both the House of Assembly and the legislative council, was subsequently rejected in the House of Assembly by a very small majority; and the second, when transmitted to this country, did not obtain her Majesty's assent; yet the fact that such measures were favourably entertained in the year 1839 by the provincial legislature, affords a complete answer to those who assume, that if the bill now before Parliament be rejected, it will be impossible to obtain better, or even as good terms for the Church of England on any future occasion.

That the interposition of the provincial legislature is not necessary to the attainment of any objects sought for by the clergymen and other members of the Church of England, who desire only that the meaning of the Act of 1791 should be determined by competent authority, and its provisions carried into effect accordingly.

That after a careful examination of the bill now before your lordships, your petitioners think that it is deficient in every one of the characters by which such a measure ought to be marked, and is constructed upon a plan which prevents even the possibility of effecting the objects which it professes to have in view.

By proposing to sell the clergy reserves at the present time, when the price of land in Upper Canada is necessarily much below its intrinsic value, it gives up the great principle of the Act of 1791, that of making a provision for clergymen in proportion to the increasing population and cultivation of the province.

By investing the proceeds of future sales, and also of former sales, under the Act of 1827, "in any security within the province," it exposes the whole sum derived from these sources to imminent danger, if not to certain loss.

By dividing the payments to be made from the interest of these investments among the ministers of all denominations of Christians recognised in the province, the very principle of an Established Church is renounced, and the State proclaims itself indifferent to the maintenance of the doctrine and discipline of the Church of England.

By requiring a census of the people to be taken once in every four years according to their different religious persuasions, the expense of which, under a special commission, is to be charged upon the clergy reserves, and will swallow up a large portion of their produce, and by enacting that the remainder of that produce shall be divided among the different denominations in proportion to their numbers, it will cause the incomes of the clergy to fluctuate in a manner wholly inconsistent with their comfort, respectability, and usefulness, and will increase and perpetuate the religious dissensions which it is the professed object of the measure to prevent; while, by enabling any five persons interested in the affairs of the various denominations, and thinking themselves aggrieved by the distribution of the fund, to proceed in the Court of Chancery for the redress of their grievance, it gives encouragement to endless litigation, and provides every discontented individual with the means of disturbing the public peace.

That, for these and other reasons, your petitioners, while they express their earnest wish that some mode may be devised for settling the difficult questions connected with the clergy reserves in Upper and Lower Canada, are firmly convinced that no permanent settlement of them is to be expected from the bill now upon your lordships' table, and humbly pray your lordships that it may not be suffered to pass into a law.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

NATIONAL SOCIETY.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE INSPECTORS OF SCHOOLS.

NATIONAL SOCIETY'S OFFICE,
Sanctuary, Westminster,
19th March, 1846.

TO THE REV. EDWARD FEILD, M.A.

REV. SIR,

IN consequence of your appointment by the National Society as an Examiner or Inspector of Schools, I have, under the direction of his Grace the President, and the General Committee, prepared some instructions to assist you in the discharge of that responsible office. You will, however, observe that these instructions are only provisional, and must be expected to derive important additions and amendments from further experience.

The object of the Committee in selecting inspectors, is merely to place at the disposal of the Bishops and Diocesan Boards the services of persons whose peculiar fitness for the duties thus imposed upon them has been ascertained by competent testimony; and whose inspection, emanating from one common centre, and extending over more than one diocese, may tend to promote uniformity of system, and to diffuse generally such improvements as have been locally introduced. The Committee have never claimed, nor desired to exercise, any power or controul over schools in union with the Society; and the experience of nearly thirty years convinces them, that the cause of education in this country never can be furthered by any attempt to impose restraints upon the managers of schools beyond those implied of necessity in their recognition of the authorised formularies and discipline of the Church.

Under the sanction of episcopal authority, you will no doubt find the clergyman and school-managers desirous to avail themselves of your services in the inspection of their school. But to prevent all misconception, you will be careful to explain, that the purpose of your visit is only to assist them in the completion of their own design; not so much to expose errors, as to promote improvements; to control, as to persuade; to censure, as to encourage;—in short, to show how the well-being, moral and religious, physical and intellectual, of the rising generation may be most effectually promoted. Feeling the delicacy of the task you have undertaken, you will not fail to evince a conciliatory spirit throughout your whole proceedings.

The duties of your office will be,

1st. To ascertain the actual state of each school by personal examination, aided by the explanations of the local managers.

2dly. To draw the attention of the managers to points in respect to which their school might be improved.

3dly. To collect information as to local difficulties, and wants generally experienced, and as to the best means of meeting them which have been devised in particular cases.

Before commencing your inspection of any Diocese, you will be informed by the bishop, either directly or through the diocesan board, what schools you are to examine. You will also receive from this office a list of all schools within the diocese, which have received pecuniary assistance, either immediately from the Society itself, or through its intervention from the Treasury; and you will visit as many of them as your general arrangements will permit, with the view of ascertaining, in addition to the particulars common to them with other Schools, the mode in which the funds supplied from either source have been expended. You may find that some of them have not been united to the diocesan board, in which case you will take the opportunity of pointing out to the managers the advantage and propriety of placing them in that relation.

When you are about to visit any school, due notice should be given of your intention, and the clergyman and managers should be requested to meet and confer with you upon the several particulars to which your attention will be directed.

These particulars will vary according to the kind of school to be visited, whether it be a National, Infant, Evening, or Sunday School.

To begin with a National School, and with the most obvious, though not the most important point for examination, namely, the physical comfort and well-being of the children, you will ascertain whether the school-house is substantially built, commodiously fitted up, and kept in good repair; whether it is of adequate dimensions, and situated in a central and accessible position; whether it is well lighted, and warmed, and thoroughly ventilated; whether there is annexed to it a yard or playground, well drained and fenced; whether the children are taught habits of cleanliness, and have time allowed them, at proper intervals, for exercise and recreation.

In turning your attention from the physical to the intellectual and religious departments of education, you will probably regard the two latter as to a great extent identical; not only because the most intellectual and elevating of all studies is religion, and because a spirit of religion ought to direct all the exercises of the understanding; but because in common country schools there is seldom leisure or opportunity for much intellectual cultivation beyond that which is interwoven with religious and moral instruction. At the same time it may, in regard to certain objects, be convenient to consider the means of intellectual improvement separately from those of religious education. You will inquire, therefore, whether school-materials in sufficient quantity, and of a proper kind, are provided; what are the books employed; and how much time is devoted to study. With respect to the method of instruction, you will, where it is monitorial, inquire how far the master or mistress is acquainted with the principles of that system, as adopted by the National Society at its formation: you will ascertain the age and proficiency of the monitors; whether they are allowed to teach all subjects indiscriminately, or are confined to the more mechanical and elementary departments of instruction; whether any, and what number, are paid or apprenticed; whether they receive tuition at extra hours, apart from the other pupils; whether there is an assistant master or mistress, and how paid; and whether the master confines his attention to a single class, or extends his personal instructions to the whole school. Where the simultaneous system has been introduced, you will consider how far the master or mistress possesses the necessary art of communicating ideas in clear and popular language, and of keeping alive attention by a due mixture of interrogation and ellipsis. Under either of these systems, or under the two in combination, recollecting that the master is of far more importance than the system, the spirit than the mechanism of the school, you will endeavour to satisfy yourself whether the acquirements are showy or substantial, and whether the replies are made intelligently, or mechanically and by rote. You will estimate the progress of the junior, as well as of the senior class; and the progress, in each class, of the lower as well as of the higher pupils. While you do not overlook their attainments in history, geography, arithmetic, music, &c. you will pay especial attention to their proficiency in reading, writing, speaking, and understanding their own language. You will represent to all the parties interested in a school, the fundamental importance of language as the vehicle of thought, and the necessity of especial instruction in grammar, and the meaning of words. It will be proper for you further to inquire whether the school is provided with a library; and if so, of what books it consists, and in what manner, and to what extent, it is made available and useful. You will also carefully examine all attempts to introduce works of industry into schools, and inquire into the causes of success or failure in the plans adopted. Considering the early age at which children are sent to work in rural as well as in manufacturing districts, it will be a proper subject of investigation how far the time deducted from school hours for the purpose of manual employment is compensated by advantage to the habits and prospects of the scholars.

But by far the most important subject for your investigation, that of religion and morality, remains. You will, therefore, inform yourself as to the regularity of the children in their attendance at school, in what way registered, and how enforced; as to manners and behaviour, whether orderly and decorous; as to obedience, whether prompt and cheerful, or reluctant and limited to the time while the master's eye is upon the child; and as to rewards and punishments, on what principle administered, and with what results. Where boys and girls are taught together in the same school-room, you will pay attention to their age and habits, and to the results of their instruction in common. You will report, with especial care, upon the daily practice of the school with reference to Divine worship; whether the duties of the day are begun and ended with prayer and psalmody; whether attendance is duly given at Church; whether daily instruction is given in the Bible; whether the Creed, the Catechism, and the Liturgy, are explained, together with the terms most commonly in use throughout the Scriptures and the several offices of the Church.

In connexion with the religious and intellectual training of children, the Committee are desirous to benefit by the result of your most careful observations upon a point of vital importance, regarding which a diversity of opinion and practice still prevails, namely, the use of the Holy Bible as a lesson-book for reading. In cases, therefore, where books of a general character have in this respect been substituted for the Scriptures, you will inquire whether the result has been a greater reverence for the sacred text as the word of God; or whether there are any indications of a tendency on the part of the master to take less pains in imparting, and on the part of the scholars to feel less interest in receiving, instruction grounded on the Bible and formularies of the Church, than when engaged in subjects which, with less trouble both to master and scholar, may produce more immediate and apparent results in augmenting the capacity and knowledge of the children. This comparison will have a further object. You will endeavour to ascertain whether the use of words with a clear perception of their meaning, and the culture of the mental faculties, is distinguished from the mere attainment of knowledge, be more effectually promoted by the study of Holy Scripture, with all the aids of illustration and collateral reference, or by a wider and more miscellaneous course of reading. It will be obvious that in thus comparing different methods of instruction, due allowance must be made not only for the degree of personal superintendence given by the clergyman and other visitors, but also for the relative capacity of the teachers.

To estimate that capacity is the most delicate part of the Inspector's duty, but it is also that in which his judgment and experience will be of the greatest value to local managers. You will not, therefore, withhold from them any opinion on this head which may be safely and advantageously given; nor will you withhold from the master himself any suggestions for the improvement of his school; taking care, in each instance, that the clergyman and managers should know and approve of them. I need scarcely add, that in addressing queries or observations to the master, you will be careful to do so in such a manner that his credit and authority with his scholars shall be unimpaired. It may frequently happen that the master is less effective than is desirable from want of sufficient training and experience; in those cases you will inquire whether he could be allowed to attend in London or elsewhere for further instruction, provided an efficient substitute could be supplied during his absence. Should the defects in any school appear to arise from its being too large to be effectually superintended by one person, you will specially report thereon, in the hope that some provision may be made for employing assistant-teachers or paid monitors. And with reference to this subject you will, as occasion offers, point out the advantages arising to a school when promising scholars are induced to remain by small weekly payments, by presents of clothing, &c. or by being afterwards apprenticed to the master or mistress of some well-ordered National School.

Besides the above points, which for the most part will be the subject of special communication rather than of your general Report, you may usefully inquire as to the salaries of the several teachers; and in particular as to the price paid for instruction in different schools, and to the question thence arising, whether the charge of maintaining schools on the most efficient footing may not, in a very considerable degree, be defrayed by the parents—a due regard being paid to the respective ages of the children, and to the extent of the instruction given. In the case of small schools, where the salary is not enough to maintain a master, you may suggest the inquiry whether a mistress properly trained would not be sufficient.

The queries just mentioned refer primarily to a National School commonly so called; but you will easily perceive how far they can be adapted to schools of any other description. For each kind of school there will of necessity be peculiar inquiries appropriate to its peculiar object. Sunday-schools will not fall so frequently under your observation as daily schools; but on account of their great importance, you will avail yourself of every opportunity to visit them. You will find out, also, whether the children have other opportunities of instruction; and if not, whether such opportunities might not be provided for them. The most obvious, and in many cases the most effectual provision for this purpose, would be to open the Sunday or National School-room for evening classes, either occasionally or daily, throughout the week. By this arrangement, which the Society has frequently recommended, the education of apprentices and farmers' boys, which is so often terminated prematurely, may be continued at least to the period of their confirmation. You will also inquire whether any arrangements are made whereby the managers may maintain a connexion with the pupils, and trace the effects of their education after they have quitted the school; as, for instance, by receiving testimonials of their conduct at the end of one, two, or three years, and by giving them books or other rewards, when the reports of their employers are favourable.

In the case of infant-schools, you will not only recollect, that long-continued bodily restraint is injurious to the health and growth of infants, but that all attempt to force the intellectual powers into premature activity is dangerous, and for the most part frustrates the very purpose intended, which is not to make a show on the day of examination, but to prepare the child for being intelligent and well-informed in mature life. At the same time, it will not escape you, that moral and religious principle may be instilled sooner than is commonly imagined; that habits of veracity and docility may be very early acquired; and that the great lesson of obedience is most easily and effectually inculcated before a contrary disposition has been allowed to establish itself in the mind. In an infant-school, therefore, the proper subject of inquiry is, not solely, or even principally, what the infants know, but whether they are healthy, cheerful, cleanly, orderly, and obedient. The age of entering and leaving school will in this, as in other cases, be a proper subject of inquiry.

Although dame-schools are not the immediate subject of your official inspection, you will not leave them entirely without notice. You will inform yourself whether in some instances they are not better than report represents them; and might not frequently be improved, and taken with advantage under the patronage of the parochial Clergy.

In case you are invited to visit any middle or commercial school, your course of proceeding will be determined by the nature of the establishment, and its relation to the Diocesan Board under which you may be acting. These establishments will fall under one of the following heads:—

1. Schools taken into Union by the Boards.
2. Schools established by the Boards.
3. English departments connected with the old grammar schools.
4. Superior departments engrafted on National Schools, and conducted in part by the same master and assistant.

On the system of education best suited to middle schools, you will no doubt be frequently invited to give an opinion. Owing to the rapid increase in wealth and importance of the class for whose children these establishments are designed, the subject is in some degree new; and the Society cannot be expected to pronounce at once decidedly upon it.

How far the education should be founded on literature and abstract science; how far it may include an acquaintance with the principles of commerce and agriculture;—how far the grammatical and literary branch should be cultivated in the ancient languages; how far in English and the languages of modern Europe;—in what manner and to what extent an acquaintance with geography, history, physical science, and the constitution of the country, should be given;—by what means the firm maintenance of a well-considered system of education may be reconciled with a fair attention to the wishes of parents for acquirements of immediate utility; in what way provision may be made for permanently supporting such institutions, and for placing the master in a position of independence befitting his office;—these are questions deserving serious attention, and on which the Committee will reserve their judgment till the issue of the different plans already in operation shall be known.

To give you greater facility in recording your observations in the shape of facts rather than opinions, a schedule of queries will at an early period be placed in your hands. The Committee will expect you to report briefly on the condition of each school, and to describe more at large the state of education throughout any Diocese you may be commissioned to inspect. Such detailed reports by different inspectors, having no official communication with each other, and yet executing the same instructions, would form a document of great public interest and utility.

On the other opportunities that will be afforded you for advancing the cause of National Education, I need not enlarge. It must be obvious how much may be effected both by public and private intercourse, towards exciting zeal, and then directing it to proper objects. You will recollect, however, on all occasions, to make the necessary distinction between your own opinions as an individual, and your instructions from this Committee.

I have the honour to be, Rev. Sir,

Your faithful and obedient servant,

JOHN SINCLAIR, Secretary.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE EMPLOYMENT OF ADDITIONAL CURATES IN POPULOUS PLACES.

PATRON.—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.

PRESIDENTS.

HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.
HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK.

THE Committee are happy to be able to inform the Subscribers and Friends of this Society, that, since a statement was last published, an addition has been made to the Society's means of usefulness, which, though very far from commensurate with the field of exertion that still lies before them, holds out an encouraging hope that the benefit resulting from the establishment of the Additional Curates' Fund is becoming more widely known, and that their sedulous adherence to those principles of ecclesiastical order on which the Society is based, and the strict impartiality with which its resources have been dispensed, are properly appreciated.

In July, 1839, it was stated that the Society was pledged for the ensuing year, to the immediate payment of a sum which amounted to within 100% of its whole annual income, that income being then £6,700, and the aggregate of grants £6,600. With two exceptions, all the grants then enumerated are still in force, and renewable, should the cases deserve it, at Easter, and consequently none of the income so appropriated has again become at the disposal of the committee. Nevertheless, by means of an increase in their annual subscriptions, and of the interest arising from their funded property, the Society has lately found itself in a condition to make further annual grants to the extent of 1,000! This sum, therefore, reserving a portion of it to meet some urgent applications, which it was understood had been kept back from an idea that the whole of the Society's income was pre-engaged, the Committee have lost no time in appropriating.

From among the numerous applications which have been transmitted to this office, and many of which have claims almost equally pressing with those of the selected cases, the Committee have made grants to the following:

Parish or District.	Diocese.	Population.		Grant.	Local Contributions.
		Parish.	Dist.	£	£
Birmingham, All Saints.	Worcester.	4,000	70	10
Sutton, near Hull	York	5,500	4,750	80
Liverpool, St. Matthias	Chester	200,000	3,000	30	70
Barnsley, Parish Silkestone	Ripon	16,600	12,000	70
Districts of Hebden and Monckton, in Parish of Jarrow	Durham	5,000	3,000	80
Ile of Mann, St. Patrick.	Sodor and Mann	2,000	800	60
Aberystwyth, Parish Llanbadarn Fawr	St. David's	5,500	50	30
Mile End, All Saints, in the Parish of Stepney	London	50,000	8,500	80
Hingworth, in addition to former Grant of 50l.	Ripon	70,000	8,871	30
Cambridge, St. Giles with St. Peter	Ely	3,000	80	20
Gloucester	Gloucester & Bristol	5,420	70

The Committee have next to state, that their offer to the eleven places enumerated in their last report, of a grant for three years, at the end of which period the sum available for those cases will be exhausted, has in each instance been thankfully accepted. The acceptance of a grant for so limited a period affords a satisfactory indication of the expectation of the parties, that by the time the Society's aid must be withdrawn, its place will have been supplied by local exertions; and it also sets an example which it is much to be desired may be followed in other quarters, as it would enable the Society, from time to time, to transfer the benefit of their grants from one locality to another, and thus greatly to extend the sphere of their usefulness.

If to these 21 new grants be added the 91 announced in former reports, and still in force, the total number of parishes and districts aided by the Society will be 112, and their aggregate population will amount to 1,966,000.

Besides these 112 annual grants, the Committee have lately been enabled to take steps, under the seventh fundamental rule of the Society, towards the encouragement of endowments. Several applications having been made to them for grants in aid of endowment, and feeling the importance of securing (wherever it is possible) a provision of this permanent character, they have laid down fixed rules upon the subject, and in conformity thereto have offered the following sums, viz.:

To St. Botolph, Colchester, £400. to meet £800. raised by the parish.

To Ashby-de-la-Zouch, £500. to meet £1000. raised by the parish.

To Coates, Parish Whittlesey, £500. to meet an endowment of £60. per annum.

Such is the account of the Society's progress during the past year. If it be said that, compared with the extent of spiritual destitution which still remains unrelieved, the progress made is inconsiderable, this is freely acknowledged, and few can be more alive to the fact than the Committee, before whose notice the exigencies of populous districts have been brought in painful detail. But, notwithstanding this, they have thought it wiser, and more satisfactory, only to make such grants as they have the present means of paying, and always to confine them to cases in which the certain and immediate employment of a curate is guaranteed. And so long as the provision for a large number of the Ministers of the Church is allowed to remain dependent on private charity alone, the Committee will continue to dispense on these principles, and to the best of their ability, the fund entrusted to their charge; and they do not doubt, that as in the present, so in every succeeding year, it will be gradually augmented by the pious contributions of the members of the Church.

W. J. RODBER, SECRETARY.

4, St. Martin's-place, April, 1840.

* See the Resolutions of the Board.

At a Meeting of the Committee of the Society for promoting the Employment of additional Curates in Populous Places, on the 3d of March, 1840, the Lord Bishop of London in the Chair, Resolved, 1. That this Society are prepared to grant, by way of endowment, a sum not exceeding one-third of the amount raised for the same purpose by local contributions, provided that the sum granted by this Society shall in no case exceed 500*l*.

2. That this Society, before paying over any grant by way of endowment, require that the local contributions shall be actually raised or secured, and that the Governors of the Bounty of Queen Anne shall, in each case, be the Trustees of the Endowment Fund.

The Society, having thus begun to make grants in aid of Endowments, will be better able to avail itself of the donations or bequests of those who desire permanently to devote a portion of their substance to the service of God. According to the first rule stated above, each sum so given will be the means of eliciting from other quarters, another sum of twice the amount, to be for ever dedicated to the same sacred object.

INCORPORATED SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING THE ENLARGEMENT, BUILDING, AND REPAIRING OF CHURCHES AND CHAPELS.

A MEETING of the Committee of this Society was held at their chambers, St. Martin's Place, on Monday, the 16th of March, 1840, his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury in the chair. There were present, his Grace the Archbishop of York, the Bishops of London, St. Asaph, Bangor, Chester, Salisbury, and Hereford; Lord Kenyon; the Venerable Archdeacon Cambridge; the Revs. Dr. D'Oyly, B. Harrison, and T. Bowdler; Joshua Watson, Arthur Powell, N. Connop, jun. J. S. Salt, W. Davis, and W. Cotton, Esqrs.

Among other business transacted, grants were voted towards building a church at Coundon, in the parish of St. Andrew, Auckland, Durham; building a church at Dukinfield, in the parish of Stockport, Chester; building a church at Horsey, in the parish of Dawley, Salop; building a church at Twickenham, Middlesex; rebuilding the chapel at West Butterwick, in the parish of Owston, Lincoln; enlarging by rebuilding the chapel at Winsby, in the parish of Bradford, Wilts; increasing the accommodation in the church at Urchfont, Wilts; enlarging the church at Whilnethan, Suffolk; repairing the chapel at Birkenshaw, York; enlarging the church at Sowerby, York; rebuilding the church at Raskelf, York; rebuilding the church at Rawmarsh, York; rebuilding the belfry of the church at Llanmawr, Montgomery.

CLERICAL LIBRARIES—DR. BRAY'S ASSOCIATES.

The Associates of the late Rev. Dr. Bray have published their Annual Report, giving an account both of the management of their Schools in British America, and of their proceedings in the establishment of Theological Libraries at home and abroad.

Their school at Hammond's Plains, near Halifax, to which no master had been appointed for several years, has lately been re-opened; and the Associates have now five schools, almost entirely supported from their funds. The greater part of this expense is defrayed from the proceeds of an estate in Philadelphia, which was given in trust to the Associates for that purpose.

During the past year, they have founded a Library at Frome, in Somersetshire, and have assisted, by a grant of books, the theological libraries at Warminster and Southampton. Much consideration was necessary in the latter case, as it seemed hardly to come within their object of providing "libraries for clergymen in poor and populous places." Particular circumstances, however, were brought before the Associates, which seemed to make it desirable that this assistance should be given.

In Scotland they have placed a library at the disposal of the Bishop of Ross and Argyle, which will be used by the episcopal clergy in the islands of Skye and Lewis, and other remote parts of his diocese.

They have likewise sent out a library to the clergy resident in and near St. John's, Newfoundland, and another to Madras, to be placed under the care of the Bishop, and to be used by the presidency chaplains, and five or six other clergymen.

Besides the foundation of new libraries, the Associates are anxious to keep in repair the books belonging to libraries already established. With this view, they are about to make small grants of money to several libraries in North Wales; and would gladly enter into correspondence with the trustees of any other libraries which they have at any time founded.

These libraries are generally granted for the use of the clergymen who may from time to time be resident in a particular neighbourhood, or, in some cases, to the minister of a parish or chapel, and his successors.

New Associates are admitted by ballot, on the recommendation of two Associates. The annual subscription is 1*l* 1*s*.

Donations and Subscriptions are received by Mr. Stretton, at the Office of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 67, Lincoln's-inn-fields. Further information, or a copy of the Annual Report, may be obtained from Mr. Stretton, or by application at the Associates' Office, 52, Hatton-garden.

COMMITTEE OF COUNCIL ON EDUCATION.

Council Office, Whitehall, January 4, 1840.

Sir,

1. HER Majesty having been graciously pleased, on the recommendation of the Committee of Council, to appoint you one of the Inspectors of Schools, the Committee request your attention to the enclosed paper of instructions, with the documents thereto annexed, for your guidance in the discharge of the duties which will devolve on you.

2. While an important part of these duties will consist in visiting, from time to time, schools aided by grants of public money made by the authority of the Committee, in order to ascertain that the grant has in each case been duly applied, and to enable you to furnish accurate information as to the discipline, management, and methods of instruction pursued in such schools, your appointment is intended to embrace a more comprehensive sphere of duty.

3. In superintending the application of the Parliamentary grant for public education in Great Britain, My Lords have in view the encouragement of local efforts for the improvement and extension of elementary education, whether made by voluntary associations or by private individuals. The employment of Inspectors is therefore intended to advance this object, by affording to the promoters of schools an opportunity of ascertaining, at the periodical visits of inspection, what improvements in the apparatus and internal arrangement of schools, in school management and discipline, and in the methods of teaching, have been sanctioned by the most extensive experience.

4. The inspection of schools aided by public grants, is, in this respect, a means of co-operation between the Government and the committees and superintendents of schools, by which information respecting all remarkable improvements may be diffused whenever it is sought; you will, therefore, be careful, at visits of inspection, to communicate with the parochial clergyman, or other minister of religion, connected with the school, and with the school committee, or, in the absence of a school committee, with the chief promoters of the school, and will explain to them, that one main object of your visit is to afford them your assistance in all efforts for improvement in which they may desire your aid; but that you are in no respect to interfere with the instruction, management, or discipline of the school, or to press upon them any suggestions which they may be disinclined to receive.

5. A clear and comprehensive view of these main duties of your office is at all times important; but when a system of inspection of schools aided by public grants is for the first time brought into operation, it is of the utmost consequence you should bear in mind that this inspection is not intended as a means of exercising controul, but of affording assistance; that it is not to be regarded as operating for the restraint of local efforts, but for their encouragement; and that its chief objects will not be attained without the co-operation of the school committees; the Inspector having no power to interfere, and not being instructed to offer any advice or information excepting where it is invited.

6. The Committee will furnish you from time to time with a list of schools not aided by public grants, the school committees or chief promoters of which may have expressed a desire that they should be visited in the route of the Inspectors, when they are able conveniently to do so, in order that the school committees may have the advantage of the Inspectors' advice and assistance in the further improvement of their schools. In submitting the route of your visits of inspection for the approval of this Committee, My Lords request you to include these schools in your arrangements. When engaged in the inspection of a school aided by a public grant, a requisition may be presented to you from the promoters of some school, in the same town or village, not aided by a public grant, requesting you to visit their school. Whenever the special requirements of the public service permit your compliance with this request, My Lords are of opinion it is desirable that you should visit the school, and should convey to the school committee or chief promoters (when solicited to do so) the results of your experience in school management and education. You will specially report any such application to this Committee.

7. Acting on the principle of assisting local exertions, the Committee of Council have prepared a series of plans of school-houses for small parishes, villages, and towns, in which are exhibited those improvements which are suggested by an extensive comparison of the results of experience, and which they intend to render available to the promoters of schools, by furnishing them with an explanation of each plan in detail, together with specifications, working drawings, and estimates, and with forms for making contracts with builders, &c.

8. In adopting the regulations in the enclosed minutes respecting religious instruction, the Committee have refrained from enjoining any report on this head, with respect to schools in connexion with the Established Church, the National Society, and the British and Foreign School Society, in order to allay unfounded apprehensions, and to afford the strongest security that no interference with the duties peculiarly belonging to spiritual teachers is intended by the Inspection of Schools. Their Lordships are, however, strongly of opinion, that no plan of education ought to be encouraged in which intellectual instruction is not subordinate to the regulation of the thoughts and habits of the children by the doctrines and precepts of revealed religion. You will, therefore, willingly avail yourself of the opportunity of examining the religious instruction given in the schools whenever you are invited to do so by the parochial clergyman, or other minister of religion, connected with the school, or, when there is no spiritual superintendent, by the majority of the school committee or trustees; and the Committee of Council desire you to hold yourself ready to comply with this wish whenever it is expressed.

9. The reports of the Inspectors are intended to convey such further information respecting the state of elementary education in Great Britain as to enable Parliament to determine in what mode the sums voted for the education of the poorer classes can be most usefully applied. With this view, reports on the state of particular districts may be required to ascertain the state of education in such districts, and how far the interference of Government or of Parliament can be beneficially exerted by providing additional means of education. Your reports will be made to the Committee, but it is intended that they shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament.

10. The Committee doubt not you are duly in-pressed with the weight of the responsibility resting upon you, and they repose full confidence in the judgment and discretion with which your duties will be performed.

My Lords are persuaded that you will meet with much cordial co-operation in the prosecution of the important object involved in your appointment; and they are equally satisfied that your general bearing and conduct, and the careful avoidance of whatever could impair the just influence or authority of the promoters of schools, or of the teachers over their scholars, will conciliate the confidence and good-will of those with whom you will have to communicate; you will thus best fulfil the purposes of your appointment, and prove yourself a fit agent to assist in the execution of Her Majesty's desire, that the youth of this kingdom should be religiously brought up, and that the rights of conscience should be respected.

By order of the Committee of Council on Education,
JAMES PHILLIPS KAY.

The Rev. John Allen, M.A. and Seymour Tremenheere, Esq.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE INSPECTORS OF SCHOOLS.

The Lords of the Committee of Council on Education consider that the duties of the Inspectors of Schools may be divided into three distinct branches.

1st. Those duties relate, in the first place, to inquiry in neighbourhoods from whence applications have been made for aid to erect new schools, in order to enable the Committee of Council to determine the propriety of granting funds in aid of the expenses proposed to be incurred, or to the examination of certain special cases in which claims of peculiar urgency are advanced for temporary aid in the support and improvement of existing schools.

2dly. To the inspection of the several schools aided by public grants issued under the authority of the Committee, and an examination of the method and matter of instruction, and the character of the discipline established in them, so as to enable the Inspector to report thereon to this Committee, for the information of both Houses of Parliament.

3dly. As incidental to and in furtherance of these duties, Inspectors may also be required by the Committee to make inquiries respecting the state of elementary education in particular districts.

Firstly, When cases are referred to the Inspector belonging to the first head of inquiry, he will bear in mind that the grant of the last Session is to be chiefly applied in aid of subscriptions for building; and, in particular and special cases, in aid of the support of schools connected with the National Society and the British and Foreign School Society.

The Committee furnish the Inspectors with a copy of the Order in Council of the third of June, and with the annexed regulations of the twenty-fourth of September, by which the appropriation of the Parliamentary grant made in the late Session will be determined.

In the first class of cases, the Inspector will be careful to obtain as precise information as possible respecting the intentions of the promoters of the intended school in relation to each of the regulations of the twenty-fourth of September, and to each of the questions in the Form (A.) (appended hereto), respecting the site and structure of the school-house, and the reasons for expecting that the school will be efficiently and permanently supported. He will forward a plan of the building proposed to be erected, containing the dimensions and height of the rooms, and specifying the appropriation of each part. In the school-rooms, sectional drawings must be given of the position of the desks and forms as proposed to be arranged on the floor. The Inspector will ascertain whether any ground, and to what extent, is to be appropriated to the recreation of the children, how it will be enclosed, and whether it is intended to furnish it with the means of exercise and recreation; and whenever his advice is sought he will encourage the adoption of such arrangements. If the schoolmaster's house do not form part of the building, the Inspector will ascertain whether it is situated in the immediate vicinity of the school, or at what distance. The plans of the school-house, prepared by the direction of this Committee, will always be available for such promoters of schools as may be desirous to adopt the arrangements suggested by the most extensive experience. The Inspector will personally ascertain all circumstances affecting the healthfulness of the site; as, for example, its drainage, ventilation, the proximity of any stagnant water, or of any establishments which may be injurious to health.

The probable amount of stipend proposed to be raised by subscription, or from endowment, or annual collections, together with the amount of school fees likely to be collected from the parents of the children, with other allowances or emoluments, ought to be such as will enable a well-qualified schoolmaster to live in comfort and respectability, if he devote his whole time to the duties of his vocation; and will therefore be a subject of special inquiry to the Inspector.

He will also report on the funds available for the provision of books and school apparatus, and on the views of the promoters of the school respecting the extent of instruction which they wish to be imparted, and the nature of the discipline which they desire to be pursued in the school. He will ascertain whether any and what arrangements are made for the practical instruction of the girls in household management, and whether the instruction of the boys will have a practical relation to their probable future employment.

In relation to the third clause of the fourth regulation of the twenty-fourth of September, requiring, "that the site of the school-house shall be obtained, with a good legal tenure, and that, by conveyance to trustees, it has been duly secured for the education of the children of the poor," the Inspectors are furnished with a copy of the 6th and 7th William IV. cap. 70, intitled, "An Act to facilitate the Conveyance of the sites of School-houses," and with the instructions issued by the National Society, and the forms provided for the purpose by the British and Foreign School Society, as well as with forms prepared under the direction of the Committee of Council, in order to meet the wants of the promoters of some other classes of schools.

The ninth regulation of the twenty-fourth of September requires, "that in every application for aid to the erection of a school-house in England and Wales, it must be stated whether the school is in connexion with the National Society or with the British and Foreign School Society; and if the said school be not in connexion with either of those societies, the Committee will not entertain the case unless some special circumstances be stated to induce their Lordships to treat the case as special:" the Inspectors will occasionally have to examine the special representations made in such cases; and when the case appears to the Committee to warrant further investigation, the Inspectors may have to conduct the inquiries contained in the extract from the minutes of the third of December (in the Appendix to these Instructions), respecting the arrangements which the school committee or chief promoters of such schools propose to make for conducting the religious instruction in an efficient manner, to ascertain whether the Bible will be read daily in the school, and what means are to be adopted to secure from the children attending the school an observance of religious duties, and attendance on Divine worship, having a due regard to the rights of conscience.

Cases of peculiar urgency, arising in poor and populous neighbourhoods, in which representations are made of the want of the means of elementary education, and the absolute dependence of the population, from extreme poverty, on the public aid for the provision of schools, will sometimes be referred to the Inspectors for examination before the Committee determine whether more than the ordinary amount of assistance shall be granted. Such inquiries will sometimes require a general survey of the condition of the poor in the vicinity, and particularly of the extent and quality of the existing means of elementary education; and the Inspector will be furnished with tabular forms in which to collect and combine the facts ascertained by such inquiries.

Well-conducted schools may, at particular periods, be subject to embarrassment from the death or removal of some patron who has provided a considerable portion of the annual income of the school, or from some local disaster, occasioning the withdrawal of the usual resources on which the school has been dependent, or from other similar causes, in which "peculiar cases temporary aid may be sought to meet the annual expenses of existing schools;" the personal examination of the school by the Inspectors, to test the efficiency of the management, will be required in the majority of such applications; and they will find in another part of these instructions full information respecting the nature of the inquiries to be made in such cases, and tabular forms in which to collect the results of their inspection. The efficiency of the school management having been ascertained, the inspector will inquire whether all other efforts to obtain resources for the support of the school have been exhausted, and whether there is a reasonable prospect that temporary aid from the Parliamentary grant would enable the promoters of the school to ensure its future permanent efficiency, without the necessity of renewing their application; such assistance being always regarded as an exception to general rules, and to be granted only in cases in which the strongest evidence of its necessity and utility is afforded.

Secondly, In proceeding to inspect the method and matter of instruction, and the character of the discipline established in the several schools aided by the grants of this Committee, the inspector will bear in mind that his visit will prove of much greater value to the school if he is accompanied by the Committee, or chief promoters of the school, in his examination of the children; inasmuch as all permanent improvements must depend, for the most part, on the exertions of the committee or chief promoters of the school. He will therefore generally announce his visit to the parochial clergyman, or other minister of religion, connected with the school, or to the chairman or secretary of the school committee, and proceed to examine the school in their presence. He will abstain from any interference with the instruction, management, or discipline of the school, and will on all occasions carefully avoid any act which could tend to impair the authority of the school committee or chief promoters of the school over the teacher or over the children, or of the teacher himself over his scholars. He will receive from them any communication which they may wish to make, and afford them such assistance and information as they may be desirous to obtain.

Having inspected the state of the boundary fences, exercise ground, external walls, roof, &c. and ascertained whether the premises are in good repair, the other subjects of inquiry naturally arrange themselves under the following heads and subdivisions.

The Committee of Council, in placing these subjects of inquiry in the hands of the Inspector, by no means expect he will find that the several objects of education adverted to in them are attained in every school. The inquiries relate to different methods of instruction, and to all the subjects of instruction taught under such methods; a comprehensive series of questions is, on this account, necessary. These questions, moreover, are not to be received as an indication, in any respect, of what the Committee of Council consider desirable, either as respects the method or the matter of instruction, but as a mode of collecting the facts of each case, and as a catalogue of methods pursued, and of things taught under certain varieties of elementary instruction, but which are not found united in any one school, because some of them are incompatible with each other.

Neither is the Inspector to receive those inquiries as an exposition of the extent to which, in the opinion of the Committee, intellectual instruction should proceed, but simply as an indication of the facts which he may have occasion to record.

Mechanical Arrangements.

1. As to form of buildings.

The dimensions of the room should be stated.

(A.) When all the classes are in one room.

(B.) When one or two class-rooms are provided for the separate instruction of a part of the children; the rest being taught generally in a common school-room.

(C.) When each class is instructed in a separate room, and occasionally assembled in a common room.

2. As to the disposition of desks.
 - (A.) Whether on Dr. Bell's plan.
 - (B.) Whether on the Lancasterian plan.
 - (C.) Whether a separate range of desks on an inclined plane for each class, with a sufficient area for the arrangement of the class standing on the floor.

Means of Instruction.

1. Enumerate the books used in the several classes under the heads of Reading, Arithmetic, Geography, History of England, Grammar, Etymology, Vocal Music, Linear Drawing, Land Surveying.
2. Describe the apparatus.

Organisation and Discipline.

1. As to the arrangement of classes.
 - (A.) State whether each child is always under the instruction of the same teacher.
 - (B.) Whether it is taught by a succession of teachers, each conveying instruction in some particular branch.
2. As respects monitorial or other discipline.
 - (A.) Number of teachers.
 - (B.) Number of monitors unpaid.
 - (C.) Number of pupil teachers, or of well-instructed monitors, who are paid (state the amount of the remuneration.)
3. As respects rewards and punishments.
 - (A.) If distinction depends on intellectual proficiency.
 - (B.) On a mixed estimate of intellectual proficiency and moral conduct.
 - (C.) On moral conduct only.
 - (D.) Whether corporal punishments are employed; their nature; and the offences to correct which they are used. If they are employed, are they publicly inflicted?
 - (E.) What other punishments are used?
 - (F.) If any, what rewards?

As respects Method.

1. Whether the method of mutual instruction is strictly adhered to.
2. Whether the simultaneous method is more or less mingled with individual teaching.

If the simultaneous method be adopted, the inspector will ascertain to what matter of instruction it is applied; as, for example, reading, grammar, etymology, arithmetic, singing, geography, history, &c.

These inquiries are all to be arranged in the tabular form, No. 1, so as to enable the Inspector to make the requisite memoranda, by a brief initial mark or note, on the spot.

Supposing the school to be conducted on the system of mutual instruction, in order to determine the degree of efficiency with which the school regulations are carried into effect, the Inspector will ascertain—

1. The number of masters, assistant masters, if any, and occasional masters.
2. The number of monitors and the under-mentioned facts respecting each monitor.

If the school be conducted on the mixed method of instruction, the Inspector will ascertain the number of masters, assistant masters, and occasional masters, and the number of pupil teachers employed in the school, and the following facts respecting each pupil teacher:

- Age.
- Period during which he has received instruction.

Attainments—

In Reading.—Can read imperfectly; decently; with ease and accuracy; with ease and expression.

In Writing.—Cannot write; imperfectly; decently; with ease and skill.

In Arithmetic.—Acquainted with addition; subtraction; multiplication; division; or not respectively skilful in the foregoing: acquainted with compound rules; skilful in them; acquainted with higher rules; skilful in them; acquainted with exercises in mental arithmetic; skilful in them.

In Singing.—Having by ear an acquaintance with psalmody and labour songs; acquainted with the elements of the notation of music; able to sing common psalm tunes and labour songs, from notes at sight; able to sing chants, anthems, and more difficult sacred music, from notes.

In Linear Drawing.—Able to draw simple rectilinear figures; able to draw and shade simple rectilinear figures; acquainted with linear drawing, as applied to some mechanical art, such as carpentering, house-building, land-surveying.

As to Physical Exercises.—Acquainted with the elementary movements; acquainted with the more complex combinations; capable of conducting a class under exercise.

Besides which, an examination should, when necessary, be made into their comparative knowledge of—

Geography, History of England, Grammar, Etymology.

The Inspector should further inquire—

The period during which each monitor has been so employed.

Whether he receives any reward or privilege.

The number of children committed to his charge, and their average age.

The classes should be then successively examined, so as to enable a general report, respecting the degree and efficiency of the instruction, to be subjoined to a table containing an account of the routine of the school for each class; that is, an account of the successive exercises of each class during each hour of the day, and each day of the week; stating whether the class, at each hour, is under the instruction of the monitor or pupil, teacher or master.

The degree of attention paid to the moral training of the children, and the means which are adopted for this purpose, deserve the especial attention of the Inspector; he will particularly note to what extent the industrial instruction of females is carried; whether the master has any opportunity of becoming a companion to the children in their hours of relaxation; and whether he is in the habit of communicating with their parents, and procuring assistance from them in the regulation of the habits and the formation of the characters of their children; the average attendance at the school, the number on the books, and the number of holidays in each week and year deserve to be noted.

The Committee direct the attention of the Inspectors to the Regulation (A.), and especially to that part of it which relates to religious instruction. In the accompanying letter their Lordships have already explained the reasons which have induced them not to require any report on the religious instruction in schools in connexion with the Established Church, the National Society, and the British and Foreign School Society.

The Inspectors are, however, to hold themselves ready to examine the religious instruction of the school, whenever invited to do so by the parochial clergyman, or other minister of religion, connected with the school.

Thirdly, With regard to the third branch of the duties of the Inspectors, the Committee, whenever they determine such inquiries shall be made, will issue special instructions for the guidance of the Inspectors.

By order of the Committee of Council on Education,
JAMES PHILLIPS KAY.

RURAL DEANS.

INSTRUCTIONS TO BE OBSERVED BY THE RURAL DEANS IN THE DIOCESE OF LONDON.

1. THE Rural Dean is diligently to inquire, and give true information to the Archdeacon, to be by him made known to the Bishop, of all matters concerning the clergy, churchwardens, and other officers of the Church, which it may be necessary, or useful, that the ordinary should know.

2. Upon being made acquainted with the avoidance of any benefice within his district, he is to make a return thereof to the Bishop, through the Archdeacon, in order that due inquiry may be made into the state of the vacant benefice, and sequestration be issued out of the Ecclesiastical Court.

3. He is, likewise, once in every year, previously to the Archdeacon's visitation, and at other times when he shall be required, to inspect the Churches and Chapels within his district, with their chancels and churchyards, and the books, ornaments, and utensils thereto belonging; as also the houses, buildings, and glebes, belonging to the incumbents; and to make a return thereof to the Archdeacon at his next visitation, noting all alterations, additions, decays, and dilapidations in the premises.

4. He is also to inspect all Parochial and National Schools within his district, and to make a particular report yearly on the education of the poor, as connected with the Established Church; and to obtain from time to time such information respecting parochial matters as shall be required of him; and to make returns thereof to the Archdeacon, to be by him transmitted to the Bishop.

5. He shall likewise be ready to advise and assist the churchwardens within his district, in framing their presentments of all such things as are amiss within their respective parishes, and are by law presentable.

6. He is also to call the clergy of his district together, whenever the Bishop or Archdeacon shall appoint; and take care to disperse such orders as shall be sent to him for that purpose.

7. He is to inspect, at his annual visitation, and at any other time when he may see occasion, the licences of all stipendiary and assistant curates officiating within his district; and to give immediate notice to the Bishop of any, who shall officiate as curates without being duly licensed.

N.B. The Archdeacons will make a yearly report to the Bishop of all returns which they have received from the Rural Deans.

C. J. LONDON.

WELLS DIOCESAN COLLEGE.

THE Bishop of Bath and Wells having long contemplated the foundation of a diocesan collegiate institution, in order to the training of candidates for holy orders, in conformity with the cherished desire of our reformers, that, between the academic degree and entrance into the ministry, there should be a course of preparatory instruction, has decided on immediately commencing the execution of such a plan, in connexion with his cathedral city, and has appointed the Rev. J. H. Pinder, A.M. late Principal of Codrington College, Barbadoes, to be Professor of Theology at Wells.

It is proposed to open the institution at Easter next.

The students to be required to bring with them their college testimonials.

The students to attend the daily lectures of the professor, and to be present at the morning and evening services of the Church.

The students, with permission of the parochial clergy, to be led to visit the sick and aged, and to acquaint themselves, by frequent attendance at the Wells Central School, with the national system of education.

During residence, the students to be considered amenable to the superintendence, and under the paternal care, of the professor.

A testimonial with reference to the Christian mind and character, as well as the competency in learning, of each student, to be delivered by the professor to the bishop, before such student can be admitted a candidate for holy orders.

The instruction received by the students from the professor to be free.

The course of study to be subject to the approval of the bishop.

CLERGY LIST.

The communications which we have received during the present month, respecting the publication of the Clergy List, have been as numerous as those of the preceding month; and we have now obtained from the greater part of the Clergy the information which we sought, for the purposes of this work. We are now engaged in preparing these materials, and hope to be ready for publication soon after Midsummer. But there are still a great number of the Clergy, especially in some particular districts, who have not as yet acceded to our request. We consider it so very desirable that every Clergyman should furnish the information respecting himself, that we shall once more repeat our request, and shall be glad to receive any communications which may be sent to us before the 1st of May.

We take this opportunity of correcting a misapprehension arisen in some quarters with regard to the fourth head of information. Our reasons for inserting it have been simply these, to ascertain the numerical strength of the clergy, (which could not be done by any other means that we are aware of), and to give those who have no benefice or cure, the opportunity of appearing in the same list with their brethren. We have no doubt that in a short time, every clergyman will feel upon this point, as the members of other professions do with regard to their lists, and will be desirous that his name should appear.

We may add, that in the list of benefices, the population and value will be taken from the returns made to the ecclesiastical commissioners, unless where the clergy wish to have those returns corrected. There will be a new census in 1841, but the details of it will, in all probability, not be published till the following year: and the tithe computations will not be so complete for some time longer as to justify any alteration.

The statement we repeat from our last number is as follows:

We propose, therefore, to prepare for publication as early as possible, a work to be entitled, "THE CLERGY LIST, and General List of the Benefices of the Church of England." The work will be published annually under the same Episcopal sanction, and under the same management as the Ecclesiastical Gazette. It will consist of three principal parts:

1. An alphabetical list of the whole body of the clergy, including dignitaries, incumbents, curates, lecturers, and those who have no preferment or duty.

2. A general list of all the benefices, with their population and value, and the names of the clergy and the patrons.

3. A list of the patronage in the hands of the crown, the bishops, &c.

The importance of such a publication will readily be admitted. Most of the secular professions already enjoy this advantage. There is the Army List, the Navy List, and the Law List; and if the clergy individually will only lend us a very little assistance, we hope in a short time to supply the deficiency which still exists with regard to our own profession.

All that we ask of them is, that the resident Clergyman of every parish or benefice will have the kindness to write down under the four following heads the requisite information, and send it by post, directed to the Editor of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

- | |
| 1. Name of Benefice, County, and Diocese. |
| 2. Name of Incumbent, and Year of Admission, with name of Patron. |
| 3. Names of Curates, Lecturers, &c. |
| 4. Names of Clergy residing in the Parish without Ecclesiastical preferment or duty. |

What we particularly wish is, to obtain the names of all the Curates, Preachers, Lecturers, &c. These have hitherto been unnoticed in any list, and there is no possibility of obtaining them with accuracy, but by such an application as this. We therefore hope that this large class of the Clergy will all feel sufficient interest in the project to transmit us their names and the rest of the particulars above, as soon as they conveniently can after the receipt of this request.

It will probably happen that in many cases, owing to the illness or absence of the resident Clergyman, he may not be able to write. In such cases we should feel obliged if some member of his family, or some neighbouring Clergyman, will favour us with the information.

* * THE CLERGY LIST will be published by CHARLES COX, at the Office of the Ecclesiastical Gazette, No 14, Southampton Street, Strand.

The price of the Clergy List will be about six shillings, or not exceeding seven shillings.

The publisher particularly requests that those Clergymen who may wish to become Annual Subscribers to the work, or who may desire to purchase copies of it for the first year, will state their wishes in their letter.

PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE. HOUSE OF LORDS.

TUESDAY, APRIL 7.

CANADA.—CLERGY RESERVES.

THE BISHOP OF EXETER brought forward the motion he had given notice of. He rose to move that the following questions should be referred to the Judges for their opinion:—

"1. Whether the words 'a Protestant clergy,' in the 31st Geo. III. chap. 31, sec. 35 to 42, include any other than clergy of the Church of England, and Protestant bishops and priests and deacons, who have received episcopal ordination?

"And if any other, what other?

"2. Whether the effect of the 41st section of the 31st Geo. III. chap. 31, be not entirely prospective, giving power to the legislative council and assembly of either of the provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, as to future allotments and appropriations; or whether it can be extended to affect lands which have been already allotted and appropriated under former grants?

"3. Whether, there being a corporation legally established for the management of the lands so allotted and appropriated, such council and assembly have power to apply the rents and profits arising from the lands already so allotted and appropriated to any other use or purpose whatever than the maintenance and support of a Protestant clergy?

"4. Whether, in the bill of the legislature of Upper Canada, now lying on the table of this House, intituled, 'An Act for the sale of the Clergy Reserves, and for the Distribution of the Proceeds thereof,' these powers, or either of them, have been validly exercised?"

After a considerable discussion, their Lordships divided.

The question was put upon the first and second resolutions—the third and fourth being withdrawn—

FRIDAY, APRIL 10.

CANADA CLERGY RESERVES.

In a conversation upon this subject,

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTEBURY said, that he should have been happy to withdraw his motion, which he had given notice of for Monday, for an address to her Majesty, if he had received an assurance that after 30 days had elapsed the address of the House would have the same effect which it would have if presented within the 30 days. There was no desire on the part of the Church to push the claims of the Church to their full extent. The Church wished, for the sake of peace, to make any reasonable concession with regard to property, provided always that the Church was recognised as the established Church of the colony.

After a long conversation,

THE BISHOP OF LONDON said, it now being understood that if the judges decided against the authority of the colonial legislature the bill could not receive the royal assent; in withdrawing the motion, then, its supporters evidently receded from a certain ground of safety, giving thereby the best possible pledge of the amicable disposition by which they were actuated, (Hear, hear.)

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

MONDAY, MARCH 9.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS.

LORD J. RUSSELL, in answer to a question put by Mr. Hawes, said that an Ecclesiastical Courts Bill had been very much considered in the House of Lords two or three years ago. The result was, that the Lords resolved not to proceed further with that measure until a bill was passed for establishing discipline among the clergy. In the course of the discussions on this subject in their Lordships' House last year, it was discovered that no satisfactory measure would be passed, but now, he believed, not upon authority but from rumour, that there would be a bill brought forward this session which would meet with the assent of the House of Lords, and then they might hope to proceed with the Ecclesiastical Courts Bill.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12.

MR. BAINES'S BILL FOR FIRST FRUITS AND TENTHS.

MR. AGLIONY brought up the report of the committee on the first fruits and tenths.

On the motion that the report be received,

MR. GOULBURN said he should oppose the motion, but as the matter had been discussed on a former evening, he would not enter into it again, and would therefore merely move that the report be received that day six months.

After a few words from MR. BAINES, the House divided—

For the amendment.....	54
Against it.....	46

The Bill is therefore lost.

TUESDAY, MARCH 30.

BISHOPS OF MONTREAL AND TORONTO.

LORD J. RUSSELL, in answer to questions put by Mr. Pakington, stated, that the Bishop of Toronto received, as Archdeacon of York, 300*l.*; as rector of Toronto, 533*l.*; as Principal of King's College, 250*l.*; making a total of 1,083*l.* Archdeacon Strachan was appointed Bishop of Toronto in January, 1839, on his own offer to accept the office without any addition to his then emoluments. In the discussions which took place on the Archdeacon's proposal that Upper Canada should be erected into a separate see, Lord Glenelg consulted the Archbishop of Canterbury, with whom the measure was arranged, and it was distinctly laid down that in assenting to the proposal the Government could not pledge itself to any extent to provide a salary for the office. When the Bishop was lately in this country, he requested him (Lord J. Russell) to notify to the governor, that till some satisfactory arrangement could be made for the support of the see, he (the Bishop) would be content to remain with his present income. He was told in answer, that there remained nothing to state to the Lieutenant-Governor on that point, that officer being in possession of all the correspondence which passed at the time the bishopric was created; but, to remove any misapprehension of the terms of that arrangement, it was added, that Lord J. Russell conceived that the agreement to accept the office without any addition to the emoluments received as Archdeacon did not imply that the emoluments so received were guaranteed by the Government. The following was the income of the Bishop of Montreal:—He received as Bishop of Montreal, 1,000*l.*; as Archdeacon of Quebec, 500*l.*; as Rector of ditto, 400*l.*; for house rent, 90*l.*; making a total of 1,990*l.* There was at present before the Treasury an arrangement proposed by the Bishop for the consolidation of the items of which his income was composed. The intention was to fix the Bishop's salary at 1,750*l.* there being assigned to the bishop's curate who would fill the office of rector of Quebec, a salary of 250*l.*, being the stipend which the Bishop at present allowed him.

MONDAY, APRIL 6.

LORD J. RUSSELL then moved the second reading of the Ecclesiastical Duties and Revenues Bill, which had stood over from last month, for the purpose, as it was understood, of considering certain alterations proposed by a committee from the Deans and Chapters.

SIR ROBERT INGLIS was strongly opposed to the whole principle of the enactment. He considered it an unjustifiable confiscation, a conversion to one purpose of property settled to another: and in the hope of defeating it, he would move to defer the second reading till that day six months.

SIR ROBERT PEEL declared himself favourable to the proposal, recommended, as it was, by the commission which he had himself originated when in office.

MR. ESTCOURT agreed that a great effort was necessary for the redress of the present destitution; but he thought it should be made under the direction of the Church herself, not under a commission, which might probably thereafter, though it did not then, comprehend a section of laymen disposed to apply her resources in a manner adverse to her interests.

Mr. LAMBERTON said, he would support the bill, but was not inclined to divert the ecclesiastical property of one diocese to the exigencies of others while its own were unsatisfied, which he stated to be the case of the diocese of Durham.

Sir W. FOLLETT wished the second reading postponed for a little while, that members might be made acquainted with, and have time to consider, the suggestions made by the Deans and Chapters.

In that recommendation he was seconded by Mr. GLADSTONE and Lord TEIGNMOUTH.

Mr. G. VERNON supported the bill, the principle of which, he said, was that of Queen Anne's Bounty.

Mr. BAINES was in favour of the bill.

Mr. GOULBURN's motive for supporting the present bill was his feeling of the strong necessity now existing for a remedy to the spiritual destitution of the people.

Mr. LIDDELL went at some length into the peculiar circumstances of the diocese of Durham.

Mr. LAW was opposed to the bill, of which he censured divers particular provisions.

Several other members desired to reserve themselves on the points of detail.

A division then took place—

For the second reading..... 87

For the amendment..... 11

Majority..... —76

The bill was then read a second time, and ordered to be committed.

UNIVERSITY AND CLERICAL INTELLIGENCE.

OXFORD.

WORCESTER COLLEGE.

THERE will be an election of a Scholar in this coll. on the Foundation of Dr. Clarke, on the 8th day of May next. The Scholarships on this Foundation are open to all who are born of English parents, with a preference, ceteris paribus, to the orphans of clergymen of the Church of England.

Candidates must deliver to the Provost certificates of the baptism of their father and mother, and of themselves, and of the marriage of their parents, together with a testimonial of moral and religious character, on or before Monday, the 4th of May.

On Thursday, March 12th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Francis Alfred Bowles, Magdalen hall; William Henry Cope, Magdalen hall; Rev. Digby Octavius Cotes, Scholar of University coll.

Bachelor of Arts.—John Peter Evans, Scholar of Jesus coll.

On Thursday last Mr. Peter Le Page Renouf, of the island of Guernsey, was elected an Exhibitor, on the Foundation of the Rev. William Oades, in Pembroke coll.

ORIEL COLLEGE.

An election of Two Scholars will take place on Saturday, June 13th. Candidates must not have exceeded the age of twenty years, nor, if members of the University, have been matriculated more than eight terms. On the same day there will be an election of an Exhibitor on the Foundation of Mrs. Elizabeth Ludwell, late of Charing, in Kent; with a preference first for candidates of the kindred of Mrs. Ludwell, next for natives of Charing, and next for natives of the county of Kent, not having taken any degree in the University.

Certificates of birth and baptism, and testimonials of good conduct, must be presented to the Provost of Oriel, on or before Tuesday, June 9th.

In a Convocation holden on Thursday, March 19th, the Degree of Doctor in Civil Law by diploma (the highest honour the University can bestow) was conferred upon his Royal Highness Prince Albert.

In the same Convocation, the nomination of the Rev. W. E. Jelf, M.A., Student of Christ Church, to be a Public Examiner in Litteris Humanioribus was unanimously approved.

On Monday, March 16th, the Rev. S. Reay, M.A. of St. Alban Hall, and one of the Sub-Librarians of the Bodleian Library, was elected Laudian Professor of Arabic, in the room of Dr. Knatchbull, of All Souls' College, who has resigned.

Mr. Harris Smith, Scholar of Oriel College, has been elected to the University Scholarship for the encouragement of Latin Literature. The electors consider it right to mention that Mr. Henry Cotton, a Student of Christ Church, distinguished himself at the examination.

Mr. Edward Kent Karslake, Student of Christ Church, has been elected a Scholar on Dean Ireland's Foundation; and the electors have made it known that Mr. Montague Bernard, Scholar of Trinity College, distinguished himself at the last examination.

Mr. William Hedley has been elected and admitted Scholar on the Michel Foundation at Queen's College.

Mr. E. Huntingford, Scholar of New College, has been admitted Actual Fellow of that Society.

Rev. Lewis Gilbertson, M.A., Scholar of Jesus College, has been elected Fellow of that Society.

The following gentlemen have been elected Scholars of University College:—Mr. Bolland, of University College, to the Bennett Scholarship; Mr. Bradley, from Rugby School, and Mr. Slesson, from Tiverton School, to the open Scholarship.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE.

An election of an Exhibitor on the Michel Foundation at Queen's coll. will take place on Thursday, the 21st of May next. Candidates must be natives of the province of Canterbury, who have attained the full age of fifteen, and have not exceeded the age of twenty years; and if members of the University, must not have been matriculated longer than twelve calendar months. At the same time there will also be an election to an Exhibition on Sir Francis Bridgman's Foundation, open to natives of Lancashire, Cheshire, and Wiltshire. And to another for natives of Middlesex, founded by Keane Fitzgerald, Esq.

Certificates of baptism, and testimonials of good conduct, must be delivered to the Provost of the said college, by the respective candidates, on or before Saturday, the 16th of May. The examination will commence on Monday, the 18th, at ten in the morning.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

The Bible Clerkship in this coll. will become vacant at the end of the next Easter Term. Candidates must not be less than eighteen, nor more than twenty years of age; and if already members of the University, must not have exceeded four terms from their matriculation. A preference will be given, ceteris paribus, to the son of a clergyman. Applications for further particulars must be made to the Master, on or before Tuesday, May 19th.

On Thursday, March 26th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Doctor in Civil Law.—Hon. and Rev. Henry Legge, Fellow of All Souls' coll. grand compounder.

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Rev. John Holford Risley, Fellow of New College.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Edward Parris Smith, Pembroke coll.; Rev. Alfred Turner, St. John's coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Thos. Fuller Maitland, Christ Church; Rev. George Tilladam Hyatt, Wadham coll.

In a convocation holden in the afternoon of the same day, it was unanimously agreed that the sum of £500 should be granted, out of the general funds of the University, as a donation to the Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor throughout England and Wales in the principles of the Established Church.

The Duke of Wellington had an audience of Prince Albert on Tuesday, March 24th, at Buckingham Palace, to present to His Royal Highness the diploma of a Doctor in Civil Law, conferred upon His Royal Highness by this University.

Mr. William Latham Bevan, Commoner of Balliol coll. has been chosen a Lushy scholar.

Mr. John Gordon, B.A. of Brasenose coll. has been elected a Mathematical scholar.

In a convocation holden on Thursday, April 2nd, the following letters were communicated to the house:—

"The Rev. the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford.

"My Dear Sir,—I inclose a copy of a letter which I have just now received from Prince Albert.

"Believe me, ever yours most sincerely,

"WELLINGTON.

"London, March 28th, 1840."

"My Lord Duke,—Although I attempted to express my thanks when I had the pleasure of seeing your Grace, and of receiving at your Grace's hands the diploma granted to me by the University of Oxford, I feel that I did not sufficiently express to your Grace my sense of the obligation I was under, and I have now to request that your Grace will have the kindness to convey to the Masters and Scholars of the University of Oxford the very lively satisfaction which I have derived from the distinguished honour conferred upon me, and I feel this honour to be greatly enhanced by the medium through which they have made their communication.

"I remain, my Lord Duke, yours faithfully,

"ALBERT.

"Buckingham Palace, 28th March, 1840.

On the same day the following degrees were conferred:—Bachelor in Divinity, Grand Compounder.—Rev. Richard Child Will, University coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Rev. Frederick William Briggs, Magdalen hall; Robert Powell, Worcester coll. (Both incorporated from Trinity coll. Dublin.)

Mr. William Smith, from St. Paul's School, Mr. C. H. S. Godby, from Huntingdon School, and Mr. Henry Sannemann, Commoner of Lincoln coll. were elected Scholars of Lincoln coll.; and at the same time Mr. W. H. Townsend, from Rugby School, was elected Dr. Hutchin's Scholar of the same coll.

University Craven Scholarship.—At a meeting of the examiners, it was found that Alexander Blackall Simonds, of King's coll. and John Bather, of St. John's coll. were so nearly equal, that the scholarship could not then be awarded. Consequently those two gentlemen are to be re-examined.

At a congregation on Wednesday, March 18th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—Rev. George Williams, King's coll.; Rev. Thomas Daniel Holt Wilson, Trinity coll.

Bachelor of Arts.—James Hutchinson, St. John's coll.

At the same congregation the following Grace passed the Senate:—

"To re-appoint the Syndicate, appointed by a grace of the Senate, May 16th, 1838, in order that they may take into consideration the expediency of giving to the Examiners of the Candidates for Mathematical Honours more explicit instructions with regard to the elementary portion of the examination, than was done in their report dated May 28, and confirmed by a grace of the Senate June 2, 1838; especially as to the nature and number of the questions to be selected from the simpler parts of Natural Philosophy; and that they may report thereon to the Senate before the sixteenth day of May next."

University Craven Scholarship.—On the 14th inst. we stated that Messrs. Simonds, of King's coll. and Bather, of St. John's coll. were to be re-examined for this Scholarship, which having been done, the Examiners met yesterday, and decided in favour of the former.

Bell's Scholars.—The following gentlemen have been elected University Scholars, on the Rev. Dr. Bell's foundation:—F. Gell, Trinity coll.; F. H. Cox, Pembroke coll.

The Chancellor's Medallists.—The two gold medals for the best classical scholars, among the commencing Bachelors of Arts of the present year, have been adjudged to A. C. Gooden, Trinity coll.; and W. S. Wood, St. John's coll.

The following are the names of the Inceptors to the degree of Master of Arts at the congregation held April 3:—Arthur Thacker, Fellow of Trinity coll.; William Nathaniel Griffin, Fellow of St. John's coll.; Edward Brummell, Fellow of St. John's coll.; Henry Christmas, St. John's coll.; Henry Orme Wood, St. John's coll.; Richard William Pierpoint, St. John's coll.; John Freeman, St. Peter's coll.; William Maundy H. Elwyn, Pembroke coll.; James Pulling, Fellow of Corpus Christi coll.; Thomas Coward, Queen's coll.; Henry Cautley Holmes, Catharine hall; John Oswald Routh, Christ's coll.; William Henry Roberts, Emmanuel coll.

At the same congregation the following degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in the Civil Law.—Granville John Granville, Downing coll.

Bachelor in Physic.—Edwin George Jarvis, Trinity coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Alexander Grant, Trinity coll.; George B. Norman, Trinity coll.; David Watkin Williams, Trinity coll.; Charles Alfred Raines, St. John's coll.; John Romney, St. John's coll.; Frank Capell Bellis, Clare hall; John Bradley Swann, Trinity hall; John Till, Queen's coll.; Charles Turner, Queen's coll.; Zachariah Nash, Catharine hall; John Acherley Ashley, Jesus coll.; Christopher Henry G. Busson, Magdalen coll.; William Spenser Dawson, Magdalen coll.; John Green, Emmanuel coll.

Arthur James Miller, M.A., Trinity coll. Dublin; was admitted ad eundem this university.

At the same congregation a grace passed the Senate, confirming the following report of the New Library Syndicate:—

"That Mr. Cockerell has certified to the Vice-Chancellor that Messrs. Rigby have satisfactorily completed the substantial works of the New Library, and that the remaining works embraced in the contract are comparatively of small amount; and Mr. Cockerell has thereupon recommended that a sum of 1,000*l.* be now paid to Messrs. Rigby on account of the works already completed in addition to 30,944*l.* already paid to them on that account. That, although Messrs. Rigby are not at present entitled by the terms of their contract to any further payment, the Syndics, under the circumstances stated in Mr. Cockerell's certificate, beg leave to recommend to the Senate that the said sum of 1,000*l.* be paid to Messrs. Rigby, provided that they and their sureties do expressly signify, in writing, their consent to the proposed payment, and that the same shall be in no manner affect their respective liabilities for the due performance of the contract."

With a view to carry into effect the recommendation contained in a report of the New Library Syndicate of Dec. 4, and confirmed by a grace of the Senate of Dec. 11, 1839, the following grace was offered to the Senate and carried:—

"To affix the seal of bonds of 300*l.* each to the amount of 4,500*l.*, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum; such interest to be paid out of the 500*l.* annually charged on the Library Fund, by the above-mentioned grace, and the bonds themselves to be gradually paid off as the 500*l.* so charged on the Library Fund shall supply the means."

At the same congregation the following grace also passed the Senate:—

"To grant to the late Vice-Chancellor from the common chest the sum of 165*l.* 1*1* s. 7*d.* being the balance due to him on account of the Botanic Garden for the year ending at Michaelmas 1839."

The following gentlemen have been admitted scholars of Clare hall, in this university:—Watson, Glover, Mansfield, Robinson, Haskell, Koe, Godfrey, Hildebrand, Margetta.

The church is to be called Trinity Church, Greenwich.—Kentish Observer.

London Diocesan Board of Education.—At a meeting of the members, held on the 18th of March, it was stated that five of her Majesty's judges have consented to act as inspectors of the schools in union with the board, upon the appointment of the Bishop of London, and in company with the clergy-men nominated by his lordship as their coadjutors, they devoted no inconsiderable portion of their brief leisure at Christmas to this interesting and important work. It is unnecessary to add that the judges could only undertake such a task as a provisional and temporary arrangement, until some permanent and effectual system of inspection can be established. The board has already collected a valuable mass of information on the subject of education in the diocese, and is steadily proceeding in its labours, although it is matter of regret that the prosecution of some of its designs is impeded by the want of sufficient funds to carry them into full effect.—British Magazine.

Clergy Corporation.—The election of poor clergy-men, with good characters and large families, to par-take of Dr. Taylor, Mr. Myddelton, and Mrs. Ann Cam's benefactions, is announced to take place in May next. Blank petitions may be had at the Corporation House, Bloomsbury Place, London.

The Marquis of Westminster has given the site of the late Foot Guards' Barracks, in Wilton-place, Knightsbridge, for the building of a new church, to correspond in size and architecture with St. Peter's, Eaton-square. The sum of 3,000*l.* is to be raised by subscription to build the edifice.—Times.

South Hackney Church Union Fund.—A Church Union Fund, in aid of the five great Church socie-ties, so strongly recommended by the Bishop of London in his last Charge to the countenance and support of his clergymen, being established in the parish of South Hackney, (the Rev. H. H. Norris, Rector,) by which a sum amounting to 526*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* (the greater part of which consists of annual sub-scriptions) has been contributed in aid of the five societies, in the following proportions: Church Building Society, 158*l.* 13*s.*; Additional Curates' Fund, 58*l.* 14*s.*; National Society, 214*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*; Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 55*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.*; Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge, 39*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* The large excess of the contributions to the Building Society and the National Society is produced by donations.

It is in contemplation to build three new churches in the parish of St. George-the-Martyr, Southwark, which contains a population of 50,000 inhabitants, with only two places of worship, the parish church and a chapel of ease, belonging to the establish-ment. The want of church accommodation in this large parish has been long and severely felt. Schools for the education of children on the national system will be attached to each church. The Metropolitan Church Building Fund, the Incorporated Society, and Her Majesty's Commissioners, will furnish grants; and there is no doubt a large sum will be subscribed by the wealthy inhabitants and large firms in the parish. The parishes of Christchurch, Blackfriars-road, and Bermondsey, are to be furnished with an additional church each, and schools, which are much wanting.—Times.

PROVINCIAL.

Cheshire.—The Rev. Dr. Warren, formerly a Wes-leyan preacher, has been ordained by the Lord Bishop of Chester. It is stated that he will receive the appointment to the church now in course of erection at Manchester, the foundation stone of which was laid in October last by Sir Oswald Mosley, Bart.—Aris's Birmingham Gazette.

A meeting of the Chester Diocesan Society was lately held at Newton. Some important business was transacted, and a gratifying statement made of the Society's funds, by which it appears that about 5,000*l.* has been subscribed towards the building of the training school at Chester, and the subscrip-tions are 2,000*l.* The attendance was numerous. The Bishop of Chester, (who was in the chair,) Chancellor Raikes, and about forty other clergymen, were present, and the meeting was altogether of a very gratifying description.—Macclesfield Courier.

Kent.—Sir W. R. P. Geary, Bart. has contributed the sum of 100*l.* towards the erection of a new church at East Peckham, and the Hon. and Rev. Sir Francis Stapleton, Bart., rector of Mereworth, has given 5*l.* for the same object.

Intended New Church at Darley Dale, near Matlock.—A few days ago the interesting ceremony took place of laying the foundation-stone of the intended new church at Cross Green, in the parish of Darley Dale, to be called St. Mary the Virgin. In February, 1838, the late rector, the Rev. B. Lawrence, died, bequeathing the sum of 1,000*l.* for the purpose of aiding in erecting a church at this place. At the suggestion of the Rev. R. Lee, the present rector, a subscription was entered into, and a considerable sum was raised to keep the church in repair, and also to maintain a minister.—Derbyshire Courier.

Essex.—The Rev. Sir Edward Bowyer Smyth, Bart., of Hill Hall, in the county of Essex, has con-tributed not less than 3,000*l.* for the erection and endowment of a new church in the parish of Cam-berwell, Surrey, where he has an extensive property. Sir Edward Bowyer Smyth is the representative of Sir Thomas Smyth, who was secretary of state to Queen Elizabeth.—Morning Herald.

Dursley, Gloucestershire.—On Friday, March 6, a meeting was held at the church, pursuant to legal notice, the Rev. the Curate in the chair, for the pur-pose of making a rate for the use of the churchwardens, when Mr. James Howard (clothier) proposed, and Mr. Chinnock (shoemaker) seconded, that the meeting be adjourned to that day twelve months, which the chairman very properly refused to allow, and called for a show of hands, which appeared un-favourable to the rate, when a poll was demanded on the part of the churchwardens. It commenced forthwith, and the numbers at the final close were—For the rate, 105; against it, 30; leaving a major-ity of 75 in favour of the rate.

Winchester Diocesan Church Building Society.—At the last quarterly meeting of the committee, the following grants were made:—viz., of 150*l.* towards building a church at Milton, parish of Portsea: 400*l.* for enlarging the parish church of Godalming, securing 1,000 additional sittings; and 250*l.* towards building a church at Clegate, Thames Ditton.—Salisbury Herald.

Chatham.—A church-rate has at length been car-ried at Chatham, where the dissenters from the establishment and the dissenters from all payments to it mustered all their forces, but were beaten by a majority of 17.—Maidstone Journal.

Oxford Diocesan Board of Education.—The annual public meeting of the subscribers and friends to this institution was lately held in the Town hall. The bishop took the chair as president of the board. In spite of the session of Parliament, and a county meeting which unfortunately took place at Reading, on the same day, there was a good attendance from all parts of the diocese, so as to fill the main part of the room. The prospective income for the current year was calculated at 920*l.*, which it is pro-posed to apply as follows:—

Training-schools for masters.....	£500
Ditto, for mistresses	200
Salary and expenses of inspector.....	100
Balance to meet current expenses....	120

The board also appeal most urgently for such an increase of funds as will enable them to carry on the school for mistresses in a more efficient manner than it will be possible to do with 200*l.* a year; to give additional aid to parochial schools; and to establish fresh commercial schools in several parts of the diocese.

Mildenhall, Suffolk.—A district board for the pro-mo-tion of education on the principles of the Estab-lished Church of England, has been formed at Mildenhall, for that town and its vicinity. George Gataker, Esq. was appointed chairman of the board, and the Rev. J. H. Raven and the Rev. W. Wells, joint secretaries.—Bury Herald.

Bury St. Edmunds.—The Society for the Enlarge-ment and Building of Churches, &c. have made a grant of 400*l.* towards the new church in this town. Beyond this sum, and the amount of subscriptions announced up to this time, a further sum of 600*l.* will be required, even on the supposition that the actual expenses should not exceed the estimates.—Bury Herald.

Sussex.—A new church is about to be built at the north-east part of the town of Worthing. Sir Charles Burrell has contributed towards its erection, and Mr. Goring has also placed his name on the list for 50*l.* The rector, Mr. Wood, has engaged to expend 50*l.* in the undertaking; and the Rev. Mr. Davison has also offered a liberal contribution. The whole amount required for this purpose is 4,000*l.*, of which about 1,600*l.* has already been guaranteed.

Marlborough Decanal Board of Education.—A pub-lic meeting was held at the Town Hall, at Marl-borough, on Tuesday, the 25th of February, for the purpose of forming a Decanal Board, in connexion with the Salisbury Diocesan Board of Education, which has been so warmly and successfully patron-ized by the Lord Bishop of the diocese.

Salisbury and Wilton District Board of Education.

—A meeting of the board was lately held at St. Thomas's School-room, and was attended by the Rev. Archdeacon Macdonald, George Eyre, and Ambrose Hussey, Esqrs., and the Rev. Messrs. Montgomery, Grove, Hony, Pigott, Capel, Giennie, Taylor, and Newton Smart, secretary. All applica-tions from parishes comprised within the limits of the district board for aid in building school-rooms, and recommendations of candidates to be instructed as masters of the first or second class, are to be sent to the district secretary, to be submitted to the dis-trict board previously to their being forwarded to the diocesan board of education.—Salisbury Herald.

Hereford.—We are informed that, by means of donations and local subscriptions, ample funds have been obtained for rebuilding the churches of St. Nicholas and St. Martin, in the city of Hereford; and it is confidently hoped that the members of the committee will feel a natural anxiety that neither the architectural designs nor the internal arrange-ments shall be unworthy of the liberality which has been evinced, by the public and the parishioners re-spectively, in their spirited efforts to realize these most desirable objects.

New Church at Hanham.—On Friday, the 28th of February, the first stone of a new church was laid on Jefferies' Hill, at Hanham, in the extensive parish of Bitton, Gloucestershire, close on the border of St. George's. It is a wild and very populous dis-trict, and once formed a part of the forest of Kings-wood. The ceremonial on that occasion was attend-ed with peculiar interest, from the circumstance of the stone being laid by the eldest daughter of the present vicar (the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe) on the day on which she completed twenty-one years from her birth in the parish.

Essex Church Building Society.—The annual meet-ing was held at Colchester, March 10, which was attended by a large number of the clergy of the diocese, and also by several ladies. 4,488*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* have been already received, of which 1,785*l.* have been expended in building churches and chapels in various parts of the country.

IRELAND.

Dublin, Trinity College.—The petition to her Ma-jesty for the repeal of the Celibacy statute has been forwarded, and seldom has the enlightened public given such strong indication of their feeling in favour of any measure. The petition, in less than a fortnight, has had upwards of 800 names attached to it; of these between 200 and 300 are clergymen, nearly one-half of whom are beneficed, 90 doctors in various departments, and about 170 masters of arts. The remaining signatures are chiefly composed of gra-duates of the University, and members of the learned societies; and amongst them we noticed some who either are or have been members of Parliament; also baronets, Queen's counsel, and many of the most influential gentlemen and magistrates in the country.—Irish Paper.

COLONIAL.

Barbadoes.—On the 28th Jan. the Bishop con-secrated a Chapel-of-ease, called Holy Innocents, erected on part of the glebe land in the parish of St. Thomas, in the island of Barbadoes; and at the same time his lordship consecrated the burial-ground thereto belonging.—Barbadian.

FOREIGN.

The Augsburg Gazette, under date Rome, the 25th of February, represents the situation of the Roman Catholic clergy in the Russian empire as intolerable. They continued nevertheless to refuse to conform to the Greek religion.

DEATHS.

DEATH OF BISHOP GLIEN.—This eminent prelate of the Scottish Episcopal Church died on the 9th March, at Stirling, at a very advanced age. He was ordained a priest in 1773, and consecrated Bishop of the diocese of Brechin in 1808. Besides the labours of his diocese, he was the author of Papers on Morals and Metaphysics, which at the time acquired great celebrity. For some years past he had retired from active life, and in 1837, the Right Rev. David Moir, D.D. of Brechin, was consecrated assistant and successor to his diocese. Bishop Gleig was the father of the Rev. G. R. Gleig, M.A. of Magdalen hall, and Chaplain of Chelsea Hospital.

FEB. 25, at Dieppe, the Rev. James Beaver, Rector of Childrey, Berks. He was elected in 1773 to an Oxfordshire Scholarship, at Corpus, and matriculated, at the unusually early age of twelve, on the 26th of November, in that year; B.A. Dec. 17, 1777; M.A. Jan. 15, 1781; elected Probationer Fellow Jan. 13, 1784, Actual Fellow Jan. 4, 1786; B.D. April 26, 1790.

Rev. J. Moore, Rector of the united parishes of Kilbannane, Molahiffe, and Kileredane, county of Kerry, aged 89.

DEATH OF THE VENERABLE PROVOST OF ETON.—This distinguished scholar was born on the 2nd of March, 1760. The pages of the Museum Etonense contain ample proofs of the elegance of his diction and correctness of his taste and scholarship in early years; and among the friends of his boyhood were included the most accomplished Etonians of that period—the late professor Porson, the late Judges Gibbs and Dampier, and (of those who still survive him) the Marquis Wellesley, with whom through life his friendship was uninterrupted. Mr. Goodall was admitted from Eton college to King's college, Cambridge, in 1778. He there obtained, in 1782, a University Scholarship, and in 1781 and 1782, Sir William Browne's medals for the Greek odes and epigrams. In the year 1783, when he became Fellow of King's college, he was recalled to Eton as an assistant master. In this laborious and responsible office his success was as remarkable as might have been expected from the fame of his university honours. He was appointed head master on the resignation of Dr. Geo. Heath, in 1801. The rapid increase of the school proved the high estimation in which he was held by the true friends of Eton, and the impression of admiration for his talents as instructor, and his kindness as a master, is indelibly fixed in the minds of his numerous surviving scholars. In 1808 he became Canon of Windsor, by the recommendation of the Marquis Wellesley; and on the death of Dr. Davies, he attained the merited reward of his useful labours, being appointed to the Provostship by the express desire of George the Third, although it is said that Mr. Perceval (then Prime Minister), from feelings of personal friendship, had proposed the name of another individual to his Majesty. In this office Dr. Goodall was the object of respect and affection to all who had the happiness of knowing him.

At Salisbury, aged 81, the Rev. Jas. Cutler, Prebendary of Leckford, Hampshire, and formerly Fellow of St. John's college. He was educated at Merchant Taylor's, and elected Scholar of St. John's in the year, 1777; B.A. April 26, 1781; M.A. March 15, 1785; B.D. May 15, 1790.

At Paul's Walden, Herts, the Rev. George Tyrwhitt Drake, Rector of Malpas, Cheshire, aged 45.

Rev. F. C. Fowle, M.A. Rector of Elkstone: patron, Lord Craven.

APRIL 3, at Rock, Worcestershire, the Rev. H. W. Hill, aged 58. He was for 28 years Rector of the parish, and nearly 20 years a magistrate for the county.

APRIL 4, at Shacklewell, the Rev. J. Campbell, of Kingsland.

APRIL 9, at St. John's College, in the 71st year of his age, the Rev. John Palmer, B.D. the Senior Fellow of that society, and formerly Professor of Arabic in this university. He took the degree of B.A. in 1792, and was Senior Wrangler of that year.

At Pembroke, in his 43rd year, the Rev. James Robertson Holcombe, B.D. Prebendary of St. David's. Mr. Holcombe was matriculated a Commoner of Jesus College in 1817; was elected a Scholar in 1820, and a Fellow in 1821. He took the Degree of B.A. Oct. 10th, 1820; proceeded M.A. May 21st, 1823; and B.D. May 30th, 1832.

† Aged 29, the Rev. John Davies Jones, Curate of the New Church at Aberayron, Cardiganshire.

At Chilcompton, Somersetshire, the Rev. Arthur Mogg, B.A. Curate of Paulton and Farringdon, Somersetshire, aged 29.

At the residence of his uncle, the Rev. Jas. Spry, of West Bromwich, Staffordshire, the Rev. Joseph Harvey Spry, B.A. of Jesus College, in the 24th year of his age.

On 9th April, Rev. W. Drake, M.A. Vicar of Oadby, Leicestershire, aged 85.

Rev. Mr. Williams, Curate of Peterston super Ely, near Cardiff.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the second Tuesday in every month. Its circulation is different from that of any other publication. Besides the sale to the Public, it is sent monthly to all the Bishops, Deans, and Chapters, Heads of Colleges, &c., and to the resident Parochial Clergyman of every Parish throughout England and Wales.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

ADDRESS TO THE CLERGY.

THE "PENNY POSTAGE" having opened a cheap communication between all parts of the Kingdom, the Rev. JOHN HODGSON, of Trinity College, Cambridge, Vicar of St. Peter's, Thanet, and Secretary to the CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY, again addresses those of the Clergy who have not corresponded with him, and anxiously solicits them to lend him their friendly and valuable assistance. With their co-operation, it will be in his power to form one of the most accurate Tables of the "Probable Duration of Human Life" ever yet constructed in this or any other country. This can be done, and will be done, if every Clergyman, upon reading this Address, will be pleased to devote an hour or two to the procuring and giving information under any one or more of the heads set forth below. If the Clergy should ask why are we to do this for a stranger, Mr. Hodgson replies, because such stranger feels disposed to do his utmost, as opportunity is given him, towards perfecting a plan now in operation, by which all Clergymen now and hereafter may be enabled to make assurances upon their lives, in every variety of manner, and at the most advanced periods of life, as well as in the earlier stages of it, upon the cheapest and safest terms. This is Mr. Hodgson's sole end and object; and he has full authority from the Archbishop of Canterbury to say, that his Grace approves the enquiry, and is interested in the success of it. Mr. Hodgson's father was for sixty years Secretary to many of the Lord Bishops; and his brother is well known to the Clergy as Secretary and Treasurer to Queen Anne's Bounty Board; and the First Fruits and Tenths' Office.

I. State (if you please, in plain writing throughout) the name of the living about which you kindly propose to give information; County; Diocese; and, if Diocese be altered, both former and present Diocese.

II. State the name of the Incumbent on the 1st of January, 1779; and under his name, the names of succeeding Incumbents in rotation (up to, but not including, present Incumbent), with dates (if convenient) of institution (or thereabouts).

III. State under what circumstance these Incumbents respectively vacated the living; whether by death or by cession; the month and year of death or cession; and in the case of death, state the age at death in completed years; and authority for such age, whether from register, tablet, or friends.

IV. If any such Incumbents are buried elsewhere, state where; and in any case where dates of death, or age at death, cannot be ascertained in the parish—state (if they be known) the names and address of any surviving friends or relatives of the deceased, to whom application for information may be made.

V. If other preferment were in any case held with this living, and it be known, state what it was, and in what Diocese.

VI. If any Clergyman being an Incumbent of another parish, and not of this, be buried in your Church or churchyard, state his name; preferment; county; date of death; age at death. (Kind attention to this, with the aid of the Parish Clerk, has been of the greatest service, and will be so in future.)

VII. Please to state name of present Incumbent; his age last birthday; and when that birthday was; and the date of his institution. (Many hundreds of the Clergy have done this in the kindest and most confiding manner.)

Observe, Nothing will be published; and all papers will be lodged in the custody of the Clergy Mutual Assurance Society.

VIII. Fathers; children; widows; brothers; sisters; intimate friends and contemporaries of deceased Clergymen (since 1st January, 1779), seeing this advertisement, are particularly requested to give information about their deceased relations and friends in the way of No. VI.

Letters (dated within) to be addressed (and as there may be some thousands, prepayment is requested) to the Rev. JOHN HODGSON, St. Peter's, near Ramsgate, Kent. (Private.) [448]

RUPTURE SOCIETY.

THIS Society has relieved upwards of 29,600 poor persons, and has cured many hundreds, while others have been enabled to pursue their ordinary business. It has been calculated that about one person in fifteen is ruptured; but among those classes of the community much engaged in bodily labour the average is believed to be much larger. Among the poor this complaint is doubly afflicting, since it not only subjects them to much suffering, and to sudden and imminent danger, but it also disables them, in most cases, from prosecuting their ordinary labours, thus depriving them of the means of subsistence. Though this Society relieves patients all over England, still, being unconnected with any particular district, it cannot, like many Local Charities, look to, or claim support from, any specific neighbourhood.

Contributors of a Guinea per annum, or Ten Guineas at one payment, including Parishes and Public Institutions, may recommend Three Patients annually, to be supplied in any part of the kingdom with either single or double Trusses of the best quality, each of which costs from One to Three Guineas at the Truss-maker's.

Contributions will be most thankfully received, and any further information furnished by John Poynder, Jun. Bride-well Hospital, Blackfriars. [491]

IMMEDIATE PRESENTATION.

THE immediate Presentation to a Rectory, MOST DESIRABLY situated in Somerset, to be DISPOSED OF, by exchange or otherwise. Population 100. Value under 1500. The next presentation to a Living of adequate value in Dorset, Somerset, or Cornwall, would be taken in exchange. For further particulars apply (pre-paid) to M. A., Post-office, Dorchester. [501]

NEXT PRESENTATION.

THE ADVERTISER is desirous of buying the next Presentation to a small LIVING in Dorsetshire. Address, prepaid, B. A., Maiden Newton, Dorchester. [506]

NEXT PRESENTATION.

THE NEXT PRESENTATION to a Rectory in the North of Lincolnshire, of the Annual value of 265l. is offered for SALE by Private Contract. The Tithes have been recently commuted. Application may be made to Henry Grantham, Esq. Sturton, near Brigg; or at our Offices, Nicholson & Hett, Brigg, March 18, 1840. [590]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

A LIVING, without a House, but with Glebe, value 500l. a year, near the Sea, and a favourite Watering-place, is advertised for EXCHANGE. Some sacrifice would be made in income, especially for one with a comfortable House. The person exchanging must be above 34. Address (paid) B. M. C., Post-office, Lye. [453]

ADVOVSONS, EXCHANGE, &c

THE ADVOVSON of a RECTORY on the Southern coast, an easy distance from London, of the value of about 800l. per annum, with a small but comfortable house, with prospect of early possession.

The ADVOVSON of a VICARAGE within seventy miles northward of London, of about 500l. per annum, with an excellent House, Grounds, &c. with prospect of early possession.

The NEXT PRESENTATION, with One-third of the Perpetual ADVOVSON of a valuable RECTORY in the most beautiful and salubrious part of Devon, near a Market-town and the Sea, of about 480l. per annum, and an excellent House, almost new, subject to the life of the present incumbent, aged 49.

PROFITABLE EXCHANGE of a LIVING within ninety miles of London, value 400l. per annum, for one of less value, age not to be under 54. Warwickshire, Shropshire, Herefordshire, Berkshire, or near London, preferred. Mr. Valpy has several other Livings for exchange.

CURACY of a Parish, with a Small House, and a stipend of about 80l. per annum. A title to Orders might perhaps be obtained.

Particulars of any of the above to be obtained (if by letter, free) of Mr. R. Valpy, Clerical and School Agency Office, 36, Bedford-street, Strand. [512]

NEXT PRESENTATION TO A LIVING, in the finest part of Warwickshire, to be SOLD by PRIVATE CONTRACT. The present Incumbent in his 83d year. The Living consists of a dwelling house, with convenient out-buildings, a large garden, and a paddock or homelose, together with about 100 acres of glebe land, arable and pasture, of the best quality, and in a high state of cultivation: the whole situate in a very cheap country, and commanding most extensive views of the surrounding magnificent scenery: the air exceedingly healthy. The glebe is now in the occupation of a yearly tenant at an annual rent of 1600l. but is much underlet. Land of the same quality letting in the immediate neighbourhood at 3l. per acre. An additional modus of 12l. per annum is payable in respect of some tithe free lands in the parish. The house is six miles from Banbury, and at an easy distance from the London and Birmingham Railway Station. The population does not exceed 200, the duty single.

Curacy of 50l. per annum may be obtained in the immediate neighbourhood.

For further particulars apply either personally, or by letter, to Messrs. Woolmer, Hooper, and Birch, Solicitors, No. 8, King's Road, Bedford Row, London. [544]

EXCHANGE.

THE ADVOVSON and NEXT PRESENTATION to a RECTORY, in a beautiful and most healthy part of Kent, commanding Woodland and Sea Views, near fifty miles from London, Incumbent upwards of 80, population 150, income about 300l. per Annum, independently of 24 acres of Glebe, and being round the Parsonage Cottage similar Preferment in a more purely pastoral county, having a better house, or for one of less value, with an arrangement for the difference.

Address Rev. E. B., Mr. Lloyd, Bookseller, Harley-street, London. [581]

EXCHANGE.

A CLERGYMAN, holding a Rural Benefice worth more than 350l. per annum, would EXCHANGE for one of much less value, provided age and other things were satisfactory. The person exchanging may purchase the Advowson.

Address (paid) S. S., Post-office, Ludlow. [488]

EXCHANGE OF BENEFICES.

A CLERGYMAN is desirous to exchange a Rectory, beautifully situated in a Southern County, 40 miles from London, where there is a good house and very small parish, value about 250l. per annum, for a Living of the same, or rather more value, situated in that part of Kent, Essex, or Middlesex, that is near the borders of the Thames.

Address, with particulars (post paid) C. G. W., care of Mr. Robinson, Surveyor and Agent for the transfer of Ecclesiastical Property, 11A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square.

THE INCUMBENT of a most desirable Benefice, the income of which is derived almost wholly from land, and is worth about 800l. (exclusive of an excellent residence, good grounds, stabling, &c.) in a healthy situation on a high road, within 40 miles of London, surrounded by gentlemen's seats, and near a considerable town, wishes to exchange for preferment in or near the Metropolis.

Address J. W., Mr. Robinson's Offices for the transfer of Ecclesiastical Property, 11A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square.

FOR EXCHANGE, a Living near a Cathedral town, having a small population, with a Minor Canonry appendant to it, the net income arising from which is upwards of 300l. a year. A Living of a lower income, with a Parsonage-house, in an agricultural neighbourhood, would not be objected to, and the preference would be given to Yorkshire.

Application to be made to M. J., at Mr. Robinson's Offices, 11A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square. [517]

CHURCH EXTENSION.

THE CLERGY are respectfully informed, that the MOTION of SIR R. H. INGLIS will probably be brought forward on or about the 5th of May. It is therefore desirable that all Petitions in support of that Motion should be in Town, if possible, by May 1st.

The SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE at its late Monthly Meeting adopted a Petition, and it is hoped that the Diocesan Committees will lose no time in procuring and forwarding Sheets of Signatures to be appended.

The Parochial Petitions already presented amount to about Fifteen Hundred. It is trusted that there will be no difficulty in the course of the next Three Weeks, in fully doubling this number.

10th April, 1840. [518]

SCHOOL FOR THE SONS OF CLERGYMEN.

THE proposed Institution will probably be situated in a healthy spot, within fifty miles of the Metropolis, in a south-west, west, or north-west direction.

More than two hundred Clergymen, including many of the Archdeacons, have already signified their intention of supporting it; and one hundred-and-fifty pupils have been promised, provided the details meet the approbation of their friends.

A provisional Committee will shortly be formed, when every arrangement will be made for carrying the plans into effect, and particulars, with a List of Subscriptions and Donations, will forthwith be published.

It is expected that the establishment will be sufficiently well supported to allow those pupils, whose fathers die during their residence at the School, to complete their education, should circumstances require it, free of all expense.

The Sons of the Laity will be admitted upon payment of such an annual sum as would be required to procure similar advantages in other establishments.

The Institution will consist of an upper, middle, and lower School. The system of education will comprise religious instruction in the doctrines and discipline of the Church of England, the Greek and Latin Classics, the Elements of Mathematics, History, Geography, Drawing, and the French Language.

Those gentlemen who are favourable to the principle of the proposed undertaking, are requested, at their earliest convenience, to forward their names to the Rev. C. E. Plater, Charlton in Dover. [537]

TO THE CLERGY AND OTHER FRIENDS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL INSTRUCTION.

THE PARISH OF ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST, the largest within the city of Gloucester, containing an increasing population of 3,500 souls and upwards, is destitute of Sunday School-rooms. Yet it was the Rector of this Parish, the Rev. Thomas Stock, who, in the year 1780, projected, and, in conjunction with his friend, Robert Raikes, Esq., established the first Sunday School in Great Britain. The parishioners consist, in a great proportion, of small householders, and the Living itself is under £130 per annum, and no glebe-house thereon. The present Rector, being wholly unable from his own resources, or those of the Parish, to raise the requisite funds, is constrained to appeal thus publicly to the liberality of the friends of sound and scriptural education. He is persuaded that they will not be insensible to the wants of a Parish which may justly claim the distinction of having originated the whole system of Sunday School teaching.

In aid of the object in question, a Reverend Incumbent, residing at Salisbury, and connected with the Cathedral, has happily suggested a plan, the principle of which was immediately acted upon in his own Parish, and has been adopted already in various other places, viz.:—"That a General Subscription be set on foot, to which each child in every school in the United Kingdom be invited to contribute One Penny." This proposal is now respectfully and anxiously submitted to the favourable consideration of every Incumbent and officiating Minister throughout the two countries, who are hereby earnestly intreated to bring the case of the above-mentioned Parish before such of their young people, as are now sharing in the blessings of Sunday School instruction. By this simple free-will offering an ample Fund would be raised, and the Sunday School-rooms of St. John's Parish would exhibit, to future generations, an interesting and singular memorial of the gratitude of children for their "nurture and admonition in the Lord."

TRUSTEES TO THE SCHOOL BUILDING FUND.

Rev. Thomas Evans, M.A., Vicar of St. Mary de Lode; Rev. John Davies, M.A., Incumbent of St. Nicholas; Rev. F. T. Bayly, B.A., Rector of St. John's, in the city of Gloucester; Rev. F. T. J. Bayly, B.A., Vicar of Brookthorpe; Thos. Turner, Esq., a Director, and Wm. Montague, jun., Esq., Manager of the Gloucester National Provincial Bank of England.—SECRETARIES, Revs. F. T. Bayly, and F. T. J. Bayly.—TREASURERS, Thomas Turner, and Wm. Montague, Esqrs.

In addition to the Sunday School Contributions already acknowledged in the Ecclesiastical Gazette of January, the following have been received:—

Bowden, Cheshire, including Attrincham, Carrington, Ridgway, Miss Cliffe's Boarding School, 3 Servants and a Friend	£6 0 0
Hanxwell, Kirby Ravensworth, Patrick Brompton, Yorkshire	1 0 0
Pinxton, Derby	0 6 0

Sunday School Contributions, and other Donations, will be gratefully acknowledged by the Rev. F. T. Bayly, Rector of St. John's, Gloucester; and may be remitted, however small the amount, by Post-office Order, to the National Provincial Bank of England, Gloucester; or to Messrs. Spooner, Attwood, and Co., 27, Gracechurch-street, London, "to the Account of the Rev. F. T. Bayly, in aid of St. John's School Building Fund."

Subscriptions, &c., in aid of the above object, received by Mr. Geary, Master of the Covent Garden Church Sunday School. [408]

NATIONAL DAY SCHOOLS In the Parish of St. Clement's, Oxford.

THE WANT of a NATIONAL SCHOOL having been long and seriously felt in this Parish, the Rector (the Rev. J. W. Hughes) and Churchwardens have availed themselves of an opportunity unexpectedly offered, to purchase, for the sum of 525*l.* the Dissenting Chapel in St. Clement's, which is, in all respects, a most commodious and suitable edifice for a School. Of this sum 250*l.* has been raised without the aid of any Government Grant in the Parish and in Oxford; but being unable to make up the deficiency, they venture to make this appeal to the Clergy and Friends of the Established Church, in the hope that their charitable assistance may enable them to complete this arrangement, which, under God's blessing, will tend both to the spiritual improvement of the parish and the general good of the community.

Contributions will be thankfully received by the Rector, Rev. J. W. Hughes, Holywell-street, and by the several Bankers in the City of Oxford. [431]

Rev. G. Hamilton, M.A.	Alderman Thompson, M.P.

(With power to add to their number.)

HONORARY SECRETARY.

R. Few, Esq. 3, Henrietta-street, Covent Garden.

The New Zealand Church Society, which now for the first time comes before the public, was originally formed for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions to aid the Colonists of New Zealand in building a Church, and establishing an Infant School, in which it is proposed to bring together the children of the Colonists and of the Natives. The members of this Society, in their endeavours to promote these objects, have ascertained the existence of so general a desire for the establishment of an Association more extensive in its plan and objects, that they have this day adopted the following resolutions, which they submit to the public, with the earnest hope that their anticipation of general concurrence and support will not be disappointed.

1. That this Association be called "The Church Society for New Zealand."

2. That its efforts be directed to two objects, the one to provide such a Church Establishment for New Zealand as shall be complete and efficient for all present purposes, the other so as to endow this establishment as to enable it to keep pace in its resources with the growing prosperity of the colony.

3. That for the first of these purposes it is highly important to obtain the appointment of a Bishop or Bishops for New Zealand, as soon as possible.

4. That each Bishop be accompanied by a body of three or more clergymen, who shall fix their residence together with the Bishop in some one spot, which may form as it were a centre of religion and education for that part of the country.

5. That every exertion be made to co-operate with the Colonists in the erection of Churches and Infant and other Schools, as they may be required.

6. That for accomplishing the second great object of this Society, "The providing the Church of New Zealand with such means of support as may be expected to increase with the growing prosperity of the Colony," portions of land be purchased and applied, under proper regulations, to the maintenance of the Clergy and the general purposes of the Church.

7. That subscription books be opened at Messrs. Twinings', Strand; Messrs. Hammersleys', Pall Mall; and Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smiths, Lombard-street; and that subscriptions be received at those Banks, or by the Secretary, in order to carry into effect the objects of the Society. [409]

NEW THEOLOGICAL WORK.

In the Press, and will appear about the latter end of April, in 2 vols. post 8vo, cloth, TRIPPLICITY. An humble attempt to trace this character in the physical, the moral, and the spiritual world. Under the first head it is demonstrated in the nature of things; under the second, in language as the vehicle of thought;—in habits, customs, laws, and superstitions, including under this latter division the theology of the heathens; under the third, it is traced in the language of Scripture in Divine Revelation and in the operations of Grace; which leads, in the last place, to the consideration of the great and fundamental doctrine of the Trinity, the Attributes of God, &c. To which is appended, a Series of Short Essays on various points arising from the main discourse, in which will be found some interesting Illustrations, derived from Profane Literature, of the Mosaic account of the Deluge and the earliest events of the world, together with a candid examination of the 1260 days of Daniel, and other Prophecies which relate to the fulfilment of the Gentile dispensation, and the Second Advent of the Messiah.

London: Hamilton, Adams, and Co. H. Parris, Church-street, Liverpool. [433]

GREEK AND ENGLISH LEXICON to the NEW TESTAMENT; especially adapted to the use of Colleges and the higher Classes in the Public Schools, but also intended as a convenient Manual for Biblical Students in general. By the Rev. S. T. BLOOMFIELD, D.D. F.S.A. Vicar of Bicknacre, Rutland; Editor of "The Greek Testament," &c. &c. In 1 vol. foolscap 8vo, price 9s. cloth lettered.

The Author's great aim has been to make the work complete in itself, at once brief and perspicuous, and especially adapted to serve as a Companion to his edition of the Greek Testament, by supplying that minute verbal and grammatical information which would have been out of place in a commentary on Scripture.

"To say a word in praise of Dr. Bloomfield's well-earned and well-established reputation as a first-rate classic, would be superfluous; and it is therefore only necessary to say, that he has displayed his extensive erudition in the volume before us, and produced by far the best Lexicon to the New Testament that has ever been published. The information is so full and complete, that nothing will be found wanting to the young scholar, collegian, or private student, for reading the New Testament in the original language."—Churchman.

A MANUAL of INSTRUCTION and DEVOTION on the SACRAMENT of the LORD'S SUPPER. By the Rev. JOHN HEWLETT, B.D. F.A.S. Rector of Hilgay, &c.

"Among the many admirable treatises and tracts which have been published on this important subject, we can readily and conscientiously place the Manual now before us. It is the production of a minister whose many excellent practical discourses have been already attended with the most salutary effects. From such a man we expected much, and we are not disappointed. The form prescribed for self-examination is exceedingly good; the notes upon the whole service, and the private prayers which follow, are written in the spirit of calm and Christian devotion. The whole is sufficiently concise, without omitting any important considerations."—British Critic, July, 1815.

•• Prospectuses and Books of Rules may be had at the Office. Attendance from eleven to four o'clock, daily.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE;

OR MONTHLY

REGISTER OF

THE AFFAIRS OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND, AND

OF ITS RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

No. 23.—VOL. II.

LONDON, TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1840.

PRICE SIXPENCE.

We have the satisfaction of laying before our readers a copy of a letter from the Bishop of London to the Archbishop of Canterbury, respecting the formation and endowment of new bishoprics in the colonies and dependencies of the empire. It will be immediately perceived that this is the first step towards the most important measure which our Ecclesiastical Rulers have proposed or undertaken, on their own authority, since the Reformation. We, therefore, need not say a word to induce all the attached members of our Church, to give it their serious attention. All who have thought upon the subject will feel with us that it is a measure fraught with the most important benefits to the Church in the colonies, and that its consequences will be advantageously reflected upon the Church at home. And we confidently anticipate that it will receive ample pecuniary support.

On one point, which we regard with the greatest interest, the establishment of a bishop at Malta, we hope, in our next Number, to offer some observations, which may be interesting to our readers, and may tend to show the necessity and advantage of such a measure.

We have to repeat our acknowledgments for information transmitted to us for the Clergy List. As there are still many of the Clergy whose names have not been sent, we shall keep the list open a few days longer, so as to afford an opportunity to those who may wish to make returns, if they will have the goodness to do so immediately.

The form of the returns will be found in p. 229.

The present Number completes the Second Volume of the GAZETTE. We also beg to remind some of our Subscribers that this is the end of the Second Year.

We shall feel much obliged to several of our Correspondents, if they will send us the duplicates of the back Numbers, which they have mentioned. And we make the same request to any persons who may have odd Numbers in their possession.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Marriages in New District Churches.—Two of our Correspondents are informed, that consecration of new churches by the Bishop is not sufficient to render them legally proper for the celebration of marriage, though of course they are ecclesiastically fit. The Bishop's licence is absolutely necessary in the two cases which have been sent to us. Clergymen should be very careful in these cases. For though it is probable that the marriages would be valid, yet a clergyman who wilfully performs marriages irregularly with respect to time or place, is not only liable to be proceeded against in the ecclesiastical courts, but is indictable for felony.

Tolls.—In several cases of tolls which appear to be illegally exacted from clergymen, the best way is, to appeal to the local magistrates. The law in these cases will depend upon the local or general turnpike acts, with which we are not acquainted. The law books say, that the ancient privileges of the clergy relating to tolls have been lost through negligence in passing these statutes.

X. Y. Z. is informed that Curates are not liable to pay the Poor Rates under the late Act of Parliament, if living in the Rectory-house. It is the Rector who is liable.

the Rev. John Lonsdale, for the readiness with which they undertook the editing of the Bible Commentary, in accordance with the wishes of the Society, and for the perseverance with which they have continued to labour under the difficulties which they had to encounter."

The Secretaries reported that the Standing Committee had appointed the Rev. John Evans, M.A., of St. James, Bermondsey, to the office of Additional Assistant Secretary of the Society.

They also stated, that in consequence of the increase of the business of the Society, it had been found necessary to engage additional premises in Great Queen-street, adjoining the Depository.

The Secretaries reported that the Lord Bishop of Oxford had, at the Society's request, consented to preach the Anniversary Sermon in St. Paul's Cathedral, at the meeting of the assembled Charity Schools, on Thursday, the 4th of June next: and that each member of the Society, who may be present at the meeting of the Board on the 2nd of May, and shall apply in person, will be entitled to receive the West-door tickets.

The following Report respecting a measure in behalf of the Scilly Islands was then taken into consideration:—

"The Standing Committee beg to report to the Board, that they find it necessary to bring under consideration the state of the Society's Mission in the Scilly Islands.

"The Board is aware that, for a long period, the Society has maintained two Clergymen as Missionaries in the Islands of St. Martin's, St. Agnes, Treaco, and Bryhar, and has paid the salaries of the schoolmasters in those Islands.

"But the Scilly Islands having recently been declared, by an Order in Council, issued under the authority of Parliament, to be under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Exeter, it has been notified to the Society, that the two Clergymen heretofore employed by the Society in those Islands cannot be recognized as Missionaries by the Bishop, and that they cannot be allowed to officiate in the Islands except as Assistant Curates to the Chaplain of the Lord Proprietor. The management of the Schools has also lately been taken in hand by the Lord Proprietor, who has shown great anxiety to provide for the education of the Islanders.

"The character of the Society's connexion with these Islands having thus undergone a complete change, and it never having been the practice of the Society to support or maintain Parochial Clergymen in any Diocese, the Standing Committee think it necessary that measures should be taken to make some provision for the spiritual benefit of the Islands, and then to bring the Society's present connection with them to a close.

"The Standing Committee therefore beg to recommend that the following resolutions, which they have agreed to after a full consideration of the subject, be adopted by the Board:—

"1. That a pecuniary grant be made by the Society on behalf of the Scilly Islands, by way of endowment; the interest to be applied towards the support of Clergymen who may be hereafter appointed to serve the Churches in the Islands of St. Martin, St. Agnes, Treaco, and Bryhar; and that for this purpose a trust be created, and placed in the hands of the Lord Bishop of Exeter, the Archdeacon of Cornwall, and the Lord Proprietor of the Scilly Islands, for the time being.

"2. That the proposed endowment fund be three thousand pounds.

"3. That a pension for life of 75*l*. per annum each be granted to the Rev. James Lane, and the Rev. George Woodley, the late Missionaries of the Society.

"4. That the pensions already granted to schoolmasters who have retired on account of age and infirmity be continued to them during their lifetime.

"5. That no new pensions be granted to the present schoolmasters, but that their salaries be continued for half a year after the cessation of their connection with the Society."

On its being proposed that the above report be adopted, it was moved, as an amendment, by the Rev. Thomas White,

"That the endowment fund be four thousand pounds."

The following Report from the Standing Committee was taken into consideration.

"The Standing Committee beg to call the attention of the Board to the state of the question respecting the Commentary upon the Bible proposed to be put forth by the Society.

"It was the intention of the Board, as expressed in the Report of the 2nd of October, 1832, that the Society should publish an Edition of the Holy Scriptures, with explanatory notes and practical applications appended to each chapter.

"In pursuance of that Report, his Grace the President appointed the Rev. John Lonsdale and the Rev. W. H. Hale to be the editors of the work:

and they were authorised to obtain the assistance of others for carrying into effect the intentions of the Society.

"It appears, however, from statements which the editors made to the Standing Committee and to the Board, in 1836 and 1837, and which were printed in the Annual Reports for those years, that they were disappointed in their expectation of obtaining the requisite assistance from others; and that in the autumn of 1833, they found themselves under the necessity of beginning an original Commentary upon the Gospels, upon which they have continued to labour jointly, as regularly as the circumstances in which they were placed would permit. They also stated that there was no prospect of their being able to proceed more rapidly; that they did not expect to be able to complete more than the four Gospels, and the Acts of the Apostles; and that, had it not been for the encouragement which they had received, they should long ago have requested the Society to relieve them from the task which had been imposed upon them.

"After the last of these statements had been read to the Board in July, 1837, by the Dean of Chichester, the Editors were requested to proceed with the work, and to finish the four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles: Archdeacon Bather having, at the request of the Standing Committee, and with the approbation of his Grace the President, and of the Board, undertaken to prepare the practical reflections.

"At the general meeting in November, 1838, the Secretaries stated to the Board, that the Standing Committee had received a communication from Archdeacon Bather, to the effect, that he felt himself constrained to relinquish the office which he had undertaken. The Secretaries were then directed by the Board to communicate the circumstances to his Grace the President, and to request his advice.

"Since that period, several discussions have taken place upon this subject at the General Meetings of the Society: and the Standing Committee have recently received a communication from the Editors, in answer to one from the Secretary, from which it appears, that they have completed the Commentary on the Four Gospels, but feel themselves under the necessity of declining to be responsible for more.

"The Standing Committee regret, therefore, to state, that, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, the difficulty of carrying into effect the intentions of the Society, according to the Report of October, 1832, has been found insuperable. And they think it, upon the whole, most advisable to recommend to the Board, that all further proceedings of the Society on this matter should cease; and that the Editors should be allowed to publish their work in such manner as they shall think fit.

"The Standing Committee beg to report, that they make this recommendation with the approbation of his Grace the President, and with the concurrence of the Editors, to whom they consider the Society greatly indebted for the endeavours which they have used to carry its intentions into effect."

This Report was adopted.

It was then agreed,— "That the thanks of this general meeting of the Society be given to the Ven. Archdeacon Hale and

Mr. Joseph Wilson seconded the amendment, which was carried.

The proposed grant towards "the establishment of a College, founded on the principles of the National Church, for the education of persons in the Colony of New South Wales, for the Ministry, and as Schoolmasters," was then taken into consideration, pursuant to notice at the last general meeting. The Standing Committee having recommended that the sum of three thousand pounds should be placed at the disposal of the Lord Bishop of Australia, towards the erection of such a College at Sydney, it was moved as an amendment, by the Rev. R. Monro, that 4,000*l.* be granted. This was seconded by the Rev. J. Jennings.

The amendment having been negatived, it was agreed that the sum of 3,000*l.* be granted according to the original recommendation.

The Secretaries stated that they had been directed to Report,

"That the Standing Committee have considered the Ninth Memorial from five Clergymen in Essex, which was referred to them at the last general meeting; and that they do not think it necessary to make any recommendation upon it."

The Secretary stated that a Tenth Memorial, from the Rev. Hastings Robinson, D.D. Rev. Henry Budd, Rev. Gwy Bryan, Rev. C. J. Yorke, and the Rev. H. B. Harris, on the subject of some of the Society's Tracts, had been received.

Whereupon, Mr. N. Goldsmid moved, "That this memorial be laid on the table without being read."

The Rev. C. Randolph seconded this motion.

Mr. E. F. Moore moved, by way of amendment.

"That this Memorial be referred to the Standing Committee, with a request that they would consider it, and report thereupon, if they should think fit."

The amendment was seconded by Mr. Percival White, and carried.

The Rev. R. Monro then moved that this memorial be read.

Mr. P. White seconded this motion, which was negatived.

It was then agreed, that the memorial without being read, be referred to the Standing Committee with a request that they would consider it, and report thereupon, if they should think fit.

Mr. Hull brought forward the motion, of which he had given notice at the last general meeting, and proposed as follows:

"That a committee of three members be appointed to prepare a Commentary, such as was advertised in 1832, with power to publish maps and engravings, and pay for contributions ten guineas a sheet: such Commentary, when prepared, to be printed, and submitted to the Board before any part of it is published."

This motion was seconded by Mr. G. J. P. Smith, and was negatived.

The Rev. J. D. Hales brought forward the following motion, of which he had given notice at the April meeting.

"That all Clergymen subscribing annually One Guinea to the Foreign Translation Fund, be at liberty to apply for Bibles, New Testaments, Common Prayer Books, Homilies, and all authorised formularies of the united Church of England and Ireland, (as by law established,) on the terms of the Society, provided such publications be intended for their own use and distribution, or for sale to the poor, or for the use of charitable institutions, with which they are locally or parochially connected."

The motion was seconded by the Rev. Sanderson Robins.

It was moved as an amendment by Mr. Joseph Wilson, and seconded by Mr. John Poynder, that the matter be referred to the Standing Committee.

This amendment was carried.

The Rev. William Palmer then brought forward the motion of which he had given notice, and proposed the following resolution for the adoption of the Board:—

"That this Society will not in future, either at general meetings or through committees responsible to itself, exercise any function, or take upon itself, any responsibility which belongs of right to the Bishops of the Church; and especially that it will in no case, mediately or immediately, directly or by implication, pronounce any decision upon doctrine; nor select or alter books or tracts for the general supply of the Churches of these kingdoms and the colonies; but will confine itself to the raising of money, and to the management of subordinate details of its application and expenditure, under the direction of the Archbishops and Bishops; and in choosing or rejecting, altering or abridging, printing and selling, or distributing books and tracts, it will follow implicitly the recommendation of the Archbishop of Canterbury, with the other Archbishops and Bishops, or of such persons as they may be pleased to appoint to be their deputies for the purpose."

"Resolutions to be moved at the May Meeting, if Mr. Palmer's motion is carried.

"(1).—That the 28th, 29th, and 30th Rules of the Society be altered, and for the future stand thus—

"XXVIII. That every book or paper so recommended be referred to their Lordships the Bishops, and be forwarded to them in succession, or to such persons as they shall think fit to appoint to examine the same in their behalf.

"XXIX. That their Lordships the Bishops, or a majority of their number, shall have power to make such orders and regulations touching the examination, preparation, and selection of books and tracts to be placed on the catalogue of the Society, as to them shall seem fit; and to alter the same from time to time; and to appoint such persons as they shall think proper to carry the same into effect; and that all such orders, regulations, and appointments, being duly notified to the Secretary of the Society, under the hand of his Grace the President, shall be as binding upon the Society as if the same were duly made at any general meeting.

"XXX. That the Standing Committee, be required to place upon the Society's Catalogue any book or tract which shall be certified to them as fit to be published by the Society, by such persons or person as may be authorised by the majority of the Bishops to certify the same; and to remove from the Society's Catalogue any book or tract which shall at any time be in like manner certified as unfit to be continued thereon."

"(2).—That the 31st and 32nd rules of the Society be henceforth repealed; and that the subsequent rules be numbered accordingly."

The Rev. F. D. Wackerbarth seconded Mr. Palmer's motion.

Mr. G. Rochfort Clarke moved by way of amendment, that the resolution moved be not put from the chair.

Mr. John Poynder seconded this.

The Chairman announced, on a show of hands, that the amendment was carried. A division having been called for, it appeared that the numbers were

For the Amendment 142

Against it 116

Majority for the Amendment .. —27

The resolution was consequently not put from the chair.

The Hon. and Rev. Arthur Perceval gave notice of his intention to move, at the general meeting on the 2nd of June,—

"That an humble address be presented by this Board to the Archbishops and Bishops of the English provinces, requesting them, if it shall please them, to prepare and suggest to this Board such regulations for the conduct of this Society in the departments of tracts and of foreign translations as shall seem most expedient to them."

Mr. G. R. Clarke stated his intention to move, if necessary, on the 2nd of June, that the meeting do adjourn to another room.

The Rev. A. M. Campbell gave notice of his intention to move at the next general meeting,—

"That at the general meetings of the Society no member be allowed to read a written address to the meeting."

The Secretaries reported that an address to her Majesty and a petition to both Houses of Parliament, praying for the adoption of measures for the removal of the want of Church-accommodation, had been prepared, and that the petition had been very numerously signed by members of the Society.

A letter was read from Governor Hutt, Western Australia, requesting a second grant in behalf of a Church erecting at Perth in that colony; the sum of 100*l.* having been granted by the Society towards this object in December, 1836. It appears that the most moderate computation of the expense of a structure to contain 500 persons is considerably upwards of two thousand pounds, while the whole amount collected, including the Society's former contribution, and one of the same amount from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, is only 1,400*l.* The governor adds; "I have, however, pressed upon the Church Committee to begin, trusting that the great Head of the Church will give us his blessing in the undertaking, and that the funds of diligence will increase, whereas idleness in such a cause is a sin."

The Board agreed to make a further grant of 100*l.* towards the church at Perth.

A letter was read from Rev. E. Cox, Saddington, Market Harborough, stating that his brother-in-law, Colonel Gawler, governor of South Australia, had, on the 19th of October last, laid the first stone of a new church at Adelaide, in that colony. A hope having been held out to Col. Gawler, on a grant of 250*l.* being made in July, 1838, that an additional grant would be made on the occasion of the commencement of a new church, it was agreed, that the sum of 250*l.* be granted towards the church at Adelaide.

It having appeared, by a letter from the Lord Bishop of Toronto, that measures were in progress for building a church near the mouth of the Grand River, or Lake Erie, Upper Canada, and that his Lordship had given his sanction and assistance towards this good design, the Board agreed to grant 100*l.* towards carrying it into effect.

One hundred Common Prayer Books were then granted on the application of the Rev. R. D. Cartwright, for the use of the convicts in a provincial penitentiary at Kingston, Upper Canada.

A letter was read from the Rev. John Vaughan, secretary of the Foreign Committee of the Board of Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church, United States, requesting the Society's acceptance of reports, and other papers relating to that institution.

It was agreed to return thanks for these.

The Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man returned thanks in the name of his Clergy, and the inhabitants of the Isle of Man, by a letter addressed to the secretary, for the Society's liberality in providing a large impression of the Common Prayer Book in the Manx language, for their use.

A letter was received from the Rev. R. Stainforth, giving a satisfactory account of the manner in which the grant of books to the value of 30*l.* towards promoting lending libraries in the district of Pontefract, had been applied.

Several other letters of acknowledgment were laid before the meeting.

The Rev. G. Morrison, of Les Coteaux, Tobago, wrote to thank the Board for "its liberal and well-timed grant" of books made last year, and to request a dozen Bibles and Common Prayer Books for labourers on that estate.

These were granted.

Several books for the performance of Divine Service were granted for new churches.

Several grants of books and tracts were made.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

4, Trafalgar Square, May 8th, 1840.

EAST INDIES.

Extract from a Letter of the Bishop of Calcutta, dated Feb. 15th, 1840.

"MR. BOWYER, missionary at Howra, is doing well. He is laborious; his schools are increasing, and fresh villages are soliciting his aid. Barrapore and Janjera are, however, the most fruitful and encouraging scenes of our Calcutta missions. Professor Malan visited them before he sailed for Madras and Suez last month; and his opinion is the more valuable, because he had previously been down to Kishnagur, where several thousand inquirers and converts have, under the Church Missionary Society, been receiving in a greater or less degree the Christian doctrine. He says, 'My heart was happy; I felt delightfully surprised at Barrapore and Tallygunge. I spent a Sunday with Mr. Driberg, and accompanied him to Magratias and Sulpea, at both of which villages I preached to the natives in Bengalee. I was thankful in my heart to God that I was privileged to witness such a number of devout, sincere, and tried Christians, so simple, so ignorant of the world, and yet, as far as man can judge from probation, so truly under the influence of the Holy Ghost. I preached also at Sojhaberea, and at Janjera to about 200 natives: it is now their harvest time; they could not all attend. After the service I catechized them. I must say I was delighted and surprised at their answers. An old woman among others, blind with age, whom I asked, if in the midst of her trouble she thought of God, answered, 'Ah, Sir, I trust in my Saviour with all confidence, but I know nothing else; do not ask me more.' So to that poor ignorant and unknown soul, the love of her Saviour is sufficient. It was a lesson to me which I shall not soon forget, I hope. I was anxious to witness with my own eyes the state of things in our missions. Now really when we consider that in these two missionary circuits alone, there are about 1,800 Christians, not of yesterday, but most of them tried and approved, and that these encouraging results are the fruit of the college, is not to complain being ungrateful to God? From what I have seen of Kishnagur and Barrapore, I decidedly think Barrapore and Tallygunge the most interesting; the work is of older standing and more mature.' Such testimony the Venerable Society will, I am sure, appreciate highly. It is to me most cheering, as confirming all I have been reporting for five or six years concerning these missions, in my various communications.

"I can truly say that no letter, since I left my native land in June, 1832, has given me more delight than the communication with which you have favoured me on the subject of my Calcutta cathedral. You have indeed made India a noble gift. The first canonry of St. Paul's cathedral has most appropriately been founded by your Venerable Society, which, together with its sister institution for Promoting Christian Knowledge, were the parents of Protestant missions in Hindoostan, and which are now rising up with renewed vigour, and taking the lead again, as, I rejoice to observe, in the grand scheme of propagating the Gospel throughout the world.

"I believe there never was such an opportunity afforded to any Protestant western nation for diffusing the truth of Christ in the east as is granted to England at this moment; her majestic empire in India is evidencing its beneficent influence. The increased religious and moral feelings of her Christian population are apparent every where. Our Anglican Church is now established in these dioceses. The number of Rev. Chaplains is being augmented. The holy missionaries are multiplied; the beginnings of inquiry rejoice our hearts, both in your Incorporated Society, and in the Church Missionary Society, its younger but kindred body. Bishop's College has now a prospect of solid and advancing usefulness before it, after the difficulties it has lately had to contend with, from the illness and absence of the college authorities. Education is making its slow progress around Calcutta, and all our more populous native towns, and digging up the foundations of superstition and idolatry."

AUSTRALIA.

From a Letter of the Bishop. 30th Oct. 1839.

"It is a most pleasing task to have to acquaint the Society with the generally prosperous condition of our affairs, and to express my confident trust that their pious and charitable endeavours will, through the attendant blessing of Almighty God, be productive of an abundant measure of advantage to the people of this colony. Perhaps the most satisfactory symptom of encouragement is derived from the uninterrupted maintenance among our own body of harmony, peace, and goodwill. Nor do I confine this remark to the good understanding happily prevailing among the clergy one towards another, nor to the sentiments of affectionate respect and cordial co-operation in all my views which it is my duty to record, with a grateful heart, are constantly manifested by the whole body towards myself; but I can with sincerity extend the same praise of unanimity to the laity of our Church. Among too many of these I wish, indeed, that a more lively feeling of the truth and importance of religion were diffused, and greater earnestness discernible in the discharge of its duties. But while that deep, yet sober, devotional spirit which pervades the entire system of the Church, and is encouraged by all its ministrations, does not yet sufficiently characterize all its professed adherents, I have many sources of hope afforded me in observing that there is a prevalent disposition to accept the services of the clergy with thankfulness, and to regard them with respect on the ground of the doctrines which they impart, and through the influence of the schools, which as yet continue to be every where maintained in connection with the Church. I see every reason for expecting that the next generation will be brought up in a more perfect acquaintance with the principles of religion, as well as in a more confirmed purpose, it may be hoped, to walk worthy of the vocation wherewith they are called."

HOME REPORT.

A numerous and respectable meeting of the friends and supporters of the Society was held on Wednesday, 6th of May, at Gravesend, at the conclusion of which upwards of 26l. were collected, 10l. being from new annual subscribers.

The sermon for the Society's 139th anniversary was preached on Thursday last, the 7th inst. by the Lord Bishop of Chichester, at St. Paul's cathedral. Hitherto the anniversary meetings of the Society have been usually held at Bow church, but in consequence of a wish expressed by many gentlemen in the city it was considered advisable to have the service in St. Paul's.

Those for the corresponding quarter of 1839 were 6,198 0 0

The Society has voted 1,000*l.* for each of the years 1839 and 1840, to be placed at the disposal of the Bishop of Australia, for the purpose of assisting in building Churches in New South Wales; and 500*l.* for each of those years for a similar purpose in Van Diemen's Land.

It has also made the following grants:—

For a Church at Wyaberg, Cape of Good Hope	£100
For a Church in New Zealand	100
For a Church in Alexandria	100

And the Society has undertaken to support a Native Missionary, for the service of the Cathedral, which is now in course of erection at Calcutta.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THE Fortieth Annual Meeting of the members and friends of the Church Missionary Society was held in the great room, Exeter Hall, on Tuesday, the 5th instant, and was, as usual, most numerous and respectfully attended. The Right Hon. the Earl of Chichester presided, and was supported by the Bishop of Chester, the Bishop of Ripon, Lord Mountsinford, Lord Bernard, Rev. H. Raikes, Chancellor of the diocese of Chester, Admiral Sir Jos. Hillyar, &c. &c.

The Rev. T. Vores and the Rev. W. Jowett read the Report, in parts. In entering on the state of the finances, the committee thankfully record their deep sense of the Divine favour in the large measure of pecuniary means which has been vouchsafed to the Society during the past year. At the last meeting of the Society, it was the painful duty of the committee to state a deficiency in the receipts of the year (large as compared with the expenditure) of upwards of 20,000*l.* The actual deficiency, however, was less by about 4,000*l.*, remittances belonging to the year 1838-9 not having reached the office till after the 31st of March,—the period at which the accounts of the year are closed. That sum, therefore, fell into the receipts of the year 1839-40, the year now reported. To meet the financial difficulties which thus heavily pressed on the Society, one of the first acts of the new committee was to prepare and circulate an appeal to the members, fully explaining the circumstances of the case, earnestly soliciting additional stated pecuniary support, and opening a fund for special contributions to cover the preceding year's deficiency. This appeal was promptly and cordially responded to. In the event, the receipts of the year amounted to 100,252*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.* This sum, however, includes the remittances already referred to, amounting to about 4,000*l.*, which in strictness belonged to the income of the preceding year. Hence, what may properly be considered as the proceeds of the year 1839-1840, cannot be taken at a higher sum than about 96,250*l.* The expenditure of the year was 90,901*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* But this sum, though large, does not fully represent the ratio of expenditure in the missions; the amount which has become payable in the course of the past year on account of the New Zealand and Jamaica missions, being considerably below the ratio of their expenditure. Though the Committee have not yet been able to prepare the estimates of the current year's expenditure, the progressive enlargement of the Society's operations renders it impracticable adequately to sustain them unless contributions in future years are commensurate with those of the year just closed. The only other alternative—a contraction of operations—is one which the Committee are persuaded that the members would not sanction, unless compelled to do so by uncontrollable necessity. From what has been stated it will be seen, that with an outlay the last year below the ratio of expenditure necessary to maintain existing establishments, not half the deficiency of the year 1838-39 has been replaced. Under these circumstances the Committee earnestly press on the attention of the members the serious character of the Society's financial situation. But while the Committee thus speak, they would reiterate their devout thankfulness to Almighty God for the powerful sympathy which has been awakened in the public mind on behalf of the Society. Doubtless many of those who have thus been led to put forth zealous exertions, among whom the collectors are entitled to especial acknowledgments, have made not a few sacrifices to support this cause. The demands for help from every quarter of the world augment with unparalleled rapidity, and the exceeding bitter cry of those who are perishing for lack of knowledge, is penetrating every town and hamlet of our land. The appeals, therefore, both for missionaries and for the supplies needful to maintain missions, must be made stronger and stronger. The Committee, putting their whole confidence in God's mercy, do trust that the grace already so much augmented will continue to increase. They earnestly look forward to that day when the Christians of our Church shall feel the entire force of the constraining motive urged by the Apostle to the Gentiles, "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor, that we through his poverty might be made rich."

The meeting was addressed by the Earl of Chichester, the Rev. Walter Shirley, the Rev. J. W. Cunningham, the Bishop of Chester, Rev. Dr. Gilly, Archdeacon Wilberforce, and Rev. H. Stowell.

NATIONAL SOCIETY.

So many applications have been made to the National Society, by diocesan and district boards for the services of Inspectors, that it is the intention of the Committee to make two additional appointments, without delay. The persons selected will be Clergymen of the Established Church, well acquainted with the theory and practice of education. Their emoluments will be not less than 200*l.* a year, besides their travelling expenses. They will not be engaged for any one diocese only, but sent wherever their services may be required.

At a meeting of the National Society for promoting the Education of the Poor in the Principles of the Established Church, holden at the Central School, Westminster, on Wednesday, the first of April, there were present, His Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, His Grace the Lord Archbishop of York; the Bishops of London, Winchester, Bangor, Chester, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, and Salisbury; the Rev. H. H. Norris, the Rev. H. H. Milman, the Rev. J. Jennings; T. D. Acland, Esq. M.P., William Davis, Esq., G. F. Mathison, Esq., Joshua Watson, Esq., S. F. Wood, Esq., and the Rev. John Sinclair. After the ordinary business had been transacted, forty-seven grants towards building schools were made (since the thirty-six voted last month), and thanks were returned to the University of Oxford for their liberal donation of 500*l.* to the general funds of the Society.

The annual meeting of the Society will take place at the Central School, Sanctuary, Westminster, on Wednesday, the 27th of May, at 12 o'clock, when the children attending the school will be examined before the president and general committee, and the report of the proceedings of the Society during the past year will be read.

On the following day, at 11 o'clock, in the same place, will be held the annual meeting of the Society of Secretaries, including such Office-bearers of Diocesan and District Boards as may be in town. The object of the meeting is to advance the cause of educational improvement throughout the country, by friendly discussion and interchange of local information.

A LETTER

TO HIS GRACE

THE LORD ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY,

UPON THE FORMATION OF A FUND FOR ENDOWING ADDITIONAL BISHOPRICS IN THE COLONIES.

By CHARLES JAMES, LORD BISHOP OF LONDON.

MY LORD ARCHBISHOP,

I AM persuaded that I need not offer any apology for addressing a letter to your Grace upon a subject, which I know has occupied much of your thoughts, and which I consider to be of the most urgent importance to the interests of that branch of the Church of Christ which looks up with reverence to your Grace as its chief spiritual ruler.

The time appears to me to have arrived, at which a great effort is required, on the part of the Church of England, to impart the full benefits of her apostolical government and discipline, as well as of her doctrines and ordinances, to those distant provinces of the British empire, where, if the Christian religion is professed at all, it is left to depend for its continuance, under the blessing of its Divine Head, upon the energies of individual piety and zeal, without being enshrined in the sanctuary of a rightly constituted Church, the only sure and trustworthy instrument of its perpetuation and efficiency.

The duty, incumbent upon the government of a Christian country, of making provision for the spiritual wants of its colonies, a duty recognised and fulfilled by those states which have maintained their communion with the Church of Rome, was felt at far too late a period by the rulers of this Protestant country, and has at no time been completely and effectually carried out. At present it is openly called in question by a large proportion of the members of one branch of our legislature; and there does not appear to be much hope of our obtaining, at the present moment, in the actual state of the public revenue, any considerable aid from the national resources, for the purpose of planting and maintaining the Church of this country in its colonies. In the mean time, those colonies are rapidly increasing in extent and population, and the want of some effectual provision for the preservation of their Christianity is augmented, just in proportion as the chance of supplying it appears to be diminished.

Every year's experience tends to prove, and the opinion is rapidly gaining ground, that in our endeavours to provide for our colonists that, which in the first instance they have not the means of providing for themselves, the ministrations and opportunities of our holy religion, it is not enough that we send out with them, or amongst them, a certain number of missionaries; and that we contribute to build a certain number of churches and schools. No doubt even this provision will be productive of much good; but if we desire the good to be complete, permanent, and growing with the Church's growth, we must plant the Church amongst them in all its integrity. Each colony must have, not only its parochial, or district pastors, but its chief pastor, to watch over, and guide, and direct the whole. An episcopal Church, without a bishop, is a contradiction in terms. The jurisdiction, exercised in former times over the colonies by the Bishop of London, and still conventionally exercised by him over those clergymen of the English Church who have no bishop of their own, is an anomalous and very inadequate substitute for the practical authority of a diocesan bishop, residing amongst and superintending his own clergy, and giving unity, consistency, and efficiency to their pastoral labours.

For a proof of the incalculable advantage which would result from planting a perfect integral branch of our Church in each of our colonies, we may appeal to the result of experiment. Compare the present state of the East and West Indies, with respect to their religious and moral condition, both as to the clergy and laity, with that which existed before the establishment of the episcopate in those parts of the empire, and the evidence will appear to be decisive. Not that we deem it necessary to appeal to the testimony of a comparatively recent experiment. It might have so happened—God be praised that it is not so! but it might have so happened—that the seemingly adverse circumstances under which those bishoprics were constituted, and the peculiar difficulties to be encountered by their first incumbents, would prevent, for a long series of years, any remarkable consequences of a beneficial nature from those wise and Christian measures. The unfavourable nature of the soil in which the tree was planted, might have seemed to forbid the expectation of its bringing forth much fruit till after many seasons. That it would not ultimately disappoint the just hopes of those who placed it there, was the persuasion of those who believed that a branch of the true Church must needs be "like a tree planted by the water side, which should bring forth its fruit in due season." But its produce has already been abundant enough to justify their wisdom and foresight, and to minister cause of thankfulness to Him who giveth the increase; and to encourage us to unceasing efforts for the purpose of conferring the same inestimable boon on every other colony of the British empire.

The difference between our past labours in the work of erecting colonial churches, and those which are now called for, must be this; that whereas we formerly began by sending out a few individual missionaries to occupy detached and independent fields of labour, unconnected with one another by their relation to a common oversight in the execution of their task, although deriving their spiritual authority from a common origin; and then, after an interval of many years, placing them under the guidance and controul of bishops, we should now, after having supplied the wants of those older colonies, which are still destitute of the benefit of episcopal government, take care to let every new colony enjoy that blessing from the very first. Let every band of settlers, which goes forth from Christian England, with authority to occupy a distinct territory, and to form a separate community, take with it not only its civil rulers and functionaries, but its bishop and clergy.

But the first work to be done, is to supply the want of completeness in the Church which already exists in several of our colonies and distant dependencies. I would mention, as examples, the Cape of Good Hope, the Island of Ceylon, Van Diemen's Land, New Zealand, (which may be regarded as being virtually one of our colonies,) Malta, as the station of a bishop, who might exercise a salutary superintendence over those of our clergy who officiate as chaplains in the seaports and towns upon the coast, or near the coast of the Mediterranean; and perhaps Gibraltar. I speak with some knowledge of the circumstances, which show how desirable it is that a bishop should be placed in some of those places; having references continually made to me upon matters of great importance to the cause of religion and the Church, from English clergymen and congregations in foreign parts, which I am obliged to settle as well as I can, without any legitimate jurisdiction over the parties, and without any means of inquiring personally into the facts which form the subjects of their appeals to me. Your Grace's own experience will confirm the accuracy of this representation.

And besides this, it is obvious that our Church is not seen in her full and fair proportions by the strangers amongst whom she dwells. The defect of those ordinances, which can be received only at the hands of the highest order of the ministry, the absence of due regulations for the exercise of spiritual authority on the part of the clergy, and the want of a common bond of connexion between them, are disadvantageously contrasted with the discipline and completeness of other Churches, in themselves perhaps less perfect or less pure than our own.

I believe that the view, which I have here taken, of the position of our Church in those parts of the world which have just been enumerated, will be admitted to be correct by all those persons who have considered the subject. An opinion is generally prevalent amongst us, that something ought to be done, without loss of time, to supply the deficiency complained of; and the only question is, what are the steps to be taken?

Undoubtedly, I hold, that it is a sacred duty, incumbent upon the government of a Christian state, to make due provision for the maintenance and extension of Christianity in every part of the dominions of that state: but the time is not yet come for the full and free acknowledgment of that duty, on the part of those to whom it belongs; and we can hardly calculate upon an immediate exertion, on the part of the government of this country, adequately to supply the want of which I am now speaking. If they can be prevailed upon to take in hand the more urgent duty of supplying the spiritual wants of our manufacturing towns and populous districts at home, it is as much as we can expect for some considerable time to come.

If we look to the colonies themselves, in some instances there will be found a want of adequate resources for the immediate endowment of bishoprics; in others, it is to be feared, a want of inclination, arising from a state of feeling on the subject of the Church, occasioned in great measure by the very deficiency which we desire to supply. All our colonies, however, are not insensible to the advantages of episcopal church government; for it is known that there exists amongst the people of New Brunswick a very strong desire to have a bishop of their own, residing amongst them, and giving full effect to the ministry of their clergy. For my own part, I believe that, if measures were taken to provide a fund for the endowment of colonial bishoprics, some at least of our colonies would evince the same feeling of their own spiritual wants, and would be ready to assist us in the accomplishment of an object, of too great magnitude perhaps, or thought to be so, for their own unaided resources.

Where a work is to be done for any part of a Christian community, confessedly most important to their best interests, as well as to the cause of our Divine Master, if it is not done by the Government of the country to which that community belongs (which, however, I can never regard as otherwise than bound to act as a part of the Church Catholic, in respect of its worldly means and appliances) it appears to me, that all the members of that community and Church are bound to take the work in hand, and to do that which may in no case be left undone. It is on this principle that the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts has now acted for more than a century. It has done that inadequately, which the Government of the country ought to have done completely; and as there seems now to be but little prospect of its being relieved of its responsibility, it is to be hoped that every member of our Church, whom Providence has blessed with the means, will at length be brought to feel, that some portion of that responsibility rests upon himself. It is upon this principle, as it appears to me, that we must now proceed, with regard to the endowment of new colonial bishoprics. I would propose, for your Grace's consideration, the following plan:—

- 1st. That a fund should be formed, by voluntary contribution, for the endowment of bishoprics in the colonies and distant dependencies of the British Crown.
- 2ndly. That this fund should be held in trust and administered by the Archbishops and Bishops of the English Church.
- 3dly. That, as a general principle, grants should be made for the endowment of bishoprics, to meet a certain proportion of the whole amount required for such endowment, raised in the colonies themselves.
- 4thly. That the money, set apart from the fund for the endowment of a bishopric, should be laid out at the earliest opportunity, in the purchase of land within the colony.
- 5thly. That contributions may be made specifically, for the endowments of particular bishoprics.

I forbear from entering upon minute details; and I would be understood as merely suggesting the foregoing regulations for consideration.

It will of course be necessary, in order to the legal establishment of bishoprics in any of the colonies, or at Malta, or Gibraltar, that letters patent should be obtained from the crown; and I cannot allow myself to suppose, that there will be any difficulty, on the part of her Majesty's Government, in advising her Majesty to give legal effect to those arrangements, by which the Church may make full and effectual provision, as far as relates to her government and discipline, for the spiritual wants of her distant children, without any additional burthen upon the State. With respect to the proposed fund, I feel a confident hope, that a very large amount of money will be contributed by the members of our Church, towards an undertaking, so necessary for the accomplishment of the great ends of her institution. To the attainment of so important an object we may reasonably expect that the great Church Societies will contribute liberally from the funds intrusted to their administration. No subscriber to the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, or to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, will grudge a large contribution from their respective funds for a purpose so directly bearing upon the objects of those associations; and I cannot but think that the Church Missionary Society would feel it to be a plain duty, to assist in carrying out the same purpose: for it conducts its missionary operations by means of clergymen of our own Church; and it is undeniably true, that episcopal superintendence and control is an essential part of the constitution of that Church, absolutely necessary to its complete efficiency and usefulness. The want of that provision I know to be sensibly felt, and openly deplored by many of the missionaries of that Society. I expect also, that the great Colonial Companies and Associations would readily contribute to this fund. The erection and endowment of a bishopric formed one feature of the plan for colonizing New Zealand, which was formed a year or two ago by a number of persons of various religious denominations. The truth is, that a wiser provision could not be made, for insuring even the temporal wellbeing of a new colony.

With regard to the amount of money, which will be requisite for effecting the purpose which we have in view, although it must no doubt be large, yet I do not think it need be so large as some persons have supposed. We must be content to endow our new colonial bishoprics with a very moderate provision; sufficient to secure a competent maintenance for the bishops upon a reasonable scale of respectability and comfort, with some allowance for their travelling expenses. It is probable, that, in the course of time, the improved value of the land, purchased as an endowment in the first instance, will add to their means of doing good; and it is not unreasonable to hope, that the colonists themselves, when they feel the advantages of a resident bishop, may make some addition to his resources, while they multiply the number of the clergy over whom he will have to preside.

I have said nothing of the probability which exists, that if the Church of England does not send forth bishops as well as clergy, into those parts of the world, where her distant children desire still to repose under the shade of her branches, other kindred episcopal Churches may deem it incumbent upon them to crown their missionary exertions by some provision of this kind, and to occupy the fields which seem to be ripening for the harvest. My own deeply-rooted conviction is, that if the Church of England bestir herself in good earnest, and put forth all the resources and energies which she possesses, and for the use of which she must give account, she will in due time cause the reformed episcopal Church to be recognised, by all the nations of the earth, as the stronghold of pure religion, and the legitimate dispenser of its means of grace; and will be a chosen instrument in the hands of God for purifying and restoring the other branches of Christ's Holy Catholic Church, and of connecting them with herself, as members of the same mystical body, in the way of truth, in the unity of the Spirit, and in the bond of peace.

Commending the subject to your Grace's consideration, with an earnest prayer that you may be guided by the Holy Spirit in this, as in all things, to determine for the good of the Church.

I have the honour to remain,
With the deepest respect,
Your Grace's most attached and dutiful servant,
C. J. LONDON.

London, 24th April, 1840.

CATHEDRAL ESTABLISHMENTS.

To the Right Hon. Lord John Russell, &c. &c. &c.

HAVING been requested by your lordship to submit, in a more connected shape, the propositions which, after much consideration, appear to us to be best adapted to form the basis of a measure in lieu of the Bill now before Parliament, "for carrying into effect, with certain modifications, the fourth Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry into Ecclesiastical Duties and Revenues," we beg most respectfully to offer the following suggestions:—

Being fully convinced that if the several chapters are reduced by the permanent suppression of some of their residentiary members, they will not only be incapable of undertaking any new duties, but even of properly and satisfactorily providing for those which they are already bound to perform, and especially the due celebration of divine service daily in their cathedrals throughout the year; and considering that the maintenance of the prebendaries and dignitaries of the old foundations is essential to their constitution; we would propose that the several cathedral and collegiate establishments of England and Wales should be preserved in their statutable number of members, both residentiary and non-residentiary, together with their minor canons and other inferior officers of their several foundations; and that the chapters should retain the management of their corporate revenues, the exercise of their corporate patronage, and the possession of all their present corporate rights.

But whilst we contend for the integrity of cathedral institutions, we shall cheerfully acquiesce in any proposition which may clearly tend to render them, when so preserved, most conducive to the efficiency of the Established Church.

We would, therefore, readily assent to the proposition contained in the fourth Report of the late Commissioners, that no person should hereafter be appointed to the office of dean in any cathedral or collegiate church, or in her Majesty's royal free chapel of St. George, in Windsor, or to the office of warden in the collegiate church of Manchester, or to the office of residentiary or fellow in the aforesaid churches, until he shall have been six years complete in priest's orders.

With respect to the revenues of the cathedral and collegiate establishments of England, we would suggest that all their corporate property should remain inviolate, and under their own controul; but that the separate estates of individual members of chapters should be dealt with as hereafter follows:—

That so much of the separate estates of the deans or non-residentiary prebendaries or dignitaries in the cathedrals of Chichester, Exeter, Hereford, Lincoln, St. Paul's, Salisbury, Wells, Windsor, be reserved, and thrown in the corporate funds of their several chapters, as may suffice to make the deaneries in those cathedrals equal to a double residentiary stall.

That the separate estates of the deanery of York be added to the corporate property of that chapter, as recommended in the second Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry.

That two-thirds of the separate estates of the dean and residentiaries of Lichfield be added to the corporate property of the chapter, as recommended in the same report.

That, with the above exceptions, the separate estates of all dignitaries, and also of all residentiary and non-residentiary prebendaries, subject to existing rights and interests (except residence-houses within the precincts of the cathedral, and such small portions of land as are usually occupied with them), be vested in a board, consisting of the Archbishops and Bishops of both provinces, together with such members of her Majesty's Government and other persons as her Majesty may appoint, to be applied by them to the following purposes, viz:—

"1st. To pay such stipend to each dignitary or non-residentiary prebendary as may be hereafter determined; such stipend in no case to be less than 20l.

"And, 2dly, To aid the increase of parochial ministrations generally throughout England and Wales, provided that such sums, out of the proceeds of the said fund, as may from time to time be voted to any diocese for such purposes, be distributed by a Diocesan Board, consisting of the Bishop, the Dean, and the Archdeacons.

And as it is desirable that a fund should be formed in each diocese, as far as practicable, for the augmentation of the poorer livings and the increase of parochial ministrations, it is proposed that such fund shall be formed in the first place by a suspension of certain stalls in the larger cathedrals, according to Schedule (C) appended to this paper, until the death or other avoidance of the now existing residentiaries, it being provided that such suspended stalls shall be filled up on or immediately after the death or avoidance of the last of the present existing residentiaries of each cathedral in which such stalls shall have been suspended.

And we would further suggest, that in aid of such fund a contribution be required from the net annual income of every dean and residentiary to be hereafter appointed (except as after excepted), according to the scale in Schedule (A); and that such caputal fund shall be disposed of by the Dean and Chapter of each such cathedral or collegiate foundation, for the following purposes only, with the approbation in each particular case of their visitor, or of the bishop of the diocese, in case he is not the visitor of such cathedral or collegiate foundation.

1st. The augmentation of livings in the gift of the chapter, wherever situated, in a certain proportion, according to the population, duties, &c. as may be agreed upon between the chapters and their visitor, or bishop, as aforesaid.

2dly. The augmentation of livings in parishes, where the chapters possess the great tithes, though the livings be not in their gift, upon the same principles and with the same approbation.

3dly. The increase of parochial ministrations generally throughout the diocese, and in those parishes in which the chapters possess property though not in the diocese.

We would propose, that all chapters in England and Wales in which the net annual income of each residentiary is less than 400l. per annum, shall be entirely exempted from contributions.

With respect to the chapters of Wales, we beg to suggest that they are so peculiar in their character, that no plan applicable to the cathedrals of England could be usefully applied to them; and we earnestly recommend that no further alterations be made in their constitution and management, than such as the bishops of the respective dioceses, in concurrence with their deans and chapters may deem expedient.

We are well aware that the plan above suggested, though ultimately as productive in annual income as that proposed in the fourth Report of the Commissioners, will, in some stages of its working, be less so; but we submit, that this partial disadvantage should not be set in opposition to the advantages of a plan which will maintain the cathedral establishments in their integrity and efficiency. We deem it further necessary to state, that we have not adverted to the clauses in the Bill adjusting the future incomes of deans and canons, as we feel satisfied that their operation would be found to be incompatible with the prudent and economical management of the funds of the larger chapters, and would ultimately reduce their members to the condition of stipendiaries. We venture to hope, therefore, that in estimating the comparative productiveness of the preceding plan, and of the plan proposed in the Bill, we may be justified in omitting all consideration of the additional annual income, which might be derived from this source.

We deem it important to suggest, that the residence-houses, if any, attached to the several stalls proposed to be suspended in certain cathedral or collegiate chapters, be placed in the custody and continue under the controul of the Dean and Chapter in each case, who shall receive any dilapidations legally to be demanded from the executors of the deceased residentiary, or from him, if he avoids the same during his life, and shall lay out the sum so received on the necessary repairs of the house; and also shall have power to let the same, employing the rent in keeping up the house, and paying over the surplus thereof, if any, to the common caputal fund, or to any fund for the maintenance of the fabric of the cathedral; provided, that when the suspended stall is filled up, the residentiary succeeding thereto shall receive the house in the same state of repair, as he would have had a right to expect if he had succeeded the preceding residentiary in due course; and such repair shall be executed at the cost of the said Dean and Chapter out of the corporate income or fabric fund.

We have refrained from offering any suggestions respecting Ecclesiastical duties, both because we find no reference to them either in the fourth Report of the Commissioners, or in the Bill now before the House of Commons, and because we are aware that the circumstances of the chapters are so various, and the opportunities and facilities afforded to each of undertaking additional duties with advantage to the Church, are so different, that the subject requires a fuller consideration than we are at present competent to give it.

But it appears to us indispensable, that in any Bill brought into Parliament for the purposes above stated, powers should be given to chapters, in concurrence with their visitors, to provide for the regulation of residence during the proposed suspension of any residentiary stall; and it might be very useful that in such Bill further powers should be given to chapters, with the like concurrence, but subject to an appeal to the Archbishop of the Province, to take such measures for the regulation of their minor canons, the advancement of theological learning, the improved education of the people, or any other objects for the benefits of the Church, as may be deemed consistent with the sacred purposes of their foundations.

† Two stalls have been recommended by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to be appropriated to the rectories of St. Margaret and St. John, Westminster, and arrangements are proposed in the Bill (clause 24) for the further distribution of part of their revenues. In this calculation the constitution of the chapter is considered as unchanged.

‡ The incomes of the deans and residentiaries have been taken from the Appendix (A) to the Second Report of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, which, though known to be in some instances inaccurate, furnished, upon the whole, the most authentic account of them which could be referred to.

No account is taken of the sum which would accrue to this Fund from the operation of Clauses 21 and 55 of the Bill, by which the incomes of all future Deaneries (those of Christ Church and Durham excepted) are adjusted to the respective limits of 1,000*l.* and 2,000*l.*, and of all future Canonries to the respective limits of 500*l.* and 1,000*l.*

DILAPIDATIONS.

THE nature of the repairs which an incumbent is bound to do to the houses and buildings attached to his benefice is illustrated by the case of *Wise v. Metcalfe, where the law on this subject was most elaborately discussed. It was an action against the executor of a deceased rector by his successor; and the question was, for what dilapidations he was liable. The rectory-house, it appeared, was an ancient structure, built with timber, and plastered on the outside, and had upon it the date of 1624; the barns were also old, but not of equal age with the rectory house. The dilapidations were estimated at 399*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* The principle upon which the estimate was made was, that the former incumbent ought to have left the rectory house, buildings, and chancel, in good and substantial repair, the painting, papering, and whitewashing, being in proper and decent condition for the immediate occupation and use of his successor; that such repairs were to be ascertained with reference to the state and character of the buildings which were to be restored, where necessary, according to their original form, without addition or modern improvement. It was proved, by several surveyors of experience, that they invariably estimated the dilapidations between the incumbent of a living and the representatives of his predecessor upon this principle.

If the rectory house, &c., were to be repaired in the same manner only as buildings ought to be left by an outgoing lay tenant, who is bound by covenant to leave them in good and sufficient repair, the expense of such reparation would amount to 310*l.* the painting, papering, and whitewashing, not being included.

If the former incumbent were only bound to leave the buildings wind and water tight, and in that condition which an outgoing lay tenant not bound by covenant to do repairs ought to leave them, the expense amounted to 75*l.* 11*s.*

For the plaintiff it was argued—that by construction of the canons and dicta in the text writers, the rector was bound to keep and leave the house, &c. in a state of repair, even as to painting, papering, and whitewashing, befitting a person of his revenue; that the premises ought to be left in the same condition as that in which they ought to be kept, and that it would not suffice for the deceased incumbent, to keep them merely wind and water tight. If so, it would be sufficient for his successor to keep them in the same state of repair; and the consequence would be, that they need never be in any better condition.

For the defendant it was contended—that the authorities did not distinguish between dilapidations and waste, and that the modes of proceeding by sequestration, deprivation, and prohibition, all contemplated and were exclusively applicable to cases of wilful misconduct or culpable omission; that the rector was entitled to the fair usufruct of the gradual consuming property; and 17 Geo. III. c. 53, was cited, by which the incumbent of a benefice, where there is no house, or the house is so ruinous that one year's produce of the living will not suffice to put it in repair, may, after having an estimate prepared, with the consent of the ordinary raise money to rebuild, by mortgage of the glebe, tithes, &c.

* 10 B. and C. 299 Mich. 1829.

Bayley, J., delivered the judgment of the Court, and said:—"We are not prepared to say that any of the rules suggested are precisely correct, though the second approaches most nearly to that which we consider as the proper rule. The law and custom of England, as stated in some of the earliest precedents*, is as follows:—'Omnes et singuli prebendarii, rectores, vicarii, etc. pro tempore existentes, omnes et singulas domos et edificia prebendarum, rectoriarum, vicariarum, et reparare et sustentare ac ea successoribus suis reparata et sustentata dimittere et relinquere teneantur: et si hujusmodi prebendarii, rectores, vicarii, etc. hujusmodi domos et edificia successoribus suis ut premitatur reparata et sustentata, non dimiserint et reliquerint: sed ea irreparata et dilapidata permiserint: idem prebendarii, etc. in vitis suis vel eorum executores sive administratores, etc. post eorum mortem, successoribus prebendariorum, etc. tantum pecunie summam quantum pro reparatione aut necessaria reedificatione hujusmodi domorum et edificiorum expendi aut solvi sufficiat, satisfacere teneantur.'

"From this statement of the common law, two propositions may be deduced: first, that the incumbent is bound not only to repair the buildings belonging to his benefice, but also to restore and rebuild them if necessary; secondly, that he is bound only to repair, and sustain, and to rebuild, when necessary. Both these rules are very reasonable; the first, because the revenues of the benefice are given as a provision, not for a clergyman only, but also for a suitable residence for that clergyman, and for the maintenance of the chancel; and if by natural decay, which notwithstanding continual repair must at last happen, the buildings perish, these revenues form the only fund out of which the means of replacing them can arise. The second rule is equally consistent with reason, in requiring that which is useful only, not that which is matter of ornament and luxury.

"It follows, from the first of these propositions, that the third mode of computation proposed in the case cannot be the right one; because a tenant, not bound by covenant to do repairs, is not bound to rebuild or replace; the landlord is the person who, when the subject of occupation perishes, is to provide a new one, if he think fit. And if the second proposition be right, a part of the charges contained in the first mode of computation must be disallowed, for papering, whitewashing, and such part of the painting as is not required to preserve wood from decay by exposure to the external air, are rather matters of ornament and luxury, than utility and necessity."

The learned Judge then confirmed his opinion by some authorities from the canon law, and concluded thus:—"Upon the whole, we are of opinion the incumbent was bound to maintain the parsonage (which we must assume upon this case to have been suitable in point of size, and in other respects to the benefice), and also the chancel, and keep them in good and substantial repair, restoring and rebuilding when necessary, according to the original form, without addition or modern improvement; and that he was not bound to supply or maintain anything in the nature of ornament, to which painting (unless necessary to preserve exposed timbers from decay), and whitewashing, and papering belong; and the damages in this case should be estimated upon that footing. It will be found, that this rule will correspond nearly with the second mode of computation, and probably will be the same, if matters of ornament and luxury are not taken into consideration."

The case was referred to the master, to ascertain the amount, and he directed judgment to be entered for 369*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* an amount between the first and second estimates.—Gibbon's Treatise on the Law of Dilapidations and Nuisances.

CERTIFICATES OF BURIALS OF DISSENTERS.

"Cartmel, Milnthorpe, Feb. 25, 1840.

"My Lord,—I beg respectfully to invite your Lordship's attention to the following case:—

"Some time ago, on occasion of the interment in the parish church-yard of the remains of a parishtioner, a member of the Church of Rome, when I, as officiating minister, demanded the certificate of civil registration, I was answered that the Roman Catholic priest, having 'buried' the corpse, had claimed that document, and it had been accordingly delivered up to him. I forthwith applied to the registrar-general to advise me whether the Protestant or the Roman Catholic pastor was entitled to the certificate. His answer was, that it was 'a case in which he was not officially authorised to decide.' The same Roman Catholic priest has recently possessed himself of another certificate in this parish, in a manner which I shall not at present describe. Hence your Lordship will perceive that this bone of contention is likely to remain between the ministers of the Established Church and the Dissenters, until some authoritative decision be pronounced. The Act of Parliament appears not to contemplate a double service, or the issuing of a duplicate certificate.

* 12 and 13 Hen. VIII. Rot. 126. 1 Lut. 116.

"I trust, therefore, that I am not asking too great a boon, when I solicit of your Lordship, as Home Secretary, that you will favour me with the opinion of the law officers of the Crown:—

"Whether in every case in which a corpse is interred in a church or chapel, or church or chapel-yard belonging to the Establishment, the officiating minister of such church or chapel is, or is not, the person legally 'required to bury' such corpse, and consequently entitled to receive such certificate, whether any other 'religious service,' as in the case now referred to, may or may not have been previously performed by any other person whatsoever.

"I am, my Lord,

"Your Lordship's most obedient servant,
H. THOMPSON.

"The Right Hon. the Marquis of Normanby."

"General Register Office,
12th March, 1840.

"Rev. Sir,—Your letter to the Marquis of Normanby, dated Feb. 25, was transmitted by his Lordship to the Registrar-General, who directs me to acquaint you that he caused a copy of it, and of the communication therein referred to, as having been previously addressed to himself, to be submitted as a case to the law officers of the Crown: and I have now the honour of transmitting to you a transcript of the specific questions to which their attention was directed, together with their opinion thereon.

"I am, Rev. Sir, your obedient servant,
THOMAS MANN, Chief Clerk.

"Rev. H. Thompson, Cartmel, Milnthorpe."

(Case.)

"1st. Whether the service performed at any funeral by a Roman Catholic priest or Dissenting minister is to be held as 'religious service' within the meaning of the 27th section of the Registration Act, and therefore entitling such priest or clergyman to the certificate of registration, and to perform such religious service at any interment in a church or chapel, or church or chapel-yard belonging to the Establishment? or,

"2nd. Whether in every case in which a corpse is interred in a church or chapel, or church or chapel-yard belonging to the Establishment, the officiating minister of such church or chapel is the person legally required to bury such corpse, and consequently entitled to receive such certificate, whether any other religious service, as in the case now referred to, may have been performed by any other person whatsoever?"

(Opinion.)

"We are of opinion, that the Act for Registering Births, Marriages, and Deaths does not in any degree affect the right to perform religious service at any interment in a church or chapel, or church or chapel-yard, and that in every case in which a corpse is interred in a church or chapel, or church or chapel-yard belonging to the Establishment, the officiating minister of the church or chapel is the person entitled to receive the certificate, whatever religious ceremony may have been performed by any other person whatever."

ROMAN CATHOLICS IN ENGLAND AND WALES.

As the Roman Catholics still continue to assert, or to intimate indirectly, that their numbers in Great Britain amount to about two millions, and as it is evident that this is an enormous exaggeration, made to serve a particular purpose, it seems desirable to ascertain, as near as may be, their real numerical strength.

By the returns made to Parliament last session, of the number of marriages solemnized in Roman Catholic chapels and Protestant Dissenting places of worship, from the 1st of January to the 31st of December, 1838, it appears that the number of Roman Catholic marriages in England and Wales was 1,629. Now we know that marriage is made a sacrament in the church of Rome, and is not considered valid by her members unless celebrated by a priest of their own communion. It is, therefore, reasonable to conclude, that in all cases where both the parties are Romanists the marriages are so celebrated. And in cases where one of the parties is a Protestant, it is the almost universal practice to celebrate the marriage according to both rites, in order to make it binding on the conscience of both parties. The number of marriages celebrated in Roman Catholic chapels may, therefore, be taken as being a fair criterion of the number of the Roman Catholic population.

Now it appears from the first annual report of the Registrar General, that the whole number of marriages in England and Wales, from Jan. 1st to Dec. 31st, 1838, was 111,481; and that the whole amount of the population of England and Wales, in the middle of that year, amounted to about 15,324,720. This will give one marriage for 137½ persons; and applying this rule to Roman Catholic marriages we have $(137\frac{1}{2} \times 1,629 =) 223,967$ for the whole amount of the Roman Catholic population of England and Wales. These results agree most remarkably with an estimate which we formerly made from the number of Roman Catholic chapels in Great Britain, see Ecclesiastical Gazette, vol. i. p. 117, where, by estimating them at 500 to each chapel, we computed the number of Roman Catholics in England and Wales to be about 223,000. Instead, therefore, of amounting to two millions, the Roman Catholics amount to little more than one-ninth of that number; and their proportion to the whole population is little more than the seventieth part. It seems, however, that even this is a somewhat greater proportion than that of the latter part of last century. Bishop Porteus says (in his letter to the clergy of Chester) that the number of Papists as returned to the House of Lords in 1767 was 67,916, and in 1780 it was 69,376, making an increase of 1460. He states that the population was in 1781 estimated at eight millions, so that the Papists did not make a hundredth part of the whole.

FORM OF RETURNS FOR THE CLERGY LIST.

1. Name of Benefice, County, and Diocese.
2. Name of Incumbent, and Year of Admission, with name of Patron.
3. Names of Curates, Lecturers, &c.
4. Names of Clergy residing in the Parish without Ecclesiastical preferment or duty.

What we particularly wish is, to obtain the names of all the Curates, Preachers, Lecturers, &c. These have hitherto been unnoticed in any list, and there is no possibility of obtaining them with accuracy, but by such an application as this. We therefore hope that this large class of the Clergy will all feel sufficient interest in the project to transmit us their names and the rest of the particulars above, as soon as they conveniently can after the receipt of this request.

LAW.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH, FRIDAY, MAY 1. (Sittings in Banco.)

JUDGMENT.—BURDER v. VELEY AND ANOTHER.

LORD DENMAN, at the sitting of the Court, delivered judgment in this long-pending case. His lordship said the case had come before that Court on demurrer to a prohibition directed to the Ecclesiastical Court of the Bishop of London, requiring him not to proceed further against the plaintiff for the recovery of some part of a rate which had been imposed on the parishioners of Braintree, in Essex, by the churchwardens alone, notwithstanding the vote of the vestry, by which the rate was refused. This had raised the question, whether the churchwardens had the power to impose such rate against the declared will of the inhabitants in vestry assembled. In debating this question, the doctrine that by the custom of England the inhabitants were bound to repair the church and to enclose the churchyard had not been disputed. By the civil and canon law the parsons were obliged to repair the church, and it was so, in fact, in all Christian kingdoms, except in England, where, by the Parliamentary law of the nation, the parishioners were charged with the care of the repairs of the body of the church. This was legal truth undoubtedly, and was distinctly laid down in numerous authorities. Now, although the period of the earliest church rate did not appear to be shown, still they might assume that the expense required for that purpose had always been defrayed by means of a rate levied on the parishioners. Neither had that proposition been denied on the part of the plaintiff, nor on the part of the defendant, that the church rate was taken out of ecclesiastical cognizance, or that the churchwardens were not intrusted with the expenditure of that rate, or held liable to spiritual censure; but this case was one where the question arose as to whether churchwardens were empowered to impose that rate, and compellable, by the spiritual censure, so to tax their fellow-parishioners for the repair of the church. If they did not possess that power, and yet were subject to such liability, there would be a wrong without a remedy; a striking argument, no doubt, inasmuch as that was an anomaly which was abhorrent to the law of England. The wrong was the neglect of duty by the parishioners, but the remedy sought to be enforced by the proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Court was to punish the churchwardens for not taxing their fellow-parishioners, which was itself a wrong on the churchwardens, if they did not possess the power to tax them. The answer to this argument was, that the spirit of ancient times which established that law did apply its remedy, such as was found then, and was expected always to continue, amply sufficient to secure the reparation of the church. The proceeding by interdiction, which suspended the proceedings of ecclesiastical rites, punished a refractory parish, and the fear of its imposition prevented the necessity of recourse being had to any other method for the purpose of obtaining the funds required for the maintenance and support of the church. It was probable that the denunciation of such a punishment would have been sufficient and adequate for the intended purpose in ancient days, and therefore that that alone might have led to the prevention of flying to those means, the inefficiency of which had been proved by more recent experience. It was on the one hand said, that the denial of the right to regulate these matters by ecclesiastical authority alone involved the most dangerous results to the church, while on the other it had been asserted that the power and authority of the Ecclesiastical Court to compel the churchwardens to perform a duty to which their legal powers were inadequate, would involve them in consequences of the most serious and extraordinary kind. It was admitted that they were bound by law to repair the fabric of the church, and yet it was equally clear, that without the consent of the parishioners, or without the power in themselves to impose a church rate, they were left without means to perform the duty cast upon them. That argument was entitled to great consideration, subjecting, as it did, the churchwardens to vast personal inconvenience and liability, since they might chance to be destitute of the necessary funds for the maintenance of the fabric of the church, and might be unable to supply by their own authority any of the wants of the church, the supply of which wants the church rates were legally applicable, and yet they would be liable to ecclesiastical censure if they did not supply those wants. If there were no church rates with which to repair the church, and yet the churchwardens were liable to be proceeded against for any injury which might be sustained by persons passing by through the falling of the walls of the church, they would, in fact, be liable to repair the church out of their own private resources. This was too great an injustice to imagine those parties to be subjected to by the provisions of the law. If there was any general practice for them to make advances for the reparation of the church, it was manifest that the law never could have intended that they should not be entitled to demand repayment. Were it otherwise, the law would be liable to be charged as oppressive and unjust. If the liability actually and really did exist, its existence would tempt the courts to imply a vested right in the churchwardens of England to tax the inhabitants, in order to obtain that reimbursement which would otherwise be denied them. There was no instance in the law of the churchwardens possessing any such vested right, while on the other hand it had been established by numerous authorities, that the churchwardens were liable only in respect of the money which they actually held in their hands. The principle of the ecclesiastical law with regard to the duty of these officers was, therefore, qualified by the supposition that the parishioners had provided them with adequate resources. The burden of proving or establishing the liability was in the present case thrown upon the defendant in prohibition. Now, in what way was that liability discharged? The law required it to be clear to demonstration that a tax was lawfully imposed before it would allow such a tax to be levied. The power asserted here to tax the parishioners was not clearly made out or established. Such a power had not been shown to exist by the words of any statute, by the common law, nor by custom. Neither was there anything to show that a church rate could be properly imposed on the inhabitants of a parish except by the inhabitants in vestry assembled. The expression in "Gibson's Codex" was to the effect that a church rate might lawfully be made and imposed by the churchwardens together with the parishioners assembled in vestry; but in that writer there was no declaration to be met with that it might be imposed by the churchwardens alone, without the consent of the parishioners. And although it had been distinctly laid down by Lord Chief Justice North, that the parishioners were punishable for not repairing the church, he had never stated that the churchwardens were bound to make those repairs with funds of their own, or that they had the powers in themselves to tax the inhabitants of a parish for such an object. Supposing such a power, however, existed in the churchwardens, it was impossible to conceive that it would not have been called into exercise before the present time, that it would not have happened that a churchwarden might desire to impose a rate where a rate had been altogether refused by the vestry, or a rate of an insufficient amount allowed. It might be imagined, however unlikely or improbable the supposition, that during the great and numerous contests between the people and the episcopal power in this country, when the parishioners had refused the rate, the churchwardens had taken part with the parishioners. Now even that supposition would not advance the argument in favour of the defendant in prohibition. The parish church must have been left without repair, and if the churchwardens were answerable and amenable to the spiritual court for the non-repair of the church, and at the same time enjoyed the power of imposing a tax on the inhabitants towards the necessary expenses of such repairs, nothing could have been more simple, or complete, or direct, than the proceedings which might then have been taken against the churchwardens. The rate must then have been imposed. Instead of adopting that course, however,—a course so entirely free from objection,—the bishops had pursued an unheard-of and a new species of authority, under the name of a commission to levy rates; and they had done this to secure the performance of a duty which it was now contended that they might have compelled the churchwardens by the ordinary process of law to perform. Now if the mere necessity for doing an act could create the machinery by which it was to be accomplished, that commission would have been perfectly lawful. But it was not lawful. And if the bishops could have attained the object in view through the enforcement of the sole authority of the churchwardens, and in opposition to the will of the parishioners, as it was now asserted could lawfully have been done, the scandal of an unconstitutional attempt would not have been incurred. At that period, as well as at the great epoch of the Reformation, the subject had undergone frequent discussion, but in no instance had the existence of the power been broadly asserted by any of the learned text writers on ecclesiastical questions. The Court had most carefully looked into and considered all the numerous cases which had been cited in the course of the argument, but had found them for the most part to bear but imperfectly on the precise question in the present case, and therefore did not feel it necessary to comment upon them beyond those which had been made in the course of the discussion at the bar. There were, nevertheless, one or two cases which were exceptions to this rule, and which did require notice. These were the cases of "Maynard v. Bland," and that known as "Sir W. Wynn's case" from the Consistorial Court of Peterborough. In this latter case, it appeared that the vestry had been called together, and had refused to make the rate. The law was laid down by Sir W. Wynn, to the effect, that under such circumstances, if the parishioners did not make a rate, the churchwardens had a right to make it themselves. Now in the present case, which had come before Dr. Lushington, that declaration of the law had been commented on, and that learned judge had said, that sitting where he did, he felt bound by the superior authority of Sir W. Wynn, but at the same time he had adverted to it in such a manner, that in his opinion it was not to be maintained in point of principle. Well, the question thus undecided now came before the Court, and amounted in reality to neither more nor less than this, whether an ecclesiastical judge could make the law? If the conclusions of that judge were drawn from reasons and principles, they were liable, of course, to be considered in argument, and to have their proper force estimated and determined upon. It must, however, be confessed, that a doctrine so novel and important had never been promulgated with so little effort to conciliate opposing arguments. The point which had thus been arbitrarily settled had not been discussed at all. Neither reason nor authority had been vouched in its support, but the whole proceeding bore the appearance, and perhaps truly so, of being a proceeding of an ex parte nature. With all the respect that was due to the venerable person from whom that judgment had proceeded, this Court felt bound to declare that it did not appear to be justified in principle, or to rest on a well-settled basis or recognized authority. It had been conceived that in a subsequent case Lord Stowell had expressed a similar opinion, but, upon inquiry, such did not appear to be the fact. The conclusion, therefore, at which this Court had arrived was, that the Court Christian had been in error in overruling the defensive allegation put in by the parishioners, to the effect that the rate was a nullity, as it had been made against the wishes of the majority of the vestry, and had been made by persons who had no authority so to make it. The Court Christian, therefore, in proceeding to give judgment to enforce a rate illegal in its very formation, had clearly exceeded its jurisdiction, and prohibition must be awarded. This, then, disposed of the first point in the case. Well, then came the second point, which was that, even supposing the rate to be invalid, still a prohibition ought not to issue, because this was a matter on which the Court Christian had exclusive jurisdiction. This Court was thus called on to state the principle of the proceeding by prohibition. That principle was in itself clear, though the application of it might sometimes be difficult. It was this,—if any inferior court entertained a suit which appeared in the outset on the face of the libel itself, or by any of the subsequent proceedings, to be beyond its jurisdiction, the courts of Westminster had the authority to interpose. His lordship then referred to several cases in support of this proposition. The argument, consequently, that in ecclesiastical matters the ecclesiastical courts alone had jurisdiction, and the common law courts none, was founded in error. The question then was, what defects authorized and required the courts of common law to issue writs of prohibition. In every case they must be of such a nature as to show a want of jurisdiction in a particular court to decide the specific matter brought before it. In whatever stage of the proceedings that want of jurisdiction was made apparent, either by the Crown or by a subject, the courts of common law were bound to interfere. Now, the erroneous construction of an act of Parliament was one of those cases; the imposition of a tax without lawful authority was another, and such a tax must a church-rate be regarded and considered, when made by parish officers, not only without the concurrence of the parishioners, but in opposition and defiance of their declared refusal to make the rate. This was not an irregularity which might be waved or cured, leaving the principal matter complete in substance, although somewhat informal in circumstances. Altogether it was invalid as a church-rate, and therefore the Court felt called upon to say, that the Court below had exceeded its jurisdiction, and that judgment must now be given for the plaintiff in prohibition.

CONSISTORY COURT, MONDAY, MAY 4.

THE OFFICE OF THE JUDGE PROMOTED BY HODSON AGAINST DILLON.

THIS was a question as to the right of the Bishop to revoke, without cause shown, a licence granted to the minister of a proprietary chapel. It arose on the admission of the articles in a suit promoted against the Rev. Dr. Dillon, for publicly officiating as a minister of the Church of England in Charlotte-street chapel, Pimlico, of which he is proprietor, and which is unconsecrated, without any licence or lawful authority for so doing, and contrary to, and in defiance of, the injunctions of the Lord Bishop of London. The articles alleged, that a licence having been granted to the reverend proprietor of the chapel on the 24th of July, 1829, it was revoked by the bishop on the 29th of February last, the instrument of revocation being duly served on Dr. Dillon, who was strictly enjoined to abstain from further officiating as minister in the aforesaid chapel; notwithstanding which, he had continued publicly to read prayers, preach, administer the sacrament, and perform ecclesiastical duties and divine offices according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England since the service of the citation in this cause.

Dr. ADDAMS, on behalf of Dr. Dillon, contended that, as the licence in this case had not been granted durante bene placito, it conveyed an absolute right to officiate as minister in this proprietary chapel, and was not revocable at the bishop's mere pleasure, without due course of law. Ordinary curates had a right of appeal under the statute, whereas, if the bishop had a discretionary power of revocation in the case of a minister of a proprietary chapel, he might subject a party without cause, not only to deprivation, but to degradation, for no incumbent is this or any other diocese would employ the defendant.

Dr. NICHOLL, in support of the articles, submitted that such a licence as this was revocable at pleasure, and in this case the bishop had done no more than his duty imperatively required.

Dr. LUSHINGTON said, the substance of the charge was, that Dr. Dillon, being a clergyman of the Church of England, had continued to perform divine service in an unconsecrated chapel, of which he was proprietor and minister, notwithstanding that the bishop of the diocese had by a notice duly served, revoked, or purported to revoke, the licence previously granted to him. The question he had to decide was, whether it was or was not competent to the bishop, under the circumstances stated, to revoke that licence. It did not appear from the articles that the bishop had any particular reason or cause for revoking the licence; all that was presented to the Court was, an act done by the bishop, purporting to revoke the licence; and the only question therefore was, whether he had an absolute right, to be determined by himself exclusively, at his own discretion, to revoke such a licence granted by him. Under such circumstances he (Dr. Lushington) was not to impute to Dr. Dillon the having given good cause or reason for the act, nor to the bishop the having done it without any reason. On looking at the terms of the licence originally granted, he could not but regret that licences of this description should be worded with so little care and caution; not that the mode in which the licence was worded could affect the law of the case, but it was calculated to lead to mistakes. The licence contained no reservation, shewing that it was granted durante bene placito, or during good behaviour; and the question was, whether the bishop had a right of summary revocation. The principle on which the law stood was this—that no clergyman of the Church of England had any right to officiate in any diocese as such clergyman, unless he had a lawful authority so to do, which authority was conferred by the bishop in various ways—as by institution, in the case of a benefice; by licence, where the party is a perpetual curate or stipendiary curate. What was the nature of a proprietary chapel unconsecrated? and what was the nature of a licence granted by the bishop to the minister of such a chapel? Was he, on the ground of having granted such licence, estopped from remedy himself except by due course of law? The ancient canon law of this country knew nothing of proprietary chapels or unconsecrated chapels at all. The necessity of the times and want of accommodation in the churches and chapels in the metropolis and other large towns had given rise to the erection of chapels of this kind, and to the licensing of ministers of the Church of England to perform duty therein. The licence granted by the bishop on such occasions emanated from his episcopal authority; but he could not grant such licence without the consent of the rector or vicar of the parish, to whom alone appertained the cure of souls. In the present case the consent of the rector had been obtained to a non-descript authority to a minister of an unconsecrated chapel. The bishop conferring this licence by virtue of his episcopal authority, what was to prevent him from revoking it at any time he thought fit? Was this a licence not only good against him, but to prevail against his successor? It was a licence granted only from the exigency of the moment, and for no other reason whatever. Supposing, under New Church Building Acts, the number of consecrated churches and chapels to be augmented throughout the country, would not the necessity for these unconsecrated chapels cease; and could the grantee of such a licence as this continue to officiate in direct opposition to the bishop? It was unnecessary to examine the expediency of vesting such a power in the bishop; the question was, what was the law? It was incumbent upon those who asserted that it was in the power of the bishop to confer a permanent right as against himself, to show that such a power had been conferred upon him by the ecclesiastical law. He (Dr. Lushington) was of opinion that no such power had been granted to the bishop; that it was not even in the bishop's power to estop himself from remedy; but that he was bound, according to the exigency of the case, to revoke such a licence, if he thought the good of the church required it. No authorities had been cited on either side, and upon general principles, he was of opinion that the bishop had authority to revoke such a licence as this, according to his discretion; he had exercised that discretion—a discretion not examinable by this court, which had no alternative but to admit the articles.

On the Proctor for the defendant stating that he was not authorized to give an affirmative issue to the articles this day,

Dr. NICHOLL applied to the Court to appoint the Admiralty Court-days extra court-days for the Consistory Court during the term, in order to prevent delay.

Dr. LUSHINGTON said he should feel it incumbent upon him to use his best exertions to bring articles of this description to a hearing as speedily as possible, because he thought (not attributing any moral offence to Dr. Dillon, of which he knew nothing) that it was a scandal to the Church that a clergyman of the Church of England should continue to officiate without lawful authority, and in defiance of the bishop's injunctions to the contrary.

The Admiralty Court-days were ultimately appointed additional court-days for the Consistory Court.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

MONDAY, MAY 4.

CLERGY RESERVES (CANADA) BILL.

THE LORD CHANCELLOR stated, that the judges were in attendance to deliver their opinion on the questions propounded to them by their lordships on the 7th of April last, relative to the Canada Reserves Bill, and moved that they be now allowed to state their opinions; which having been carried in the affirmative,

Lord Chief Justice TINDAL read the opinion of the judges at length, of which the following is an abstract:—"That all the judges of England, except Lord Denman and Lord Abinger, had met at Serjeants' Inn, to take into consideration the several questions which had been proposed to them by their lordships, and, after discussion on the subject, they had agreed unanimously to the answers to be returned to those questions as follows:—To the first question, we are all of opinion that the words 'a Protestant clergy,' in the 31st George III. cap. 31, (sections 35 to 42,) are large enough to include, and do include, other clergy than clergy of the Church of England, and Protestant bishops, and priests, and deacons, who have received episcopal ordination. And to the second part of the question, 'if any other, what other?' we answer, clergymen of the Church of Scotland. With respect to the second question, we are all of opinion that the 41st section of the 31st George III. cap. 31, is entirely prospective, and that the power which it gave to the Legislative Council and Assembly of either of the provinces of Upper or Lower Canada is limited to future allotments and appropriations, and cannot be extended to affect lands which have been already allotted and appropriated under former grants. With respect to the last question proposed, we all agree in opinion that the Legislative Council and Assembly of the province of Upper Canada have exceeded their lawful authority in passing an Act 'to provide for the sale of the Clergy Reserves, and for the distribution of the proceeds thereof,' in respect to both the enactments specified in your lordships' question; and that any sale that has been or that may be made under the second of those enactments will be contrary to the provisions of the 7th and 8th of George IV. and therefore void."

HOUSE OF COMMONS,

MAY 7.

GRAMMAR-SCHOOLS BILL.

Mr. G. W. HOPE moved that the following members be appointed a select committee on the Grammar Schools Bill:—Mr. G. W. Hope, Mr. Acland, Mr. Bruges, Mr. W. Baring, Sir W. Heathcote, Mr. Estcourt, the Earl of Lincoln, Sir E. Wilmot, Mr. Alston, Mr. Ainsworth, Mr. Hayter, Sir C. Lemon, Mr. Sandford, Mr. Mildmay, and Mr. J. Stewart; and that all petitions be referred to them.—Agreed to.

UNIVERSITY AND CLERICAL INTELLIGENCE.

OXFORD.

On Saturday, April 11th, being the last day of Term, a congregation was held for granting graces and conferring degrees, when the following degrees were conferred:—

Masters of Arts.—The Hon. Reginald Windsor West, Balliol coll.; William Miller, New College, Esquire Bedel of Law.

Bachelor of Arts.—William Shillito, University coll.

On Wednesday, April 15th, Mr. William Edward Dickson Carter, from Winchester coll. was admitted Scholar of New College.

On April 24, the following gentlemen were elected Fellows of Oriel coll.:—Mr. Thos. Brooking Cornish, B.A. of Trinity coll.; Mr. Albany Jas. Christie, B.A. Scholar of Queen's coll. on the Michel Foundation; and Mr. James Fraser, Scholar of Lincoln coll.

Congregations will be held for the purpose of granting graces and conferring degrees, on the following days in the present Term, viz.—

May, Thursday, 7. | May, Thursday, 21.
— Thursday, 14. | June, Saturday, 6.

No person will, on any account, be admitted as a candidate for the degree of B.A. or M.A. or for those of B.C.L. or B. Med. (without proceeding through Arts), whose name is not entered in the book, kept for that purpose, at the Vice-Chancellor's house, on or before the day preceding the day of congregation.

In a congregation holden on Wednesday, April 29th, being the first day of Easter Term, the following degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in Civil Law.—Hon. and Rev. Henry William Bertie, Fellow of All Souls' coll.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Francis Thomas New, St. John's coll. grand compounder; Edward Brabant Smith, Michel Fellow of Queen's coll. and Vinerian Scholar; Rev. John Saunders, Queen's coll.; Rev. Horatio Moule, Queen's coll.; Rev. Richard Henry Beaumont Lee, Lincoln coll.; Thomas Henry Sheppard, Fellow of Oriel coll.; Edward Arthur Litton, Fellow of Oriel coll.

In a Convocation holden in the afternoon of the same day, the Proctors of the last year resigned their offices, and the new Proctors, having been previously elected by their respective Colleges, were presented for admission to the Vice-Chancellor.

Senior Proctor.—The Rev. Edward Arthur Dayman, M.A. Fellow of Exeter coll.

Junior Proctor.—The Rev. James Frederic Crouch, M.A. Fellow of Corpus Christi coll.

The former was presented by the Rev. George Dawson, M.A. one of the senior Fellows of Exeter coll.; the latter by the Rev. the President of Corpus. After making the parliamentary declaration, taking the oaths enjoined by the statutes, and being admitted by the Vice-Chancellor, the new Proctors nominated the following gentlemen to be Pro-Proctors for the ensuing year:—Rev. George Dawson, M.A. Fellow of Exeter coll.; Rev. John Ley, M.A. Fellow of Exeter coll.; Rev. Charles Balston, M.A. Fellow of Corpus Christi coll.; Rev. Richard Gell Macmullen, M.A. Fellow of Corpus Christi coll.

The candidates for holy orders, whose names have been received by the Archdeacon of Oxford, are required to deliver to him, at Christ Church, their testimonials and certificates, on or before Saturday, May 25.

The examination of candidates for deacons' orders will commence on Monday, June 8, at 10 o'clock.

The examination of candidates for priests' orders will commence on Wednesday, June 10, at 12 o'clock.

Christ Church, May 5, 1840.

N.B. The Lord Bishop of Oxford requires from every candidate for holy orders, that notice of his desire to be present for ordination be delivered to the Archdeacon of Oxford six months previous to the day of ordination.

EXETER COLLEGE.—An Examination will take place on Monday, the 1st day of June, in order to election to three scholarships in this college; one open to all persons above the age of 16, and under the degree of B.A.; the second limited to sons of Clergymen, of the county of Devon under the age of 19, with preference to the kindred of the Rev. Thomas How, late Rector of Huntspill, Somerset; and the third open to persons born or educated in the county of Devon. Candidates are required to call on the rector, with the necessary certificates, on or before Saturday, the 30th instant. There will be an election to three fellowships in this college on the 30th day of June; two for natives of the counties of Devon, Somerset, Dorset, Oxford, Essex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Middlesex, Hants, Kent, and Cheshire; and one for natives of the archdeaconry of Cornwall. Candidates are required to deliver to the rector certificates, by affidavit, of their birth within the counties or archdeaconry above-mentioned, together with testimonials from the college or hall of which they may be members, on or before the 23rd day of June. It is necessary that they should be of the standing of Generis Sponsus in the university.—May 6, 1840.

MERTON COLLEGE.—There will be an election to three open scholarships on June 24th. Candidates must have attained the age of 17, and not exceeded the age of 19 years. The examination will begin on Friday the 19th of June, and the certificates of baptism and testimonials of good conduct must be delivered to the warden on Thursday the 18th. In filling up one of the three vacancies, a preference will be given to the candidate who, being duly qualified in classics, shall pass the best mathematical examination.

ELDON LAW SCHOLARSHIP.—The trustees of the Eldon Testimonial request the members of the university of Oxford to take notice, that the fourth election of an Eldon scholar will take place on Tuesday, the 2nd of June next, at the Thatched House Tavern, St. James's-street; previous to which day all applications must be transmitted to the honorary secretary, sealed up, and endorsed "Eldon Scholarship, Candidate's Application," and "with the candidate's name also endorsed." The forms of certificates and declarations required, together with the rules and regulations relative to such election, are deposited with the senior tutor of each college and hall, and with the registrar of the university.

THOMAS METCALFE, Honorary Secretary,
5, New-square, Lincoln's-inn, London.

May 5th, 1840.

TRINITY COLLEGE ELECTION.—There will be an election of three scholars on Monday, the 15th of June. Candidates must be above 16 and under 20 years of age; and will be required to present, in person, to the president, certificates of baptism and testimonials of conduct, together with a Latin epistle to request permission to offer themselves, at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning next, the 10th of June.

In a convocation holden on Thursday, May 7th, a letter from the secretary of the National Society, expressive of the cordial thanks of the committee of that body for the donation of 500*l.* recently voted by convocation in aid of the Society, was communicated to the house.

In the same convocation, the following gentlemen were nominated delegates of privileges for the ensuing year:—
Mr. Cornish, Fellow of Exeter college; Mr. Payne, Fellow of Balliol college; Mr. Sewall, Fellow of New College; Mr. Macmillan, Fellow of Corpus Christi college; Mr. Chaffers, Fellow of Braemore college.

In a congregation holden the same day, the following gentlemen were nominated delegates of appeals in congregation:—

The Rector of Exeter college; Dr. Jelf, of Christ Church; the Warden of Merton college; Dr. Wootton, of Balliol college; Mr. Donkin, Fellow of University college; Mr. Mules, Fellow of Exeter college; Mr. Griffiths, Fellow of Wadham college.

At the same time the following degrees were conferred:—

Bachelor in Divinity.—Rev. Jacob Ley, Student of Christ Church, and the late Senior Proctor.

Masters of Arts.—Rev. Frederick Menzies, Fellow of Brasenose college; Rev. William Francis Picking, Demy of Magdalen college; Rev. William Henry Gunner, Trinity college; Rev. John George Hickes, Trinity college; Rev. John B. Wickes, St. John's college.

Bachelors of Arts.—Richard Kemp Bailey, New Inn hall; Charles Henry Monnell, Worcester college (incorporated from Trinity college, Cambridge), grand compounder.

The Lecturer in Anglo-Saxon has given notice of a Class to read Thorpe's Annales.

Yesterday, Mr. T. Z. Davies, Commoner of Jesus college, was elected Scholar of that Society.

At a meeting of the heads of colleges, on Tuesday last, the venerable Samuel Wilberforce, M.A. of Oriel college, and Archdeacon of Surrey, was chosen Bampton Lecturer for the year 1841.

CAMBRIDGE.

The Vice-Chancellor has given notice that the Examination for the Tyrwhitt's Hebrew Scholarships will commence on Wednesday, the 13th inst.

At a convocation on Wednesday, April 15th, the Ven. Francis Hodgson, of King's coll. and Archdeacon of Derby, was admitted to the degree of Bachelor in Divinity, by Royal Mandate.

On Monday, April 20, William Marsh, Esq. B.A. of Caius coll. in this university, was elected a Fellow of Trinity hall, by the Master and Fellows of that society.

On Wednesday, April 20, the Rev. Wm. Percival Bailly, M.A. Junior Fellow of Clare hall, in this university, was admitted a Senior Fellow of that society.

At a congregation on Wednesday, May 6th, the following degrees were conferred:—

Honorary Masters of Arts.—Viscount Newport, Trinity coll.; Viscount Clive, St. John's coll.; Hon. G. Percy Sydney Smythe, St. John's coll.; Francis Leslie Pym, Trinity coll.

Masters of Arts.—James Hemery, Trinity coll.; Samuel Weston Wanton, St. John's coll.; Henry Orme Wood, St. John's coll.; Edward Selwyn, Catharine hall; George Arthur Clarkson, Jesus coll.

Bachelor in the Civil Law.—Eardley Wilmot Mitchell, Queen's coll.

Bachelors of Arts.—Harry Bennett Smith, Trinity coll.; Charles Lawford, Trinity coll.; Walter Cockburn, Trinity coll.; Charles Henry Wilson, Trinity coll.; George Charles Hawker, Trinity coll.; Edward Everett, St. John's coll.; Henry Maltby, St. John's coll.; Henry George Maul, St. John's coll.; Alexander Chirrol, Clare hall; Henry Claydon, Caius coll.; William Henry Child, Caius coll.; John Foy, Trinity hall; Frederic Williams, Corpus Christi coll.; William Bell, Corpus Christi coll.; John Sheldon, Catharine hall; Louis Alexander Beck, Jesus coll.

At the same congregation the following graces passed the Senate:—

To appoint Mr. Skinner, of Jesus coll. and Mr. Eyres, of Caius coll. Examiners for Tyrwhitt's Hebrew Scholarships.

To affix the seal to a conveyance of three roods and three perches of land in Bradwell cum Hollins in Cheshire, part of the Hulase estate, to the Manchester and Birmingham Railway Company.

On the 30th ult. the following gentlemen were elected Scholars of Trinity coll.:—

Unwin Heathcote.
Geo. Percival Smith.
Alfred Martineau.
Thomas Robinson.
Thomas Richardson.
Isaac Blip Turner.
Charles A. Swainson.
Frederick Curry.
J. B. Gaborne.
Fred. A. Goulburn.
John G. Lonsdale.

PROVINCIAL.

On Tuesday, the 28th April, 1840, the foundation stone of a new Church at Oldbury, near Birmingham, was laid by the Rev. George Sproston, Incumbent thereof, in the presence of a large concourse of spectators. After the ceremony, the workmen employed at the Church, to the number of 28, were treated with a substantial dinner; some of the Committee and Clergy dined with the Incumbent; and in the evening the children of the school were regaled with tea and cake at the Parsonage. The whole passed off with general expressions of satisfaction and delight, to which the fineness of the day so very much contributed.

At the late Lady-Day Audit of the Governors of Oakham and Uppingham schools, the Hon. and Rev. Leland Noel, Vicar of Exton, and the Rev. H. de Foe Baker, Vicar of Greetham, were elected Governors. At the same time E. B. James, of Queen's College, Oxford, J. Hildebrand, of Clare Hall, and A. F. Padley, of Christ's College, Cambridge, late pupils in Oakham school, were appointed to general exhibitions, value forty pounds per annum.

New Church at East Hyde, Bedfordshire.—On Wednesday, the 22d of April, a very numerous company assembled on the ground at an early hour in the day to witness the interesting ceremony of laying the first stone of this edifice. The stone was laid by Mrs. Ames, assisted by the Rev. T. Sikes, the hon. secretary, and by Mr. Ferrey, the architect, the hon. secretary saying in behalf of Mrs. Ames, "We lay this, the foundation-stone of the church of the Holy Trinity, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

On Tuesday last, the 28th of April, the Bishop of Oxford, accompanied by Archdeacon Clerke, arrived at the Governor's house in the Royal Military College, for the purpose of holding a confirmation at the Institution, for which the Rev. Dr. Wheeler, the chaplain of the establishment, had been engaged in preparing the gentlemen cadets for the last three months; and on Wednesday, the 29th, his Lordship confirmed about 100 of the young gentlemen in the college chapel, and concluded the ceremony with a most appropriate and impressive charge.

A numerous and highly respectable meeting of the inhabitants of the town and county of Leicester to promote the diffusion of a National education, in the principles of the Established Church, was held at the Assembly Rooms, April 17. His Grace the Duke of Rutland was in the chair. The Report of the Committee was read, and proved highly satisfactory.—Leicester Journal.

The Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol has consecrated the new Church at Brimscombe, in the parish of Minchinhampton. His Lordship was attended by the Rev. T. Murray Brown, and the Rev. M. Blagden Hale, who officiated as Chaplain, and a large body of the Clergy. The Church, which is situated in a beautiful and picturesque part of the country, was erected by D. Richards, Esq., of Gatcomb Park, assisted by others residing in the neighbourhood, and is a fine specimen of the Saxon style of architecture, capable of holding 1000 persons; more than one-fifth of the sittings are free, being appropriated for the use of the poor.

Several interesting events in connection with the Established Church have taken place this week. On Tuesday last, Lichfield presented a very animated appearance. Dr. Bowstead, the new Bishop of the diocese, on that day paid his first visit to the Episcopal city, to take formal possession of his see. The ceremony of his enthronization was performed in the venerable cathedral, the Rev. Prelate being admitted to his chair by the Venerable Archdeacon Hodson, in the name of the Dean and Chapter. This interesting spectacle was attended by a large body of the Clergy and the laity. In the latter part of the day an elegant entertainment was given to a select party at the Palace, who assembled in honour of his Lordship. On the following day, the Venerable Prelate proceeded to consecrate the new Church recently erected at Handsworth, upon a plot of land, the free gift of Mr. Crockett, of that place. A great number of the neighbouring Clergy were present at the ceremonial. Indisposition preventing the Bishop from preaching, an able sermon was delivered by Archdeacon Hodson, at the close of which a very liberal collection (45*l.*) was made. On Thursday his Lordship likewise consecrated another new Church, at Stone, on which a sermon was preached by the Venerable Archdeacon Hodson. The collection amounted to the considerable sum of 40*l.*—Staffordshire Gazette.

Durham Diocesan Church Building Society.—At the quarterly meeting of the Committee of this Society, held in Bishop Cosin's Library, in this city, on the 9th April, the Hon. and Rev. Dr. Wellesley in the chair, grants of 50*l.* each were voted to the new Church at Pelton, in the parish of Chester-le-street; and to the new Church at Coundon, in the parish of St. Andrew Auckland; also an additional grant of 20*l.* towards the enlargement and procuring new free sittings in the parish Church of Whittingham, in Northumberland. And at the quarterly meeting at Newcastle in January last, the Archdeacon of Durham in the chair, grants of 50*l.* each were voted towards building new Churches in the following places:—Collery, in the parish of Lanchester; Scremerston, in the parish of Ancroft; Windyrod, in the parish of Heworth; and Deptford, in the parish of Bishopwearmouth. The calls for aid from this society are now most pressing, its funds are exhausted, and the liberal support of all the friends of the Church is most earnestly requested. By the recent report of the Durham Diocesan Committee for the enlargement and building of Churches and Chapels, it appears that the subscriptions for the year 1839 amount to 583*l.* 10*s.* Of this sum, 15*l.* is given by the Bishop of the diocese, 178*l.* 10*s.* by the Dean and Chapter, 93*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* by the inferior Clergy, and only 60*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* by the whole body of the laity of the diocese.—Durham Advertiser.

Salisbury Diocesan Church Building Association.—The Quarterly Meeting of the General Committee was held on Tuesday, and very numerously attended. Archdeacon Lear took the chair. The Treasurer reported that he had paid 370*l.* since the last meeting, the amount of grants voted; and also 50*l.* towards Portland new Church, the amount of several small donations given especially for that Church. The balance in his hands at the several Banks, is now 1525*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.* Applications were received from the following places, and the grants specified (but subject to certain conditions) were made:—*40*l. towards building the Parochial Chapel of Stanton St. Gabriel, in the parish of Whitchurch Canonioorum;—250*l.* towards the taking down and rebuilding, on a very enlarged plan, the Church in the parish of Holy Trinity, Shaftesbury. The result of this most laudable undertaking will be an addition of 321 free seats to the accommodation which the present dilapidated edifice affords.—45*l.* was voted towards repewing, with an entire re-arrangement of the pews, the parish Church of Urchfont; by means of which 90 additional seats, all of free, will be gained.—An application from the inhabitants of the hamlet of Worton and Marston, in the parish of Potterne, for aid towards erecting a Chapel of Ease in Worton, was met by a grant of 250*l.*—The Committee were unable to entertain an application for building a Chapel of Ease at Stower Provost, in consequence of the terms not coming within the prescribed Rules of the Association. A hope was, however, expressed that the Committee may hereafter be called upon to lend their aid in building an endowed and consecrated Chapel of Ease in that parish. The Committee gave an order for the payment of 35*l.*, the amount of a grant made towards re-pewing Stapleford Church. The Committee received the Report of the Treasurer and Secretary of "The Diocesan Association in aid of the Society for the Employment of Additional Curates in Populous Places." It appeared that 200*l.* had, by order of the Committee, been remitted to the Parent Society, and that a balance of 219*l.* 7*s.* the amount of last year's donations and subscriptions, now stood to the credit of the Treasurer. The Secretary stated, that Curates were supplied in two instances in this diocese, through the instrumentality of the Association. A donation of 50*l.* towards the funds of the Association, from Mr. Williams, of Bidehead, was recorded; an example which should be followed.—The Treasurer received an order to pay 200*l.* to the Treasurer of the Parent Society.—Salisbury Herald.

Diocese of Exeter.—It was stated in the House of Commons, two years ago, that nineteen-twentieths of the church-rates were paid by churchmen. The whole amount for that year was estimated at 800,000*l.*, of which 470,000*l.* was paid by Churchmen, 330,000*l.* by dissenters. In the same year the sum of 35,000*l.* was voted by parliament to disbanding teachers, and a further sum of 24,000*l.* towards the erection of dissenting meeting-houses, and the popish college at Maynooth. Out of these two last sums the Churchmen paid seven-eighths, or 43,000*l.*; therefore Churchmen are actually paying 13,000*l.* more in one year towards the support of dissent than the dissenters are paying towards the Established Church.—Norfolk Chronicle.

Exeter.—The annual meeting of the Exeter Diocesan Association, was held at the Castle on Thursday, April 23, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, in the chair. The Rev. J. T. Toye, one of the Honorary Secretaries, read a very ably drawn-up and satisfactory Report; from which it appeared that permanent grants have been made to several large parishes in the diocese, for the employment of additional curates to meet the spiritual wants of the increased population; and it was recommended that an additional grant for the ensuing year, be made to the Parent Society, should the Committee be of opinion that the funds will permit it. The annual subscribers have increased and donations amounting to more than 100*l.* have been received during the past and present years.—W. of England Conservative.

Laying the Foundation Stone of St. John's Church in Bowling Bradford.—On Tuesday last, the 7th April, the interesting ceremonial took place, of laying the foundation stone of a new church designed to be erected, at the sole expense of the Proprietors of the Bowling Iron Works, in the township of Bowling, and parish of Bradford. John Green Paley, Esq., one of the partners and an active promoter of the good design, officiated in the laying of the stone. He was accompanied by the Vicar, the Rev. Dr. Scoresby, and twelve or fourteen other clergymen of the parish, in their robes—who with the resident partners, and many friends, went from Church Hill school room, where the clergy had assembled, in procession, to the site designed for the church.

The ceremonial commenced by singing. The Vicar then read an appropriate selection of prayers from the liturgy, with a very beautiful prayer for the founders of the proposed Church, taken from the consecration service. Prayers being ended, Mr. Paley, (accompanied by the Vicar, as officiating Minister) descended to the foundation, when, on receiving a silver trowel from the hands of the architect, Mr. Sharp, he went through the usual forms; the stone being lowered down into its place, and ceremonially fixed there by the blows of the wooden mallet.

Staffordshire, Stone.—Consecration of Christ Church.—The solemn and interesting ceremony of consecrating this new church was performed by the Lord Bishop of this diocese, on Thursday April 23. A considerable number of ladies, as also the gentry and clergy of the town and neighbourhood assembled in the National School, and walked in procession to the church. When the procession reached the Crown Hotel, the Lord Bishop joined it, supported on his right by Archdeacon Hodson, and J. Heeley, Esq., churchwarden, and on his left by his Lordship's chaplain, the Rev. H. Calthorpe, and Edward Taylor Dickenson, Esq., the other churchwarden appointed by the Bishop. The sermon was preached by the venerable Archdeacon Hodson, from Rom. xii. v. 16 and 17.

The Bishop then proceeded to consecrate the church-yard, which took place in the presence of a large concourse of spectators, in addition to the numerous congregation. The Bishop and Clergy then returned into the church and partook of the holy sacrament.—Staffordshire Gazette.

Westbromwich.—Consecration of the New Church at Handsworth.—The new church, lately erected near to the New Inn, Handsworth, was consecrated for divine service on Wednesday, April 22, by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Lichfield. The sermon was preached by the Ven. Archdeacon Hodson. His lordship, at the conclusion of the service, proceeded to lay the foundation stone of Holy Trinity Church, near Spon-lane, Westbromwich. The friends to the cause of church extension, accompanied by the National and Sunday schools, assembled at the Dartmouth Hotel, at three o'clock, and proceeded to the site. On arriving at the ground, the schools, arranged in the area of the church, were surrounded by the clergy, subscribers, &c. A platform was reserved for the ladies. When all arrangements had been made, the urn containing the coins was deposited in the stone, and covered with a brass-plate, on which was an engraved inscription.—Staffordshire Gazette.

Lichfield.—Enthronement of the Bishop.—On Tuesday, April 21, the Lord Bishop of Lichfield was installed in the Cathedral Church. His Lordship was met at the front entrance by the Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean, Venerable Archdeacon Hodson, and other dignitaries and authorities, when the oaths were administered by John Haworth, Esq., the Chapter Clerk. His Lordship was then conducted into the body of the church, where he was duly installed by the Venerable Archdeacon Hodson, the Canon Residentiary, the Dean assisting in part of the ceremony. The cathedral was crowded to witness the proceedings, a great number of the clergy being present, and also many ladies. The Rev. Henry Calthrop, his Lordship's chaplain, accompanied the Bishop. The Mayor and corporation afterwards waited upon the Bishop at the palace, and presented an address on his appointment to the see, to which his Lordship very graciously replied.

A meeting of the Diocesan Board of Education was on the same day held in the Town Hall: the Lord Bishop presided. We understand it was determined upon to erect a school-room immediately upon the plan of Mr. Johnson, architect, of this city. Earl Harrowby and Lord Sandon, with their accustomed munificence, have given exhibitions for the encouragement of scholars under a course of education, as training-masters; and it is intended to appropriate a specified sum, the more effectually to promote the object of the board, in educating these young men.

Chichester Diocesan Association.—A quarterly meeting of the Committee of the Chichester Diocesan Association was held, on Thursday last, the 12th April, at the National School House. The Duke of Richmond (the Patron of the Association) took the chair. Grants of money were made towards the rebuilding of Iping and Falmer churches. The treasurer of the Association, John Hoper, jun. Esq. read an account of the funds belonging to the three branches of it—viz. the Church Building, the Clergy Aid, and the Education accounts. Afterwards, a most important and gratifying step was taken in the cause of sound and religious education; namely, the decision of the Committee upon a body of regulations previously drawn up for the management of the Diocesan Training School, which it had been before resolved to establish at the annual meeting of the Association in December last. This school, which certainly promises, by the divine blessing, to raise both intellectually and morally, the character of our National Schoolmasters is to come into operation at the early part of next month. The terms of the school are brought down to the sum of 15*l.* yearly, which is to include every expense except clothing, and the ordinary ages for admission fixed are from 15 to 22.

Cambridgeshire.—Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels.—The annual meeting in aid of the objects of the above society, was held at the Town-hall on the 26th of March.

The Vice-Chancellor, having taken the chair, briefly opened the business of the meeting by observing that they had met for the purpose of passing resolutions, having for their object the furtherance of the designs the society had in view; and although they might congratulate themselves that much had been done towards the accomplishment of that object, yet far greater exertions were still required, in order to secure the blessings of religious worship to the increasing population of this country.

The Secretary of the society (the Rev. E. Brown, of Emanuel College) then read a very favourable report of the society's operations.

Dorsetshire.—Marshwood, Dorset.—In this parish, which has been destitute of a Church for nearly the last two hundred years, the interesting ceremony of laying the first stone of a new one took place on Wednesday, the 25th day of March, in the presence of more than twenty of the neighbouring clergy, some of the gentry, and of more than 3000 of the inhabitants of the towns and villages around. The person with whom this blessed work originated was the late Mr. Richard James, of Hawkchurch, who was born in Marshwood; and it has been carried on and completed with the most untiring zeal, and the best christian spirit, by the new Vicar, the Hon. and Rev. W. P. Law.—Salisbury Herald.

IRELAND.

ADDITIONAL CURATES' FUND SOCIETY.

The second annual meeting of this Society was held on Friday, the 24th April, in the Examination Hall of Trinity College, Dublin, and the attendance upon the occasion was most respectable and numerous. The chair was taken, shortly after one o'clock, by the Lord Primate.

On the platform were, the Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishops of Elphin, Down, and Cashel; the Marquis of Downshire, the Earl of Clancarty, the Lord Dunsany, the Provost, the Right Hon. F. Shaw, M.P., the Dean of St. Patrick's, the Dean of Ardagh, Hon. the Dean of Leighlin, the Dean of Lismore, the Dean of Kildare, Hon. the Dean of Ossory, the Archdeacons of Armagh, Dublin, Emly, Ardagh, Cork, Kildare, and Ossory; John M'Clintock, Esq.; Judge Johnson; Mr. Sergeant Jackson, M.P.; Henry Hamilton, Esq.; Rev. Dr. Thackeray, Rev. Dr. Elrington, Rev. Dr. Wall, Rev. Dr.

Wray, and a number of clergymen.

Letters of apology were received from the Earl of Courtown (enclosing a donation of 20*l.*) the Viscount Powerscourt, Viscount Morpeth, the Bishops of Meath, Limerick, and Killaloe, Judge Torrens, Right Hon. T. Lefroy, G. A. Hamilton, Esq.;
Edward Litton, Esq., M.P.; Edward Pennefather, Esq., Q.C.; Richard B. Warren, Esq., and Col.
Crichton.

The proceedings of the meeting were opened with prayers, which were read by his Grace the Lord Primate.

The Rev. Mr. Irwin read the report, which stated that 51 applications had been sent to the committee for additional curates; and that 22 grants had been made. A full detail was then entered into of each particular case in which aid was given, distributing them into five classes; the 1st, where there was an overwhelming population; the 2nd, where there was an immense extent of territorial district; the 3rd, where both these causes united, but in a minor degree, to render the services of additional ministers necessary; the 4th, where there was no ecclesiastical provision whatever for the support of a clergyman; and the 5th, where grants were made to incumbents who were totally laid aside by illness, and unable from the smallness of their incomes to provide substitutes. The report then stated that about 3,000*l.* had been collected throughout Ireland, for the purposes of the society.

The resolutions were moved and seconded by the Archbishop of Dublin and the Marquis of Downshire; the Earl of Clancarty, and the Bishop of Down; the Right Hon. F. Shaw, M.P. and the Rev. Dr. Singer, F.T.C.; Mr. Serjeant Jackson,
M.P. and the Hon. and Ven. the Archdeacon of Emly; the Rev. Denis Browne, and the Rev. Dr.
O'Sullivan. On the motion of the Rev. Dr. El-rington, Regius Professor of Divinity, the Lord Primate left the chair, which was taken by the Archbishop of Dublin; when thanks were moved to the Lord Primate by the Bishop of Cashel and the Lord Dunsany.

COLONIAL.

Trinidad.—During the visit of the Bishop of Barbadoes to this Island, he has confirmed the following number of persons:—

At Trinity Church, on the 9th.....	76
16th.....	70
At Belmont Chapel, Naparima, 10th	80
At the Indian Mission, Savanna Grande, on the 11th	55
Total.....	281

His Lordship embarked on the 17th February, on board H. M. Ship Athol, for Grenada, St. Vincent, and Dominica.

The Port of Spain Gazette, of Feb. 18th, says, on Saturday last about 30 of the Members of the Church waited, by appointment, at three o'clock at Trinity Church, on His Lordship the Bishop; who, after the business of the Vestry was concluded, requested their attendance in the Vestry Room.
He then entered at some length into the progress of the schools, and other matters connected with the Protestant Church in this Island, since his last visit in 1836. Then there were only about 200 scholars attending the schools, connected with the Church of England: now, he was happy to say, there were 1462.

There were at present in Trinidad, in connexion with the Church of England, one Church (that of the Holy Trinity, in Port of Spain) already in use, and which building was opened for Divine service in 1823. Also, fourteen temporary places of worship. There were two Churches nearly ready for consecration, viz., one in Couva, and one in Chagua-nas—the latter, indeed, would only be a Chapel school, until a separate school-house should be built, as was contemplated. Two Churches were also in immediate contemplation, viz., one at San Fernando, the other at Tacarigua.

There were also seven Chapel schools in contemplation, viz., buildings which might serve for Chapels on Sundays, or on Holydays. There were now five school-houses which might be made Chapel schools. In all, twelve school-houses, including the five above-mentioned. There were also eight temporary school-rooms lent or hired; making in all twenty school-rooms. Also, two more schoolhouses were intended immediately to be erected.
In the twenty school-rooms, or rather twenty-one, for the Chacon-street school-house supplied two school-rooms, there were 24 Day-schools, giving instruction to 1173 Children.

3 Evening Schools	89 Adults.
6 Sunday Schools	200 do.
	1462

The deduction to be made for double enumeration, in the case of Adults who attend both Sunday and Evening schools, was exactly 62, leaving 1400 distinct persons under instruction in the various schools.

The number of Clergy in Trinidad, when he visited this island in 1836, was only one, with the exception of the Rev. Mr. Evans, the Garrison Chaplain. The number, he was now happy to say, amounted to six. There were at present only three parsonages, but the remaining clergy had an allowance for house rent

JAMAICA.

At a general ordination, held by the Lord Bishop of this diocese on Sunday, the 12th day of January, 1840, in the parish church of St. Andrew's, the following gentlemen were ordained:—

Priests—

The Rev. Thomas Wharton, B.A., St. John's College, Cambridge, and Island curate of the parish of St. Thomas-in-the-East.

The Rev. Henry William Gegg, Island curate of the parish of Hanover.

The Rev. Jacob Frederick Sessing, a missionary on the list of the Church Missionary Society, stationed in the parish of St. George's.

Deacons—

Robert Robinson, B.A., Queen's Coll. Oxford.
Edward Husband, B.A. Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.

David Osborn.

Jan. 13, 1840.—His Lordship this day licensed
Mr. Robinson as a stipendiary curate in the above rocks, the mountain district of St. Thomas-in-the-Vale; Mr. Husband, as substitute of the Rev. Wm.
Broadley, Island curate of St. Dorothy, absent from the island on leave; Mr. Osborn, as a stipendiary curate at Darlaston, in the mountain district of Westmoreland. Mr. Robinson and Mr. Osborn have been sent out by, and are on the list of, the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts.

His Lordship is now engaged in making visitation and confirmation tours through every part of the island.

FOREIGN.

Deposition of the Patriarch of Constantinople.—
The Moniteur Ottoman, of March 14th, gives an account of the trial and deposition of the Greek Patriarch, which is both interesting and important.
Upon the complaint of the English Ambassador, he was tried by a Turkish commission for having,
in his letters to the Bishops of the Ionian Islands, endeavoured to excite disaffection and resistance to the British Government. The commission having had the letters produced, and having heard the Patriarch in explanation, made a Report to the Sultan; who, thereupon, deposed the Patriarch by an Imperial Ordinance, as guilty of an abuse of power. In the course of his examination, the Turkish commissioners observed to the Patriarch, “we are astonished to see in this letter of yours, that ignorant priests should be preferred. What advantage can be drawn from their ignorance?
Ought not instruction always to be considered preferable?” The answer of the Patriarch was, “we are willing that priests and professors should be taken from among well instructed men: but for these four or five years our Orthodox schools in the Ionian Isles having been closed, Orthodox children have been obliged to pursue their studies under Protestant and Lutheran priests: and it is wished to name Orthodox priests from among the people educated in these schools, which will end by altering the Orthodox doctrine.

“Besides, as to priests, religion and faith being sufficient, it is not absolutely necessary that they should have very extensive knowledge. Our object is, that men educated by priests of a Foreign religion, should not be considered worthy of the Orthodox priesthood, however well instructed they may be supposed to be. And that priests should be chosen from among virtuous men, who think according to the Orthodox religion. These irreligious priests having penetrated into our schools in the Ottoman empire, we have expelled them by the support of His highness, the Sultan.”

On being asked, how he as a subject of the Porte, could interfere in the political affairs of another Government, and name priests without asking permission? he replied, “In the Ionian Isles if a Bishop does any thing contrary to the temporal authority the Government can deprive him, but the nomination of his successor, according to our religion, cannot take place until the Patriarch has recognised and sanctioned the choice. If the proposed Bishop is not judged worthy, the Patriarch can refuse to recognise him, and can name another.
The Patriarch has never conferred on the population of the Ionian Isles the right of naming the Bishops. We cannot give our sanction in favour of a Bishop, even when named by the Government, if he does not appear to merit it; and the Government cannot interfere when a Bishop is named by us. In the Ionian Isles a metropolitan chosen by the Government, could be named and confirmed by it: force might be used at all times towards the Priests and Bishops, and relative to such a case, we have nothing to say; but as to the Orthodox religion, it is the Patriarch who is its head.”

On this reply, the Turkish Commissioners made the following pithy observations; “The deprivation of a Bishop, and the right to nominate another, seem to be inseparable the one from the other, even as the action of the hand upon the movement of the key in the lock.”

After the deposition of the Patriarch, the Holy Synod elected Anthimos, Archbishop of Nicomedia, as his successor; and the election received the imperial approbation.

Prussia.—Frankfort, April 16.—Michelis, formerly Chaplain to the Archbishop of Cologne, is released from his confinement in the fortress of Magdeburg, and the province of Saxony being assigned to him to choose his residence, he has fixed upon Erfurt, where he is to be under the spiritual superintendence of the Bishop of the diocese.
Michelis receives from the Government an annual allowance till he shall have obtained a professorship in the branch of science to which he is now applying. Meantime he may be employed in his present place of abode by his ecclesiastical superiors, to do duty in the Church. We hear from Darmstadt, that the Russian Crown Prince will pass some time in the Grand Duke's family before he goes to Ems, where the Empress of Russia is expected by the middle of June.

Berlin, April 23.—It is said that the Archbishop of Posen has again applied to His Majesty for permission to return to his diocese, repeating his assurances of unalterable fidelity; but it is to be feared that his letter will have no better success than former applications of the same kind, because it contains no promise to return to a peaceable demeanour, infringing neither the rights of the state nor those of any religious confession, which this Prelate observed till the lamentable event of 1837, and which gained him not only the respect of his diocese, but of the Government. It is evident that the King is inclined to exercise indulgence, rather than rigour, as we see from many circumstances—for instance, since his answer to the deputation of Roman Catholics of Posen, and there was thought the more reason to expect that the Archbishop would at length take a step which is so necessary for the good of his diocese.—Allgemeine Zeitung.

METROPOLIS CHURCHES' FUND.

Vice-Patron,

HIS GRACE THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the Subscribers to this Fund will take place at 67, Lincoln's-Inn Fields, on Wednesday, the 3rd of June next, at which the attendance of the Subscribers and the Friends of the Church is most earnestly solicited. The Chair will be taken at 3 o'clock precisely. [674]

Managing Committee.

MR. WILLIAM ADAMS,
REV. THOMAS BOODLE, A.M. } Secretaries.
REV. G. COULCHER, A.M.
REV. FRED. HOSE, A.M.
REV. PROFESSOR SCHOLEFIELD, A.M.
REV. GEORGE SPENCE, LL.B. Treasurer.

This Institution has now been established about a year and a half, during which period its friends have been cheered, amidst some discouragements, with indications of success beyond their hopes. The present premises, engaged at first for a temporary experiment, are now inconveniently filled; and it has become absolutely necessary to provide enlarged accommodation to meet the cases which are presented from time to time to the Committee. In these circumstances the Committee have been encouraged by a munificent anonymous donation of Two Hundred Pounds to venture on the purchase of a very eligible site for building, immediately adjoining the new Church at Barnwell, so as to allow of the inmates regularly attending upon public worship without exposure to public observation. With much thankfulness for the success which has attended the commencement of their anxious undertaking, and desiring to proceed in faith and hope in its enlargement, they make an earnest appeal for pecuniary aid to those who have formerly been connected with the University of Cambridge, and to all who feel concerned for immortal souls perishing in sin, that they may be enabled to complete the purchase of the ground, and to proceed without delay to the erection of the Building.

The following sums are already appropriated to this object:—

Contributions will be thankfully received by any of the Committee; by Messrs. Mortlock, Bankers, Cambridge, and on their account by Smith, Payne, and Co. London: also by J. W. Parker, Cambridge Depositary, West Strand; and Messrs. Seely, 169, Fleet-street. [683]

NOTICE AND APPEAL TO THE CHRISTIAN PUBLIC.

IN the year 1835-6, a small sum of 430*l.* was raised by subscription amongst the benevolent of the mother country, for the purpose of building a Protestant Episcopal Church in the interior of the Township of Marche, Upper Canada, with the hope at the same time of its affording free seats to many families residing on the borders of the surrounding settlements. But on a nearer acquaintance with the topography of the country, the Rev. Mr. Padfield, then Rector of Marche, and Major-General Lloyd, who acted as secular Trustee, saw that the benefit to be derived would by no means be so extended as had been contemplated, in consequence of the distance the poor of Huntley would still be from the place of worship. It was, therefore, proposed by them, and most cheerfully acceded to by the emigrants themselves, that the farmers of both the above-named settlements should add their mite to the fund in hand, and, by so doing, enable the committee to erect in each place a handsome stone church 50 by 30 inside. That at Huntley, called Christ Church, was opened on the 10th of Feb. 1839, by the Rev. Wm. Harper, to a congregation of upwards of 300 persons. And one of the same dimensions, to be dedicated to St. John, is now in rapid progress on the site originally intended for it at Marche, which will afford the promised accommodations to the poor of the adjoining townships of Gouldburn and Napiesau. But the emigrants have, by their praiseworthy advances towards the accomplishment of this design, put it totally out of their own power to render the assistance which was reckoned on from them, in the purpose of erection of a Parsonage House. The recently appointed rector is consequently without a shelter of any sort in which to put his family.

The Christian public are thus once more called upon, and most earnestly solicited, to lend their aid in promoting the completion of this good work so happily begun.

The Rev. Wm. Harper and Major-Gen. Lloyd, whose residence on the spot will secure the temporalities, such as building, &c. being properly attended to, have been appointed Trustees, and have requested to have a book opened for subscriptions at the Bank of Messrs. Hoare and Co. 37, Fleet-street, London, where donations will be most thankfully received in behalf of "A Glebe House, to be built in the Township of Marche, Upper Canada." [558]

ECCLESIASTICAL PATRONAGE. [641]

TO BE SOLD, by Order of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England and Wales,

ALL that the RIGHT of PATRONAGE and PRESENTATION to the PARISH CHURCH of ST. MARY, in the Borough of Bury St. Edmunds, in the County of Suffolk. The said Right of Presentation is, by Order of the said Commissioners, to be Sold by Tender in the form which has been approved by the said Commissioners.

A Preacher and a Reader have been heretofore appointed for life in the nature of Curacies, but in order that the same may become a Benefice Presentative after sale, the Town Council have, under the authority of the Act of 2d Victoria, cap. 31, and with the consent of the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, executed a Deed of Endowment, by which it is provided that after such Sale and the death or resignation of either the Lecturer or the Reader (whichever shall first happen) the purchaser of the Right of Presentation shall have the right to appoint a person to be Minister or Perpetual Curate of the said Church, who shall be endowed with all surplusage fees and an annual stipend of 150*l.*

The average estimated income from various sources will be 370*l.* per annum, out of which a Curate will have to be maintained at a salary of not less than 80*l.* per annum.

The present Lecturer is in his 69th year, and the present Reader is in his 80th year.

Such persons as are desirous of making a Tender for the said Right of Presentation may receive a form of Tender, and Particulars, at the office of the said Commissioners, No. 5, Whitehall Place, London, between the hours of Eleven and Three, or at the office of Mr. Holmes, the Town Clerk of the said Borough, between the hours of Ten and Four, and the Tenders in duplicate sealed up, and directed to "The Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England," marking them "Tender for the Right of Presentation to Saint Mary's, in Bury Saint Edmund's," must be delivered at the office of the said Commissioners, on or before the Fourth day of June next, and no proposal can be noticed unless made in the said form, and delivered at the office of the said Commissioners.

Applications for further particulars to be addressed to Mr. Holmes, the Town Clerk of Bury Saint Edmund's, where, and at the office of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Copies of the Endowment may be seen.

Town Clerk's Office, Bury St. Edmund's, May 1, 1840.

ORGANS.

JAMES EAGLES, 4, HACKNEY ROAD CRESS-ENT, near Shoreditch Church, London, respectfully solicits a share of the patronage of those Clergymen who are about to erect Organs in their Churches. Instruments of every description built, tuned, or repaired. [628]

N.B. Barrel Organs, from 40 Guineas, playing 30 Tunes, built on the newly revived but improved principle, of superseding the necessity of shifting the barrels from the Organ.

TUTOR.

A GRADUATE of the University of Cambridge, who would require some considerable time to prepare for Holy Orders, is desirous of obtaining a situation as TUTOR in a Gentleman's family with preference to a Clergyman's. He took a good place last January in Mathematical honours, is a Scholar and Prize-man of his College, and can produce highly satisfactory testimonials as to Classical attainment both from School and College, as well as of general conduct.

Address, R. E. F. Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, 14, Southampton Street, Strand. [694]

GRAY'S IMPROVED CHURCH BARREL ORGANS, in which all the defects of the ordinary instruments are entirely removed, and no bolt-work or shifting of the Barrels necessary.

DIRECTIONS.

Lift the worm A, which will raise the key frame, and at the same time relieve the worm from the teeth on the barrel.

Draw the pin B, and then turn the spindle C of the iron frame D, either way, as may be required for the change of tune.

When the tune is fixed upon, insert the pin B, and upon dropping the worm A, the barrel will be ready to perform.

- No. 1. In a handsome Gothic case 10 feet high, with gilt pipes, 60 Guineas.
2. Ditto size larger ditto 75 ditto.
3. Ditto ditto ditto 90 ditto.

The Instruments may be inspected, and every explanation readily afforded, at the Manufactory of the Inventor, 9, New Road, Fitzroy-square. [407]

ARTICLED PUPIL WANTED in an Architect's Office, where a young gentleman would be enabled to obtain a general acquaintance with the practice of Architecture. Age not under 15. Apply (prepaid) to Messrs. Hodson and Gibbs, Solicitors, King's Road, Bedford Row. [547]

SACRED BARREL ORGANS, Manufactured by T. C. BATES, 6, Ludgate-hill, London. Ten tunes each (which may be chosen by the Purchaser) price 15*l.*; extra Barrel and Case, 3*l.* 2*s.*, in handsome mahogany cases, gilt fronts, 3 feet 10 inches high, 2 feet 4 inches wide, 1 foot 1 inch deep. The power and compass of these organs are sufficient to lead the singing in family worship, or to teach children in public, parochial, or infant schools, or small places of worship.

Also from £80 to £100.

AND AT HIS BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, 30, COLMORE ROW, BIRMINGHAM. [599]

NATIONAL SOCIETY for PROMOTING the EDUCATION of the POOR in the principles of the ESTABLISHED CHURCH throughout England and Wales. The GENERAL ANNUAL MEETING of this Society will take place on WEDNESDAY, the 27th of May, in the Central Schoolroom, Sanctuary, Westminster, at Two o'clock precisely.

His Grace the Archbishop of CANTERBURY in the Chair; when the Report of the proceedings of the Society during the past year, as well as of the origin and progress of the several Diocesan and District Boards, will be read.

The General Meeting will be preceded by an Examination of the Children of the School at Twelve o'clock.

JOHN SINCLAIR, M.A. Secretary.
National Society's Office, Sanctuary, Westminster. April 30, 1840. [605]

The Clergy are respectfully invited to an inspection of these instruments, which will be found the best and cheapest of the kind yet manufactured. The main defects in the old instruments are, the uncertainty of the keys passing correctly over the pins arising from the brass bolt-work, which, however well manufactured, soon becomes rickety and imperfect in its action; the unavoidable damage to the copied heads of the barrels in passing them under the brass worm every time they are changed (from these causes alone the hobbling performance of the tune, so frequent in the ordinary barrel-organ, arises), the liability of damage to the pins on a barrel when changed; the noise occasioned by bolt-work at every change of tune, and the inconvenience and, in some instances, the impossibility of changing the barrels during divine service, in which case the range of tunes under command is so limited that, with the greatest care in the selection and distribution of the various metres to be set on the barrels, a change of them is almost always necessary in each service; for instance, in many churches it is the custom to commence with the Morning Hymn, and when this is the case, the barrels must be frequently changed, or none but the limited collection of tunes on one barrel will ever be heard during the service.

JOHN GRAY has, by his invention, removed all these defects so long complained of in the ordinary barrel-organs, and the truth of which every possessor of one will readily acknowledge. The annexed section will best explain the improvements.

The spindle of the iron frame D, being cut with an endless screw, a single revolution of it changes the tune on each barrel from the first to the second, and so on in succession, to the whole extent of them (thirty in number), a contrary revolution will, of course, produce a return to the first or any intermediate tune that may be desired, its number being ascertained by reference to an index on each barrel. No bolt-work whatever is necessary; and every change either of tune or barrel, is effected with perfect silence and the greatest ease. Upon raising the worm A, it is immediately arrested by a self-acting sling, and there held until relieved by the finger of the barrel turner after he has changed the tune or barrel, and at no time does any necessity arise for touching any part of the barrels with the hand; the possibility of damage to the pins (unless wilfully done) is therefore wholly removed.

Uniformity of plan enables JOHN GRAY to supply these instruments at even less cost than the ordinary barrel-organ, the whole of the mechanism being comprised in one package, and may be set up without the assistance of an organ builder, a matter of no little consideration when required at a distance from the Metropolis. The instrument is wholly independent of an external case, which may, if preferred, be made in the country.

The same unerring principle is applied to an organ of a higher class, for both Finger and Barrel

TO CLERGY LEAVING HOME.

A CLERGYMAN is desirous to have the Charge of a Country Parish for six or seven weeks, commencing from about June 20th, where he can have the use of a comfortable house.

Address (prepaid), For the Rev. M.A. No. 20, College Hill, London. [680]

A CLERGYMAN in full Orders, of Orthodox Views, holding an interchangeable Curacy which entails residence in London from June till the end of October, would not object to take Sunday Afternoon or Evening Duty in London, or the immediate neighbourhood, for the whole or part of that period. He could also assist in the weekly occasional duties of a parish. Highly respectable references can be offered.

Address (prepaid) to the Rev. M. A. Post-office, Maidenhead. [680]

THE ANNUAL SERMON of the HOME and COLONIAL INFANT-SCHOOL SOCIETY will be preached by the Rev. EDWARD BICKERSTETH, Rector of Watton, at St. John's Chapel, Bedford-row, on WEDNESDAY, the 27th inst. at Seven o'clock.

The Committee take this opportunity of gratefully acknowledging the following recent donations and subscriptions in aid of their funds, viz.:

Her Grace the Duchess of Beaufort	£ 5	John S. Reynolds, Esq.	£ 50
C. R. L. Bevan, Esq.	50	Capt. H. Hope	10
Chas. J. Bevan, Esq.	10	John Pugh, Esq.	25
A Thank-offering	50	John Labouchere, Esq.	10
John Bridges, Esq.	50	A. G. Z. per Messrs. Nisbet and Co.	10

Donations and Subscriptions are received at the Institution; at Messrs. Williams, Deacon, and Co.'s, bankers, Birch-lane; or at Messrs. Nisbets, Berners-street; Seelys, Fleet-street; Suter's, Cheapside; by the Treasurer, John Bridges, Esq. 24, Red Lion-square; or any member of the Committee.

Letters to be addressed to the Honorary Secretary, John S. Reynolds, Esq. Home and Colonial Infant-school Society, Gray's-inn-road, King's cross. [667]

NEW CHURCH, BRIGG, LINCOLNSHIRE.

THE Town of Brigg, stands at the extremity of the Parish of Wawby, and contains about 2,500 inhabitants.

The Parish Church of Wawby is in the Village of Wawby, distant more than a mile and a half from Brigg; and the population of the Village is about 750.

From the circumstances of the Parish and Living of Wawby, the Additional Curates Society have made a Grant, by which the Services of a Curate have been obtained.

There has hitherto been only a small Chapel of Ease in the Town of Brigg, affording room for 250 sittings, of which only 50 are free;—a number wholly disproportionate to the population.

To remedy this great deficiency, it is proposed to build a new Church in the place of the present Chapel, which shall be capable of containing 600 sittings on the ground-floor, of which more than one-half are to be free and unappropriated. The expense is estimated at £2,500.

Subscriptions will be thankfully received at the Lincoln Bank, at Brigg, or at Lincoln, or may be sent to the Lincoln Bank, through Messrs. Smith, Payne, and Smith, London.

The following Subscriptions have been already received:—

NATIONAL SCHOOLS.

WANTED, A FAMILY, capable of conducting a VILLAGE NATIONAL SCHOOL ESTABLISHMENT, consisting of a Boys' Girls', and Infant School, which together will contain about 200 Scholars. A Dwelling-house and Stationer's Shop are attached to the Schools: also a quarter of an acre of garden-ground, well planted with thriving fruit-trees. The emoluments, exclusive of the profits derived from the shop, vary as the number of the scholars and the amount of the annual subscriptions, and these depend on the ability with which the establishment is conducted. Some knowledge of music is indispensable, and a good voice to conduct the singing in the Infant School Department. The attendance of the Mistress is required in the Girls' School in the afternoon only to teach Needlework, &c. The appointment would suit a respectable widow, having a son and daughter properly qualified. None but Members of the Established Church need apply. Letters (prepaid) addressed to Messrs. Hatchard and Son, Booksellers, Piccadilly, London; Mr. Stacey, Bookseller, Norwich; Mr. Skele, Bookseller, Yarmouth; or Mr. Deck, Bookseller, Ipswich, stating the number of the family of the applicant, the age of each, and particulars of qualifications, &c. with references, will be attended to. [653]

A CLERGYMAN, resident in a central County about 80 miles from London, wishes to EXCHANGE duty for a few months with any Orthodox Clergyman in the Western part of London, who has a house large enough for a family, and is desirous of retiring for a time into the country. The house proposed for this temporary exchange is in a very healthy and romantic situation, large and well furnished, particularly in respect of books, and has attached to it an excellent garden, well stocked with vegetables and fruit; and is also in a highly respectable neighbourhood. Should the London situation be approved, and exchange of duties be objected to, the Clergyman advertising would have no objection to take the Town duty unconditionally for two months. Address T. C., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, Southampton-street, Strand. [640]

THE Officiating Minister of a Church, frequented by a congregation of the highest respectability, in a fashionable watering-place (not by the sea), is desirous of meeting with a Clergyman of sound orthodox principles, and possessing a good voice, who would be willing to undertake the charge of his Church for five or six Sundays, commencing on the 7th of June next. The use of the advertiser's house would be at the service of the gentleman undertaking the duty. There are three full services every Sunday, but there would be an Assistant Clergyman who would read morning and evening, and take the afternoon sermon.

Such testimonials would be required as could be shown to the Bishop of the Diocese, whose sanction is necessary to a temporary arrangement. Address, the Rev. L. R. care of Mr. Todd, Constitution Walk, Gloucester. [699]

A SECOND CURATE is WANTED immediately to share the duties of a Yorkshire Parish, where the Incumbent is absent from ill health, and where there are daily Prayers in Church, and Scripture Readings in Cottages. Population 1800. Stipend 100l. Lodgings may be obtained, and a Title given. Address Asthenes, Sydney, Gloucestershire. [675]

TO THE CLERGY.

THOSE CLERGYMAN who approve of the plan for establishing a School for their Sons, (vide Ecclesiastical Gazette, Feb. 11th, page 165, and April 14th, page 213,) and have not already signified the same, are requested, at their earliest convenience, without pledging themselves to any particulars, to forward their names to the Rev. G. E. Plater, Charlton in Dover. [669]

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.

A MEDICAL GENTLEMAN of extensive practice, resident near the Coast, in the County of Sussex, is anxious to meet with a respectable pupil. Every care will be taken to promote his moral and professional advancement. Satisfactory references will be given and required. Apply to Frederick Sanger, Esq. Alfreton, near Lewes, Sussex; or the Rev. C. Day, No. 35, Tredegar-Square, Stepney, London. [666]

A GENTLEMAN who intends leaving home about the end of June, for six weeks or two months, would, during his absence, be happy to let his house, which is situated in a beautiful part of the country, with extensive pleasure-grounds and garden. A gardener will be kept, and two servants left in the house. The milk of two Cows and the use of a Phaeton if required. To a Clergyman, who would take charge of a Parish, with a population of about 100, and single duty, the terms would be more reasonable than to a Layman. Address (post paid) D. H. E. Post Office, Hereford. [656]

YORK DIOCESAN TRAINING AND MIDDLE SCHOOL.

THE situation of MASTER to this Institution is now open for the application of Candidates. The Master must be in Orders, and a Graduate of one of the Universities, and will be required to undertake the general superintendence of the School, and the inspection of the District Schools in connection with the Diocesan Society. Salary, 200l. per annum.

Applications, with testimonials, to be addressed (prepaid) to the Rev. J. Browne, Bishopthorpe, near York. [677]

PRIVATE PUPILS.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, who obtained high honours at the University, and has recently been presented to a small Living near the Sea-coast, in Kent, is desirous of receiving into his house Four Pupils to educate with his own sons. Terms, from 50 to 80 Guineas per annum. For name and address, apply to Messrs. Harvey and Darton, Stationers, Gracechurch-street, London. [565]

A CLERGYMAN, who would take easy duty from the 9th of June to the middle of July, may have in exchange the use of a comfortably furnished House, with attendance, within a few yards of the sea. Address, (prepaid) Rev. M. A. Eastern District, Post-office, Brighton. [672]

PRIVATE TUITION, BRIGHTON.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, M.A. who receives four private pupils to prepare for the Universities, &c. has Two Vacancies. The Advertiser graduated with honours at Oxford, and has had much experience in tuition. Address, (prepaid) Rev. M. A. Eastern District, Post-office, Brighton. [673]

CLERICAL ASSISTANCE ON THE COAST.

A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, long accustomed to the charge of a populous parish, and whose references are of the highest respectability, would be glad to undertake duty near the Sea-coast for about Two Months, from the second week in July, and would consider the use of a good sized furnished parsonage-house a sufficient remuneration. Address (prepaid) to H. R., Mr. West's, No. 3, Ludgate-street, St. Paul's. [687]

AUTUMN AND WINTER DUTY.

A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, who is anxious for change of air and residence in a dry, warm situation, would be happy to take charge of any parish so circumstanced, from the beginning of the month of August to the end of the winter, if required. Address, Rev. J. W., Mr. Robinson's Offices, 11A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square.

FOR EXCHANGE, a LIVING near a Cathedral town, with a Minor Canonry attached; the net income upwards of 300l. a-year; the population small. The Incumbent would not object to take a Living of lower income in an agricultural neighbourhood, provided there is a Parsonage-House.

FOR EXCHANGE, a most desirable BENEFICE, income about 800l. exclusive of an excellent Residence, Grounds, Stabling, &c. in a healthy situation, on a high road, within 40 miles of London; surrounded by gentlemen's seats, and near a considerable town. The Incumbent would prefer a Living, with a large population, in or near the Metropolis, or in any neighbourhood where the air is mild.

NEXT PRESENTATION, for SALE. The Presentation to a valuable RECTORY, in a Midland County, near the line of a railway: the situation healthy, society in the neighbourhood good; within a short distance of several large towns. Income nearly 600l. a-year. Incumbent aged 83.

Applications for any of the above to be made (if by letter, prepaid) to Mr. Robinson, Surveyor, Auctioneer, and Agent for the Valuation and Transfer of Ecclesiastical Property, and for the Commutation of Tithes, No. 11A, Hart-street, Bloomsbury-square. [686]

MR. VALPY is commissioned to offer the following:—

The NEXT PRESENTATION of a RECTORY, in the most beautiful and salubrious part of Devon, near a Market Town and the Sea, of about 450l. per annum, with an excellent House, almost new, subject to the life of the present Incumbent, aged 49.

The NEXT PRESENTATION, with prospect of early possession, of a very desirable LIVING, about 90 miles north of London, value nearly 1,000l. per annum, with an excellent House and Grounds. The gentleman to be presented must not be under 40 years of age.

The NEXT PRESENTATION to a small LIVING, about 100 miles from London, of about 100l. per annum. The present Incumbent is 80 years of age.

EXCHANGE.—A Clergyman, about 40 years of age, holding a Living of upwards of 600l. per annum, without a house, is desirous of exchanging it for a Living of about 450l. per annum, with a good House. Near a railroad preferred.

CURACY.—A Gentleman holding a small Living, with very easy duty, in the neighbourhood of a delightful City, with a superior House and Grounds, is desirous of Meeting with a Clergyman of property who would accept the Curacy, with the House completely furnished, and the Stabling and Grounds attached, paying a small annual sum for the use of the furniture.

CURACY.—The Curacy of a very comfortable small Living, within an easy distance of London, and in a delightful neighbourhood, may be shortly obtained, with a TITLE TO ORDERS, by any Gentleman of property who would pay for the use of the furniture of an excellent House and Grounds a sum not exceeding the amount of the stipend. Apply (if by letter, free) to Mr. R. Valpy, Clerical and School Agency Office, 36, Bedford-street, Strand. [671]

WANTED, immediately, a CLERGYMAN, of decided piety, to take part in the Duties of an Agricultural Parish, situated in a beautiful part of one of the Midland Counties. Stipend, 80*l.* per Annum; or, a Title may be had, should a suitable candidate offer.
Address, Y. Y. Post-office, Worcester. [679]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, with one child, the Incumbent of an inland parish, being recommended to the Sea side for the benefit of his health, would be willing to take the duty (if single) of a small parish on the coast of Hants, Sussex, or Kent, during three or four months from the 1st of June, in lieu of the use of a comfortable furnished house, garden, &c. Should this meet the views of a Clergyman wishing to travel or leave home, confidential communications (prepaid) may be directed to the care of D. F., Post-office, Windsor, Berks. [652]

A CLERGYMAN, in a beautiful part of Kent, being obliged to resort to the Sea from about the 10th of June to the 24th of July, will be happy to offer to a Clergyman without Children, the use of a comfortable House, Garden, and Servants, as compensation for undertaking the charge of his Parish during that time. An Exchange of House and Duties with a Clergyman residing on the Coast, would be preferred.
Direct Rev. J. B., Cranbrook, Kent. [676]

WANTED, DUTY on the CONTINENT, or on the SEA-COAST, by a CLERGYMAN, of seal and experience, who can give the highest references.
Address, Rev. L. C. Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, Southampton-street, Strand. [622]

A CLERGYMAN, in full Orders, and of Orthodox principles, is willing to undertake the charge of a Parish by the Sea-Coast, where the Duties are light, for three or four months during the Summer. The use of a good House and Garden will be esteemed a remuneration. [623]
Address to A. B. Mr. Jew's, Bookseller, Gloucester.

WANTED, a CLERGYMAN, to undertake the Duties of a Parish in Warwickshire, during the greater part of the Months of June and July—the Stipend will include the use of a good Parsonage-house, and other conveniences.
Address, A. B. at Messrs. Coombe and Crossley's, Booksellers, Rugby. [631]

THE Assistance of a CLERGYMAN, of sound Church Principles, and diligent in the performance of his pastoral duties, is required in a Parish, where the Population exceeds 4000, and the distance is 28 miles from London. The Stipend is 100 Guineas.
Address to "The Rev. an Incumbent, to the care of Messrs. Stephens and Norton, Booksellers, Bell Yard, Lincoln's Inn." [601]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, of Orthodox Principles, who is not entirely dependent on his profession, wishes for a CURACY in the Country, with a House either at a rent, or as part of the salary. His age is rather more than 30, and he can offer satisfactory references and testimonials.
Address, prepaid, to G. P., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, Southampton-street, Strand. [621]

TO THE CLERGY.

A CLERGYMAN, who will be disengaged from his present occupations on Sunday, June 29, and five following Sundays, would be happy to undertake the duties of a Parish in the Isle of Wight, or any part of the Coast of England, in return for the loan of the Parsonage House, during that time. Family only four persons, including himself and one servant. Any Clergyman desirous of being from home for a similar period during the Summer, would find this offer a favourable opportunity.
Address (prepaid), Rev. C. F. R., Messrs. Combe and Crossley, Booksellers, Leicester. [563]

CURACY WANTED.

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, in full Orders, of independent fortune, of orthodox principles, wishes to obtain a CURACY (likely to be permanent), in a small Country Village. Situation healthy, with a tolerable house. A large stipend not an object: glebe land not objected to in lieu of stipend. Population not exceeding 500. Within 80 miles of London. Most satisfactory references and testimonials can be produced.
Address (prepaid) Rev. T. T., Messrs. Brooks and Hedger, Surveyors and Land Agents, 28, Old Bond-street. [556]

THE CURACY of a small parish, with the Parsonage House well furnished, most conveniently and agreeably situated for any Clergyman who takes a few Pupils, two hours' drive from town, and 500 yards only from a great Turnpike-road, may be had, and for a continuance. Strict inquiries as to character are expected to be made by any applicant, and will be made by the advertiser. A good garden goes with the house, and the surplus fees will be given, but no salary. Population 540.
Apply (prepaid) to A. B. C., Fores's Library, 3, Spur-street, Leicester-square. [588]

CURACY WANTED.

WANTED immediately, a CURACY in the Diocese of York. The advertiser, who is just disengaged from the duties of a Town Curacy, is of strictly orthodox sentiments, and can give most satisfactory references and testimonials. A preference would be given to a town.
Address T. T. L., Post-office, Selby. [609]

WANTED, by a Graduate of Cambridge, a CURACY, with a TITLE FOR ORDERS. A Midland County would be preferred. A comfortable situation is the principal object of the Advertiser.
Address, Rev. Mr. D., Post-office, Grantham. [615]

A MARRIED GRADUATE of CAMBRIDGE, in Priest's Orders, who has the highest testimonials to offer, is desirous of meeting with a CURACY in the Country. The Diocese of Canterbury would be preferred.
Address (prepaid) to the Rev. A. B., care of Mr. MacPherson, Bookseller, Middle Row, Holborn. [648]

CURACY.

WANTED, by a Clergyman in Priest's Orders, a Graduate of Oxford, accustomed to full parochial employment, a COUNTRY CURACY, where the population does not exceed 1000.
Address Rev. M. R., No. 11, Portland Square, Bristol. [649]

CURACY WANTED.

A N UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN is anxious to meet with a CURACY, in the Diocese of York or Lincoln, upon which he may enter at Midsummer, or July next. Testimonials unexceptionable. [629]
Address (prepaid) Rev. Y. Z., Post-office, Colchester.

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN, in full orders, and a Fellow of a College in Oxford (to whom emolument is not an object), wishes to meet with a CURACY, either for a definite or indefinite period; he can produce the most satisfactory references and testimonials.
Address, prepaid, Rev. X. X. Messrs. Rivington, St. Paul's Church Yard. [644]

CURACY WANTED.

A N UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN would be happy to take any Gentleman's Duty during his absence from home, for the use of the Parsonage House.
Address, prepaid, Rev. O. O. Mr. Varty's, Strand. [643]

A GRADUATE of Cambridge is desirous of obtaining a TITLE FOR ORDERS. Emolument is not sought for; the advertiser being anxious of rendering his services useful. Apply by letter, B. F. Collings's Library, Bath. [690]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

A N INCUMBENT of a large Church in the outskirts of an important Sea-port town, possessing many local advantages, wishes TO EXCHANGE with a Clergyman holding a living in an Agricultural part of the country. The value and all other particulars will be given in answer to letters addressed to "B. C., to the care of Mr. Ormady, Church-street, Liverpool." But the advertiser can only treat with Incumbents whose age is 35 and upwards, and whose livings are worth at least 200*l.* per annum, with a good house, and a population not exceeding 1000. [610]

TEMPORARY EXCHANGE OF DUTIES.

THE UNMARRIED INCUMBENT of a small Parish, three hours distant from London and Oxford, wishes to meet with a Clergyman who is willing to Exchange Duties, for two or three months ensuing.
The desideratum of the Advertiser is a Picturesque Country, not far from the Sea.
Address, Rev. M. M. T., Winalow, Bucks. [624]

THE INCUMBENT of a RECTORY, within 35 miles of Town, of the annual value of about 250*l.* with a newly-built House, wishes to EXCHANGE for one of about the same value, or a Perpetual Curacy in or within twelve miles of Town. The population is under 70, with single duty: if the population of the other should not be very large, a small sacrifice of income would not be objected to.
Address, prepaid, to Rev. A. B., Mr. Smith's, 12, Grafton-street, Soho-square. [625]

TO THE CLERGY.

A CLERGYMAN being desirous of leaving home for two months, from the beginning of July, offers the use of a commodious and newly-furnished Parsonage House, with Coach-house and Stable, and a good Garden, in return for the services of a gentleman in full orders. The Parish is small, and situated in the neighbourhood of Oxford.
Address, prepaid, Rev. S. R. C. Ecclesiastical Gazette Office. [645]

EXCHANGE OF LIVINGS.

THE Incumbent of a LIVING, about 14 miles from London, about to be commuted at 350*l.* per ann. without a house, is desirous of EXCHANGING for one of greater value with a house. Population small; duty single; surplus fees about 2*l.* per annum.
Address, prepaid, stating full particulars to the Rev. W. Smith, Post-office, Ramsgate, Kent. [690]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

A LIVING, without a House, but with Glebe, value 300*l.* a year, near the Sea, and a favourite Watering-Place, for EXCHANGE. Some sacrifice would be made in income, especially for one with a comfortable house. Applicants requested to state their age. Also, WANTED, DUTY in a sphere where the full Truths of the Gospel can be declared. London or its vicinity preferred.
Address (prepaid) W. A. C. Post-office, Hastings. [637]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

THE VICAR of an Agricultural Parish in North of England, 40 years of age, is desirous of CHANGING his living for one of the same or less value, a mild climate and sheltered situation in the South. Living in question, with an excellent house and grounds contiguous to the church, is pleasantly situated in a healthy country. The net annual value, as recently commuted (clear of rates), is about 1000*l.* and the population under 1000. The county of Sussex, Surrey, or Hants, would be preferred. References will be given and required.
Communications to be addressed to L. S. at Messrs. Hatchard and Son, Piccadilly. [620]

NEXT PRESENTATION.

THE NEXT PRESENTATION to a Rectory in the North of Lincolnshire, of the Annual value of 265*l.* is offered for SALE by Private Contract. The Tithes have been recently commuted.
Application may be made to Henry Grantham, Esq. Sturton, near Brigg; or at our Offices, Nicholson and Hart, Brigg, March 18, 1840. [559]

EXCHANGE.

THE INCUMBENT, who is also the Patron of a Rectory valued and assessed at 242*l.* per annum, but capable of great improvement, wishes TO EXCHANGE the Advowson and Presentation for a next Presentation only, but to a Living of greater value. House good; Population small; Locality pleasant and healthy; Railway Station near; and within a ride of two hours of London.
Rev. X. Y., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, 14, Southampton-street, Strand. [581]

TO BE SOLD, the PERPETUAL ADVOWSON of a VICARAGE, in the East Riding of the County of York, five miles from the sea. Population under 1000. Duty single. Income 120*l.* per annum. Incumbent in his 80th year.
Apply (if by letter, prepaid) to Mr. Drake, Solicitor, Bedale, Yorkshire. [591]

CHURCH PREFERMENT.

TO BE DISPOSED OF, the NEXT PRESENTATION to a Rectory in the County of Oxford. The Tithes produce a net income of upwards of 230*l.* per annum. There is a garden and orchard attached to the Parsonage House, which is within a mile of a very excellent Market Town on the banks of the Thames, about 45 miles from London, and within two miles of a station on the Great Western Railway. The age of the present Incumbent is 79.
For further particulars, application may be made by principals, or their Solicitors, to Messrs. Lake and Walker, Solicitors, New Square, Lincoln's Inn. [590]

THE NEXT and immediate PRESENTATION to a LIVING, worth upwards of 150*l.* per Annum, in a healthy and beautiful Town of one of the Midland Counties, to be disposed of by Exchange for a Presentation, where possession will be early or otherwise; population 300, duty single, no Glebe-house, but a convenient residence may be rented.
Address, prepaid, R. C. to be left at the Office of the Ecclesiastical Gazette. [646]

A N UNDERGRADUATE of CAMBRIDGE, accustomed to Tuition, wishes to obtain a TUTORSHIP, either in a Family or School, for five months, commencing with the 10th June next.
Apply, by letter, prepaid, X. Post-office, Hitchin. [647]

A CLERGYMAN, residing in LIVERPOOL, wishes to LET his HOUSE, for three or four months, from the first of June next. It is situated, out of the smoke of the town, in an airy and elevated part of Everton, overlooking the Sea, and within a walk of the Bathing station on the Bootle shore. The House is well furnished, with good dining-room, drawing-room, five bed-rooms, &c., and a small garden attached. Rent, Three Guineas and a Half per week.
Address to "Clericus, Post-office, Everton, Liverpool." [630]

ADVOWSON for SALE, with the prospect of a VERY EARLY POSSESSION. The parish is situated on an eminence within the beautiful vale of Tamara; the society is well-educated, and firmly attached to the established Church; the roads are excellent; the annual value 230*l.*
Address, F. G. Post-office, Tamerton. [656]

PREFERMENT WANTED.

WANTED to PURCHASE in the COUNTRY, with immediate Possession, an ADVOWSON, of the yearly value of from 400*l.* to 500*l.*, or NEXT PRESENTATION to a LIVING, of the value of from 500*l.* to 600*l.* per Annum. Principals only will be dealt with.
Address, with full Particulars (prepaid), to X. Z., Post-office, Spilsby, Lincolnshire. [618]

TO LADIES WITH FAMILIES.

A CLERGYMAN, who receives one or two pupils, on liberal terms, wishes to take charge of a LITTLE BOY, as a remuneration for the board and education of his daughter (about ten) in a Church of England family, where vital practical religion is the first thing taught for. Or his lady would receive one or two little girls to educate with her at home, and, if required, accommodate them during vacations.
Address, with particulars, &c. (paid) A. B. Post Office, Bath. [697]

SPIRITUAL DESTITUTION of the PARISH of BETHNAL GREEN, London.—The Parish of Bethnal Green, containing a population of 70,000 souls, with accommodation in the Churches for scarcely 5000 persons, and without a sufficient number of Clergymen for pastoral superintendence, or of Schools for the Instruction of Children, is in a state of spiritual destitution, which should excite the Christian sympathy of all those who take an interest in the present welfare and eternal happiness of their fellow-creatures.

An earnest appeal is now made to the Public, with the approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, for the purpose of dividing the parish into ten additional districts, and providing each with a Church, a Resident Minister, and Schools.

WELLS DIOCESAN COLLEGE.

THE BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS having long contemplated the foundation of a Diocesan Collegiate Institution, in order to the training of Candidates for Holy Orders, in conformity with the cherished desire of our Reformers, that, between the Academic Degree and entrance into the Ministry, there should be a course of preparatory instruction, has decided on the execution of such a plan, in connection with his Cathedral City, and has appointed the Rev. J. H. PIERCE, A.M. late Principal of Codrington College, Barbadoes, to be Professor of Theology, at Wells.

The Institution was opened on the 1st of May.

The Students to be required to bring with them their College Testimonials.

The Students to attend the daily Lectures of the Professor, and to be present at the Morning and Evening Services of the Church.

The Students, with permission of the Parochial Clergy, to be to visit the sick and aged, and to acquaint themselves, by frequent attendance at the Wells Central School, with the National System of Education.

During residence, the Students to be considered amenable to the superintendence, and under the paternal care, of the Professor.

A testimonial with reference to the Christian mind and character, as well as the competency in learning, of each Student, to be delivered by the Professor to the Bishop, before such Student can be admitted a Candidate for Holy Orders.

The instruction received by the Students from the Professor to be free.

The course of Study to be subject to the approval of the Bishop.

Further information may be had by applying to the Rev. Professor PIERCE, Wells.

THE CHRISTIAN EXPOSITOR; or, a Practical Guide to the Study of the Old Testament; intended for the Use of General Readers. By the Rev. GEORGE HOLDEN, M.A.

Though many Expositions of the Bible, of great and deserved celebrity, exist in our language, a Commentary sufficiently short to be read by those who have not leisure to consult learned works, yet sufficiently comprehensive to serve as a guide to the study of the Sacred Scriptures, appears to be still wanting. To supply this deficiency is the design of the present work, in which it has been the aim and study of the Author to embrace, in a condensed form, such information as will enable the general reader to ascertain the real meaning of the Inspired Writers.

Rivingtons, St. Paul's Church Yard, and Waterloo-place.

THE LEEDS MAGAZINE.

It has long been thought desirable, that a Magazine should be published, which, containing papers of general interest, and obtaining support from various quarters, might be especially adapted to the locality of Leeds and the neighbourhood.

Such a Magazine we have undertaken to publish: and hating hypocrisy and deception of every kind, especially that kind of deception which results from the suppression of the truth, we proclaim at once, that this Magazine is to be conducted on orthodox, Church principles; or, to prevent mistake, we will go so far as to adopt the language of opprobrium, and say, on High-Church principles. If any one wishes to know what those principles are, let him read our Magazine attentively for one year, and he will find them the principles of the Gospel.

Each Number will contain, Original Papers—Correspondence—Notices and Reviews of New, and Selections from, Old Publications—Ecclesiastical Intelligence, &c. &c.

TO THE CLERGY.

TO THE CLERGY whose various occupations preclude a due preparation for the Pulpit, or who are desirous to vary their style for the benefit of their congregations, THOMPSON'S SERMONS are strongly recommended. The Volume contains Twenty-four Sermons; the first Eighteen are upon various subjects, and are intended to enforce Scriptural Doctrines by moral practice; the five following are upon the offices of the Church; and the last treats of the value of the Bible.

N.B. Enquire for "Thompson's Sermons for the use of Families," at Hatchards, 187, Piccadilly, through any Bookseller in the Kingdom. [560]

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.

ECCLESIASTICAL NOTICES.

The Archbishop of York has given notice of his intention to hold an Ordination at Bishopthorpe on Sunday the 14th of June.

The Lord Bishop of London will hold an ordination at St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday.

The Lord Bishop of Lincoln will hold his next ordination in the Cathedral Church of Lincoln, on Trinity Sunday, the 14th of June.

The Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol will hold his next ordination on Trinity Sunday, at St. Margaret's Church, in Westminster.

The Lord Bishop of Hereford will hold his next ordination on Sunday, June 28th, in the Cathedral Church of Hereford.

The Lord Bishop of Winchester will hold his next General Ordination, on Sunday the 12th July.

The Lord Bishop of Ripon will hold his next ordination at Ripon on Sunday, the 19th of July.

The Lord Bishop of Worcester will hold his next ordination at Worcester, on Saturday, the 25th of July. The candidates are to forward their papers (prepaid) to Henry Clifton, Esq. Worcester, on or before the last day of June, and to attend at the palace for examination at eleven o'clock on the mornings of Thursday and Friday, the 23rd and 24th of July.

The Lord Bishop of Norwich will hold his next ordination at Norwich on Sunday, the 26th day of July. The examination will take place on Wednesday, the 22nd of July next.

The Lord Bishop of Salisbury will hold his next Ordination on Sunday, September 20. Candidates for Deacon's Orders are required to be at the Palace, Salisbury, in order to a Preliminary Examination, on Thursday, July 23rd, having previously obtained the Bishop's approval of their respective Titles for Orders. It is not necessary for them at this time to bring with them any papers. Candidates for Priest's Orders are required, as are also those for Deacon's Orders, to send their papers to the Bishop's Secretary, J. Burder, Esq., 27, Parliament Street, London, at least three weeks before the day of Ordination.

THE present Number of the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE completes the second year. We are sure that such of our Subscribers as have put down their names according to the current years of the GAZETTE, will only need to be reminded that another year's subscription is now due. The amount may now be sent by post to the publisher at less expense and trouble than by obtaining a post office order; and, if inserted in a slit card, it cannot be shaken out of the letter; or it may be paid to any of the agents whose names have been mentioned in the GAZETTE.

In the July Number we propose to give a title-page and index for the second Volume.

We request that all communications relating to the transmission of the GAZETTE by post, may be addressed to the Publisher and not to the Editor. By this means some delays which have taken place will be avoided for the future.

The following persons have been appointed agents for receiving subscriptions for the ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE:—

Mr. Thomas Patch, Bookseller, Dorchester.

Mr. William Perkins, Bookseller, Haverford West.

Mr. Peter Burn, Bold Street, Liverpool.

The ECCLESIASTICAL GAZETTE is published on the SECOND TUESDAY IN EVERY MONTH, and may be obtained at sixpence per number, or six shillings per annum, by ordering it of any Newsmen in the Kingdom.

It is also sent regularly every month, free of all charge, to the Resident Parochial Clergyman of every Parish throughout England and Wales.

Advertisements will be received at the Office, in Southampton-street, until the Saturday previous to the day of Publication.

Bayly, Rev. F. T. J., Brookthorpe.

SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE.

67, Lincoln's Inn Fields.

JUNE, 1840.

The Rev. Dr. RUSSELL, in the Chair.

At the General Meeting of the Society held on Tuesday, the 2d of June, 1840, the Secretary reported, that the Standing Committee had taken into their serious consideration a letter addressed to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury by the Lord Bishop of London, on the subject of the formation of a fund for endowing additional Bishoprics in the Colonies.

In this letter, his Lordship proposes the following plan:—

"1st. That a fund should be formed, by voluntary contribution, for the endowment of Bishoprics in the Colonies and distant dependencies of the British crown.

"2dly. That this fund should be held in trust, and administered by the Archbishops and Bishops of the English Church.

"3rdly. That, as a general principle, grants should be made for the endowment of Bishoprics, to meet a certain proportion of the whole amount required for such endowment, raised in the Colonies themselves.

"4thly. That the money, set apart from the fund for the endowment of a Bishopric, should be laid out at the earliest opportunity, in the purchase of land within the Colony.

"5thly. That contributions may be made specifically, for the endowments of particular Bishoprics."

The following extract from the Bishop's letter was read to the meeting:—

"With respect to the proposed fund, I feel a confident hope that a very large amount of money will be contributed by the members of our Church towards an undertaking so necessary for the accomplishment of the great ends of her institution. To the attainment of so important an object, we may reasonably expect that the great Church Societies will contribute liberally from the funds entrusted to their administration. No subscriber to the Incorporated Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, or to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, will grudge a large contribution from their respective funds for a purpose so directly bearing upon the objects of those associations."

The Standing Committee therefore recommended, with the sanction and approval of his Grace the President, and the Lord Bishop of London, that a Special Meeting of the Society should be held on Wednesday, the 10th instant, for the purpose of considering the expediency of making a grant of money in aid of this object: and the Secretary stated that the Committee had agreed to recommend to the Board, that the sum of Ten Thousand Pounds should be placed at the disposal of the Archbishops and Bishops of the English Church, towards the endowment of the proposed Bishoprics in the Colonies and dependencies of the British empire.

It was agreed, accordingly, that a Special Meeting be held on Wednesday, the 10th of June, at Two o'clock, and that his Grace the President be respectfully requested to take the chair on the occasion.

The Secretary reported, that the following motion, made by the Rev. J. D. Hales at the last General Meeting, and referred to the Standing Committee, had been taken into their consideration:—

"That all Clergymen subscribing annually One Guinea to the Foreign Translation Fund be at liberty to apply for Bibles, New Testaments, Common Prayer Books, Homilies, and all authorised formularies of the United Church of England and Ireland (as by law established), on the terms of the Society, provided such publications be intended for their own use and distribution, or for sale to the poor, or for the use of charitable institutions, with which they are locally or parochially connected;"

And that the Committee did not think it expedient to recommend the adoption of the measure proposed."

With regard to the Tenth Memorial from five Clergymen in Essex, on some of the Society's Tracts, which was referred to the Standing Committee at the last General Meeting, with a request that they would consider it, and report thereon if they should think fit; the Secretaries informed the Board, that the Committee had considered the Memorial, but did not think it necessary to make any recommendation upon it.

The Hon. and Rev. Arthur Perceval brought forward the motion of which he had given notice at the last General Meeting. Mr. Perceval was allowed by the meeting to add to his motion the concluding words, printed in italics.

"That an humble Address be presented by this Board to the Archbishops and Bishops of the English Provinces, requesting them, if it shall seem good to them, to prepare and suggest to this Board such regulations for the conduct of this Society in the departments of Tracts and Foreign Translations, as shall seem to them most expedient; and that the Standing Committee be instructed to prepare and present such Address."

The Rev. Henry Coddington seconded this motion.

Mr. William Cotton moved, by way of amendment,

"That the subject be referred to the consideration of the Standing Committee; and that, having obtained the sanction of his Grace the President, the Committee report to this Board what measures it may be desirable to take for the better general administration of the affairs of the Society in the departments of Tracts and Foreign Translations."

The amendment was seconded by the Dean of Chichester.

Much discussion having taken place, the Mover and Seconder of the amendment were allowed by the Board to withdraw their motion.

The Mover and Seconder of the original proposition then withdrew their motion, with the permission of the Board.

The Secretary stated, with reference to a complaint made at the last meeting by the Rev. Wm. Palmer, whose speech has since been published, that the alteration in Bishop Wilson's prayer, annexed to the Instruction for the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, by which the words "All Christian Churches" were changed to, "All the Reformed Churches," is not attributable to the Society, as was alleged; inasmuch as one of the members of the Society has in his possession a copy of the work containing the autograph of Bishop Wilson, dated October 22nd, 1751, in which the reading is the same as in the present copies.

The Secretary also stated, with reference to another complaint made by the same member, that the proposal respecting the omission of the clause "and from the Son," from the Nicene creed, in the Arabic version of the liturgy, was a mere suggestion made with great deference by an individual member, that it was deemed inadmissible by the Foreign Translation Committee, and by his Grace the President, whom the Committee felt it their duty to consult; and that the reasons for their decision were perfectly satisfactory to the member who made the suggestion.

The Rev. A. M. Campbell withdrew the following motion, of which he had given notice at the last General Meeting:—

"That at the General Meetings of the Society no member be allowed to read a written address to the meeting."

A letter was read from the Rev. Jas. Cochran, dated Lunenburg, in Nova Scotia, requesting aid from the Society in behalf of two new churches, now in progress in the country parts of his mission. He says:—

"One is situated at Upper La Have, and is externally finished, and has been used since December for Divine Service. Numbers gladly attend my ministrations there, but they are generally poor; and though the friends of the Church have done, and are still doing, their best, I fear we shall be unable to finish the building without further assistance from the benevolent at home. The other is just commencing at New Germany, and, if the Lord enables us to rear it, will be literally a 'church in the wilderness,' being situated in the midst of the forest, thirty-three miles from this place, and where, as yet, no place of worship of any description has been erected.

"I trust the Venerable Society will not consider a grant from their funds towards our present object at variance with their grand design of 'promoting Christian knowledge.'

"It will be most encouraging to the poor people and to him that ministers among them. I am emboldened in my suit in behalf of these two congregations, by hearing of the Society's grant of 100*l.* to the new church in the neighbouring parish of Chester."

The Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia strongly recommended this application; and stated his opinion that if the sum of 50*l.* could be granted to each of the two churches, it would be well bestowed.

The Board agreed to grant 50*l.* to the churches at Upper La Have, and New Germany respectively.

A letter, of which the following are extracts, read from the Lord Bishop of Madras, dated Bangalore, 21st March, 1840:—

"I have been anxious for some time to address our Venerable Society; but continuing health, in addition to the daily increasing labors of my office, and perhaps want of matter sufficiently interesting, have hitherto prevented me.

"I will begin by giving a brief account of my stewardship, in pecuniary matters.

"Of the 500*l.* so kindly placed by the Society at my disposal, I have expended and promise about 200*l.*

"I subscribed 50*l.* towards the erection of a church at Madras, solely for a native congregation, whom I have placed under the care of the Rev. Christian Aroolappen, a native Clergyman, and by me last June, and one of the most experienced clergymen that I have ever known; full of faith and discretion, and rich both in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, and in the far rare gift of faithfully and correctly teaching, and explaining them to others. I have the highest confidence in this excellent man, and heartily pray that we have a hundred such among us. I am very desirous that a parsonage-house should be erected for him in his church, which might be done at a trifling expense; but I do not feel justified in applying of the Society's money to such a purpose without special permission to do so. The church of John the Baptist will be a very pretty building, and, as I have already observed, the first church erected at Madras for the sole use of a native congregation.

"The Rev. George Trevor, one of the clergymen at Bangalore, having raised a local subscription, and erected with most praiseworthy zeal, an excellent taste, a beautiful little church for a native congregation, I have given 50*l.* on the part of the Society, towards the expense of the building. I hope in a few days to consecrate St. Paul's church at Bangalore.

"One of my schemes for the religious and moral improvement of the native character and conduct is the erection, at Madras, of a school for high-caste. At present the growth of Christianity there is sorely hindered by the total absence of means of giving a Christian education to the high-caste; the girls who attend our schools are almost exclusively from the lowest orders. If we succeed in educating even fifteen or twenty of high-caste at the presidency, we should produce as many men of similar caste with Christian views, and thus domesticate Christianity among the high-caste. The benefit in a few years would, with God's blessing, be incalculable. I hope to be able to build a school-room at my own expense; and I should be glad to learn if our Venerable Society would give some small grant (we do not require much) towards the maintenance of some scholars. This establishment, if I succeed in establishing it, will be under the immediate pastoral care of the Rev. Christian Aroolappen, and will be visited by Mr. Spencer, and other ladies, at Madras.

"I have given away, or promised, about 10*l.* more, for the assistance of the schools in different parts of my large diocese.

"Our Society may be desirous to know my present opinion on the prospects of Christianity in Southern India, and whether a year's experience has changed or materially modified my earlier impressions. It has not; my opinion remains the same."

"I am satisfied that Christianity is making progress—slow, but sure progress—in this diocese, notwithstanding the many and great difficulties in its way, and whatever may be the impression to the contrary among those who judge by mere outward appearances. I do not say that the natives manifest a warmer desire to receive the Gospel,—would that I could say it!—but the ground is evidently being broken up for its reception. The Hindoo of the present day is, in one most essential point, very different from his forefathers: he is becoming daily more indifferent to his own superstitions, because he becomes daily more awake to the priestcraft of the Brahmins. And surely it is a matter of deep interest to the Christian philanthropist, to see the rooted prepossessions—the first love—of these poor people thus evidently shaken; and it encourages him in the blessed assurance, that, at God's good time, his whole heart's desire for them will most certainly be accomplished.

"Hitherto one of the chief obstacles to the successful progress of missionary labour in the East has arisen from the fact, that we have not merely to write new ideas upon minds where scarcely any thing has been written already, but to clear away a mighty mass, not only of prejudice, but of organized systems of falsehood, before we can reach the heart, in order to write there a single word of truth. This I think God's gracious providence is now gradually effecting for us, by thus conspicuously weakening the stronghold which the Brahmins formerly possessed over the affections and the fears of the other classes; for I verily believe, that the Hindoo, at present, neither loves his priest nor fears him. A way, then, however narrow and crooked, is thus opened to Christianity, which was not visible to the earlier servants of our blessed Lord in India; and the prudent and watchful missionary will not be slow to profit by it.

"These observations apply with still greater force to Ceylon. The Cingalese is of a more teachable spirit than the native of the continent, because the chains of caste are not so heavy upon him. If then I am cheered by what I see and know in India, my hopes for Ceylon are still more lively: it is far more manageable, on account of its comparatively small extent; and education, if properly conducted upon a sound and practicable plan, must have an effect there which at present you would look for in vain in India, both because it is easier to bring home to the Islanders, and because in my opinion they are in a better state of mind for receiving it.

"I think, therefore, that in Ceylon every encouragement should be given to the clergy, at all the chaplain-stations, to enable them to bring up the native children in sound Church-of-England principles. The people there are ripe for this, being sufficiently advanced in Christian knowledge to judge for themselves, which is the best way of learning the Gospel.

"Southern India and Ceylon, then, have a strong and, on some accounts, a peculiar claim on our Christian sympathy; and I am satisfied that those claims will never be disregarded by our Venerable Society, to whose prayers and brotherly assistance I earnestly commend my diocese and myself."

The Secretary stated that the Bishop of Madras had been requested by the Standing Committee to act as seemed best to his lordship in the matter to which he had referred in his letter.

A letter was read from the Rev. T. R. Redwar, Berbice, of which the following are extracts:—

"The tide of emigration seems at length to be setting into this country. This calls for vigilance and increased activity on the part of the clergy, and we may calculate on an increased circulation of the books and tracts of the Society. The great benefits afforded to the parochial clergyman by the truly valuable Christian Knowledge Society are well known in England; but in these colonies they are incalculable, where booksellers' shops are rare, and the prices demanded for what they furnish exorbitant. Once establish a committee here abroad, then follows the depository, and at once you are supplied with all that is required for schools, and with much besides that is most valuable and indispensable for the parochial clergyman in his routine of duty throughout his parish. Whether engaged in duty at the font, the altar, the sick room, or the grave, a tract from our depository can be found suited to the condition of those who attend on our ministrations, and, if placed at these moments of excited feelings in the hands of our people, may impress upon them what we have been labouring to impart, or else turn to good account the impressions already made by our beautiful Church services. Valuable indeed to us is our Venerable Society, and powerful is the appeal which she makes to all true children of the Church of England, whether at home or abroad, to support her interests and extend her usefulness. Would that her appeals were always duly responded to. But there is an increasing spirit of attachment to our Zion daily manifesting itself here, for which I thank God, and take courage."

The Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, in a letter dated Bermuda, 26th March, 1840, says:

"I have very thankfully to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 18th of December, and to beg that you will have the goodness to express to the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge my grateful sense of their liberality, and my assurances that their grant shall be faithfully and carefully applied to the purposes for which it was assigned.

"I feel myself much strengthened on entering on the arduous labours which await me in Newfoundland, by the kind promises of assistance which I have received from the Society, and shall be most happy to be in the least degree instrumental to carrying into effect their benevolent intentions.

"I earnestly pray that God may continue his richest blessing to all your proceedings."

A letter was received from the Rev. J. Endell Tyler, and the Rev. Dr. Short, stating that schools for the poor are much wanted in a large district north and south of Great Queen-street, London, and that measures are in progress for the establishment of three schools; namely, an Infant school, a National school for girls, and a National school for boys; capable, in the whole, of receiving six hundred children. A lease of premises suitable for the purpose has been obtained on moderate terms: the requisite alterations and repairs will commence at Midsummer; and the Schools, it is hoped, will be opened at Michaelmas. For the accomplishment of the plan, an outlay of at least one thousand pounds will be necessary; and some assistance was asked from the Society, as occupying extensive premises in the parish of St. Giles-in-the-Fields.

It was agreed to grant 50*l.* in aid of this object.

A letter was read from the Rev. Thomas Woodward, Secretary to the Church Education Society for Ireland, inclosing a resolution of thanks, signed by the Lord Archbishop of Armagh, for the grant of books recently made by the Society for the use of the schools in connexion with that institution.

A letter of acknowledgment from J. M. Strachan, Esq. for a grant made in behalf of Western Australia was read.

Several other letters of acknowledgment were laid before the meeting.

Books were granted for several new churches.

Several grants of books and tracts were made.

SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN FOREIGN PARTS.

4, Trafalgar Square, June 5th, 1840.

UPPER CANADA.

THE Bishop of Toronto held his first general ordination on the 12th April last, when four candidates were ordained deacons, and four deacons were admitted to the order of priests.

Since his Lordship's elevation to the see, no fewer than eight clergymen have been placed on the Society's Missionary list for Upper Canada, and in a recent dispatch he has recommended five others for adoption by the Society.

Still, however, more labourers are required, and the Society will be happy to receive applications from any clergymen, or candidates for orders, duly qualified, for the important duty of missionaries in British North America.

TO THE REV. THE SECRETARY.

Baldock Rectory, Herts, May 30th, 1840.

Rev. and dear Sir,—In complying with your request that I would give you an exact account of the steps I have taken in forming a Parochial Association in aid of "the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel," I beg first to state that I was induced to take the matter in hand from a deep and mature conviction, that the establishment of such associations is the one grand means of promoting the welfare of the Society, inasmuch as the general establishment of them in every parish would bring the Society to the very homes, so to speak, of all true Churchmen, and thus effectually cause it to take root and extend all over the kingdom, to a degree which can hardly be effected in any other way.

Thus impressed with the immense importance and value of parochial associations, I proceeded as follows:—My parish contains about 1,900 inhabitants, consisting of almost all classes of persons. I felt that it was the duty, and would be the privilege of all to become members of the association; and I therefore procured from you a sufficient number of copies of the unanswerable "Reasons why every member of the Church of England, whether rich or poor, should join the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts," and of the Society's Handbill, No. 9. The "Reasons" (a tract) I inclosed in the Handbill, in the form of a letter, and addressed one to almost every householder in the parish. After an interval of a few days, during which I concluded these valuable and convincing papers would be read, I caused copies of some of the "Quarterly Papers," and of the Paper No. 4, to be placed in the pews of the church, and on Sunday, March 22, I preached two sermons, in which I enforced, as strongly as I could, the Christian's obligations to support missions, and the especial claims of the Society, earnestly appealing to all classes of my parishioners to join in this good work, according to the ability which God had given them; distinctly informing them that the amount of individual contribution was not so much to be considered, as that every member of the Church, whether young or old, rich or poor, should heartily unite in doing what he could for the Society. I proposed that the Association should consist of all who should subscribe to it, either annually; quarterly, or monthly, fixing one penny per month as the lowest contribution, I stated my readiness to receive subscriptions, if sent to me, or that I would call upon the inhabitants for them; and that as to the penny monthly subscriptions, I would receive them at the National School on the day on which I attend every week to receive the deposits of the Clothing Society for the poor. In answer to these appeals, some subscriptions were sent to me on the next and following days of that week; after which, I waited upon those persons who had not sent, and I am thankful to state that I received a cordial welcome and ready contributions (varying from 1*l.* to 2*s.*) from all to whom I thus applied—parents, children, and servants; and I was heartily thanked by many for bringing this important matter before them. Indeed, I have not met with a single refusal. At the school, several of the labouring class came forward most cheerfully and liberally, and I yet expect further contributions, making up, I doubt not, the sum of 30*l.* per annum from this parish. This result is altogether most gratifying to me; for it has pleased God to bless my endeavours beyond my anticipations, convincing me that the Church is deeply rooted in the affections of the people, and that all that is now wanting is to give to the members of the Church an opportunity of thus showing, in every parish, the interest they would readily take in extending the kingdom of our God and Saviour upon earth.

Rev. and dear Sir, yours faithfully,
JOHN SMITH.

Hon. Misses Vansittart, Lady Sophia Hoare, Lady G. Wortley, Lady Ann Beresford, Hon. Mrs. J. Talbot, &c. &c. &c.

After the examination of the children attending the Central School, the following report was read by the secretary, the Rev. John Sinclair, M.A.:

"The Committee of the National Society, in presenting this twenty-ninth Report of their proceedings, cannot but express their satisfaction at the increased attention generally given throughout the empire to the cause of education among the poor. In former times, it was made perhaps too much a question how far the children of the labouring poor were fit subjects for school-instruction; and there were not wanting persons of high estimation in the republic of letters, who did not disguise their opinion, that to enlighten the labouring classes would only serve to engender discontent, and that ignorance was 'the only opiate for their relief under the unavoidable drudgeries of their condition.' For more than a quarter of a century, your Committee have been contending against these prejudices; which have now so completely passed away, that the question is happily no longer, whether the people shall be educated, but what kind of education they shall receive.

"On this latter question, however, a great variety of opinions prevails, chiefly from the difficulty of determining to what extent religious instruction should be imparted. Some persons have contended that religious instruction should be omitted altogether in schools for the poor, or should be taught only at extra hours, not by the master, but by the parochial clergyman, assisted by the ministers of the various denominations to which the parents of the children respectively belong. This method, however, would afford so little security for the teaching of religion at all, and would introduce so much discrepancy, and so many errors and contradictions, that it has only been as yet recommended by a small but active number of sanguine theorists. Others again contend, that religious instruction should be confined to the reading of the holy Scriptures, without note or comment, or any attempt to fix a particular sense upon the passages under consideration. But without urging that it is not the words, but the meaning of the Bible, which can alone make men wise unto salvation, it will be remembered that the Apostle, speaking of the education of a young convert, expresses satisfaction, not that he had merely read, but had 'of a child known the holy Scriptures.' A third class contend that religious instruction should be limited to historical facts, and those general doctrines in which all sects in this country happen to agree. All sects, it is alleged, may thus receive a Christian education in common. Any plan, however, of education, upon this principle, would exclude a large proportion of the doctrines, rules, and ordinances pronounced by Christ himself indispensable to the Christian system. The Divine Author of our faith well knew, what his experience must bring home to us, that a vague indefinite religion has little or no hold upon the conscience, and that it must be clear and definite, permanently to impress the heart.

"For this reason, the plan adopted by the Committee of England includes full religious instruction, as children are capable of receiving it. Instead of excluding religion from the school, or teaching words only, or in merely vague inoperative generalities, our Church enforces it in her catechism as in her art and liturgy, perfect and entire, without compromise or mutilation, after the apostolic model. A complete outline is given, filled up so far as circumstances admit, of the faith and morals, the discipline and ordinances, of Christianity.

"The Church of England, in this department her duty, has recourse, as regards the poorer members of the community, to the agency of the National Society, which was for this purpose incorporated by the Crown. Thus accredited by temporal Head of the Church as the instrument of popular education, including in its Committee Management all the higher ecclesiastical authorities and practically regulated by them in all its proceedings, the Society may, with strict propriety, be regarded as the organ of the Church in the work of training up the children of the poor in a way that they should go.

"In the prosecution of its labours, the Society has been most efficiently assisted by a number of affiliated associations; and the object of this Report will be to show what has been done, or is now doing throughout the kingdom, either by the National Institution, or by diocesan and district Boards, the extension as well as improvement of mass education.

"The former of these two objects, that of raising the education of the people, has hitherto occupied the attention of the Society, which many years was almost the only public body which application could be addressed for as building schools. The amount of its funds is certainly not in proportion to the magnitude of the object contemplated, that of providing schools all England and Wales; yet so faithfully and so liberally were the means at its disposal bestowed, and expended, that a very large amount of work was speedily the result. The number of scholars brought into union up to the year 1833 was attended by 323,555 scholars. So numerous and urgent were the demands for assistance in mass education, and so unquestionable were the results arising from even the expenditure of small sums on this object, that, in the year 1823, a royal charter authorising parochial collections throughout England and Wales, was for the first time issued in behalf of the institution. In the year 1824, 1837, this interposition of royal favour was renewed, and in 1830, the then minister of the Crown vailed on Parliament to vote the sum of £100,000 for educational purposes, which sum it was determined by a treasury minute to appropriate, and on the recommendation of this Board, and put on that of the British and Foreign School Society.

"This arrangement, though not perhaps altogether unobjectionable, was acquiesced in by the Church, and contributed to accelerate the progress already given by the Society to the cause of mass education. During six successive years a sum of the same amount was regularly passed among the current expenses of the state, and an expense naturally arose in the minds of all parties, that annual bounty would be continued,—that this charge upon the public revenue would be permanent to remain. No suspicion could reasonably be entertained either that the grant would be discontinued or intercepted by objectionable conditions; year, however, produced an unexpected and happy change. The amount of the parliamentary grant was increased to 30,000; but the sum annexed to it, by those to whom the disbursement was confided, diverted it from the channel in which the larger portion of it had previously flowed. In former years the terms annexed to grants for school building had reference to the tenure of the schoolsubstantiality of the edifice, the audit of accounts, and the return of periodical reports by the managers when called for. But by the minute of Council, upon which the last grant was made, it was resolved that the right of inspection should be reserved, in order to 'secure a conformity in the regulations and discipline established in the several schools, with such improvements as might from time to time be suggested by the Committee.'

"To the inspection by a state officer thus insisted on, the clergy and managers of schools were decidedly averse, on grounds not only of expediency, but of principle. They had no dislike to inspection. Neither they, nor the Committee of the National Society, ever wished the state of their schools to be concealed from public view. On the contrary, their schools were always open to all visitors for examination; and the Committee, in particular, showed themselves desirous that, in the case of schools aided by public money, the most searching inquiries should be made, and the most authentic and satisfactory reports laid before Parliament. They presented such a report to government on the 23d of July last, having previously, on the 19th of the same month, stated to the Committee of Council their willingness to repeat such inquiries from time to time, through the agency of the diocesan Boards, and make similar reports thereon, as soon as they should be furnished with adequate pecuniary means. Of this proposal no notice was taken by the Committee of Council. Their lordships indeed were persuaded to cancel, for the present year, the latter portion of the minute above quoted, which required 'conformity with such improvements as they might from time to time suggest;' but they could not be prevailed upon to abandon the former part of their resolution, although respectfully urged, instead of insisting upon an exclusively secular and state inspection, to accept an inspection 'derived from and connected with the authorities of the Church.' Their lordships had already shown that they did not consider themselves bound by the minute in question; and it was hoped that when they saw how seriously their own plan of state inspection, if persisted in, would retard the progress of popular education, by discouraging and embarrassing its most zealous promoters, they would have taken into consideration, whether reports through inspectors appointed by the authorities of the National Church, might not be made in a manner satisfactory to Parliament. It was hoped that the indisputable evidences continually given by this Society, of its desire to enlighten the people, would have disarmed all suspicion. The Committee of Council, however, have hitherto adhered to their original determination, modified for the present in the manner stated. Thus it has happened, that your Committee, instead of pointing out the advantages of their own system, have been reduced to the necessity of enlarging upon the objections to the plan proposed by their lordships.

"The correspondence of your Committee with their lordships on the subject, is already before the public, and need not therefore be repeated in this Report. The point principally to be here adverted to is, the effect necessarily produced by the failure of these negotiations upon the funds of the Society. When your Committee considered the case of numerous applicants, who, from zeal in the good cause, had involved themselves in debt, and incurred personal liabilities in expectation of public aid, which they were prevented by conscientious scruples from accepting, it was impossible to refrain from interposing for their relief. The form in which it was deemed advisable to afford this relief, was by a loan to the amount of the public grant expected on the old conditions, and actually offered by the Privy Council upon the new and objectionable terms. Above all things, however, it was desirable that the Society should not occupy the invidious position of inducing any applicant, by pecuniary offers, to refuse the benefactions of the state. It was necessary that the parties interested should act for themselves, and feel that in their rejection of the proposed aid from government, they were making a sacrifice to their own views of right. Accordingly your Committee stated, in a communication to the Council Office, bearing date the 23d October, 1839, 'that they were unwilling to stand between the bounty of Parliament and the claims of applicants to a participation therein, and would leave the decision in each case to the judgment of the parties respectively interested.' The Committee stated also, that they would 'make good any guarantee, or promise of aid, as soon as it became due,' without reference to the acceptance or rejection of public money by the claimant. To those who asked what the National Society would do for them, in case they refused the public money, it was replied, that they must first decide for themselves on the question of refusal, and then make known to the Committee their decision. In some cases, the parties, so far from having been urged to refuse by the National Society, stated that they could not clearly make out what were the wishes of the Society, and begged to be informed distinctly what it was desired they should do. Several Boards of great influence in the country wrote in express terms, urging the Society to more decided measures; and one or two applicants, observing the conciliatory tone of the Society's communications to the Committee of Council, made the actual inquiry whether the two parties had not 'come to an amicable understanding upon the subject of inspection?'

"So general, indeed, was the aversion among the members of the Church to the required government condition, that out of 204 applicants for government aid, to whom offers were made, only 49 accepted it. Even of this small number 14 have since declined; not in consequence of any influence exerted, or any communications made by your Committee, but chiefly in consequence of perusing the instructions of the Privy Council to their inspectors, which, as they conceived, clearly showed what great influence those officers would necessarily acquire, and to what purpose that influence might be applied*.

"The terms on which loans were granted by your Committee were highly favourable to the borrowers, but were not fully explained till the parties, rejecting the Privy Council offer, had left themselves with no resource but in the bounty of the Society. A considerable number, after adopting this latter alternative, declared that from dread of debt even to a friendly creditor, they would prefer, before a loan, a grant to a smaller amount. Indeed, one party still refuses a loan, though his claim to it has been acknowledged by the Society, and still waits in hope that some grant will be awarded him.

"The almost universal repugnancy of churchmen to state-inspection has caused, as was to be expected, a large demand upon the funds of the Society. The number of cases in which loans have been advanced is 159; and the total sum thus disbursed 16,751*l*.

"This expenditure of the Society in loans has not prevented your Committee from attending as much as usual to other objects, nor from incurring considerable expenses in new lines of operation. Grants for building schools to the amount 9,559*l*. have been made in 125 cases, and accommodation provided for 21,980 children. To these grants should be added the sum of 2,835*l*., advanced as an additional contribution in the case of 92 schools, which otherwise were in danger of being left incomplete. In the above calculation is included the sum of 6,169*l*., the amount of certain grants which, according to the statement in a note appended to the Report for last year, were subjected to revision; so that the total amount of grants during the last two years has been 29,145*l*.

"Notwithstanding the numerous grants made during the year by your Committee, applications of the most pressing kind continue to be transmitted almost daily to the office of the Society. In these documents facts are stated showing the absolute necessity of unabated, or rather of increased beneficence, among the friends of sound popular education. Appeals of the strongest kind are made from various quarters by the clergy to your Committee for aid in building Church-schools, as means no longer to be dispensed with for arresting the headlong progress of infidel and anarchical corruptions.

"In summing up the operations of the Society during the past year for extending education, your Committee must not omit to mention that, since the last annual meeting of the Society, schools in no fewer than 154 different places—sometimes two or more in each—have been taken directly into union; besides those that have been united indirectly through the diocesan and district Boards. Of these a more particular account will be given in the Report for next year.

"Proceeding next, as was proposed, to the subject of educational improvement, your Committee may first advert to inspection under Church authority, as a measure eminently conducive to that end. It is agreed by all persons conversant with inquiries of this kind, that inspection conduces, and is perhaps even necessary, to the permanent efficiency of schools. The only question between the Society and the Committee of Council was, from what quarter the inspection should proceed,—from the Church, or from the State. The great difficulty which has always embarrassed this question, is to determine how inspection may be economically and at the same time effectually carried on. For, on the one hand, if clergymen were prevailed upon to inspect, gratuitously of course, the schools in their neighbourhood, the examination might sometimes be found wanting in efficiency; while, on the other hand, if professional examiners were appointed to visit annually all schools throughout the kingdom, the expense would be insupportable. It is hoped that, in the plan recommended, and in part adopted by your Committee, the objections to each of these two methods will be obviated, at the same time that their advantages are combined. An annual examination by one or more of the neighbouring clergy, and occasionally by the rural dean or archdeacon, will, in most instances, be provided for under the authority of the bishop; and will become more efficacious in proportion to the experience of the examiners and the general progress of educational knowledge. These clerical examinations, annually repeated, will in most cases supersede the necessity of more frequent inspection by the officers of the Society than once in three years.

"The nature of the inspection which your Committee wish to institute, may be collected from the printed instructions to the Rev. Edward Field, M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford, the first individual nominated to this office. Mr. Field, by appointment of the Bishop of Salisbury, is now employed in the inspection of that diocese, whence he will proceed with a similar appointment to that of Winchester. Other dioceses have expressed a desire to possess the same advantage, and consequently your Committee will soon have the gratifying duty of making similar appointments.

"Among the measures adopted, and with some success, by the Society, none perhaps is better fitted to promote improvement in education, than the maintenance of a central or model school, in which masters and mistresses may learn the art of tuition. On the retirement of the Rev. William Johnson, M.A. of whose diligent and faithful services for many years honourable mention has been so often made in the Reports of the Society, the Rev. George Moody, M.A. was appointed to the important office of succeeding him in the mastership of the central or model school. Under the zealous and efficient care of the latter, the boys' school has been progressively improving; and is remarkable, not only for the regularity of attendance among the pupils, but also for their good order and general improvement. The course of instruction has been lately extended by the introduction of grammar and geography.

"With a view to the still further advancement of the model school, a well-qualified assistant-master has been appointed, and two or three young persons have been engaged as school-apprentices. The female department continues under the same superintendence as during past years; and your Committee have to return their acknowledgments to those ladies who have, with so much useful benevolence, given their time and attention to this important duty. The number of persons instructed this year in the national system has been as great as the Committee have had the pleasure of recording in any former Report: thirty-four masters and forty-eight mistresses have been received on probation, and trained for the service of the Society; while not fewer than twenty-nine masters and thirty-nine mistresses, previously appointed to schools in the country, have been admitted for instruction; making a total of one hundred and fifty.

* Immediately after the publication of the instructions, a letter, from which the following is an extract, reached the office of the Society:—

"The Committees of the several schools named below, have resolved to decline the offers made by the Committee of Council, and to rely upon the aid which your Society may be able to give them. Whatever of doubt or hesitation remained on the minds of any of them was removed on my publishing to them the 'Instructions' given by the Council to their inspectors, a copy of which had been sent to me with other clergymen."

Here follows a list of six schools.

"Besides imparting the art of teaching by means of the model school, your Committee have long been of opinion, that an institution was necessary for communicating the knowledge or materials to be taught. With this view they opened, early in the year 1838, a boarding-house for females in Tufton-street, which, with some recent additions, is capable of accommodating thirty persons, and has, in general, been full of young candidates for the office of schoolmistress. In January last, your Committee opened a similar institution for preparing youths to undertake the duty of schoolmasters, under the superintendence of the Rev. Thomas Stone, M.A. These arrangements, however, are only preliminary to the establishment of a training institution on a much larger scale, adapted to the wants and the wealth of this great country. The chief impediment to the execution of the design has been the difficulty of obtaining a site for the proposed edifice in an eligible situation, and of suitable extent. Hopes were entertained that a sufficient space of ground in the vicinity of the present institution at Westminster might have been procured from Government; but the negotiations of your Committee for this purpose with the Lords of the Treasury and the Committee of Council, after having assumed for some time a promising appearance, have not yet come to a successful termination. Your Committee have also entered into correspondence with the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, and are desirous to express the satisfaction afforded them by the readiness of that venerable body to provide them, if possible, with the accommodation required.

"Among other methods of educational improvement for some time employed by the Committee, is that of supplying temporary masters or mistresses to vacant schools, or to schools where the master or mistress was ascertained to be not duly qualified; in which latter case the incompetent teacher was called up to Westminster to acquire the requisite proficiency. The number of temporary masters and mistresses sent out during the last year was thirty-seven. The Committee hope hereafter greatly to extend this method of advancing education, by retaining in their service a certain number of teachers, whose sole employment it shall be to organise and remodel schools throughout the kingdom. A large school, well organised upon this plan, would be a model to the whole surrounding district. And indeed, during such visit from an efficient temporary master, the managers of neighbouring schools might find great account in sending their masters to receive instruction.

"One more subject to be considered in connexion with improvement, is an arrangement for obtaining returns from time to time of educational statistics from every parish. The importance of such returns, not only to the Society, but to the Church itself, as well as to the Government, need not here be enlarged upon. To know, in each instance, what has been done, as well as what is still wanting, for the instruction of the people, is the most important introductory step towards ensuring the welfare, civil and religious, of any country. A schedule has been prepared, by which it is hoped that clear and full information may be afforded at a small cost of time and labour to the individual who supplies it. The Committee do not of themselves venture to impose on any clergyman the task of filling up a form of this kind, but leave it to be done on the recommendation of the several dioceses. Their wish is, that whatever be the form of parochial return selected, it should be generally adopted and permanently established: generally adopted, that it may form the basis of a report for the whole kingdom; and permanently established, that the educational returns once made, may, like the annual returns of taxation, be supplied ever afterwards without difficulty.

"Various other methods might be mentioned, by which the Committee propose, as opportunities occur, to advance the cause of national education; but as the object of this Report is retrospective, and is intended rather to record measures in operation, than such as are only contemplated, the Committee proceed at once to narrate the proceedings of the diocesan and district Boards.

"The constitution of diocesan Boards is, as might have been expected, various, and adapted to local circumstances, according to the views of each diocesan, as well as of such intelligent and influential individuals as he may have chosen to consult. They partially differ in regard to the qualification of their members, to their degrees of advancement, their plans of operation, and the terms of their connexion with subordinate Boards. But these varieties of organisation have no tendency to disturb the harmonious action of the whole machinery, or to interfere in any shape with its usefulness to the country. For all diocesan Boards stand in one and the same relation to the Parent Institution, and all likewise in a corresponding relation to each other. Whatever diversity exists, refers only to the internal arrangements of each diocese under the legitimate controul of its own bishop. With these internal arrangements the National Society claims no right whatever of authoritative interference.

"Since, however, a general wish has been expressed by the Boards in various dioceses, to be guided and assisted by the Society in drawing up rules, and arranging plans of operation, your Committee resolved upon the appointment of some individual for this purpose, who, from his acquaintance generally with the subject of popular education, and in particular with the Society's views and wishes, might be competent to the office. They have, with this design, selected Thomas Tancred, Esq. M.A., a member of their Committee of Inquiry and Correspondence, to visit the several Boards and confer with them, especially upon the subjects of inspection, training institutions, parochial statistics, pecuniary aid, and its application. It is obvious that much benefit to the cause will result from the communications of an experienced agent, explaining in each place what has been effected in other quarters, and unfolding without reserve the general views of the Central Institution.

"The object of every Board, whether it be the organ of a diocese or of a district, is, so far as the poor within its influence are concerned, precisely the same with that of the National Society with reference to the whole kingdom. The object is to awaken a disposition in the rich to impart bountifully, and in the poor to receive gratefully, the means of education; to impress on wealthier places the duty of assisting others in less fortunate circumstances, thus equalising, as far as possible, the benefits diffused; and to provide with Christian wisdom and integrity that the instruction given shall be of a proper kind, and shall include an elementary knowledge of all the principles necessary to prepare the young as well for time as for eternity. Every Board, therefore, in urging its own claims upon the public for support, necessarily feels that in so doing it is urging still more strongly those of the National Society. And further, as every diocesan Board must be solicitous that local Boards should co-operate with it, consult it in regard to all external affairs, and form no extra-diocesan connexions except by general consent; so with regard to extra-ecclesiastical relations, the National Society confidently anticipates complete unity of counsel on the part of the diocesan Boards, and cordial readiness to act in conjunction with it on every question that involves the interests of the whole Church.

"The subject of inspection has been already noticed among the general operations of the Society. It may here be added, that various Boards have expressed a desire to participate in the advantages of this measure. Applications have been made for an Inspector from Winchester, Worcester, Lichfield, and Buckinghamshire, under the sanction of the several bishops. Other Boards are preparing to make similar requests; and great numbers of the clergy and managers of schools in different quarters have expressed their earnest wish to receive a similarly constituted examiner. It is with great satisfaction that your Committee contemplate the friendly confidence with which their offer of inspectors has been received throughout the country. The diocese of Chester, which, from its vast population, would require the constant services of an inspector, intends to follow up the recommendations of your Committee upon this subject, by appointing a permanent officer of this description, whose labours shall be always at its command, whether for examining or for organising schools.

"The importance of training-schools is another point in education universally admitted. Accordingly such institutions have already been established at Chester, Exeter, Oxford, Chichester, Lichfield, Gloucester, and Norwich; others are in contemplation at Canterbury, York, Cambridge, Wells, Winchester, Salisbury, Bristol, Lincoln, and Durham. The whole term of study in these establishments usually extends to three years, at an annual charge seldom exceeding 20*l.* for each pupil, which defrays the expenses of maintenance and lodging at the house of the Principal, who is in every instance a clergyman. In certain cases exhibitions, commonly of 10*l.* a year, have been founded to encourage and assist promising young students; and in some instances it is proposed to bring into operation the 77th canon of our Church, by which the bishop of any diocese is empowered to give a licence, certifying the bearer to have been 'found meet as well for his learning and dexterity, as for sober and honest conversation; and also for a right understanding of God's true religion.' One effect of this judicious measure will be, to raise in public estimation the rank of a parochial schoolmaster, and make the situation more attractive to persons of competent attainments and general respectability. A further advantage will be, that the diocese which supports the training institution will more easily retain within its own limits the masters it has educated, who will naturally remain under the protection of the bishop by whom they have been licensed. A security of this kind affords additional motives to the Board for the establishment of training-schools; otherwise, if one diocese expended its funds in training masters, and another in increasing their salaries and improving their condition, the masters would of course transfer their services to the quarter which would best reward them.

"Another subject which has engaged the attention of all the diocesan and district Boards is that of educational statistics. Queries have been issued to the parochial clergy, under the authority of the bishop, to which answers have in general been promptly and carefully given. Experience, however, will point out many improvements, both as regards the facts to be ascertained, and the mode of ascertaining them. Much information that might at first sight appear important, may not afterwards prove to be of any great practical utility, and questions which to the individual who puts them seem impossible to be mistaken, may turn out to be susceptible of various meanings. The different experiments, however, which have been made in different places during the course of the past year, must have produced as much experimental knowledge as would have resulted from a long series of trials in any single place. Still it would be desirable, as has been suggested in the early part of this Report, that one uniform system of parochial returns should be generally introduced, and finally established. The cordial co-operation of the Boards and of the clergy in this great work is confidently hoped for.

"Some local Boards have adopted in their parochial returns a method, which, if perfected and generally extended, would have peculiar advantages. Each clergyman undertakes the task of writing a short account of the circumstances of his parish, with respect to education, to be printed in the annual report of the Board. Such returns, if care were taken in every instance by the clergyman to explain what are the existing means of education, and what further means are required, with the actual cost of the one, and the probable amount of the other, would be most interesting and valuable. The expense, however, of printing so vast a work could be only borne by the public.

"With respect to school-building, there is a diversity of practice in different dioceses, some allotting a larger, and some a smaller portion of their funds to this object, and some omitting it altogether, under an impression, probably, that it is best provided for by the National Society itself, taking as it does, from a central position, a comprehensive survey of the wants of the whole kingdom.

"Besides these objects, the pursuit of which is common to the parent Society and its affiliated Institutions, there are other wants attended to in some cases by the latter, which the former has not yet attempted to supply. Certain boards, for example, make grants towards increasing the salaries of masters and mistresses, towards building school-residences, towards bestowing prizes and rewards both on masters and pupils, as well as towards providing school-books, school-libraries, and school-materials of every kind. It is important in such cases that the boards should endeavour to call forth as much as possible the liberality of the applicants for assistance, by requiring, as in the case of building schools, a certain proportion of the sum wanted to be raised within the parish.

"While increased attention was given for many years to the education of the lower orders, and while, for the upper ranks, improvements were introduced into the system of our Universities, the instruction of the middle class had been comparatively overlooked or neglected. The Society, therefore, as stated in the last report, obtained legal advice with reference to the terms upon which, consistently with its charter, middle or commercial schools could be received into union. But although the fact was, by this means, ascertained that the Society could receive such schools directly into connexion with itself, hitherto it has delegated this charge to the local boards, which, from their vicinity to particular seminaries, would have more immediate and frequent opportunities of exercising wholesome influence. Different boards have exerted themselves in different degrees for this purpose, according to the peculiar circumstances in which they have been placed. The importance of the object is, of course, strongly felt by all. But in some counties the readiness manifested by managers of middle schools to give the required pledge, that instruction shall be afforded on Church of England principles, and the institution be open to the visits of the parochial minister, has been much greater than in others. Many schools were, as might be expected, carried on upon what are sometimes termed liberal principles, that is, without any marked preference for one religious system rather than another; and apprehensions seem to have been entertained that some of the scholars might be withdrawn, if more decided measures were taken, and a more complete course of religious teaching adopted. Sometimes, also, groundless fears were entertained of unnecessary and arbitrary interference on the part of local boards, and the fact was overlooked, that the only object of any board must be to advance the interest of any institution in union with itself and with the Church. Notwithstanding these occasional prejudices, a number of middle schools have put themselves under the patronage of the boards, others are preparing to follow their example, and, in certain instances, where the deficiency could not otherwise be supplied, the boards themselves have established institutions of this kind under the superintendence of efficient masters. Various methods have been resorted to for the last-mentioned purpose, but in no instance has any considerable expense been incurred. Either some existing school has been purchased and enlarged, or a new building has been erected; but funds in both cases have been supplied rather by way of loan than by actual grants. Frequently the plan of proprietary shares has been adopted, by which means a number of individuals in the middle ranks of life become personally interested in the prosperity of the establishment. Other parties have been induced to come forward from motives of public spirit, under the conviction that such institutions cannot fail of being nationally and permanently useful; that they will raise progressively the character of the middle classes, expand their intellect, elevate their taste, improve their morals, call forth their religious feelings, and attach them to the ordinances and discipline of their Church. To every friend of sound Christianity it must be a source of pure and fervent satisfaction that this good work has been well begun, is going on successfully, and promises, under God's blessing, to be happily completed.

"There are two or three remaining subjects to which the Committee cannot but advert before concluding this report. One is the resignation of their late secretary, the Rev. J. C. Wigram, M.A., who, for so many years, with unwearied zeal and great ability, gratuitously carried on the business of the Society. In him the Society has lost an officer to whom they owe a debt of gratitude not easily repaid.

"Another point deserving special observation is the energy exerted by the subscription committee in collecting funds to advance, at this important and difficult crisis, the objects of the Society. That committee originated in a meeting at Willis's Rooms, on the 28th of May last, his Grace the President of the Society in the chair, when certain noblemen and gentlemen undertook the office of stimulating the public to liberality in the cause of sound Christian education. The labours of that committee have never relaxed since its formation, but have, on the contrary, increased with the increasing exigency of the times. The result is, that no fewer than 15,310 promises of aid to the Society have been obtained, including 789 noblemen and gentlemen of landed property, and 4,099 clergymen. To the chairman of that committee, Lord Ashley, as well as to the noblemen and gentlemen who have assisted in this arduous work, every friend to sound Church-education must acknowledge deep and lasting obligation.

"In connexion with the subject of subscriptions, your Committee cannot but refer with the highest satisfaction to the liberal donation of 500*l.* voted unanimously, in convocation, towards the objects of this Society, by the University of Oxford. Munificent as this grant is, your committee are disposed to value it less on its own account, less even as an example to other corporate bodies throughout the land, than as conveying evidence of sympathy and approbation from an authority which includes so much of the learning, the intelligence, and the piety of England.

"Among the most satisfactory events of the past year, is the connexion formed by your Committee with the Church Education Society for Ireland; an institution which, sanctioned by the primate, and supported by the great body of the diocesan authorities and of the Clergy, as well as by the most influential of the Protestant nobility and gentry, will, under Providence, be an effectual safeguard to the religious principles of the rising generation in that kingdom.

"At the beginning of this report, a remark was made upon the increased attention now given by all ranks throughout the empire to the subject of popular education. It may here be added, that there is danger lest the best of causes should be injured by injudicious modes of dealing with it; lest this great question should be regarded more in a political than a religious light,—lest there should be greater readiness to discuss than to give, to produce arguments than to make sacrifices, to pass resolutions than to contribute donations for the enlightenment of the people;—your Committee, therefore, would strongly and affectionately urge all persons who have hearts to feel, and wealth to bestow, not to leave undone a duty which every motive, patriotic as well as Christian, binds them to perform. To offer the poor such an education for their children as shall at once be safe, appropriate, and effectually useful, calculated to prepare the young mind for moral virtue here, and for happiness hereafter, is a legitimate exercise of influence on the part of the higher classes, who are called upon to provide, with parental solicitude, for the well-being of their inferiors. To the exercise of this influence they are further prompted by instinctive interest in the condition of their own posterity. Let it be considered what kind of generation a wise parent would desire to be contemporary with his own offspring: not surely a race in utter ignorance and barbarism; not a race of semi-infidels, intellectually cultivated, yet ignorant of God; not a race nominally Christian, yet alienated from Christ, either perverting His doctrine, despising His law, disowning His sacraments, or assailing His Church. Let the small cost also to individuals be computed, at which a great amount of good may in this department be effected. So trifling a sum as ten shillings for each child, provided with school accommodation, is, in general, sufficient to decide the question whether a school shall or shall not be erected. Of no other institution, however valuable or well conducted, can a similar assertion be made. It is difficult for any reader under this impression to peruse the list of contributions from different parishes in consequence of her Majesty's royal letter in the year 1837, introduced into the Appendix to the last report, and not to remark with pain the disparity, in many cases, between the magnitude of the national object and the smallness of the means advanced for attaining it.

"This year it is confidently hoped that her Majesty will be graciously pleased to renew the same call upon the national benevolence, and, as temporal head of the Church, to exhort its members to liberal contributions for Church-education. Your Committee, therefore, cannot conclude this report without earnestly entreating the established Clergy to bring before their parishioners the strong, the irresistible motives, which, rightly urged, must impel the rich to give liberally towards educating the children of the poor in the principles of the Church of England,—the pure, the sound, the apostolical religion of our forefathers.

NATIONAL SOCIETY'S OFFICE,
Sanctuary, Westminster,
27th May, 1840.

CHURCH PASTORAL-AID SOCIETY.

THE fifth annual meeting of this Society was held in the Great Room, Exeter Hall, on Tuesday, the 12th inst. and was both numerously and respectfully attended. On the platform we observed the Bishops of Chester, Ripon, Lichfield, and Norwich, Sir George Rose, Bart. M.P., Major Head, the Rev. Dr. Gilly, Prebendary of Durham, the Rev. Chancellor Raikes, Rev. Dr. Short, &c. &c. &c. The Right Hon. Lord Ashley, M.P. took the chair.

After prayers,

LORD ASHLEY said, that the remarks he should have the honour of making on that occasion would necessarily be hasty and short. He was obliged, inevitably obliged, to take the chair of another meeting—one, perhaps, of far less harmony and co-operation—a Committee of the House of Commons, which was compelled to attend within half an hour of the time at which he was addressing them. But he would have been much grieved not to have been present at the opening, at least, of their proceedings, to testify his respect to the Society—to testify his respect to their excellent and indefatigable Committee,—and to rejoice, though not to boast, in the wonderful and unprecedented progress both of the means and effects of their operations. Perhaps in the history of all the religious Societies, there was no parallel to the sudden rise and rapid progress of that which they were that day celebrating; no one on which the blessing of God had more immediately and more manifestly been bestowed. It was the very thing demanded by the exigency of the times, and had accomplished, in proportion to its means, the entire object for which it was instituted. Of its holy and beneficial effects on private life, wherever its labours extended, he would say nothing; they were amply and nobly recorded in the periodical Reports; but he would assert his firm and conscientious belief, that the operations of the Society had mainly contributed to abate the hostility that had raged against the Church of England; by making her known among those by whom she was little known, to render her honoured and beloved, and to enable her friends in another place to fight, under God's providence, the great battle of our civil and ecclesiastical constitution. He had often wondered at the blindness (if blindness it were) of those who would deny the efficacy of a Church Establishment, and the necessity of making it commensurate with the wants and numbers of the people. How were they, except by these means, to contend against the demons of Socialism and Chartism? Where did these evil principles find the largest play, but in those deserted districts where the light of the Gospel shone but dimly, which were never or scantily cheered by the daily visits and weekly services of a faithful minister? He spoke from very accurate information; a man, whom he well knew himself, one of the working class of a large manufacturing city, and brought up under the shadow of the Church, and trained from his earliest years to love and reverence her, had travelled down into the insurgent districts of Wales, to ascertain the causes of discontent, and the condition of the people. He had reported to him (Lord Ashley) that work was abundant and wages high; on these points there was no ground of complaint; but Jeshurun had waxed fat, and kicked; pernicious doctrines, seditious papers, inflammatory demagogues, blasphemy, and falsehood, had produced their fruits; he passed into a district superintended by a curate appointed by the Bishop of Llandaff, but sustained by a grant from this Society; he found there a state of things vastly superior, and he added in his report these emphatic words, "Were there ten such men as that curate, you would never hear of trouble or rebellion again." But a better day seemed to be at hand—only a little more patience and vigorous exertion. He called on them to prove to the Legislature that if it did not listen to their requests, the representative was a very different thing from the person represented; they would finally be successful, and in the diffusion of the true and only faith, in the national extension of the national Church, would render the kingdom, by God's grace and blessing, from the greatest to the least, a wise and an understanding people.

The Rev. WM. PULLEN, the Secretary, read the Report, of which we present the following brief abstract:—"During the short period of 130 years, immediately preceding the census of 1831, the population had, including the agricultural districts, increased to the amount of 135 per cent.; in the mining and manufacturing districts nearly 300 per cent.; and in the county of Lancashire about 800 per cent.; since that census upwards of one million and a half had been added to the people of England, and 200,000 more immortal beings are each year now gathering around us. Nor had this rapid increase been unattended with alarming consequences, the natural results of a people outgrowing the spiritual provision made for them. Infidelity, lawlessness, and crime, had gradually occupied our neglected populous districts. Popery had been extending her influence wherever she could find a people ready to exchange a nominal Christianity, or restless Infidelity, for her 'blasphemous fables and dangerous deceits.' Thousands were, month after month, passing into eternity; and if no man cared for their souls, it was not because an Established Church did not exist, nor because a parish minister had not been appointed thereto, but because churches had not been multiplied in any proportion to the population, and because the people had multiplied far beyond the exertions of the pastor to whom they had been committed. To so lamentable an extent had this evil grown, as to present to the Legislature of a Christian land, and to the members of a Christian Church, this awful fact,—namely, that 100,000 souls, in spite of every effort, national and voluntary, 'were being annually added to those who in Protestant England, and under the wing of an Establishment, have neither pastors, nor sacraments, nor public worship, nor any of the habits of religion, but are left unheeded in their ignorance and ungodliness.' In helping to awaken attention to this state of things, the Church Pastoral-Aid Society has done much, and it has done something too in the meanwhile towards supplying the remedy it would suggest. The Committee believe that if the turbulence of Chartism is to be kept down; if the abominations of Socialism are to be suppressed; if the aggressions of Popery are to be restrained, it must be, under the Divine blessing, by the well-organized and well-worked machinery of the Established Church. They are persuaded, that to provide a parish church, and a faithful and laborious parish minister, for every 2,000 people, will do more for the good of the country than any plan of rural police, or coercive legislation, that ever has been or ever can be devised. ('Hear,' and applause.) The income of the Society for the year, ending 31st of March, 1839, was 10,400*l.* which was an increase on the previous year, of 2,400*l.* The income of the year ending 31st March, 1840, is 16,176*l.* 6*s.* 10*d.* being an increase of 5,776*l.* 2*s.* 5*d.* upon the year preceding. (Applause.) The Bishop of Peterborough, and the Bishop of Sodor and Man, have added their names to the list of Vice-Patrons. The Committee are happy to announce the formation of thirty-seven new associations; and the addition of the names of twenty-two clergymen, who have kindly given their services as corresponding members, several of whom have entered into an engagement with the Committee to afford the Society the benefit of a certain portion of their time and exertions to plead its cause, and otherwise promote its interests. During the past official year, the Society has made grants to seventy-six incumbents, in charge of 684,600 souls, in order to provide stipends for ninety-seven clergymen, and nine lay-assistants, at a charge, when all the appointments shall be made by the incumbents, of 8,612*l.* per annum, besides nine grants, amounting in the whole, to 470*l.* towards the building, purchase, or fitting-up nine chapels or rooms to be licensed for public worship, in places where local resources for these purposes were exhausted. The existing grants of this Society are in aid of 270 incumbents, having under their direct ministerial care an aggregate population of 1,994,913, or each, on an average, the charge of 7,388 souls; whilst the average amount of their incomes is only 161*l.*; and 134 of these incumbents are without parsonage-houses. Previously to the aid of the Society, only 302 clergymen were engaged in the pastoral care of the above stated population. By the Society's aid that number is now nearly doubled. The grants are to provide stipends for 285 clergymen, and thirty-eight lay-assistants, at a charge, when all the appointments shall be made by the incumbents, of 26,324*l.* per annum; the incumbents supplying, from their own or from local resources, 4,473*l.* per annum, towards making up the amounts required for the several stipends. The Society will thus be instrumental in bringing to the service of the Church of England, the sum of 29,797*l.* per annum, so soon as all its grants are in operation. 196 clergymen, and thirty-six lay-assistants, are now supported in their important labours by the Society, at a charge of 17,854*l.* per annum. The grants made towards the building, purchase, or fitting-up of chapels and school-rooms, to be licensed for public worship, now amount to twenty-seven; for these the sum of 1,471*l.* has been voted. This assistance towards extending the accommodation for public worship, has been given in places where circumstances rendered such aid of vast importance. The labours of the curates, and the prospect of aid from the Society, have directly led to the erection, purchase, or appropriation of sixty-four churches or chapels, now consecrated or licensed for public worship; and measures are being taken for the erection of forty-eight more chapels. In addition to which, ninety-four licensed rooms have been, in consequence of the Society's aid, opened for Divine service. The Society's grants may be classified under five different heads: 1. For curates, to assist incumbents in populous places. 2. For curates, to have charge of distant hamlets and townships, where a new population has sprung up, and church ordinances had been for the most part unknown. 3. To retain the services of incumbents in populous and ill-endowed districts, which they would otherwise be compelled to quit. 4. For chaplains, for the spiritual instruction of labourers on several lines of railway now in formation, and for clergymen to have special charge of watermen on canals, &c. under sanction of diocesan and incumbents. 5. For lay-assistants, acting simply as district visitors, Scripture-readers, tract-distributors, but by no means as public instructors and teachers. To these may be added a few grants, under peculiar circumstances, towards the erection, purchase, or fitting-up for Divine service of chapels and school-rooms."

Lord ASHLEY (in consequence of another engagement) now left the chair, which was taken by the Marquis of CHOLMONDELEY.

The Bishop of CHESTER then rose to move, "That the Report now read be printed and circulated under the direction of the Committee," and trusted that he should carry the resolution, by meeting with him in moving this resolution. This was, however, another Report which it was his duty to lay before them, and which related especially to the diocese over which he presided, and in which they would be glad to hear that there were not more than sixty-six incumbents who were now receiving the aid of this Society in their labours, who collectively presided over the spiritual welfare of 1,000,000 souls, each of them having the charge of about 8,200, and with an average income of 140*l.* One of the spaces to which this Report refers, only sixteen clergymen were engaged for this population before the time when the aid of this Society came in; and this was one great reason, among many others, why he should be grateful to a Society which had enabled him to look to the vast country under his care with so much less anxiety of mind as to the means provided for their discharge, as he could otherwise have hoped to have done. (Hear.) But there was still a vast amount remaining of the benefits which this Society had conferred upon the Church and upon the people, and which could not be stated in the words of a report. They could state that there was this great number of clergymen assisted in their labours by this Society, but they could not state, because it was not to be calculated the weight of responsibility removed from the mind of those clergy, and the amount of perplexity which oppressed them before, whilst looking on the hand to the vast amount of duty which they had to discharge, but could not discharge the one without danger to their health and lives; and on the other hand, whilst they beheld their wives and families, to whom those lives were precious, as well as the flocks under their care, who were dependent on the exertions which they could not leave. (Hear.) There were not fewer than forty clergymen in one district seeking for their health in a pure air, which they had lost in the discharge of their duties in a crowded atmosphere of labour, in a vain attempt to discharge the full amount of their duty. But there was much that could not be brought to the light of day, but which would be the end openly rewarded, namely, the great work of those souls which had been saved from the darkness of ignorance and error, and turned from sin unto God. It was, indeed, a melancholy prospect to look at the amount of population in this land where it was intended that all should have the blessings of religion, which were altogether wanting it, as well as how difficult it had been for the day to perform the duties intrusted to them, when in out of every ten of the operatives, artisans, and labourers in all our large towns, and even in the enlightened metropolis, were wholly ignorant of that belonged to and befitted Christians. There was a melancholy consideration under any circumstances, and only rendered less so by one thing, namely, that this state of things had come upon them, not in spite of means, but in the absence of means. The real truth was, that they were so feeling the effects of the long absence of religious means, and the spiritual destitution which had been connived at by themselves. In spite of what had been done, was there not much, however, yet to be effected? Were they not living now in the midst of the impure stream of Socialism and of Chartism? (Hear.) Thus he attempted to trace the causes of the evil, and the reasons why that evil had been gradually progressing. As it was the nature of the evil to be progressive, so also was it the nature of the remedy. We must introduce pure streams, to prevent them from being contaminated by impure waters, and then we may hope to find our original river of purity and sweetness. (Hear.) This Society shows how this is to be done. When all the grants to which he had alluded should be put in operation, they would be the means of supplying to the people nearly one hundred additional full services on the Lord's day, fifty on week-days, and sixty cottage lectures. (Hear.) But they had heard, and he grieved to think it, that ninety grants of the Society were impotently in want of labourers. Yet this did not discourage him. During the last five years particularly, the number of churches had been to the amount of about one hundred annually; and he could easily imagine that ne-fourth of the number of clergymen before employed were in consequence demanded, and these could not be immediately found. But he trusted, that in the providence of God, the supply would be increased, and that our universities would not fail to send forth those who could be sent into the field, with full confidence that they would be labourers adequate to the harvest and anxious to gather it in. (Hear.) These are the means for meeting the evils we deplore; the word of God generally distributed, the word of God preached by faithful ministers, churches built to receive those who are sought by the word of God to worship him in spirit and in truth. To these real remedies, and these alone, said his Lordship, I look for that moral renovation of the country we so much desire. (Hear, and applause.)

The Bishop of LICHFIELD seconded the resolution with great satisfaction; for he felt, on behalf of his diocese at least, a great debt of gratitude to this Society; there being at that moment thousands, he might say tens of thousands, in that populous district to whom the word of God was faithfully preached every Sabbath-day, who, but for the assistance of his Society, would have been without the means of grace, almost, if not altogether. (Hear.) But his satisfaction did not arise merely from these selfish considerations, but because he approved of the general principles on which the Society was founded, and the plans on which it was carried on. (Applause.) Those principles and plans had been, in some instances, misrepresented, or perhaps, he would rather say, misunderstood. There was an impression on the minds of many that this Society preserved to itself a kind of jurisdiction independent of the ecclesiastical authorities. Nothing could be more erroneous than that. (Hear, hear.) He would read an extract from the published synopsis of the Society:—"The Church Pastoral Aid-Society strictly regards the wants of the Church on the one hand, and the order of the Church on the other. It would make the Church efficient; it would carry the Gospel, by means of the Church, to every man's door, but it never obtrudes its aid; the incumbent must apply for aid, or sanction the application; and fill this is done, the Society cannot move. When aid is sought and granted, the parochial minister must say how it is to be employed; he must nominate the persons to be employed, as well as superintend and entirely controul them. All that the Society does is to provide for their remuneration; and while so doing, to shew satisfactory proof of their qualifications." (Hear.) Surely that refuted the accusation to which he had alluded. The only thing the Society did was to ask satisfactory proof of the qualifications of the persons or the support of whom it supplied funds. He thought if the Committee did not ask such proof, they would abandon their duty to themselves and to those who support the Society, because they were responsible for the application of its funds. (Hear, and applause.) One part of the Report required particular attention, that relating to boatmen and railroad workmen. In Staffordshire the canal proprietors were ready to lend every assistance to bring their boatmen within the sound of the Gospel, and in fact to have the means of grace carried to them; and Sunday traffic would no doubt be soon put down. (Hear.) But the difficulty was to devise a plan for gathering these people together under the teaching of a minister; perhaps, however, missionaries might be employed along the lines of those canals to do duty at two or three different stations on the Sabbath, and during the week. Any one who could devise an effective plan for the instruction of these people would be regarded as a benefactor to his country, for there were none more ignorant, or stood more in need of instruction in spiritual things than they. (Hear.) The Right Rev. Prelate then alluded to the effects in his diocese of the aid which had been afforded him by this Society, in which he stated, that among the benefits it had conferred upon that diocese, it had led to the establishment of forty regular Sunday ministries, twenty week-day ministries, and twelve cottage visitings, and all this in addition to the usual pastoral visitings. The Right Rev. Prelate concluded by seconding the Resolution.

The Resolution was then agreed to.

The Rev. W. SINCLAIR, of Leeds, moved the next Resolution,—"That this meeting, increasingly persuaded by the facts connected with the operations of the Church Pastoral-Aid Society, that the extension of Church ordinances and pastoral care is absolutely indispensable to the well-being of the land, do earnestly hope that the time is not distant when the Legislature of our Christian country shall undertake the performance of a duty which this Society, and all other voluntary efforts, must be inadequate to discharge, by making due provision for the spiritual exigencies of the population."

The Rev. H. STOWELL seconded the Resolution in a most eloquent speech.

The Rev. J. FURNIVAL (of St. Helen's), supported the Resolution.

The Bishop of RIFON then rose to propose the next Resolution, and said, that as, in consequence of an unusual pressure of business on that day, he should be compelled to quit the meeting at an early hour, he would willingly have been spared the necessity of addressing them, but that he had one strong motive for doing so, the same which had actuated the two Right Rev. Prelates who had addressed them already, namely, that of declaring the singular benefits which this Society had been the means of conferring upon the diocese over which he had the honour to preside. The Resolution was as follows:—"That while cordially concurring in the principle that a Christian state is bound duly to provide the people with the means of religious worship and instruction, yet does this meeting equally feel the obligation resting on individual members of the Church, until such national provision shall be adequately made, to exert themselves in remedying the deficiency by personal and associated efforts, and, under this conviction, would resolve with unabated zeal to promote the interests, and give publicity to the claims, of the Church Pastoral-Aid Society." With respect to the good effects which had been produced by the grants of this Society in his own diocese, he was anxious to state how largely he had profited by it. No fewer than forty-five incumbents in his diocese had received grants for curates; fifty-one had been provided for. The population which had been benefited by this increase in the number of its clergy was not less than 350,000, and the average income of the incumbents residing in it not more than 120*l*. (Hear.) With respect to the actual benefits that had resulted from these grants, he might say that in the town of Bradford, where, he believed, the population increased more than in any other town in the kingdom, the Society had made two or three of these grants, of which the effects of two were now in operation, and he had heard one of those curates commence his ministry the other day in a place where the voice of a minister had never been heard before. (Hear.) The chapel which he had consecrated was commodious; the minister was listened to with attention; and he might take that opportunity of telling them, that one artisan, after the service was over, in speaking of the advantages of a chapel having been opened there, said, "At least we must allow that yours is the cheapest Church." (Hear.) The part of the town to which he referred had been recently built, and there the Church was taking her right and proper place, and there, where a new population had been planted, had they planted with it their schools and their church, and there they had collected their congregation. (Cheers.) The Right Rev. Prelate concluded by moving the Resolution.

The Rev. CHANCELLOR RAIKES seconded the Resolution.

The Bishop of NORWICH supported the Resolution.

The Rev. J. B. MARSDEN (Rector of Tooting) proposed the fourth Resolution, "That under a solemn conviction of the inefficacy of all human exertion unaided by the gracious blessing of Almighty God, this Meeting would implore the Divine direction and favour for the Church Pastoral-Aid Society in all its operations, and especially would desire the prayers of Christians generally, for the increase of faithful men to fill the rapidly multiplying spheres which, in connexion with this Society as well as in other ways, are opening before the Church, and demanding immediate occupation."

The Rev. E. TOTTENHAM seconded the Resolution, and it was unanimously agreed to.

A vote of thanks to Lord ASHLEY and the Marquis of CHOLMONDELEY, proposed by the Rev. C. HEBERT, of Clapham, and seconded by Mr. Sheriff WHEELTON, was carried by general acclamation; and after singing a Doxology, the assembly broke up.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

(From the Church Missionary Record.)

EGYPT.

UNDER the general subject of Education we place the following communication of Mr. Lieder's, dated Cairo, January 18, 1840. It refers to a plan, in the execution of which great judgment will be required; but which, should it eventually succeed, will prove an incalculable blessing to the Coptic Church, and, through it, to the land of Egypt:—

"Before the departure of the Rev. Dr. Duff and the Rev. Mr. Grimshawe, I introduced them to the Coptic Patriarch, accompanied also by brother Krusé. After the usual salutations, I laid before the Patriarch, particularly in the name of Mr. Grimshawe, the plan of an Institution for the Education of Coptic Priests, which we should like to establish. According to this plan, twenty-four Deacons, i.e. two from each of the twelve Coptic Churches in and around Cairo, are to be received into the Institution, and there instructed in the Scriptures, in the Coptic language, in the Arabic—in which they are to compose sermons, and exercise themselves in the delivery of them—and also in general literature, as well as Church History. This plan received the sanction of the Patriarch. He himself is to be Patron of the Institution; and a Committee is to be formed, composed of a Coptic Bishop, three Priests, and six well-informed Laymen, who are to watch over it, in order to remove every suspicion from the minds of the Copts, lest we should teach any thing beyond the above-mentioned branches. We are now drawing up this plan, and shall translate it. When finished, and after the return of Mr. Grimshawe, who has since left for Upper Egypt, it is to be signed by all, and to be laid before the Patriarch, to receive his seal. As our Society seems not to possess the means for defraying the expenses of such an establishment, Mr. Grimshawe hopes, through the intervention of the Archbishop of Canterbury, to obtain the necessary funds from the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge; and not only for this Institution, but also for the translation of a Commentary of the New Testament and other books in the Arabic language. May the Lord grant His blessing upon it."

PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ENGLISH BISHOP AT MALTA.

THE Bishop of London, in his letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, which we inserted in our last Number, respecting the fund for new Colonial bishoprics, specifies "Malta," as the station of a Bishop, who might exercise a salutary superintendence over those of our clergy who officiate as chaplains in the seaports and towns upon the coast, or near the coast of the Mediterranean, and perhaps Gibraltar. "I speak with some knowledge of the circumstances, which show how desirable it is that a bishop should be placed in some of those places; having references continually made to me upon matters of great importance to the cause of religion and the Church, from English clergymen and congregations in foreign parts, which I am obliged to settle as well as I can, without any legitimate jurisdiction over the parties, and without any means of inquiring personally into the facts which form the subjects of their appeals to me. Your Grace's own experience will confirm the accuracy of this representation."

As there seems to be some doubt of the necessity of this measure, we beg to offer the following remarks, the most important of which have been derived from the communications of the Rev. C. F. Schliezn, of Malta:—

The English residents in the Levant are entitled, as members of an Episcopal Church, to the personal ministrations of a Bishop. For as the Bishop of London has forcibly observed, an Episcopal Church without a Bishop, is a contradiction in terms. The evil, however, is not confined to a contradiction in terms alone, but affects materially the best interests of the Church.

On this point our correspondent states, that "the regular discharge of the Episcopal functions is needful, on account of the residents themselves, and especially as regards the rising generation. As the rite of confirmation in our Church is administered by the Bishop alone, the young people of the English congregations in the Levant, grow up generally without ever having made their public profession of religion, and without having been confirmed in their most holy faith." This rite, and the due preparation for receiving it, are of even greater importance in those countries than here. For, surrounded as these young persons are by those of a different faith, it is evidently of the greatest consequence that they should be both well instructed, and well grounded in their own; and that they should have the full benefit of all the ordinances and the spiritual blessings, which belong to their own Church. If they have not these advantages, we ought not to feel surprised at their deserting the communion of their own Church, and joining themselves to the corruptions and idolatries of Rome. The emissaries of that church are ever on the watch, and have succeeded in a few cases in Malta, and probably in other places, in perverting some of the more ignorant of the members of our church.

The same necessity exists with regard to the Clergy of our Church in these countries. They are frequently placed in circumstances of peculiar difficulty, and are in great need of Episcopal counsel and support. The stations are so distant from each other, that there is little mutual assistance. And generally speaking, the tone of manners, and the habits of the people around them, joined to the influence of climate, have a strong tendency to damp the zeal, to depress the energies, and to lower the standard of feeling in the solitary and secluded pastor. "Removed," to use the words of our correspondent, "removed as they are from a country where the multifarious and constant exertions of Christian benevolence prove a mighty stimulus to pious feeling, and transported into regions of spiritual torpor, where the motives to religious actions are sought for in practices of superstition and fanaticism, and where even the priesthood are too frequently ignorant of the word of God, it requires the most diligent watchfulness in a clergyman to guard against the effects of this torpor upon himself: and it would be the greatest possible advantage to have the superintendence of a pious and vigilant Father of the Church, who would be able to keep up the standard of character, and of intelligence among the clergy."

The extent of the necessity may be judged of from an enumeration of the clergy, who would come under the superintendence of the Bishop.

The number of chaplains, civil and military, (which is at present grievously inadequate,) and of clergymen settled over congregations of the Church of England, who would be placed under the jurisdiction of the proposed Bishop is as follows:—Two at Malta, three at Gibraltar (two English and one Spanish), two in the Ionian Islands, and one at each of the following places:—Lisbon, Smyrna, Oporto, Athens, Constantinople, Alexandria, Trieste, Venice, Naples, Messina, Palermo, Algiers (?), Rome, Leghorn, Florence, Genoa, Nice, and Marseilles; and shortly also at Jerusalem, where a church is now building.

Besides these, there are clergymen occasionally officiating at other cities. There are also generally about ten or twelve naval chaplains in the Mediterranean fleet, who require the occasional advice of a Bishop, and who would be glad to have the opportunity of presenting the youths from on board her Majesty's ships for confirmation. There are, moreover, eleven or twelve missionaries of the Church Missionary Society, most of them in English orders, and two missionaries of the Episcopal church of America, established within the proposed limits. So that the number of clergy under the Bishop's jurisdiction, would be considerably more than that of the diocese of Sodor and Man, and we believe of some of the Irish dioceses.

And when we consider that some of the congregations would be at least a thousand miles apart, it will be evident that the oversight of the clergy thus scattered abroad would be enough, and more than enough for one Bishop to undertake. In fact, the stations of Gibraltar, Lisbon, and Oporto, with occasional visits to Cadiz, Malaga, Alicante, Barcelona, and other parts of Spain, where the intolerance of the Spanish Government prevents, for the present, the establishment of any permanent chaplain, would afford sufficient employment for a second Bishop. And thus the Bishop established at Malta, would be spared the time and hazard of the longer voyages, and would be more able to attend to the affairs of the churches and clergy in the Levant.

With regard to the missions established in the Mediterranean by societies connected with the Church of England, our correspondent observes, "You are aware that they have never been favoured with the superintendence of a bishop. Now this is a want which I deem myself warranted in saying has not only very injuriously affected the prosperity of our Church in these parts, but has even prejudiced the national character and interests of Great Britain in the eyes of the people of the Levant, who have naturally inferred from it that she cares little or nothing for the national religion; and I have no hesitation in asserting, that if measures were taken for the proper supply of this want, they would be highly conducive to the best interests both of the Church and of the State at home. In making this assertion I trust I am not passing a hasty judgment. Having spent nearly fourteen years at Malta, and having, during that time, visited most places of importance in the Levant, and kept up a very extensive correspondence, not only with many of the clergy and laity of our own Church, but also with a great variety of respectable persons both of the Eastern and Western Churches residing in the Levantine countries, I may perhaps be deemed able to give an opinion founded on experience."

"Again, it seems to be worthy of notice that our missions in the Levant are regarded by the natives and the Franks generally as national institutions, and as being connected not only with the Church but with the Government. And though most of the European agents of these missions are Germans, yet they are treated as English agents, are respected as such, and are expected to act in that capacity."

"The argument in favour of a bishop may perhaps derive additional strength from the consideration, that although the statistics of Europe are as yet but little known in the Levant, yet the people have become generally well acquainted with the fact, that the Church of England is episcopal. This, of course, tells a great deal in our favour in the sight of the Eastern Churches, and even in the sight of the public authorities of those countries who know of none other than episcopal Churches among them. But on the other hand, how defective an appearance must our missions and our Church Establishment present to them when, for reasons which they cannot understand, but which they will naturally suppose to arise from indifference or irreligion, we are never permitted to have the visitation or the residence of a bishop in the whole of the Mediterranean; whilst the missions of the Russians, the French, the Austrians, and the Roman Catholic Franks generally, are continually backed and honoured by a number of bishops, archbishops, and patriarchs."

Speaking of the importance of this measure with reference to the Oriental Church, our correspondent observes, "How depressed soever the Eastern Church may be in those parts, still the influence of the Christians over public affairs is most extensive. The Copts in Egypt are the financial managers of the Pasha's government; the Armenians in Turkey are the merchants and bankers; the Greeks are the skilful artisans and tradesmen, and the best sailors of the Levant; the Nestorians are the strong and peaceful farmers and craftsmen of Mesopotamia. Thus, independent of religion, the Christians are still the salt and marrow of the Turkish empire; and without them the body of the Turkish nation would have long since become like a corrupted and decayed carcass, ready to be devoured by the northern eagle."

But there are subjects of considerable difficulty and delicacy involved in the question of interference with these Oriental communities; and nothing more needful than the presence and direction of a bishop to regulate and guide the intercourse between the clergy of our own Church and the other churches in those countries. Unquestionably the Churches and communities of the east generally are in a condition which it is painful to contemplate, and it seems to be in our power to do much towards their improvement in knowledge; but we must not forget that they are entitled to respect our elder brethren, and require to be tenderly dealt with as being equally independent with ourselves. We can have no right to interfere with them without their consent. Almost every person capable of judging of the question now presents the attempt to force the adoption of European Protestant views upon the ancient churches of Asia and Africa would be an unwise course, even if it were justifiable. But it is evident to every eye that has looked into the subject, that much may be done by friendly counsel and friendly assistance towards improving their spiritual condition upon their principles.

Independent of the foregoing considerations there seem to be many other things relating to the Church which are urgently required, and which a new ordinary would find occasion to set on foot. As for instance, to use his endeavours to provide pastors for all those places in the Mediterranean countries where there are English residents, where they are at present without the order and ministry of their own Church; and to use the best means for securing these benefits to those who already enjoy them. The erecting and endowing of churches, the establishment of schools for their children, and the securing to them the enjoyment of the rites and privileges of an Episcopal Church, and in short whatever may be necessary for the advantage and security of congregations in the Levant: these will be the objects of his mission; and it can hardly be necessary to show that the attainment of these objects will be the most effectually secured by the exertions of a resident bishop.

With regard to the qualifications of a bishop for the Levant, we entirely concur in the opinion of our correspondent, that one of those qualifications should be, "the possession of a truly Catholic spirit, which seeks and esteems truth throughout the whole of the Catholic Church of Christ, even if it be in Churches which are most corrupt and degenerate. And again, "He will greatly need that love which is ready to deny oneself for the sake of Christ and His Church, undergoing with cheerfulness all hardships, on water and on land, for the sake of administering to the spiritual wants of those whom he is called to preside."

Nor can we refrain from joining heartily to the concluding wish, "Oh, that the voice of a pious, and active bishop of our Church may soon be heard in the Levant, and may be uttered from Gibraltar to the Bosphorus with all the firmness and holy zeal which truth may justly assume at the same time with all the urbanity, the gentleness, and the truly catholic spirit which have characterized so many of our Fathers and Bishops. I entertain but little doubt that there would be a happy response of praise and thanksgiving to God, and of acknowledgments to the Church, on the whole of the sacred string of our missions along the shores of the Mediterranean."

PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS AT DAMASCUS AND RHODES.

THE Bishop of Ripon, Lord Ashley, M.P., and Right Hon. Sir George H. Rose, M.P., and Thomas Baring, Bart., waited upon Viscount Palmerston, in Downing Street, with a memorial from the London Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, expressing in very strong and feeling language the deep sympathy of the members of the Society with the Jews of Damascus and Rhodes, for all the cruelty inflicted upon that offensive people, under charges as repugnant to the character and religion of the Jews, as it is revolting to the feelings of Christians.

Public business of a very urgent nature having prevented the interview taking place, Sir Thomas Baring, the president of the Society, transmitted the memorial to Viscount Palmerston, accompanied with a letter, stating, that whilst the friends of the London Society are anxious to promote the spiritual welfare of the people of Israel, they are deeply interested also for their temporal happiness; and the following is the very satisfactory answer received from the Foreign Secretary by desire of Viscount Palmerston:—

"Foreign-office, May 30.

"Sir,—I am directed by Viscount Palmerston to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 28th instant, enclosing a memorial from the Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews, requesting the interference of Her Majesty's Government in behalf of the Jews who have recently been persecuted at Rhodes and at Damascus; and I am directed by his Lordship to express to you his great regret that an unexpected, but pressing, matter of public business prevented him from having the honour of receiving you and the other members of the deputation of the Society at the time he had appointed.

"In reply to your letter, I am to state to you, that Her Majesty's Government will not fail to give their earnest attention to the matter to which the memorial enclosed in your letter relates; and the deputation may be assured that the influence of the British Government shall be exerted to persuade the Government at Constantinople and the Pasha of Egypt to make amends, if it be possible, to the unfortunate Jews who have suffered by the atrocities committed at Rhodes and at Damascus, and to take the necessary measures for preventing the recurrence of similar crimes.

"Instructions to this effect were, indeed, sent some time ago to Lord Ponsenby and to Colonel Hodges, and a farther communication will immediately be addressed to them.

"I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
"J. BACKHOUSE.
"To Sir Thomas Baring, Bart., &c.

The following is a copy of the memorial referred to above:—

"To the Right Hon. Viscount Palmerston, G. C. B., Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Department of Foreign Affairs.

"The humble memorial of the Patron, Vice-Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, and other members of the London Society for Promoting Christianity amongst the Jews.

"Your memorialists beg leave most respectfully to state to your Lordship, that at a very numerous meeting of the friends of the above-mentioned Society, a resolution was proposed and unanimously passed:—

"That this meeting have heard with deep regret of the cruel persecution of the Jews in Damascus and Rhodes, on account of the calumnious charge of using gentile blood in the celebration of the Passover; that they desire thus publicly to express their deep sympathy with the Jewish nation on this occasion, and that a memorial be presented to Her Majesty's Government expressive of these sentiments, and respectfully soliciting its powerful interference in behalf of the oppressed Israelites."

"Your memorialists, deploring with the strongest feelings of compassion, and deeply sympathising with the inoffensive people of Israel, suffering under unmerited and cruel torment for a crime as abhorrent to the character and religion of the Jews as it is revolting to the feelings of Christians; earnestly entreat of Her Majesty's Government to exercise its merciful interposition and powerful influence, if not to obtain redress for the already afflicted, at least to prevent the recurrence of atrocities so dreadful, and secure protection for those who, under similar calumnies and false accusations, may be subjected to similar treatment.

"THOMAS BARING, President."

LAW.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH,

SATURDAY, MAY 30.

(Sittings in Banco.)

THE QUEEN v. DR. D'O'LY.

THIS was a rule calling upon the defendant, as rector of the parish of St. Mary, Lambeth, and the churchwardens of that parish, to show cause why a mandamus should not issue directed to them, commanding them to convene a vestry meeting for the purpose of electing three churchwardens for that parish. The only question was, whether the rector, as chairman of the meeting to elect churchwardens, when a poll was demanded, had power to direct in what manner that poll should be taken.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL, MR. THESIGER, and MR. SWANN, showed cause against the rule; and Sir F. POLLOCK, MR. CRESSWELL, and MR. HAYES, were heard in support of it.

The Court took time to consider the question.

THE QUEEN v. THE JUSTICES OF SURREY.

This case arose out of the previous one, and related to the appointment of overseers of the same parish.

The same counsel were heard, and the Court took time for deliberation.

MONDAY, JUNE 1.

THE QUEEN v. DR. D'O'LY.

LORD DENMAN this morning gave judgment in this case, which was argued on Saturday. Their lordships thought the proper place to elect the churchwardens was a convenient place within the precincts of the church, and that the rector had a common right to preside, as being for ecclesiastical purposes the head of the parish, and as being the owner of the freehold of the church. Although the churchwardens were temporal officers, yet they were so far connected with ecclesiastical matters, that the rector had a right to interfere. If this point had been argued on Saturday for the first time, and there had been no authority, they would have had no hesitation in giving the same opinion; but the authorities abundantly confirmed that opinion, and the 58th of George III. was decisive: that act did not confer the right on the rector by enactment, nor was it declaratory, but it was a recognition of his right. Assuming then that he had a right to preside, it was to be considered what power that conferred upon him, and whether he had exercised his functions according to law. The 58th of George III. required notice to be given of a vestry meeting, but it did not say by whom that notice was to be given; they apprehended the rector, quid rector, was the proper person to give the notice, because he was at the head of the parish, and was to nominate one of the churchwardens. The meeting was held, and candidates proposed. Somebody must make the declaration on whom the election had fallen. The question then was, who was to do that? Certainly not the vestry, but it was the person presiding at the meeting who was to make that declaration. A poll was then demanded; the parishioners were not to consider whether a poll was to be granted—it was demandable of right, and the chairman was the person to grant it. In the absence of other business the poll would be proceeded with immediately, but otherwise there must be an adjournment. Who, then, was to adjourn the poll? They were of opinion that the person presiding, had authority to regulate the whole of the proceedings, so as to insure to the voters a reasonable opportunity of giving their votes; and the rector, therefore, might adjourn the poll in such manner as he might think proper, upon his own responsibility, and, might if he acted improperly, be called upon to answer for his conduct. An objection had been made to the rector having the casting vote, as he might in some instances nominate both churchwardens. But there was no doubt he had the right to vote as a parishioner. The rule, therefore, would be discharged.

THE QUEEN v. THE JUSTICES OF SURREY.

Lord DENMAN said the rule in this case would also be discharged.

BAIL COURT.

(In Banco, before Mr. Justice COLERIDGE.)

THE QUEEN v. THE CHURCHWARDENS OF THE PARISH OF MANCHESTER.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL applied to the Court in this case for a mandamus to the defendants, commanding them to hold a meeting for the purpose of swearing in overseers of the township. The learned gentleman stated that the present application had no connexion with the subject of the charter, as the same state of facts from which the present proceeding arose would occur if no charter had ever existed. There were in Manchester four overseers of the parish under the 43rd Elizabeth, and those four were appointed upon the 2nd of April, by the justices of the county, in accordance with that statute. In consequence, however, of the great increase of the place, and of there being several townships in the parish, a private Act of Parliament, 13 George III. cap. 81, had provided for the appointment of several overseers in addition to those which existed under the ancient law. The parties had, in addition to the four already mentioned, appointed twelve under the local Act, and had besides appointed two more, whose appointment being considered irregular had been quashed. The appointment of the other sixteen was unimpeached; but according to the third section of the statute of George III. they could not act until they were sworn in before the churchwardens of the parish, who were themselves overseers of the township, and who, in consequence of their refusal to swear in the other overseers, had the entire management of the affairs of the parish to themselves, so that there were only three overseers acting where there ought to be nineteen. There was no question in this case, as there had been in some former ones, of any clashing jurisdiction, and the Attorney General expressed his inability to conceive what answer could be given to the application.—Rule Nisi granted.

THE QUEEN, v. THE VESTRY-CLERK AND THE VESTRYMEN OF ST. LUKE'S.

MR. WARREN applied to the Court for a mandamus to the defendants, commanding them to call a meeting of the vestry and appoint two substantial inhabitants of the parish to be churchwardens for the present year. It appeared that the office in question is at present filled in consequence of an election which took place in the usual way upon Easter Tuesday last. The persons then appointed had, however, also served the office for the preceding year, and Mr. Warren contended that they were therefore ineligible by the 23rd section of the 48th George III. c. 97.

Mr. Justice COLERIDGE, upon looking into the Act of Parliament, expressed his opinion to be, that the section referred to was only intended to prevent any person from being compelled to serve the office for two years in succession. His lordship did not think that the provisions created any ineligibility, and that a party serving one year might, if elected, serve during the next year, if he thought proper to do so. The rule was therefore refused.

PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

TUESDAY, MAY 28.

ARTICLES OF THE CHURCH—LITURGY.

THE Archbishop of DUBLIN rose to present the petition, of which he had given notice last week, respecting the articles and the liturgy of the Church, signed by 60 persons, half of whom were clergymen, and all members of the established Church. They complained with respect to certain portions of the articles and liturgy, and concluded by praying that their lordships might take into consideration the means whereby the letter of the articles and the liturgy might be brought into greater consistency with the practice and the acknowledged system of the established Church. For his part, though he undertook to present this petition, he had told the petitioners that he was opposed to its prayer, inasmuch as he would never recommend to their lordships, nor to any branch of the legislature, to take any step with respect to ecclesiastical matters, except such as related to the temporalities of the Church. With spiritual matters he thought that house had no right to interfere, and this was the opinion which he expressed six years ago, when he presented a petition somewhat similar to this from the clergy of Kildare.

The Bishop of LINCOLN said, he agreed that neither this nor the other house of Parliament ought to exercise any authority in the spiritual affairs of the Church. With regard to the prayer of the petition presented six years ago, he had expressed an opinion that if any considerable portion of the members of the Church, both lay and clerical, desired and agreed in certain alterations of the liturgy and articles of the Church, then he thought it would be necessary to call a convocation together and to submit those alterations for its consideration; but he did not believe that any such desire existed in any considerable portion of the members of the Church at the present moment; on the contrary, he believed there never was a time when the great body of the clergy would more strongly deprecate any such alteration than at the present. (Hear.)

The Archbishop of CANTERBURY said, it was with the greatest satisfaction that he had heard the speech of the right rev. prelate who had preceded him. The petitioners, it appeared, desired the establishment of an ecclesiastical legislative authority to decide on matters of controversy that might arise in the Church, and he would be willing to join in any reasonable or practicable plan that could be proposed by the most rev. prelate and by any other competent person who might take the matter into his hands. Agreeing entirely with the most rev. prelate, though he did not feel it necessary at present to enter into a discussion of all the reasons which induced him to concur with him, he could not agree with that part of the prayer of the petition presented by the most rev. prelate which related to matters concerning the present state of the Church and its liturgy, neither did he think some of its statements authorised by facts. The petition stated that a deviation from the authorised version of the liturgy was so advantageous as to be sanctioned by general practice. Now, if that was a practice, it belonged, he believed, to a very small minority of the clergy (hear, hear), and it was his opinion, formed from the opportunities he had of observing, and from all he had heard, that any alteration of the liturgy, so far from satisfying, as the petition stated, the majority of the clergy, would give the greatest dissatisfaction to what might be called the general body of the clergy. (Hear, hear.) He never remembered a greater excitement to have prevailed than when the apprehension went abroad that an intention of revising and altering the formula of the Church existed. He had at that time himself presented a petition signed by 500 clergymen, and moreover three dioceses, which had not addressed him, had addressed the crown, or presented petitions through their own dioceses against the alteration. He did not intend to trouble their lordships with any further observations upon the statements contained in the petition; he would merely call their lordships' attention to its prayer, which he apprehended their lordships would not sanction or countenance in the slightest degree.

The Bishop of NORWICH said, he agreed that there were insuperable difficulties in the way of any change in the liturgy, and perhaps in the articles. Without pretending to enter into the whole subject, he would inquire how stood the question of subscription. The petition stated that there were manifest and apparent difficulties in the way of persons called upon to make the subscription. If the subscription was to be understood in its literal, strict, and stringent meaning, he thought the difficulties so great as to weigh heavily upon scrupulous and tender consciences, and to be such as to pave the way for those who had no scruples of conscience, but who would gladly avail themselves of any means to enter the Church with merely secular views. He would recommend that they should boldly and honestly meet the difficulty. It did not become the Church of England—a Church founded on liberty of conscience and right of private judgment—to say that there should not be a certain latitude of opinion; and, therefore, he must say, that by in any way expanding the sense and meaning of subscription, a boon would be granted and a great benefit conferred upon the scrupulous and tender consciences of men who would become the brightest ornaments of the establishment. In fact, with respect to subscription, he never yet met with one single clergyman who ever allowed that he agreed in every point, in every iota, to the subscription which he took at ordination. The fact was, constituted as we were with different minds, every man must have a certain latitude; and all the petitioners required was this—that that which was consented to and allowed privately might be the avowed and acknowledged sentiments of the Church at large. He did not advocate this change or that change; he did not wish to make any alteration which might not be acquiesced in by the public at large; but he did say that it was their duty to encounter difficulties, to sift those difficulties, and so to legislate as to produce those effects which change of times and circumstances imperatively demanded.

The Bishop of LONDON said it was not his intention to enter at length into the subject, nor should he have risen to offer a single remark in answer to the right rev. prelate, did he not feel that some of the observations which had escaped him were little less than a libel on the Church. (Hear.) He thought he heard him state that "our Church is founded on liberty of conscience." It was the praise of our Protestant Church that she permitted us as great liberty of conscience as was consistent with the welfare of the Church; but he (the Bishop of London) had always understood that the welfare of our Church and the welfare of the whole Catholic Church was founded on truth, and that the Church was the authorized interpreter of the truth; that she neglected her duty and delegated it to incompetent persons if she did not herself lay down the great truths of the Bible in a consistent and commendable form; but she was bound to do more than this, for that would not quite come up to the case of the articles. The subscription of the articles was required not from all the members of our Church, but from the ministers of the Church, as a security against that which would be productive of greater evils, to secure uniformity of teaching, and to prevent continual change in the instructions of men not tied down to any standard. (Hear, hear.) This was the use of the articles, and he hoped that they would never lose sight of that use. He thought the petitioners were little aware of the mischief that would result to the Church if they were to tamper with the articles. But if there were a small number of persons who wished to see alterations in the articles and the liturgy, there was an immense preponderancy of those who would strongly deprecate any alteration. (Hear, hear.) He fully comprehended the meaning of his right rev. brother when he said he would like to see some "expansion of the articles." The clergy subscribed the articles, and declared by their subscription their belief in the articles. What, then, was the "expansion" that was required? It was this—that the clergyman, when he declared that he subscribed ex animo to the articles, subscribed in any sense that he pleased. This might be dilating and expanding our articles, but it was not expansion in the sense of a prudent elasticity, which would never stretch beyond the line of truth, nor sacrifice that which was just and true to the morbid scruples of any conscience whatsoever. And, as to the scruples of conscience, he mentioned it without the slightest reservation, that the great body of our clergy signed the articles with a full belief in their truth; and so far from its being his case—his misfortune, he might say—to have met with any clergyman who had declared that he did not entirely subscribe to the articles, he never met with such a case in his life. He spoke of himself, that he should be guilty of a breach of trust if he had subscribed to articles in which he did not believe. The remedy was, if the articles were not according to religion, to alter them; but for heaven's sake do not "expand" the subscription; do not, for the sake of relieving tender consciences, adopt a system of subscription which would leave a door open to men of no conscience. (Hear, hear.) After all, what was now done? Was ever a man obliged to enter the Church? Was he not entirely conversant with what he would be liable to do from his course of previous reading, and when he came to do it, he ought to do it with a clear conscience, or not at all. That was an abundant answer. The great body of the Church was against any alteration. If one was to alter one phrase, and another another, where were they to stop? They would have a mere caput mortuum—no articles and no liturgy; they would have nothing to satisfy the consciences of men here, nor to serve as the foundation of their hopes hereafter. (Hear, hear.) He thought it desirable that something in the nature of a legislative assembly should be established in the Church, but the only difficulty was how it was to be established, and that difficulty he had never been able to solve. (Hear, hear.)

SCOTCH AND AMERICAN EPISCOPAL CHURCHES.

The Archbishop of CANTERBURY has laid upon the table of the House of Lords a bill "to make certain provisions and regulations in respect to the exercise, within England and Ireland, of their office by the bishops and clergy canonically ordained of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Scotland; and also to extend such provisions and regulations to the bishops and clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America." The following are the outlines of the bill:—Preamble, "Whereas an act was passed, 32 George III. cap. 63, 'for granting relief to persons of the episcopal communion in Scotland;' and whereas it is expedient to alter and amend the said act, and to enable the bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Scotland, and the priests of such Church canonically ordained, under certain limitations and restrictions, to perform divine service, to preach, and to administer the sacraments in churches or chapels within England or Ireland where the liturgy of the Church of England, as by law established, is used: be it enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty," &c. Clause 1 provides that Bishops of England or Ireland may permit clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Scotland to officiate in their dioceses under certain restrictions. Clause 2 enacts that certain letters commendatory are to be produced to the bishop before permission granted. Clause 3 imposes a penalty on allowing clergy of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Scotland to officiate without such permission. Clause 4 imposes a penalty on officiating contrary to the acts, save as herein mentioned. Clause 5 declares that persons ordained both by bishops of Scotland and England are not excepted from the provisions of this act. Clause 6 enacts, that the provisions of this act, as to the Clergy of the Episcopal Church of Scotland, be extended to the clergy of the Episcopal Church in the United States. (28 George III. cap. 84.)

HOUSE OF COMMONS, MAY 28.

CLERGY RESERVES, CANADA.

Lord J. RUSSELL then rose and said, that in bringing before the house the question of the clergy reserves in Upper Canada, it was not necessary for him to explain at length the various evils which had arisen in that province owing to the unsettled state of the question. He proposed that power should be given to the governor to sell or alienate in fee simple the lands of the clergy reserves. These lands and the funds arising from the sale of them were chargeable with the payment of the sums which now were distributed by the Crown to the ministers of various denominations, and to the payment of which the faith of the Crown, as Sir George Arthur had observed, was pledged. Of these the greatest sum by far was 7,000*l.* paid to ministers of the Church of England. He proposed that the whole of these sums should be defrayed out of the casual and territorial revenues, but that the charge should continue only during the lives of the present recipients. When the charge ceased, one-fourth of the proceeds of the lands should be given to the Church of England, and having been received by the Receiver General, it should be paid to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, which having the Archbishop of Canterbury at its head, and having been in the practice for more than a century of distributing funds in the colonies, seemed well suited for this duty. He proposed to give a certain portion of the money (one-fourth) to be distributed by the Presbyterian synod, representing the Church of Scotland and other classes of Presbyterians in the province. The remainder of the proceeds should be distributed to any denominations of Christians hitherto receiving any support or payment out of the revenues of the colony, or casual and territorial revenues of the Crown, for the purposes generally of religious worship and the maintenance of buildings for religious worship. He considered it entirely out of the question that the Imperial Parliament should establish either the Church of England or the Church of Scotland with any superiority over the other sects in the province.

Mr. GOULBURN wished to know whether the bill provided that the Roman Catholic clergy should receive any portion of the fund?

Lord J. RUSSELL replied in the affirmative.

PROTESTANT CHURCH AT NAPLES.

Lord PALMERSTON, in answer to a question from Mr. C. Bruce, said, that the strictness of the laws opposed some obstacles to Protestant worship at Naples. For a long course of time an apartment in the house of the Consul-General at Naples was appropriated as a chapel for British residents; and when the office of Consul-General was abolished, and a Consul with a reduced salary substituted in his place, a similar accommodation was still afforded in the house of the Consul. The room in his house, however, having been found too small, the British residents applied to the Neapolitan Government for permission to build a separate edifice as a chapel for public worship, and it was understood by them and the British mission that the Neapolitan Government had consented that such edifice should be erected, provided that its outward appearance should be free from any thing calculated to shock or annoy the feelings of the Neapolitan inhabitants. Her Majesty's Minister and the British residents proceeded with some ceremony to lay the first stone of the intended chapel, but the Neapolitan Government, acted upon by some other influence, took alarm, as he (Lord Palmerston) supposed, retracted their consent, and insisted that a stop should be put to the erection of such building. The British residents then, but without obtaining in writing the consent of the Neapolitan Government, engaged a large room in the Palazzo Calabritti as a place of worship, which, however, when fitted up, the Neapolitan Government would not permit to be opened, their consent not having been obtained. Hon. gentlemen were not, perhaps, aware that negotiations were going on between the Neapolitan and British Governments for the purpose of concluding a new treaty of commerce between the two countries. These negotiations had been suspended by the question of the sulphur monopoly; but, as that question would shortly be settled in a satisfactory manner, those commercial negotiations would be resumed, and the Government of this country would endeavour to come to an understanding with the Neapolitan Government on the subject of freedom of divine worship by British residents at Naples.

In the discussion of the Canada Bill, Mr. C. LUSHINGTON moved an addition to the proviso in the fourth clause, restraining the Crown from appointing any spiritual person to the Legislative Council.

After a few words from Lord J. RUSSELL, Mr. HUME, Sir C. GARY, and Mr. V. SARTON, the committee divided.

Harker, Catharine hall; Edward Francis Manby, Christ's coll.; Beaumont Dixie, Emmanuel coll.

William John Johnson, M.A. translated into a Frankland

Fellowship, and Matthew O'Brien, B.A. elected a Fellow on the Wortley foundation.

At the congregation on the 6th of May, the name of the Rev. Vincent Raven, Fellow of Magdalen coll. was not inserted in the list of Masters of Arts, to which degree he was admitted.

May 29, John Arthur Power, Esq. was elected a Senior Fellow of Clare hall in this university, and Thomas Caswall, Esq. B.A. a Junior Fellow of the same society.

Calus College.—In the examination for the Mickleburgh Scholarship, the first place was obtained by Charles Wright Woodhouse, B.A. In the examination in Anatomy and Physiology, the first place, to which is given an Exhibition of 10l. for three years, was obtained by Chas. John Hare.

At a congregation on Wednesday, June 3, the following degrees were conferred:—

Doctor in Physic.—George Budd, Fellow of Calus coll.
Masters of Arts.—Florance John Benson, St. John's coll.; James Caulfield Browne, St. John's coll.; John George Ramsden, St. John's coll.; Gainsborough Gardiner, St. John's coll.; Walter John Partridge, Corpus Christi coll.; Arthur Rigg, Christ's coll.

Bachelor in the Civil Law.—Charles Sladen, Trinity hall.
Bachelor in Physic.—Samuel Warren Turner, Queen's coll.
Bachelors of Arts.—Alfred Baker Strettell, Trinity coll.; Charles Richard Bradley, Queen's coll.; Edward Knighton Luscombe, Trinity hall.

At the same congregation the following graces passed the Senate:—

To confirm the following report of the Syndicate for re-letting the farm at Barton:—"That Mr. Thomas Baker, the present tenant, has agreed to hire the said farm at the yearly rent of 428s. subject to the covenants recommended by Mr. Utton, on condition that a new cottage be built at the cost of 40l. for which he will pay an additional rent of 2l. a year, and that a further sum of 30l. be expended upon a new barn floor, and for other necessary repairs." The Syndics beg leave to recommend to the Senate that the said farm be let to Mr. Thomas Baker upon the terms above specified.

To affix the Seal to a letter of thanks (written by the Orator) to H. J. Brooke, Esq. for a large and valuable collection of recent shells lately presented by him to the Woodwardian Museum.

To appoint Mr. Gibbs, of Calus coll. Deputy Taxor in the absence of Mr. Bailey.

To grant the sum of 200l. from the University Chest, in aid of the funds of the "National Society for the Education of the Poor in the Principles of the Established Church."

To pay out of the Woodwardian Fund a sum not exceeding 3,000l. for fitting up the centre room under the New Library, with the understanding that the said room be appropriated to the reception of the Woodwardian collection.

ORDINATIONS.

DIOCESE OF WORCESTER.—1840.

The Lord Bishop of Worcester will hold his next ordination at Worcester, on Saturday, the 25th of July. The Candidates are to forward their papers (prepaid) to Henry Clifton, Esq. Worcester, on or before the last day of June, and to attend at the Palace for examination at eleven o'clock on the mornings of Thursday and Friday, the 23rd and 24th of July.

At an Ordination held by the Lord Bishop of Ely, in the parish church of St. George, Hanover-square, London, on Sunday, May 31, the following gentlemen were ordained:—

Deacons.—William Maundy Harvey Elwyn, M.A. Pembroke coll. Cambridge; Edward Ansley Peck, M.A. Trinity coll. Cambridge; Robert Alfred Rackham, B.A. Jesus coll. Cambridge; Joseph Townson, B.A. Queen's coll. Cambridge; Francis Arthur Baines, B.A. Christ's coll. Cambridge; Whiteley Mallinson, B.A. Magdalene coll. Hill Jerrard, M.A. Calus coll. Cambridge.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

WITH regard to the payment of taxes and rates of a glebe house, when occupied by the curate, we find that we were in error in saying that the liability is with the rector. It appears from the following explanation, which has been kindly furnished by Mr. Hodgson, that the liability rests with the curate, but that the bishop may order the repayment of them.

"My solution of the 94th section 1 and 2 Victoria c. 106, is as follows:—

"Those taxes and parochial rates and assessments which are by law assessed upon the occupiers of houses, are payable by a curate, in respect of the house of residence belonging to a benefice, so long as he occupies the same, and can be recovered from him only; but, in any case where the curate so occupies the house, by the bishop's direction, and does not receive the whole profits of the benefice, the bishop may, if he thinks fit, order payment by the incumbent to the curate of any such taxes, parochial rates, or assessments, as the latter shall have paid within one year from Michaelmas day next preceding the date of the order.

"A curate who receives all the profits of the benefice, and occupies the house of residence thereof, is to pay all rates and taxes of every description, as well those usually paid by the landlord, as those by the occupier of a house.

"CHRIS. HODGSON."

Several correspondents have inquired whether baptisms and churchings can legally be performed in new churches and chapels without the licence of the bishop. As a general question, we should answer in the negative. But the circumstances of these churches and chapels are so various, that it is impossible to give any general answer which can be satisfactory, and we recommend in all cases that inquiry should be made of the bishop or of the archdeacon.

Bell-ringing.—We have not seen any thing of the decision of the Chancellor of Lichfield on this subject beyond a notice which appeared in some of the papers, and which seemed to be incorrect. But as that notice has been referred to by several correspondents, who desire to know what is the law upon this point, we think it right to insert the following paper, which has been sent to us by a Rural Dean of the diocese of Sarum.

Two opinions of Dr. Lushington respecting the Law relative to the regulation of Bell-ringing in Parish Churches.

CASE 1.—DAWLISH, DEVON.

"I am of opinion that all the church bells are subject to the same regulations. The bells ought not to be rung without the joint consent of the minister and churchwardens. The minister alone has not authority to order them to be rung; neither have the churchwardens alone. If the minister refuse his consent, they ought not to be rung; but I am of opinion that the consent of the minister and one churchwarden would in ordinary cases be considered a sufficient authority for ringing. In strictness, the previous consent of the minister and both churchwardens is necessary. The minister cannot lawfully direct the ringing until the consent of the churchwardens has been obtained, nor the churchwardens, until the minister's permission has been granted.

STEPHEN LUSHINGTON.

"Doctor's Commons, Jan. 18, 1821."

(A copy.)

CASE 2.—CHARLTON MACKRELL, SOMERSET.

"That the consent of the minister (whether incumbent or curate) is necessary to authorise the ringing of the bells in the church, and that the consent of either, or both the churchwardens, without the minister's consent, is not sufficient. That the consent of the minister to the ringing of the bells must always be had. If the two churchwardens differ, the consent of the minister and one of the churchwardens would be sufficient; but the consent of the minister against both the churchwardens would not justify the ringing, nor would the consent of both the churchwardens against the minister authorise it.

"That the minister has authority to limit the time of ringing, and that the ringers are bound to obey him, and that no person has a right without the consent of the minister (whether incumbent or curate) to place flags or garlands, or anything else, either in or upon the church, or in the church yard.

"STEPHEN LUSHINGTON."

(A copy.)

It was also decided in the case of Lee v. Matthews, Hansard's reports, vol. 3, p. 173, that the clergyman had, in the first instance, the right to the possession of the keys of the church, though it is clear that the churchwardens, as charged with the care of the fabric, must have a right to require admittance for the purpose of examination and repair.

METROPOLIS.

Metropolis Churches' Fund.—The annual meeting of this Society was held on Wednesday, June 3, at No. 67, Lincoln's-inn-Fields, at which the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of London presided. Amongst those present were, the Bishops of Winchester, and Gloucester, and Bristol, the Archdeacon Cambridge, the Archdeacon Wilberforce, Dean of Chichester, the Revs. Dr. D'Oyly, Dr. Spry, Dr. Major, Earl Cadogan, Lord Kenyon, Lord Ashley, Lord Radstock, Lord Teignmouth, Lord Bayning, Sir Robert Harry Inglis, &c. The Rev. Mr. Dodsworth, the honorary secretary, read the report. A series of resolutions were then unanimously carried on the motion of Sir Robert Harry Inglis, and the Archdeacon Wilberforce, the Bishop of Winchester, and Lord Kenyon, Lord Ashley, and Lord Teignmouth, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, and the Dean of Chichester. The resolutions were to this effect, "That the report be received, adopted, printed and circulated; that the thanks of the meeting be given to the Lord Bishop of London for presiding at this meeting, and for his indefatigable exertions in promoting the designs of the Metropolis Churches' Fund; that this meeting observe with great satisfaction the exertions which are making in co-operation with the committee of this fund by the public companies of London, merchants, bankers, traders, and others, towards removing the spiritual destitution of the poor and populous parish of Bethnal-green, and requests the subscribers and friends of the undertaking to exert their influence in obtaining sites in populous districts of the metropolis where churches are required, and in promoting additional subscriptions towards the general objects of the fund; that the thanks of this meeting are due and be given to the Rev. W. Dodsworth, the secretary, for his invaluable support, attention, and exertions in behalf of this fund." The Bishop of London, in his address, held out grounds for hoping that ere long the full extent of the Society's wishes would be accomplished; and besought those present, particularly the clergy, to use their greatest and most strenuous exertions in the collection of subscriptions in the furtherance of the proposed plans.

St. Saviour's Church, Upper Chelsea.—This church, which is situate near Hans-place, Sleane-street, was on Wednesday, May 27, consecrated by the Lord Bishop of London, in presence of a numerous assembly of the nobility and gentry. The church is a Gothic structure, built from the design of Mr. George Basevi. It is capable of containing 1,200 persons, and forms a conspicuous object in the neighbourhood. The collection in aid of the funds of the church was most liberal, and the assembly separated apparently deeply impressed with the interesting and solemn services of the day.

PROVINCIAL.

New Church at Ardsley, Yorkshire.—On Friday, May 22, the foundation-stone of a new church, at Ardsley, was laid by J. Micklethwait, Esq. of Ardsley House, amidst a large assembly of persons. The building will be completed with all possible expedition, and, when finished, the estimated cost amounts to 9000l. and will afford accommodation for upwards of 500 persons.

New Chapel at Martock.—On the occasion of the foundation stone of a new chapel being laid in the parish of Martock, Somerset, a large number of the farmers and yeomen of the neighbourhood voluntarily agreed to bring all the stone necessary for the building from the celebrated quarries at Ham-hill, about five miles distant. Their waggons, to the number of seventy, were loaded early in the morning, and went in regular procession to the ground, which they reached before 9 o'clock: the waggons and teams were adorned with laurels and lilacs, and the whole of the inhabitants seemed to welcome the cortège (which extended half a mile in length). Though the site of the chapel was remote from any town, and the morning was at first very unfavourable, the ceremony was attended by at least 4,000 or 5,000 persons.—Times.

Trinity Church, Plymouth.—On Tuesday, May 26, the foundation stone of the church about to be erected on a spot of ground in Southside-street, in this town, was laid by the Rev. J. Hatchard, the Vicar of St. Andrews, by whose exertions the funds (with the exception of the grant of 1,000*l.* from the Government Commissioners) for this praiseworthy undertaking were raised. The ceremony was of a very interesting and imposing character.—Salisbury Herald.

Cashibury.—The first stone of the church of All Saints was recently laid by the Earl of Essex in the presence of a vast number of spectators. The church is to be rebuilt by private contribution, aided by the Society for Promoting the Building of Churches and Chapels.

Trinity Church, Bailey, Yorkshire.—On Tuesday, May 19, the foundation stone of the above church was laid at Bailey Car, in the parish of Dewsbury, by Joshua Ellis, Esq. of High-Field.

Yorkshire.—Sir Josh. Radcliffe, Bart. of Ridding Park, has given two acres of land at Robert Town, Liversedge, for the erection of a church in that long-neglected village. The Rev. W. M. Heald, M.A. Vicar of Birstal, has also contributed very liberally. Great praise is due from the inhabitants (who are principally of the humbler class) to the Rev. Hammond Roberson, of Heald's Hall, and F. R. Jones, Esq. Huddersfield, for promoting so desirable an object.

New Church at Rawcliffe, Yorkshire.—Great inconvenience having been for some time experienced at Rawcliffe, from the confined church accommodation in the chapel at that place, there being only room in the present church for 266 persons, whilst the population exceeds 1,500, the inhabitants have determined to erect a new church to contain 700 persons, in the place of the one now standing, and subscriptions have already been received towards forwarding the above object, amounting to about 1,000*l.*

The Bishop of London has contributed 100*l.*; Hugh M'Intosh, Esq. 100*l.*; D. M'Intosh, Esq. 100*l.*; W. Cotton, Esq. 100*l.*; the Rev. Carew Sir John Mildmay, 25*l.*; and New College, Oxford, 1,000*l.* towards rebuilding the ancient chapel of St. Edward the Confessor, long used as the parish church of Romford, Essex, which has fallen into such a state of decay as to be totally unfit for the celebration of divine service. The Rev. A. Grant, the Vicar, also subscribed 100*l.*

Diocese of Salisbury.—The committee of the Diocesan Board of Education held their Quarterly Meeting in Salisbury on Tuesday. In the absence of the Rev. W. E. Hony (who was attending an ecclesiastical meeting in London), the Rev. Mr. Gambier officiated as Secretary. The following grants were made, either in aid of the erection of new schools, or to assist those in progress, viz. for Thornford, 5*l.*; for Shaftesbury, 35*l.*; for Semley, 15*l.*; for Charlton, 15*l.*; for Mere, 15*l.*; for Fonthill Bishops, 15*l.*; for Melksham, 15*l.*; for Market Lavington, 25*l.*; for Stert, 5*l.*; for Plaitford, 15*l.*; for Pitton, 15*l.* The straitened state of the funds of the Board still furnishes a subject of regret; but our readers will perceive, by the important list of places to which grants have been made that, notwithstanding its limited means, the Board is effecting much in the extension of education in connexion with the Church of England; and where the Board cannot wholly of itself supply the funds for bringing additional schools into existence, its influence and aid are leading to considerable efforts for the promotion of education on sound and religious principles.

Twickenham New Church.—A new district church is about to be erected on Twickenham common, under the patronage of her Majesty the Queen Dowager, who, although unconnected with the parish, has munificently contributed 100*l.* towards defraying the expense of the erection.

Winchester.—A meeting of the Winchester Diocesan Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts was held in this city on Tuesday, June 2. An excellent sermon was preached on the occasion by the Rev. H. Nicholson, and a collection was afterwards made at the church door, in aid of the funds of the Society.

New Church.—The foundation stone of the new church now building for the united parishes of St. Maurice and St. Mary Kalendar, Winchester, will be laid on the 18th of this month.

York Minster.—On Wednesday, May 20, a fire broke out in the south-western tower of this cathedral, which destroyed the interior of the tower and the roof of the nave as far as the centre tower. This second calamity appears to have been accidental. The amount of the damage is estimated at not less than twenty thousand pounds, and the papers state that the building was not insured.

On Tuesday, June 2, the foundation stone of a new church, to be dedicated to St. Silas, was laid in Pembroke-place, Liverpool, by the Rev. Augustus Campbell, one of the Rectors of that parish.

New Church at Sheepscar, Leeds.—On Wednesday, June 3, the ceremony of laying the foundation-stone of a chapel of ease to the parish church of Leeds, to be dedicated to St. Luke, on a plot of ground, part of the vicarage lands, on the south side of Skinner-lane, and eastward of the turnpike-road leading from Leeds to Harrogate, took place in the presence of a numerous and respectable company of spectators.

Deanery of Winchcomb Auxiliary Branch of the Gloucester and Bristol Diocesan Church-building Association.—It appears, from the Report of the Committee, that a new Church at Horsley was consecrated last October; that the new Church at Leckhampton, which was commenced under the auspices of the Society, is finished, and converted into a Proprietary Chapel under the provisions of the Act of Parliament; that the erection of a Church within the hamlets of Longford and Twigworth be immediately commenced; and that the new Church at Barton-street, in the suburbs of Gloucester, will be opened under the rules and regulations of the Diocesan Association.—Cheltenham Journal.

Devon.—Church Extension.—The Bishop of Exeter has been called, during the past week, in the discharge of his Episcopal duty, to consecrate three new Churches, erected within a few miles of each other, in this county—a circumstance, we believe, unprecedented in the annals of the diocese.

The consecration of the first took place on Wednesday, April 22. It has been erected in the hamlet of Tipton, in the northern extremity of the large parish of St. Mary Ottery. The Judge, the Bishop, and other members of the Coleridge family, together with Sir J. Kennaway, the Lord of the Manor, have largely contributed towards the funds.

On Thursday the Right Rev. Prelate proceeded to Sidmouth, and consecrated the handsome new Church erected in that town. An excellent and appropriate Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Simcoe, of Penhele, Cornwall. The Prayers were read by the Rev. S. Lee, the Curate of the parish. There were present, the Rev. W. Jenkins, Vicar, the Rev. Archdeacon Moore, and most of the neighbouring clergymen. The attendance was numerous and highly respectable.

The third church, in the consecration of which his Lordship was engaged on Friday, has been erected on the domain of Escot, near Ottery, by Sir John Kennaway. Many of the leading nobility and gentry of the county, with their families, were present.—Bristol Standard, May 7.

St. Andrew's Chapel, Plymouth, National and Sunday Schools.—The Rev. Robert Lampen, Minister of St. Andrew's chapel, having, through the liberal donation of 100*l.* by the late Joseph Pridham, Esq. and the contributions, at various times, of the congregation of the chapel, obtained a sufficient sum for erecting school-rooms, the foundation of a building for that purpose was laid in the ground adjoining the chapel on the 1st of May last, by Henry Woolcombe, Esq. The following inscription was deposited beneath the stone:—"This foundation stone of the National schools of St. Andrew's chapel, Plymouth, for the education of children in the principles of the Anglican Branch of Christ's Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church, was laid on the festival of St. Philip and St. James, May 1, in the year of our Lord God 1840, by Henry Woolcombe, Esq., the Rev. Robert Lampen, M.A. being the Perpetual Curate of the chapel; the Rev. Richard Luney, M.A. Assistant Curate; Mr. George Wightwick, architect; and James Marshall, of Plymouth, builder; in the hope that many of the lambs of Christ's flock may here be taught to follow the good Shepherd, and be led by his appointed ministers to seek the strengthening and refreshing of their souls through the faith once delivered to the saints." The school-rooms will each be capable of containing about sixty children. The schools are in strict connexion with the Exeter Diocesan Board for carrying out the designs of the National Society.

Gravesend District Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.—On Wednesday the 6th of May, a numerous and most respectable meeting was held in the town-hall, in aid of the above Society. W. M. Smith, Esq. of Camer, took the chair. The Secretary, Dr. Joynes, in reporting the progress of the District Society during the past year, stated that the subscriptions and donations had increased from 3*l.* 11*s.* in 1838, to 66*l.* 14*s.* in 1839, and that there were now 30 annual subscribers. The several resolutions were moved and seconded by the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, the Rev. Messrs. Johnston, Stokes, Hindle, Parnell, and Tate, the Rev. Ernest Hawkins, Secretary to the Parent Society, the Rev. R. W. Kyle, R. H. Beaumont, Esq., W. Brown, Esq., and H. Ditchburn, Esq. The collection at the close of the meeting amounted to 28*l.* 4*s.*, and several new subscribers were announced.

Leckhampton new Church.—On Friday, 1st May, the new church of St. Philip and St. James, at Leckhampton, adjoining Cheltenham, was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, and on the following Monday his Lordship was pleased to license the Rev. James Esmond Riddle, M.A. upon his nomination by the Revs. C. B. Fryer, M.A., John Edwards, M.A., and C. H. Watling, B.D. the trustees, to be minister of the said church.

Dorset.—It affords us great gratification to announce, that during the past week the Lord Bishop of the diocese has consecrated three new Churches in the Archdeaconry of Dorset.

COLONIAL.

Canada.—The Lord Bishop of Montreal returned to town on Monday evening last, having been absent nine weeks on his visitation of the districts of Montreal, St. Francis, and Three Rivers. During this winter tour, his Lordship held confirmations at 38 parishes or preaching stations, admitted four candidates to holy orders, and consecrated two churches, one at Upper Durham on the river St. Francis, and one at Mascouche, in the county of Lachenaie; this latter having been mainly erected through the exertions of the Hon. J. Pangman, seigneur of that place. We are happy to learn that his Lordship, who is in excellent health and spirits, was everywhere received with the most hearty and affectionate welcome, and had abundant cause to be thankful for an increasing interest in the things of God. In proof of this we may mention that twelve new churches are at this moment projected or in progress of erection; that of the confirmations holden, many were in places in which that rite had never before been administered; and that amongst the people generally there is a growing disposition to appreciate the services of the Church, and to "hold fast the form of sound words."

It is painful to reflect that where the harvest is so promising the labourers are so few! and although four or five additional clergymen may be expected from home, on the opening of the navigation, still if twenty more could at once be procured, there would not be wanting for them a ready and ample sphere of usefulness and decent means of support.

Jamaica.—Amongst the various important measures adopted by the Assembly of Jamaica, and which, in the language of the Governor, have "eminently manifested their approved loyalty to the Queen, and their earnest desire to meet the views of her Majesty's confidential advisers," we refer with the greatest satisfaction to the further means they have afforded for extending religious instruction. The annual average expenditure which is solely defrayed by Jamaica for its church and school establishments, exclusively of parochial grants, amounts to upwards of 53,000*l.* In the session which has just closed, the act to provide for the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the bishop having been brought under their consideration, the Assembly availed themselves of that occasion to increase the number of the clergy of the established church, and they accordingly made provision for 21 additional curates; the Assembly have also, both with the view of placing the curates already in the island on a more respectable footing, and of facilitating the endeavours of the Bishop of Jamaica to enlarge the clerical establishment, increased their stipend from 500*l.* to 650*l.* per annum. The Assembly, deeply impressed with the paramount importance of providing for the religious education of the lower orders, have also granted 500*l.* to each parish to aid them in erecting additional places of worship, independent of three grants to the Church Missionary Society and grants to the members of the Scotch church, the Roman Catholics, and the Wesleyans. The total amount of the additional expenditure which the Assembly has incurred in these particulars exceeds 29,000*l.*; thus making the annual expenditure defrayed by the colony for religious instruction, exceed 80,000*l.*—Times.

FOREIGN.

Rome.—A letter from Rome of the 13th states, that the Pope seriously contemplated the conversion of Great Britain, and that he had with that view divided the country into eight apostolical vicarages, for each of which a bishop or apostolical vicar had been provided. He has sent to the Earl of Shrewsbury the following letter.

"POPE GREGORY XVI.

"TO OUR BELOVED SON, JOHN, EARL OF SHREWSBURY, PRESIDENT OF THE CATHOLIC INSTITUTE OF GREAT BRITAIN.

"Beloved son, health and apostolical benediction,—Whilst filled with sorrow on account of the ever increasing calamities of the church of Christ, we have received such abundant cause of gladness, as has not only relieved us in the bitterness wherewith we were afflicted, but has excited in us more than ordinary joy, for we have been informed that by the care of yourself, and other noble and pious men, the Catholic Institute was, two years ago, established in Great Britain, with the design especially of protecting the followers of our Divine faith in freedom and security, and, by the publication of works, of vindicating the spouse of the immaculate Lamb from the calumnies of the heterodox. Since therefore these purposes tend in the highest degree to the advantage of the English nation, you can easily understand, beloved son, the reason why such joy should have been felt by us, who have been, by Divine appointment, constituted the heirs of the name and chair of that Gregory the Great, who, by the torch of the Catholic faith, first enlightened Britain, involved in the darkness of idolatry. We are encouraged to entertain the cheering hope that the light of Divine faith will again shine with the same brightness as of old upon the minds of the British people. We desire nothing with greater earnestness than to embrace once more with paternal exultation the English nation, adorned with so many and such excellent qualities, and to receive back the long lost sheep into the fold of Christ. Wherefore, beloved son, we cannot refrain from strenuously exhorting you, and all the members of the pious association over which you preside, to offer up fervent prayers with us to the Father of Mercies, that he would propitiously remove the lamentable darkness which still covers the minds of so many dwelling unhappily in error, and in His clemency bring the children of the Church, who have wandered from her, back to the bosom of the mother whom they have left.

"Meanwhile, to you and to all your countrymen who belong in any way to the Catholic Institute we most affectionately impart our apostolical benediction.

"Given at Rome, at St. Peter's, on the 19th day of February, 1840, the tenth of our pontificate,

"GREGORY P. P. XVI."

A letter from Jerusalem says:—"The building of the Protestant chapel proceeds rapidly. For the present a house is hired. The English Church liturgy is translated into Hebrew, and printed, and the missionary Nickolayson performs divine service with his assistant Pient. Of 400 Jews, 100 have embraced Christianity. An institution for converts has been established by the English Missionary Society, and a Hebrew Prayer-book is to be published. The English Consul endeavours to engage the Jews to cultivate the land of their fathers, under the favour of Mehemet Ali, and considerable quantities of land have been purchased for foreign emigrants. It is said there is somewhere a Talmudic saying, that when there shall be 25,000 Jewish inhabitants in the Holy Land, the laws and regulations must be again enforced which prevailed when Palestine was a Jewish state. The Rabbis in Turkey are endeavouring to complete the above number by colonists, which doubtless will not be difficult under the powerful protection of England. Some rich Jews in London and Italy intend to establish factories and manufactories in Jerusalem and some other considerable towns under the protection of England. NEXT PRESENTATION to a living in Suffolk to be disposed of, the tithes of which are commuted; the income is about 540*l.* per annum, including the house; the incumbent is in his 68th year.

For particulars of either of the above, apply (if by letter prepaid) to Mr. Robinson, Surveyor, Auctioneer, and Agent for the Valuation and Transfer of Ecclesiastical Property and for the Commutation of Tithes, No. 11A, Hart Street, Bloomsbury Square. [837]

AN INCUMBENT of a LIVING, two miles North of London, wishes to EXCHANGE DUTIES with a Beneficed Clergyman, residing at or very near the Sea-side, for two or three months during the Summer or Autumn.

Further Particulars may be heard by an address to A. B., Mr. Driver's, Post Office, Stoke Newington. [702]

CLERICAL.

NEXT PRESENTATION, which is expected to be early, to a small living of about 200*l.* per annum, in the West of England. There is a small house, and small population.

NEXT PRESENTATION, with prospect of early possession, to an Incumbency in the North of England, offering an extensive sphere of usefulness for a faithful and experienced Minister of the Gospel. A most capital house and moderate income.

CURACY and TUITION. The Incumbent of a desirable parish in Norfolk is desirous of meeting with a married Clergyman to assist in the duties of the parish, and also to give Tuition to his children.

CURACY. Duty for five or six months at a small parish in the West of England, for which a well-furnished house, productive gardens, and use of servants, would be considered sufficient remuneration.

Apply, if by letter (prepaid), to Mr. R. Valpy, Clerical and School Agency Office, 36, Bedford Street, Strand. [829]

EXCHANGE.

A BENEFICE, with an excellent House, Offices, Garden, and Land, worth 400*l.* a year, in a peaceful part of Ireland, would be EXCHANGED for an appointment in England, Wales, Scotland, or the Colonies.

Apply, stating particulars, to John Fitzgerald, Esq., Solicitor, 62, Lower Bagin Street, Dublin. [703]

TO BE SOLD BY PRIVATE TREATY.

THE NEXT PRESENTATION to a desirable INCUMBENCY, in the East Riding of Yorkshire, a short distance from Hull.

The Glebe consists of a comfortable Parsonage House, and about 114 Acres of Land in the vicinity, yielding an income of between 200*l.* and 300*l.* per annum.

The neighbourhood is respectable and healthy—the population about 1000, and the present Incumbent is 75 years of age.

Further application to be made to Barr, Lofthouse, and Nelson, J., Park Row, Leeds. [751]

CHURCH CHANDELIER.

TO BE SOLD, on moderate terms, an Elegant CHURCH CHANDELIER of Brass, capable of holding thirty-six candles, and well calculated for a church where Gas is not required.

TO BE SOLD, with the prospect of very early Possession,

THE PERPETUAL ADVOWSON of a RECTORY, situated in a favourite County, distant from London 65 miles, and near the rail-road, and within an easy distance from the sea. The present income is nearly 700*l.* per annum, including a small Freehold Estate surrounding the Rectory, with a quantity of fine Timber growing thereon. The Tithes are commuted, and the Curacy may be immediately obtained.

To treat for the same, and for particulars, apply to 45, Paternoster Row, London. [739]

CHURCH PREFERMENT WANTED.

WANTED TO PURCHASE, with prospect of very early possession, in a healthy Country with good neighbourhood, an ADVOWSON, of the yearly value of from 450*l.* to 600*l.*

Address E. E., Esq., care of Mr. Graham, Bookseller, Oxford. [752]

CHURCH PREFERMENT WANTED.

WANTED to purchase, an ADVOWSON, of the yearly value of from 300*l.* to 500*l.*, with a good house and moderate population, near a market town in a healthy country (the West of England preferred), with prospect of early possession.

Address (prepaid), with full particulars, G. T. 52, High Street, Mary-le-bone. [831]

EXCHANGE OF PREFERMENT.

THE INCUMBENT of a Living of 400*l.* a year on the Suffolk Coast, with a good House in a healthy Village, being desirous of exchanging it for one situated inland in the same county or the best part of Essex, would make a sacrifice of income. A Living of 300*l.* a year, where the population is not large, with a suitable House, would not be objected to. None but principals attended to.

Letters (prepaid) addressed to the Rev. M. T., care of Mr. Alexander, Stationer, Great Yarmouth, Norfolk. [824]

CANTERBURY DIOCESAN BOARD OF EDUCATION.

THIS Society is about to appoint a Gentleman in Holy Orders as Principal of the Training Institution for Schoolmasters at Canterbury. His duties will include the superintendence of a Commercial and Model Schools, and he will have under his direction a Commercial Schoolmaster, by whom the training Pupils will be boarded. Salary, 250*l.* per annum, without a house. The situation will not be considered compatible with any parochial cure.

Applications for particulars may be made to the Rev. W. Vallance, Patricbourne, Canterbury. [796]

TO THE MANAGERS OF RELIGIOUS PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS.

A CLERGYMAN, of Evangelical sentiments, who has been for several years engaged in tuition, desires to relinquish it, chiefly because it interferes with the duties of an important station in the ministry. He would therefore be glad to obtain some literary employment congenial with theological studies, and not requiring a change of residence. The Advertiser would be satisfied with remuneration much below what arises from his present occupation, and could give such time as would enable him to discharge efficiently what he might undertake.

Address (prepaid) T. T., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office, Southampton-street, Strand, London. [777]

THE CLERGY.

A HIGHLY RESPECTABLE BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, exempt from Residence, would be happy to undertake the charge of a Parish where the Incumbent may desire a temporary or permanent absence. A comfortable residence, or where one can be hired, is indispensable, and would be considered in part of stipend. The most unexceptionable reference can be given.

Address (prepaid) to B. Y., care of Henry Smith, Esq., Ecclesiastical Gazette Office. [825]

A CLERGYMAN would be willing earnestly and carefully to perform the duties of a large or small Parish on the Sea-coast for three or four weeks, and would correspond with any Incumbent who would promise in return a satisfactory discharge of the duties of a Church near London. The Advertiser would in such case wish to exchange the use of house and servants, or he would grant the occupation of his own large Parsonage, elegantly furnished, looking on the Thames, with Garden and Shrubbery, to a Clergyman who would undertake faithfully to perform the duties of the parish for a month.

Address (prepaid) Rev. M. A., Oxford and Cambridge Club, Fall Mall. [795]

WANTED, by a Graduate of Cambridge, of Evangelical sentiments, who was high in the Second Class of the Classical Tripos, this year, a CURACY, with a Title to Orders, and where he can take the charge of two or three Pupils. Unexceptionable references and testimonials can be given.

Address H. H., No. 8, Wharton-street, Lloyd Square, Pentonville, London. [842]

A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, who requires a change of air for the health of his family (consisting of two ladies), is willing to undertake the charge of a small parish for the month of August, on the southern coast, in return for the use of a comfortable furnished house. [838]

Direct to E. W., Post-office (prepaid), Reading, Berks.

WANTED for Two Months from the beginning of August, a zealous, active Clergyman, to share in the duties of a large Country Parish. The Advertiser offers a comfortable well-furnished House, in a beautiful and healthy neighbourhood, with use of Garden and Servants. Children would be objected to.

Apply Rev. H. S., Newland, near Monmouth. [762]

WANTED TO EXCHANGE A WELSH BENEFICE, delightfully situated near Swansea, value 170*l.* per annum, for a PARISH or CHAPELRY having Divine Service in English. No income, however inferior in England or Wales, will be objected to. [819]

Address (prepaid) A. B., Heath's Cottage, Strood, Kent.

CURATE WANTED.

AN active CLERGYMAN to take the charge of a Parish in a midland county from August until April; population 900; stipend at the rate of 135*l.* per annum. A furnished house, suited for a small family, with the use of two servants, may be had in the village. The Railway station within a quarter of a mile. [889] Direct, Rev. B. S. (prepaid) Post Office, Loughborough.

A CLERGYMAN, resident on his living in Norfolk, but, owing to the illness of one of his daughters, obliged to move to a milder part of England, is desirous of hearing of a CURACY, with a House upon it, in or near a good Town. Stipend not so much an object as a warm, dry situation. The Advertiser would have no objection to effect an EXCHANGE of his living, could he do so advantageously.

All letters to be addressed to A. B., Post-office, North Walsham, Norfolk. [732]

AN ASSISTANT CURATE, of sound Church of England Principles and of unaffected Piety, who wishes to be usefully employed in the ministry, who has a good voice, and has proved himself acceptable as a preacher, will be WANTED about Michaelmas next in a parish where a New Church is being built in a Midland Town. The stipend will be small, only 50*l.* certain; but the situation offers peculiar advantages to a Clergyman who may wish to educate his sons at an excellent Grammar School.

Apply to the Publisher of the Ecclesiastical Gazette. [734]

CURACY WANTED.

AN UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN, a Graduate of Oxford, who has been upwards of nine years in Holy Orders, and whose voice is equal to the largest church, wishes to obtain a COUNTRY CURACY. The Counties of Norfolk or Suffolk would be preferred. He is orthodox in doctrine, and of sound Church principles. The entire superintendence of a Parish would be preferred. The most satisfactory references can be given.

Address (prepaid) to the Rev. C. Dowding, Great Bircham, Rougham, Norfolk. [740]

A CLERGYMAN, in Priest's Orders, who can offer very satisfactory testimonials, is anxious to obtain a CURACY in Kent. The neighbourhood of Maidstone or Canterbury would be preferred.

Letters (prepaid) addressed to F. W., Office of Ecclesiastical Gazette, Southampton-street, Strand, London. [755]

WANTED, by the Incumbent of a populous Chapelry, an additional CURATE, who will have the sole charge of a Township containing upwards of 5000 inhabitants. No Title given. Testimonials and references required, from which the orthodoxy, piety, and energy of the applicant may be ascertained. Stipend 90*l.* per annum. Address, the Rev. W. Hutchenson, Parsonage, Newton Heath, Manchester. [763]

A MARRIED CLERGYMAN, of sound Church views, and willing to devote himself wholly to the care of a Parish, and who held his last Curacy for several years, wishes to hear of an Engagement. A small House is particularly desired.

Apply (prepaid) to A. A., Swale's Library, Great Russell-street. [769]

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN, of some standing and experience, and who can give the most respectable references, desires to obtain a CURACY. Stipend not so much an object as a desirable sphere of duty and situation. The counties of Derby or Stafford would be preferred.

Address (prepaid) Rev. T. T., Post-office, Derby. [763]

WANTED, by a MARRIED CLERGYMAN, a CURACY in the Country, with a Furnished House, for any period not less than three months, and where the population does not exceed 700.

Apply by letter (prepaid) to M. A. at Mr. Cleaver's, 80, Baker-street, Portman-square. [797]

CURACY WANTED.

A GENTLEMAN, of sound Church principles, independent, and in Priest's Orders, wishes to take the Duty of a CURACY or CHAPEL, South or West of London, for a definite or indefinite period. One with the use of the Parsonage-house would be preferred.

Address (prepaid) to A. B. No. 20, Lower Elizabeth street, Eaton-square. [800]

TEMPORARY CLERICAL ASSISTANCE REQUIRED.

AN INCUMBENT, who intends taking his family to the Sea-side for about two months from the middle of July, wishes to have his place supplied, during that period, by an active and conscientious Clergyman, whose references are satisfactory. Furnished Lodgings, and Two Guinea a week, is the proposed remuneration.

Address to H. R. at Mr. West's, Jeweller, No. 3, Ludgate-street, St. Paul's. [785]

CURACY WANTED.

A CLERGYMAN, B.A. in Full Orders, whose sentiments are moderate, being about to leave his Cure, on the 21st instant, to one of the largest churches in London, would take the whole or part of the responsibility of a Country Town Parish. Plymouth, Liverpool, or any other Sea-port would be preferred. The highest testimonials can be obtained.

Address (prepaid) to L. M. 53, Parliament-street. [817]

CURACY WANTED.

AN UNMARRIED CLERGYMAN is anxious to meet with a CURACY in the diocese of Lincoln, upon which he may enter in July or August. Testimonials unexceptionable.

Address (prepaid) Rev. Y. Z., Post-office, Colchester.

CURACY WANTED.

WANTED immediately, a CURACY in the Diocese of York. The Advertiser, who is just disengaged from the duties of a Town Curacy, is of strictly Orthodox sentiments, and can give most satisfactory references and testimonials. A preference would be given to a town.

Address (prepaid) T. T. L., Post-office, Selby. [827]

CURATE OR TUTOR.

A CLERGYMAN, educated at Eton, a Scholar of Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduate in Mathematical Honours, for some time a Master in a public School, and shortly about to terminate his engagement as Tutor in a family going abroad, wishes to obtain a CURACY, with which he could combine the Tuition of a few Pupils intended either for the Public Schools or Universities. A Mastership in an endowed Establishment, where Clerical duty might be added on the Sabbath, would be willingly accepted. Testimonials will be offered from some of the most distinguished Scholars of the day.

Address (prepaid) to Rev. A. B., Mr. L. Cook's, Book-binder, No. 1, Maiden-lane, Covent-garden, London. [820]

WANTED, as CURATE, in a large Agricultural parish in the Diocese of Salisbury, a gentleman of active habits, with a voice equal to a large Church. If desirable, a title can be given, in which case the stipend will be 80*l.* a-year for the first three years. To a gentleman who has been three years in orders the stipend will be 100*l.* a-year. Either lodgings or a house may be rented in the village. The Incumbent is resident. An interview will be desired before any appointment is made.

Letters, giving a statement of opinions, time of Ordination, Age, University, College, and School, with references for testimonials, to be addressed (prepaid), To the care of Mr. Swayne, Bookseller, Shaftesbury. [814]

A CLERGYMAN, in Full Orders, is desirous of undertaking the Duty of a Church or Chapel in Town or its immediate neighbourhood during the Summer months, or for a permanency.

HANDFORD & DAVIES, 61, HIGH HOLBORN.

The Clergy are respectfully invited to an inspection of these instruments, which will be found the best and cheapest of the kind yet manufactured. The main defects in the old instruments are, the uncertainty of the keys passing correctly over the pins arising from the brass bolt-work, which, however well manufactured, soon becomes rickety and imperfect in its action; the unavoidable damage to the clogged heads of the barrels in passing them under the brass worm every time they are changed (from these causes alone the hobbling performance of the tune, so frequent in the ordinary barrel-organ, arises), the liability of damage to the pins on a barrel when changed; the noise occasioned by bolt-work at every change of tune, and the inconvenience and, in some instances, the impossibility of changing the barrels during divine service, in which case the range of tunes under command is so limited that, with the greatest care in the selection and distribution of the various metres to be set on the barrels, a change of them is almost always necessary in each service; for instance, in many churches it is the custom to commence with the Morning Hymn, and when this is the case, the barrels must be frequently changed, or none but the limited collection of tunes on one barrel will ever be heard during the service.

JOHN GRAY has, by his invention, removed all these defects so long complained of in the ordinary barrel-organs, and the truth of which every possessor of one will readily acknowledge. The annexed section will best explain the improvements.

The spindle of the iron frame D, being cut with an endless screw, a single revolution of it changes the tune on each barrel from the first to the second, and so on in succession, to the whole extent of them (thirty in number), a contrary revolution will, of course, produce a return to the first or any intermediate tune that may be desired, its number being ascertained by reference to an index on each barrel. No bolt-work whatever is necessary; and every change either of tune or barrel, is effected with perfect silence and the greatest ease. Upon raising the worm A, it is immediately arrested by a self-acting sling, and there held until relieved by the finger of the barrel turner after he has changed the tune or barrel, and at no time does any necessity arise for touching any part of the barrels with the hand; the possibility of damage to the pins (unless wilfully done) is therefore wholly removed.

Uniformity of plan enables JOHN GRAY to supply these instruments at even less cost than the ordinary barrel-organ, the whole of the mechanism being comprised in one package, and may be set up without the assistance of an organ builder, a matter of no little consideration when required at a distance from the Metropolis. The instrument is wholly independent of an external case, which may, if preferred, be made in the country.

The same unerring principle is applied to an organ of a higher class, for both Finger and Barrels.

CORPORATION of the AMICABLE SOCIETY for a PERPETUAL ASSURANCE OFFICE, incorporated by Charter of Queen Anne, A.D. 1706.

SERJEANTS' INN, FLEET-STREET, LONDON.

Directors.
James Mountague, Esq.
John Newton, Esq.
Walker Skirrow, Esq. Q.C.

Cobbett Derby, Esq.
W. M. Threlton Dyer, Esq.
William Everett, Esq.
John Hodgson, Esq.

The Corporation of the Amicable Society is the oldest Institution in existence for granting Assurances on Lives.

Every person on whose Life an assurance is effected for one or more Shares, becomes a Member of the Corporation, and entitled, immediately upon his admission, to unreserved participation in the whole of the advantages arising from the long standing and accumulated Capital of the Society.

The distinctive feature of the plan adopted by the Society is the Equal Distribution, Share for Share, of the whole of the Profits among the Representatives or Nominees of the deceased Members, without reference to the length of time during which the Policy may have been in force.

No Commission is allowed to Agents, and the affairs of the Corporation are managed at the least possible expense; the Profits are therefore the utmost the Premiums taken admit of.

Persons whose Lives are assured with this Corporation may travel to or from, or reside in, any part of Europe without paying any additional Premium.

Assurances for Terms of Years, or on Joint Lives or Survivorships, may be effected with the Society, either for specified sums without participation in the annual profits, or for Shares with participation, at the option of the Parties.

The assured may arrange to pay their Premiums either by single payment, by annual payments during the whole continuance of the Assurance, or by annual payments during a limited number of years only. [709]

John Taylor, Esq.
John Travers, Esq.
George Vaughan, Esq.

The Directors hereby give notice to Members whose Premiums fall due on the 5th of July next, that the same must be paid within thirty days from that date.

The Premiums are payable yearly, half-yearly, or quarterly, on the 5th of January, 5th of April, 5th of July, and 5th of October, either of which several days constitutes the commencement of the year to Members. Persons, therefore, desirous of entering the Society, as Members, on the 5th of July next, should appear at the Office on or before that day.

The above shows a result admitting of advantageous comparison with any other institution for Life Assurance. All Members' Assurances effected during the year 1835 and the early part of 1836, have received the above rate of abatement, which has been made upon data justifying a confident expectation that the same reduction at least will be continued to those Members, and that all others, after having paid five annual premiums, will become entitled to an equal abatement.

NOTICE AND APPEAL TO THE CHRISTIAN PUBLIC.

IN the year 1835-6, a small sum of 430*l.* was raised by subscription amongst the benevolent of the mother country, for the purpose of building a Protestant Episcopal Church in the interior of the Township of Marche, Upper Canada, with the hope at the same time of its affording free seats to many families residing on the borders of the surrounding settlements. But on a nearer acquaintance with the topography of the country, the Rev. Mr. Padfield, then Rector of Marche, and Major-General Lloyd, who acted as secular Trustees, saw that the benefit to be derived would by no means be so extended as had been contemplated, in consequence of the distance the poor of Huntley would still be from the place of worship. It was, therefore, proposed by them, and most cheerfully acceded to by the emigrants themselves, that the farmers of both the above-named settlements should add their mite to the fund in hand, and, by so doing, enable the committee to erect in each place a handsome stone church 50 by 30 inside. That at Huntley, called Christ Church, was opened on the 10th of Feb. 1839, by the Rev. Wm. Harper, to a congregation of upwards of 300 persons. And one of the same dimensions, to be dedicated to St. John, is now in rapid progress on the site originally intended for it at Marche, which will afford the promised accommodations to the poor of the adjoining townships of Gouldburn and Napieau. But the emigrants have, by their praiseworthy advances towards the accomplishment of this design, put it totally out of their own power to render the assistance which was reckoned on from them, in the proposed erection of a Parsonage House. The recently appointed rector is consequently without a shelter of any sort in which to put his family.

The Christian public are thus once more called upon, and most earnestly solicited, to lend their aid in promoting the completion of this good work so happily begun.

The Rev. Wm. Harper and Major-Gen. Lloyd, whose residence on the spot will secure the temporalities, such as building, &c. being properly attended to, have been appointed Trustees, and have requested to have a book opened for subscriptions at the Bank of Messrs. Hoare and Co. 37, Fleet-street, London, where donations will be most thankfully received in behalf of "A Glebe House, to be built in the Township of Marche, Upper Canada." [718]

SEVENOAKS UNION.—CHAPLAIN WANTED.

THE GUARDIANS of the SEVENOAKS UNION are desirous of receiving Applications for the Office of Chaplain of their Union Workhouse. Candidates must be in Priest's Orders, and the Duties required may be known on application to the Clerk of the Board. Salary 100*l.* per annum, payable quarterly.

Applications, with testimonials, to be forwarded to the Clerk any time before the meeting of the Board on Thursday, the 18th of June next, at noon, when the same will be taken into consideration. By order of the Board, [787]
THOMAS CARNELL, Clerk.

CAMBRIDGE REFUGE; for affording to Females who have been leading a sinful course of life, and express a desire of returning to the path of Virtue, a temporary Refuge.

Managing Committee.

Rev. G. COULCHER, A.M.
Rev. FRED. ROSE, A.M.
Rev. PROFESSOR SCHOLEFIELD, A.M.
Rev. GEO. SPENCE, LL.B. Treasurer.

This Institution has now been established about a year and a half, during which period its friends have been cheered, amidst some discouragements, with indications of success beyond their hopes. The present Premises, engaged at first for a temporary experiment, are now inconveniently filled; and it has become absolutely necessary to provide enlarged accommodation to meet the cases which are presented from time to time to the Committee. In these circumstances the Committee have been encouraged by a munificent anonymous donation of Two Hundred Pounds, to venture on the purchase of a very eligible site for building, immediately adjoining the new Church at Barnwell, so as to allow of the inmates regularly attending upon public worship without exposure to public observation. With much thankfulness for the success which has attended the commencement of their anxious undertaking, and desiring to proceed in faith and hope in its enlargement, they make an earnest appeal for pecuniary aid to those who have formerly been connected with the University of Cambridge, and to all who feel concerned for immortal souls perishing in sin, that they may be enabled to complete the purchase of the ground, and to proceed without delay to the erection of the Building.

Amount of Subscriptions already advertised, £382 13s.

LETTERS to a DISSENTING MINISTER, of the Congregational Independent Denomination, containing Remarks on the Principles of that Sect, and the Author's Reasons for leaving it and conforming to the Church of England. By the Rev. M. A. GATHERCOLE.

"A publication which I recommend as containing a great deal of useful information and sound reasoning, set forth with a little too much sharpness of invective against the Dissenters."—Bishop of London's Charge, 1834. First Edition, p. 54.

Extrad from a Letter lately received by the Author from a Gentleman in the Country:—

"Rev. Sir,—Allow me to say I am indebted to your 'Letters to a Dissenting Minister,' for my conversion from Dissent to that Church which I formerly opposed, but now love. When I first fell in with your letters, I frequently opened the book, but a few words were sufficient to satisfy me—the book was laid down again and again till at length I was somewhat shaken. I now made up my mind to examine it thoroughly, and before I had read many letters, I was obliged to confess (although at first with delicacy), that I was a Churchman, and the more I see of the Church, and examine her services, &c. &c., the more I love her, and I bless God that I was led to the personal of your letters."

Lately published,

A HISTORICAL ATLAS; being a Series of Maps of the World, as known at different Periods; constructed on the same Scale, and coloured so as to exhibit the successive Changes of Empire. With a connected Narrative accompanying each Map, so as to afford a complete View of Universal History. By E. QUIN, M.A. of Magdalen Hall, Oxford, and Barrister-at-Law of the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inn. Second Edition, 4to, price 2l. 2s. half bound. The Maps by SIDNEY HALL.

"We have seldom had the pleasure of reviewing a more ingenious, elegant, and at the same time philosophical and useful work. It is well worthy of public attention, as a specimen of art, independently of its merits as an original and eminently useful auxiliary to the study of the most important branches of human knowledge."—New Monthly Magazine.

"Mr. Seeley has published a highly-useful series of Twenty-one Maps, with Historical Illustrations by Mr. Quin. They are all on the same scale, and successively point out, from the creation to the year 1828, the progress of Geographical Discovery, the rise and decay of Nations and Empires, and their political changes; so that by merely glancing the eye on any Map, we discover the actual state of the world at its date; and by comparison with any other, the alterations which have occurred; every place being in the same relative spot in the successive photos, and the tints and colouring being significant, and connected with the accompanying text, which contains a well condensed Syllabus of Universal History. We know of no publication which forms a more valuable and interesting companion for the historical and geographical student, or for the instruction of young persons."—Christian Observer.

Application for Assurances or farther information, to be made to the Rev. J. HODGSON, or to JOHN BURDER, Esq., Secretaries to the Society, at the Office, 40, Parliament Street; or to any Local Agent in the Country.

. Prospectuses and Books of Rules may be had at the Office. Attendance from eleven to four o'clock, daily.

"This Society is strictly confined to the Clergy and their families, and is distinguished from other institutions by the title of 'THE CLERGY MUTUAL ASSURANCE SOCIETY.'" Particular attention is requested in the addressing letters to "No. 40, Parliament Street."

This SOCIETY was formed for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Clergy, 1st, To the important advantages to be derived from the system of Assurance in general; 2dly, To give them an opportunity of making Assurances not offered or admitted in other public Assurance Offices; and 3dly, To keep down the Rates of Assurance at the lowest possible sum, by an inexpensive management, and a division every FIVE YEARS of the TOTAL AMOUNT of Profits (in which no Proprietors share) amongst the assured Members who may be entitled to them. Assurances may be made for a sufficient sum to be paid during sickness, infirmity, and old age, to meet the unavoidable expense of a Curate; for capital Sums or Annuities, to provide for the education of Children at School, or College, and for equipping them out in the world; for the maintenance of Orphan Children during Infancy, from the day of the Death of the Father, &c. &c. Members are secured from personal liability by the special provisions of an Act of Parliament.

Attention has been gradually awakened amongst all orders of the Clergy, to the important uses of this SOCIETY, and the business of it has very considerably increased within the last year, and is increasing every week. If it should be found, as by many it is supposed it will be, that life is of longer duration on an average amongst the Clergy than amongst the community at large, Profits upon Life Assurance in this SOCIETY will result in a corresponding ratio. The whole of these Profits will be returned. A Life Assurance Policy is entitled to its full share of profit from the day of its date. One-fourth part of the total amount of premiums paid for Life Assurances in and during the first seven years of this Institution, was returned back again as a bonus to the assured Members, and appropriated to a reduction of their future premiums, thus making the Rates of Premium which had been paid for the same during such seven years, 25 per cent. less than in the following Table. For instance, a Clergyman at the age of 50, having assured £1000 upon his Life in the year 1832, and having paid for the same up to 1836, five Annual Premiums of £43. 13s. 4d. each, received a bonus in cash of about £50 to be appropriated to the reduction of his future premium, so that in fact he paid only £33. 13s. 4d. or thereabouts, during the five first years of his assurance, or £3. 7s. 4d. for each sum of £100 assured, instead of £4. 7s. 4d. Any sum not less than £50, and not exceeding £2500, may be assured upon Life by any Clergyman, or the Father, Mother, Wife, Widow, Son, Daughter, Brother, Sister, of any Clergyman, upon terms as below; and the period appointed for the next bonus is 31st May, 1841.
